Speaking of stamps, it is interesting to note in the Washington correspondence of the New York Herald that Postmaster-General New has decided to place on public exhibition at divers points our government's official collection of postage stamps which recently captured a special prize at the international stamp display in London. It includes, of course, all the regular stamps of the government since 1847, when the first postage was issued in denominations of five and ten cents: and also the so-called "errors," such as inverted imprints and wrong colors, which now bring gilt-edged prices from wealthy collectors. To the average layman an interesting feature of this collection is the Department stamps. Beginning in 1873, and until the mid-eighties, each of the Cabinet Departments, State, Treasury, War, Navy, Justice and Post Office and Interior had its own distinctive stamp issue. So had the President's office, and likewise the Bureau of Agriculture.

According to the despatch, the government collection will be put on exhibition in "several large cities," going first to Indianapolis, thence to Chicago, Buffalo, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. Syracuse, one of the "largest cities," must have a look at it. That is a matter that can safely be trusted to the energy and perseverance of the Syracuse Philatelic Society, a wide-awake and flourishing organization. — Syracuse Herald.

MEET MR. HOLDEN

Under the name of the Holden Stamp Co., C. H. Holden, a well-known philatelist of Detroit, has opened up a stamp business in that city. He is located at 501 Hodges Bldg., where he is prepared to meet the wants of the stamp trade. Mr. Holden is not only familiarly known to the philatelists of Detroit, but has a national reputation in the trade, having inaugurated monthly auction sales in 1891. We bespeak for the firm the patronage of our readers.

MR. PACK'S ACTIVITIES.

By Frank L. Coes.

At the risk of duplicating information, I would call your attention to the picture appearing in the current (August) issue of the Farm Journal (Wilmer Atkinson Co., Philadelphia), on page 32.

The heading reads:—"Recently another standing army sailed for France. Charles Lathrop Pack, at right, presented, as president of the American Tree Association, a shipment of millions of tree seeds, the gift of the association to the new Consul General for France. These were placed on the U. S. S. Lafayette to be taken to France and used to reforest the war-ravaged area."

Those who know Mr. Pack will recognize the idea of this most thoughtful effort, and the ones who have met him will appreciate the smile and pose of this star of Philately.

Perhaps this effort on the part of the Tree association through their President will in a measure offset the fulminations of the reverend gentleman in England who bemoaned the cost of the Ferrary British Guiana with the "design he could draw with his left foot." The culminative result of such an effort is beyond the ken of any, but it is the kind of thoughtful constructive effort that shows the leaders of Philately are more than mere collectors, and are people of broad vision and full of thought for others.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—George W. Angers in a letter bearing the new 2c Harding stamp calls attention to the fact that it bears a postmark of Sept. 4, the first day upon which the stamp was used in Northampton, Mass. The stamp is in very general use as we go to press.

—From N. Y. City comes the following advertising cancellation:—"Electrical & Industrial Exposition, Grand Central Palace, Oct. 17 to 27, '23." From Toronto (courtesy of G. H. Crouch) "From Postal Educational Exhibition 1923."

—A new advertising cancellation is reported by Ray Zorn. It comes from New York City and reads in four lines:—"Chemical Industries Exposition, Sept. 17-22."

—Thos. H. Drake, 10 Cooper St., Colony St., Winnipeg, Man., Can., would like to correspond with some collector who has specialized in Dutch Indies.

—We have received a clipping from the Takoma Park, Md., News giving the particulars of a philatelic exhibit held in connection with a local fair. Prizes were awarded for worthy collections and the judge was Milton Whitney, a well-known stamp collector. Publicity such as this is commended by L. W. Morrisey who favors us with the clipping, and heartily endorse his good judgment.

—Several new advertising cance tions have reached us recently. Am them may be mentioned from Detroit "Michigan State Fair, Detroit, Aug. Sept. 9, 1923;" from San Ang Tex.:—"Allwest Texas Exposition, Angelo, Oct. 8-13, 1923;" and from L coln, Nebr.:—"Nebraska State Fair Exposition, Lincoln, Sept. 27."

—The Cross Stamp Co. is now loca at 99 Nassau St., N. Y. City. firm has taken over a large stock o well-known wholesale stamp dealer New York, which enable them to m the demands of the trade in both 1 and 20th century stamps.

—A new cancellation has come to h from Frank A. Goldsmith, Beverly "V. F. W. Encampment and 80th DI SION Reunion Norfolk, 27-31."

—A batch of clippings has been ceived from Walter Loebl. None them are quite suited for our use we are grateful for the courtesy.

—Frank P. Brown sends us a clipp that is copyrighted or we would gla use it in the Weekly. It gives the p ticulars of a provisional issue of stan in Berlin of an 8,000 mark denominati It was made by overprinting old 25 stamps and the demand was so gr that official notices were posted urg stamp collectors to hold off their patr age for a few days until opportun was given business houses to mail th correspondence.

—Charles J. Rose, recently of Po land, Oregon, has returned to his home at Maywood, Illinois, which he always retained as his advertising hea quarters. Mr. Rose had the pleasure meeting many dealers in the west d ing the course of an extensive tour; a we feel indebted to Mr. Rose for the g of a most remarkable snap-shot of Pre dent Harding taken at Portland that think enough of to have framed. this connection, we wish to thank E. L. Stuart for several remarkal photographs of the Harding fune train that he took at Mansfield, Ohio.

SOUTH CAROLINA STAMPS.

By FRANK L. APPLEGATE.

Very intriguing are the new South rolina "Business License Tax" stamps, full description and samples of which ve just been received from Mr. Robt. . Tribble of that state. Certain values these stamps were placed on sale ay 1 as required by the new luxury law, taxing cigarettes, tobacco, am-nition, etc.

Of peculiar interest to revenue col-tors are odd and unusual denomina-ns, revenue schedules generally allow- for greater range in this than in the e of postal ratings. South Carolina s already given us much that is unique this line with her 5/8 mill, 3 1/8 mill, and mill feed inspection, and her 6 1/4c, c, 6 3/4c, 6 7/8c, 62 1/2c, and $6.25, and er values of oil inspection stamps; this new emission being for the pur-e of collecting a general revenue tax logous to our National proprietary ying cards, and wine stamp taxes will of perhaps more general interest to rank and file of U. S. collectors. In t, I think we may now expect a revival interest in state revenue issues with advent of the new stamps of South olina supplemented by the interesting issues of Iowa and South Dakota, h others perhaps to follow.

have not yet seen nor have I yet ob-ned a full list of the documentary nps now required in South Carolina, have from Mr. Tribble a full schedule the Business License Stamps, only ain values of which are as yet avail-. Although lithographed they bear imprint of those celebrated stamp ducers, The American Bank Note Co. design is 35x21 1/2mm in size, and well executed. The stamps are per-ated 12 and what I have seen are well ered. Following is the list of de-inations in full which certainly splits cent into infinitesimal and unprece-ted fractions.

STAMPS OF THE DETROIT MATCH WORKS.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

THE RICHARDSON MATCH CO.

1c Black.

This stamp differs from the 1c stamp of D. M. Richardson only in having the name on the upper part of the circular band around the portrait disk changed to read "The Richardson Match Co." and the address "Detroit, Mich." at the bottom of this band in smaller letters. This die and that of the 3c stamp were not altered until December, 1875, although commencing in April, 1875, all the stamps from the D. M. Richardson 1c and 3c plates were ordered by The Richardson Match Co.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Dec. 8, 1875.
First issued, Dec., 1875.
Last issued, Apr. 26, 1883.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
42,300,117 issued on silk paper.
118,952,819 isued on pink and watermarked paper.

The large quantity issued indicates that about 16 plates in all were used. The die was altered and the first plates from the new die were made by the National Bank Note Company. Probably later plates were made by the American Bank Note Company and by the Bureau. All the stamps on silk and pink paper were printed by the National Bank Note Company. Those on watermarked paper were printed by the National Bank Note Company, the American Bank Note Company and by the Bureau. The different printings on watermarked paper can rarely be identified because no method of identifying them other than by imprint is known, and copies showing imprints are rare.

The Detroit Directory for 1877 lists the Richardson Match Co., and the Union Mills Co., David M. Richardson, Pres., and John E. Oxnard, Treas. The address was Woodbridge Street, corner of 8th. In 1879 the officers of the Richardson Match Co., were given as R. A. Alger, President, and D. M. Richardson Manager, with the note Telegraph, Round, & Parlor Matches". Mr. Alger is believed to be the Russell A. Alger who was afterward prominent in Michigan National politics and was Secretary of War in President McKinley's Cabinet during the Spanish War. The Directory for 1881 lists the Diamond Match Co., D. M. Richardson, Manager, at the same old address.

B'WAY STAMP CO. 115-117 Nassau St. NEW YORK CITY

3c Blue.

This stamp differs from the 3c stamp of D. M. Richardson only in having the firm name in the band surrounding the portrait oval changed to read "The Richardson Match Co." and the address at the lower part of the band is condensed and now reads "Detroit, Mich."

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Dec. 8, 1875.
First issued, Dec., 1875.
Last issued, Feb., 1876.
170 stamps per sheet (17x10).
4,021,530 issued on silk paper.

The die was altered by the National Bank Note Company and the entire issue was printed by that concern. Probably there was only one plate. The issue cost the Richardson concern nearly $110,000.

The stamp varies little in shade and is usually very similar to the darker shades of its predecessors on silk paper. It is not known to have been used in multiple and the writer has not noted any pairs.

Either the stamp was very common or else its true scarcity was little appreciated in the 1880's. Scott's quotation in 1886 and the Sterling price in 1888 were 15c. It is so easily mistaken for its predecessor that for a good many years its value was much underrated. The Scott prices were:

1901-1922,	3.00

The largest collection of private die stamps which was ever gotten together, so far as the writer knows, contained 17 copies of the 1c red D. M. Richardson, between 15 and 20 copies of the 3c vermilion and 9 copies of the 3c blue Richardson Match Co. The reader may draw his own conclusions.

THE NEW 2c HARDING MEMORIAL.

Various subscribers have submitted specimens of the new Harding Memorial stamp used on the first day, September 1. The firm of Geo. W. Linn Co. favors us with one postmarked Marion, Ohio, Sept. 1, 4 P. M. A mourning envelope bears in the lower left-hand corner a memorial inscription to Pres. Harding, showing date of birth and death. Fred L. Pauly of Lebanon, Ohio, who chanced to be in Marion Sept. 1 also used one of these stamps upon the cover and enclosed a block of four for our inspection. A. A. Leve submits for chronicle a similar Sept. 1 cover. To Philip H. Ward of Washington must be given the credit of sending us a Sept. 1 Washington postmark. All these courtesies are greatly appreciated.

EDITORIAL.

We have received a sheaf of letters bearing the new memorial stamp from correspondents who remembered us in connection with this new issue that was released on the time scheduled. From H. S. Adair, ex-secretary of the American Philatelic Society we have had a half-dozen envelopes, each one of which bore the postmark of a city in Ohio, other than Marion, with the September 1 date. W. H. Schaffner of Marion sent a pair from Marion and Howard C. Beck a block of four from Baltimore and P. H. Ward, Jr's., copy was postmarked Washington. The Geo. W. Linn Co., mailed a copy on a mourning envelope from Marion. All of these envelopes bore the September 1 date. The stamp is an effective one, employing as we all know, the favored profile of President Harding, which makes him appear so natural and so representative of the best of American citizenship. The design is not crowded although it is not sparing of detail and one receives a feeling of comfort in looking at the features of Harding as they are shown on this miniature. We believe that there is a real need for the stamp and that it will well perform its mission of consolation. The postal administration deserves the thanks of the people for handling so competently the preparation and production of this stamp.

George W. Linn of Columbus went to Marion with Mr. Adair in order that they might witness the christening of the memorial stamp and he saw enough to justify the pilgrimage. From particulars furnished us we learn that the first stamps sold officially were sold to the father of President Harding. The stamps were placed on sale at nine o'clock when there were about two hundred persons in line. The post-office was then closed and the persons in the queue were ushered outside where Dr. Harding bought the first sheet. He addressed a letter and stuck a stamp on it while the cameramen played up the spectacle. The public was then served and for a while the activity was inspiring, the movie men being careful to get all the "action." In reality the first stamp was sold at about 9.20 A. M., September first. It happened that Mr. Linn was willing to forego the opportunity to get into the movies by going outside of the office, in order to achieve first place in the line of buyers. He stuck to the post-office window and obtained through his patience the first stamps that were passed over the counter on the regular window sales. Mr. Linn certainly has had his historic moment and he must feel very close to the Harding memorial stamp.

In order that our readers may understand the conditions as applying to the Harding memorial stamp, we may say that the printing will be a somewhat limited one and the stamps are not intended to supplant the current two cent stamps. Postmasters are requested to apply for "restricted quantities of the stamp only" after September 1st. As for the new air mail stamps, they will not to be placed on sale at all offices but only at such places as may be designated later, according to the third assistant postmaster-general, who adds that postmasters should not make requisitions for the stamps as they will be supplied only to those post-offices "authorized to place them on sale when they are available."

During the week past a development that will appeal particularly to collectors has been reported from Washington. When it was told that the government exhibit of U. S. stamps that was awarded a special prize at the London exhibition had been shown to the delegates to the convention held at Washington recently, a good many philatelists wrote to the department suggesting that it would be fitting for the frame to be shown in some of the centers of philatelic population; and we now learn that the authorities have recognized the desirability of showing the exhibit to a selected number of cities. In fact, it is announced that already the frame has been sent to Indianapolis where it was scheduled to remain as an attraction until September 8th, when according to the plan it is to be on display until September 22nd, in Chicago. According to the itinerary, the following cities will be given an opportunity to inspect the exhibit: Detroit, Marion, Ohio, Buffalo, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. "Later, it will be placed on public display for the first time in Washington," says the Chicago Tribune; and it is evident that the showing made for the benefit of the delegates to the philatelic conventions was considered something in the nature of a private view. We commend the liberal policy of Third Assistant Postmaster-General Glover in developing the interest of the public in the workings of his department; and collectors certainly appreciate the attention that is being paid to their wishes by the postal administration.

From Mr. C. J. West of Washington, who was in charge of the registration of members and guests at the recent convention of the American Philatelic Society, we have received a roster of those who reported in attendance. We find that a representation of one hundred and sixty-two members was made and the guests numbered ninety-three. It will be seen from these figures that it is becoming a problem to handle a convention crowd and that those who plan for the entertainment of the delegates and guests are now confronted with a proposition that taxes the best business resources of the home folks, if the programme is successfully followed. Opinions are now being expressed that the task imposed on the convention city mem bers is of such proportions as to mak the prospect of entertainment one c serious aspect; and it is felt that th time must come in these prosperous day of philately and of the American Phila telic Society when a curtailment of th time devoted to social features will hav to be made in order that due attentio may be given to the business of the con vention itself. The entertainment a Washington was planned by experience minds and was of the most edifyin kind but we wager that few of us gav much thought to the immense amount c expense and energy expended to ensu the success of the social features.

In a recent issue of the Chicago New we find in Keith Preston's "Hit or Miss column, the following confession:

"ME. N. U.'s recent query as to th educational value of alphabet noodl is food for thought in dead earnest. set us to thinking that despite the se vice of a couple of schools and three c four universities we are practically sel educated, having learned our zoolog from animal crackers, our geograph from stamp collecting and our histor from the Henty books."

Keith is our idea of a great sou He does not need to be a member of th National Geographic Society to qualif as a citizen of the world. He is equall at home in the perfumed precincts o Pristina, the fastnesses of Faridkot c the igloos of Ingermanland of the north and his stamps made Keith the geograph ical genius that he is. Some months ag when Keith mentioned philately in hi column, we spoke as follows and as h did not take advantage of our impulsiv generosity on that occasion we repeat th offer, trusting that again he will set a example of gentlemanly repression:

Even our dulled eye can see the lam bent flames of genius that play aroun the column conducted by Keith Presto in the Chicago Daily News. We'l crown Keith with a Dunlap, if he wil betake himself to Dunlap's store o Michigan Avenue and ask Frank Taylo the boss, to charge it to us. We kno that Keith Preston is the sextuple shoote of snappy syntax as well as a pillar o philately, past and prospective, for doe he not clip our recent rhapsody based o a philatelic question propounded by him in the column and print it in heavy typ in the Chicago Daily News, with th head, as provided by our hero, "W Qualify as Collector?" Little remain to be told: we did not send in th clipping.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 WEST 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

This department is privileged to receive a very valuable set of notes and illustrations of cancellation varieties on the Three Cent Green, U. S. Issues of 1870-1871, 1873, 1879 and 1882, prepared by Dr. R. Martin Bruns, 2274 Grand Concourse, New York City.

Dr. Bruns has prepared the descriptive notes in the hopes that those who have such cancellations on cover or otherwise in such condition that the name of the town where used can be determined, will write to him and aid with the identification of each one. This will be a valuable aid to Dr. Bruns in the preparation of an exhaustive book on "Cancellations to be Found on the Three Cent Green" which he is working on. His work promises to be the most complete and valuable ever published on this subject.

Any who have interesting unidentified cancellations on the three cent green can help along by forwarding same to Dr. Bruns. If he cannot already identify such cancellations, he will make drawings for publication.

Be sure and register all such sendings and enclose return registration. Dr. Bruns is a member of the A. P. S., No. 5540. Credit will be given to those who help identify cancellations in Dr. Bruns' forthcoming book.

Dr. Bruns has overcome the usual objection made by collectors to publishing reproductions of cancellations. This objection is that publication of such drawings is likely to encourage counterfeiting. He has accomplished this by making slight changes in each drawing which, while not sufficient to prevent recognition by any collector owning copies, would nevertheless make these drawings useless to anyone who might wish to make improper use of them.

The writer never places in his collection any stamp that shows traces of two cancellations, unless there is absolutely no doubt about the genuineness of both. For example, a fine red cancellation on a stamp that shows traces, however faint, of a black cancellation, is usually sufficient evidence to cast doubt on the genuineness of the red marking. This, coupled with the fact that the color of the cancellation if a fake, will invariably differ slightly from the shades of orange, vermilion, brownish vermilion, bright red, strawberry red, reddish magenta, real magenta, purplish magenta, purple, violet and blue used during the period from 1870 to 1882 (the limit of the writer's collection), is enough to throw it in the discard, or at least into a collection that the writer is accumulating of forgeries and suspected cancellations. Usually, the value of an unused specimen of the stamp is sufficient to make it profitless for the fakir to use unused copies for his nefarious work.

Here are Dr. Bruns' unidentified cancellations:—

UNITED STATES FIRST DAY COVERS

With the commencement of the new air-mail service, all collectors will be interested in souvenirs in the form of the new 8c, 16c and 24c cancelled on their day of issue. These were issued in Washington without a great amount of advance notice and it is doubtful if many were sent out. While a few last I offer the three denominations used from Washington, as follows: 8c (August 15), 16c (August 17) and 24c (August 21) on small, neat covers clearly postmarked.

8c Aeroplane cover, 1st day 50c
16c Aeroplane cover, 1st day 75c
24c Aeroplane cover, 1st day 1.00

HARDING MEMORIAL STAMP.

You will also want a 2c Harding Memorial Stamp and by the time this advertisement appears I expect to have these on cover used the first day. We have never had such a stamp issued so promptly as a memorial and many will specialize in the lone emission.

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

If you have any 10c blacks you've reason to be proud of, please drop me a line. [tf

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—As previously announced by the Department, the 2c black, Harding Memorial Stamps was placed on sale at both Marion, Ohio, and at the Philatelic Stamp Agency in Washington on Saturday morning, September 1st. A quantity of 200,000 were personally delivered to the Postmaster at Marion on August 31st by Mr. M. L. Eidsness, Jr., Supt., Division of Stamps, and these were placed on sale the following morning at 9 A. M. The Philatelic Stamp Agency did not open their doors until 9.30 A. M. giving the Marion office the first opportunity of distributing them to the public. At the time they were ready at Washington there was a line of fully twenty-five collectors waiting for them and they continued until the closing hour of noon.

These stamps are printed in sheets of four hundred from flat plates and sold in panes of one hundred. They are marked paper. A full description of the perforated 11 and printed upon unwater-variety was given in this Chronicle last week.

A die proof of this stamp, bound in black morocco, together with one of the first stamps was presented to Mrs. Warren G. Harding by the Postmaster-General. Further proofs were also presented to Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. Harry S. New, wife of the Postmaster-General and to Miss Emily B. McLean, the little two-year-old daughter of Edward B. McLean, Editor of the Washington Post and a great friend of the former President.

The Postmaster-General also used large mourning envelopes, similar in size to the standard size 7 and paper, with a large mourning border. Some of these were distributed with the stamps upon them. I happened to send the Postmaster-General a special delivery letter on the morning of the issue and he acknowledged this and very thoughtfully sent it by special delivery in one of the above described envelopes, franking it by means of a strip of the Harding stamps cancelled on day of issue.

On the first day the Washington Agency had on hand the four panes from plates 14852 and 14853, the northeast panes from 14855, 14856, 14857, 14859 and 14861 together with both of the upper panes from 14854. There were two very distinct shades, a deep black and a light gray, due to the heaviness and lightness of the inking.

2c Black (September 1, 1923).

The formal opening of the coast to coast air mail service has been postponed and a date as to when it will be inaugurated has not at this writing been definitely fixed. The trial flights, however, were very successful and it is hoped that the regular service will be started during September.

The Information Service of the Post Office Department is in the habit of not only sending out information regarding the administration and actions of the department but now and then runs in a humorous story. Under date of August 28th they issued for immediate release the following:—

"'Pigs is pigs' and 'eggs is eggs' and the twain makes 'ham and aigs.' But in this case it's different. A case of eggs reaching a certain Arkansas village for transhipment to Memphis, Tenn., was devoured at the station by stray hogs, probably of the razor-back variety for which the section is famous, according to a report received at the Post Office Department today.

'The hogs has got a start here eating eggs,' the village postmaster reported, 'and they will not quit until they are killed or put up, or a depot or truck or something put here for the protection of mail. Every time we turn our backs the hogs come to the eggs.'

That the case is really serious is attested by the Memphis postmaster who, commenting on the case in forwarding it to Washington, said: 'You will note that these 'hawgs,' not content with devouring the 'aigs' have also 'et' a box of overalls left there'."

COLOMBIA.—Though the Air stamps of this country are issued by a private company operating under Government license, they have a thoroughly official status, and may possibly have to be included in the catalogue eventually. Meanwhile collectors of Air-post stamps will be glad to have the following information, kindly given us by General Ridgway. May, 1923. New issue. Design slightly changed from previous series, now showing a waterplane instead of an aeroplane. Printed in Hamburg. Overprinted "A"; 5c, yellow; 10c, bright green; 15c, red; 20c, grey (overprint in red and also in black; 30c, deep blue; 50c, deep green. A feature of interest concerning these Colombian Air stamps is that they are affixed to correspondence coming from abroad, in addition to the ordinary postage stamps of the country concerned and correspondence so franked completes the last stage of its journey by Air. The "A" overprint on the series described above indicates that the country of origin is Germany.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

COSTA RICA.—Señor G. Noriega kindly informs us that two new sets will shortly appear, one to commemorate the centenary of the birth of ex-President Dr. Jesus Jimenez, whose portrait has figured on several stamps of the 1901, 1907 and 1910 series, while the other will be a definite issue to replace the series of 1910. The former will include stamps of 1, 2, 4, 5 and 20 cent, and 1 colon, while the latter consists of the same values with the addition of 3, 10, 12 and 40c stamps.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

FALKLAND ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the following new items for this colony, 2d, mauve, 2½d, purple on yellow and 3sh, green all script watermark, engraved as before.

GERMANY.—On account of the enormous fall of the mark postal rates will be raised by 2,000% on August 20th. New values from 20,000 to 100,000M will be created.

SIAM.—Donald W. Smythe advises that he has just received a copy of the 25s, same design as the 1920 issue but printed on white paper. Mr. Smythe adds that apparently this is the only new one as the current issue, purchased at Bangkok, shows the other values to be of the preceding series.

We have not just purchased a large collection—we do not attempt to fill want lists of stamps cataloging under one dollar—but we do have a stock of both U. S. and foreign, of those stamps cataloging more than one dollar, which is always at the request of those collectors who have filled the cheaper spaces. Furthermore only fine and superb copies will be found arranged on our Elite cards.

Why not find out what we can send you from among your particular wants?

STAMP EXHIBIT GOING TO 9 CITIES.

U. S. Display Winner at London, to be Shown Here.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5. So great has been the interest expressed by philatelists and others in the American stamp exhibit which recently captured a sp prize at the international stamp exh tion in London that Postmaster-Gen
New today mapped out an itinerary nine cities where the exhibit will be played for a few days at a time.

The display will go first to Ind

From the 4 Corners of the Globe unsolicited testimonials are flowing in to tell me that my packets and collections are the best on the market. Here are some of these letters in extenso:

J. L. Riedel, Nürnberg 2 (Bavaria). Boston, 7 April, 1922.

Dear Sir: Your letter of March 17th and shipment of March 4th both arrived on the same day and our bankers have instructed us to hand you the enclosed check for M40350—in full liquidation of the account. The stamps were very satisfactory, and we wish to thank you for executing our order in such a prompt and business-like manner. Please send us immediately the following:

(Follows a new order for 10,635 packets from 100 to 10,000 different stamps.)

We understand that your prices will compare favorably with those of other packet dealers in Germany and we have sufficient confidence in your concern to know that you will not over-charge us merely because we didn't ask for quotations before placing an order.

Yours very truly,

H. E. HARRIS & CO.

Dear Sir: My order for stamps, despatched by you on December 4th, 1922, safely received and thank you very much for them. I am simply charmed with the stamps and their excellent condition and manner of packing.

REV. EDGAR CALVERT. The Mission House, St. Eustatius, Dutch West Indies.

Dear Sir: I received your first sending of packets in good order and was well satisfied with contents.

A. C. CAMPE, Third Ave., Crows Nest, North Sidney, Australia.

Mr. J. L. Riedel, Nürnberg.

Dear Sir. Received full consignment of stamps as ordered from you and much pleased with same. That 1000-variety packet is a great value for the small price asked.

E. C. AUGUSTIN, 1000 18th St., Milwaukee.

I do not doubt that these testimonials will convince you to try my packets, if you have not already done so. My prices are the following:

50 different stamps per 100 packets only	$ 1.10
100 different stamps (1000 packets $18) per 100 packets only	2.25
200 different stamps per 100 packets only	5.00
300 different stamps per 100 packets only	11.75
500 different stamps per 10 packets only	2.25
1,000 different with premium, $1; per 10 packets only	7.50
2,000 different mounted, $5; not mounted only	4.00
3,000 different mounted	10.00
5,000 different only	35.00
10,000 different stamps mounted in 20 books only	100.00

Cash with order. Send greenbacks or bank drafts for amounts over $10. Register all letters containing cash. Postage extra on orders under $10.00.

Did You Profit???

During the past season, I have tried to obtain for my customers stamps which had a future in my estimation.

These I offered in my advertisements and in my weekly bargain lists at fair, reasonable prices, based on actual market value. In checking up several hundred of these offers with Scott's advance sheets, I find many considerable advances in value, some of several hundred per cent.

If you followed my ads and my lists, you were one of the many hundred who profited.

If you did not, it is time that you get acquainted with me and my fine stock of 20th Century stamps.

erf. 11.

Clinton, Iowa—Type III, the small type electro, comes in two settings, both being about equally plentiful. In one setting the "I" of Iowa falls below the "L" of Clinton while in the other it falls beneath the "I" of Clinton.

Federalsburg, Md.—I took two Federalsburg 1 cent Pilgrim precancels off a couple of auction catalogues and noticed that there was a difference in spacing. The medium sized electro which is now current apparently comes with spacings of 12 mm and 13 mm between lines. The former seems to be the scarcer.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—The minor variety specialist finds an interesting city in Ft. Wayne. Type II, the small type electro just going out of use, has three distinct settings. In the first the "I" of Ind. falls directly under the "T" of Fort and in the second below the interval between "T" of Fort and "W" of Wayne, and in the third below the interval of "R" and "T" of Fort. It will be well to look over your Fort Waynes if these items appeal to your collecting viewpoint.

Howesville, Ky.—A new Kentucky member of the "Royal Order of Precancels" is Howesville. Only the 10 cent new issue has been noticed. It comes normal and inverted in the U-8 type.

Philadelphia, Pa.—In type IX the "A" of "PA." falls below the "E" of "PHILADELPHIA" ninety out of one hundred times. The other ten stamps show it beneath the "L" and of course this latter variety is much scarcer than the former.

Youngstown, Ohio—Mr. Chas. Hermann reports that in the U-16 (small roller) type there are two distinct spacings. In one the "i" of Ohio falls under the "s" of Youngstown and in the other under the "t." Mr. Hermann also submits a 1c New York, U-13 roller showing the errors "NBY" for "NEW" and "NV" for N. W. These occur on the lower line.

Miscellaneous—Santa Barbara, Calif., and New Ulm, Minn., have adopted the U-9 electro which makes a pretty showing. Zarephath, N. Y., is another new comer which uses the U-22 handstamp. Mason City, Iowa, and Jamesville, Wisc., have both added the U-3 handstamp to their precanceling apparatus. Both of these cities have used the U-1 electro for some years. Kansas City, Mo., U-3 type and Indianapolis, Ind. (current type) have been noticed on the old and new special delivery stamps, respectively.

Let me again say that I am gladly at the service of any one desiring information of any sort on precancels.

OUR FIVE YEAR HONOR CLUB.

K. E. Parker, New Britain, Conn.
Frank L. Coes, Worcester, Mass.
E. L. Burg, East Prospect, Pa.
Ulric H. Childress, Winthrop, Mass.
Dr. L. B. Mitchell, Tampa, Fla.
W. L. Babcock, M. D., Detroit, Mich.
F. M. Cockrell, New Orleans, La.

Seven five-year renewals in a week!

First, Mr. Parker, who writes us such a fine letter that we quote it in full as a measure of appreciation. The Courant article referred to is an excellent bit of philatelic publicity propaganda occupying almost a page. Here is Mr. Parker's letter:—

"I see by my wrapper that my subscription is about due, and in order that I won't find such a condition again for a while I enclose a money order for five dollars ($5.00) for five years' renewal.

I had just about given up hope of seeing any more of Mr. West's M. & M. articles, but I see that they have begun again. Altho I do not collect M. & M. (except such as come my way by chance) I find Mr. West's articles very interesting, combining as they do philatelic information and data about the peculiar little match factories and the beginnings of the industry which is decidedly entertaining. With such a force of writers as Messrs. West, Poole, Huber, Ward, Howes and Bates, I feel that your magazine will contain enough of interest to keep it going for five years, and I also hope that I have enough life in me to last five years.

I am enclosing an article of mine recently published in the Hartford Courant. This paper has always been partial to stamps, often taking up the matter editorially, and mine is not the first article that has appeared in it.

Well, good-bye to renewal slips for 1,825 days!"

Frank L. Coes of the Coes Wrench Co., Worcester, Mass., has been admitted to membership in the Renewal Honor Club. Mr. Coes is an occasional correspondent of the WEEKLY and whenever he writes he has something to say. It would please many of our readers if he could spare a little time from his many activities to use the columns of the WEEKLY for a contribution once in a while. Mr. Coes feels that something should be done to correct the abuse in connection with sending out unsolicited approval selections. If any dealer takes advantage of Mr. Coes' address at the head of this article in this direction something will drop hard on the offender.

One of our yellow renewal slips comes in signed E. L. Burg, East Prospect, Pa. Mr. Burg encloses his five years' renewal so easily as to cause us to feel that he is perfectly satisfied with the proposed investment. The same may be said of Ulric H. Childress of Winthrop, Mass., who wishes his subscription renewed similarly for five years. We also enter as a member of the club Dr. L. B. Mitchell of Tampa, Fla., whose five-year renewal has come to hand.

Our old friend Warren L. Babcock M. D., of Detroit, Mich., sends in his check for $5. Dr. Babcock is well and favorably known in Detroit, for his philatelic activities. The writer has occasion to recall the ocean voyage of three years ago when the doctor returning from England brought with him many tangible evidences of a profitable trip.

Just as we go to press a $5 renewal of subscription is received from F. M. Cockrell, New Orleans, La. Our thanks are due to him for his faith in the WEEKLY.

AN HOUR WITH MR. BARTLETT.

One El Pasoan has a stamp collection valued at many thousands of dollars. He lives in a small, comfortable home and works eight hours every day at the carpenter trade.

"I'm not collecting stamps for money but for the pleasure I get out of it," said J. .D. Bartlett, 311 East Yandell boulevard. "If I bought and sold stamps it would cease to be a pleasure and would become work."

On Mr. Bartlett's table was a large stack of letters from people all over the world who want to exchange stamps with him.

Among the countries represented were Czecho-Slovakia, Bulgaria, Austria, Germany, Poland, France, Canada, Mexico, Brazil and Salvador.

Within the last month two stamp collectors, one from France, the other from Hawaii, stopped here to see him. Mr. Bartlett is listed in "Who's Who in Philately," a book containing the names of about 1,000 of the stamp collectors of the world.

CLUB OF COLLECTORS.

Mr. Bartlett is president of the local stamp club, C. M. Newman, vice president, and A. P. Myers, secretary-treasurer. The club is preparing a stamp exposition to be given in the early fall.

"How much is this book worth?" Mr. Bartlett was asked. It was one of the different Panama issues that he termed a "specialized book."

"About $3,000," he replied.

In his collection are 75 books and many of the stamps have never been placed in books. It would require 135 for them all. He has 75,000 different varieties which run in value from a few cents to $200. In his stock used for trading purposes are millions of stamps.

"I have no really valuable stamps," he explained. "At a sale in Paris the other day a 5-cent stamp issued at Boscowen, N. H., and the only one in existence, sold for $12,000 to an American named Hind.

"This was one of a collection belonging to an Austrian who lived in Paris. He died during the war, willing his collection to the Berlin museum. The allies decided the stamps should be confiscated and have already sold $1,500,000 worth of them. Two or three sales are to be held yet.

The highest price yet paid for a stamp was by Mr. Hind for a British Guiana 1-cent stamp of 1856. He gave $32,500 for it. So you see my stamps have little value."

Mr. Bartlett's first effort in collecting things was 41 years ago in St. Louis when as a boy he started saving tobacco tags. His is probably one of the most complete in the United States.

He saved and collected stamps until 1898 when he sold all he had except the United States issues. He published a magazine called the Curiosity Collector in South Amboy, N. J., for awhile and has published several books on stamps, the last one, which is just off the press, being "United States Revenue Stamps."

But stamps are not the only things Mr. Bartlett collects. He has a porcelain gambling chip which passes the same as money in the stores of Siam. In all he has 3,000 coins, including some buried with the Greeks 1600 years ago.

"Enough money was buried with the Greeks for them to buy passage through purgatory," he explained. "With the many excavations now being made many of these coins are dug up. They have no great value but are interesting to a collector."

Among the other things in his collection are:

Print from the copper plate placed in the corner stone of the White House at the time of its construction in 1857 when Fillmore was president and Daniel Webster, secretary of state.

Numerous arrowheads and fossils. He has supplied Smithsonian institute with several rare fossils.

North Carolina ballot for Jefferson Davis when he was candidate for president in 1861.

Bill of sale for a negro slave, Lucinda, for $550. dated May 9, 1847.

All state issues of state and bank notes during the "wildcat" period of 1852.

One of first federal $1 bills issued in 1862.

Postage currency issued in 3, 5, 10, 15, 25 and 50 cent denominations July 17, 1862, and continuing in use until 1875.

Manifest of slaves shipped like so much freight on S. S. Augusta from Savannah to New York City in 1860. The slaves were listed as Leonora, Maria, Georgia and Ann. Their ages, heights and shades of color were given.

The first two stamps in Mr. Bartlett's United States book were issued by the postmaster at New York City in 1845 and bear a picture of George Washington. They are valued at $50 each.

In the exhibit which the local stamp club is preparing to show this fall are a group of all Mexican stamps used from Maximilian's time to the present, including some issued by the late Pancho Villa. It will also include stamps of the new European countries. The date place have not yet been set.—El (Tex.) Herald.

Great Interest Taken In the Har
Memorial Stamp on Day of Issu

(Clipping from W. H. Schaffner.

Sale of the initial issue of 20 Harding memorial stamps which brought to Marion yesterday (Aug. Ed.) from Washington by M. L. ness, Jr., superintendent of the div of stamps of the post-office departr started this morning at 9 o'clock a Marion post-office. Dr. George T. H ing, father of the late President Har bought the first sheet of 100 stamps was the first of a line of several hun people who gathered several hours fore the sale opened.

Marion has the distinction of being first city in the United States to re the stamps and the Marion post-offi the only post-office in the United S with the exception of the Washin post-office to sell the stamps today. all indications the supply of 20 stamps will be exhausted before even Postmaster French Crow stated morning that a second shipment 200,000 Harding memorial stamps arrive in Marion this evening.

Over 40,000 of the 200,000 stamp ceived were sold on mail order req before the sale opened this morning.

Pathe moving picture men were o scene early this morning and took tures of the large crowds. A large ber of photographers, together with moving-camera men secured picture Dr. Harding and the first shee stamps.

Dr. F. W. Hitchings, of Cleve was the first man at the Marion office for the purpose of buying the morial stamps. Dr. Hitchings mot from Cleveland to Marion Friday ing and took his stand at the stamp dow at 7 o'clock this morning.

Owing to the congestion in the of the post-office building it was f necessary to conduct the sale of stamps on the steps in front of the office. Two small desks were p between the two large pillars at Church street entrance to the bui and the people lined up on the west of the entrance west to State street south on State street for nearly h block.

The first letter despatched from Marion post-office this morning beari Harding memorial stamp was maile F. A. Stengel. It was addressed to William C. Mills, of Columbus, dir of archaeological and historical so

All postal sub-stations in the city supplied with memorial stamps and sale was conducted at the sub-sta just the same as at the post-office buil There was no limit to the numbe stamps that could be purchased by person and one person bought $60 w —Daily Star.

HERE IS A CHANCE.

By H. R. ARNOLD.

While listening in on the radio evening I unexpectedly tuned in WMAQ the broadcasting station of Chicago Daily News whose statio located on the Hotel La Salle and subject, THE PONY EXPRESS, exceedingly interesting.

It seems that a reenactment of pony express ride is to be staged the old route, the riders starting from St. Joseph, Mo., thence to De and on to Frisco where it is expected ride will end and an attempt is to made by the riders to beat the schedule maintained in the old days.

The Daily News asks for suggest and criticisms from their listeners I wonder if there is not some on be found in this city who could del to the Daily News radio listeners an teresting talk on Philately. There be many stamp collectors listening nig to the talks coming from this stat besides the Daily News no doubt wo welcome a suggestion that such a be given from their broadcasting stat

MARKET IN MODERN COLONIALS.

The large Camel type of the Sudan always possess a fascination to the young collector, but although the lower values in this type are obsolete, having been displaced by the new small type no great increase of price is to be expected. It is in certain of the overprinted stamps, Service and Official, that scarcer items are to be found, and on the extremely low prices ruling for these in some quarters, the discerning collector can still pick up many bargains.

The pictorial set of 1914 of Egypt has always been very popular and interesting, and all values are very cheap. The two highest values are much the scarcest, but these are not expensive and within the reach of all purses, although some slight increase is to be expected, now that they are obsolete.

The incidence of a new watermark coinciding with the overprinting of this series has produced some scarce varieties, but although one value has already been displaced by the portrait type, the process may be slow, and the overprinted series will get commoner used as long as it continues on sale.

The long expected definite issue for Newfoundland is due any day now. This country is a model in not issuing unnecessary high values. The $1 Air Post, issued for a special purpose, is the highest so far. This stamp, after a period of little demand, has been moving up sharply lately. Perhaps the stock held by local dealers is getting low, and no dealers in this country hold any quantity, the total printing being only 10,000, of which but a small percentage was used for air postage.

The last Caribou series will probably show a sharp upward trend on being superseded. Several values, notably the 6c and 8c, have been obsolete some time, and are going to be good. It is curious how marked has been the increase of most modern sets of this country; the only exception being the Cabot issue of 1897, of which large printings were made, and which, in some values, has continued in issue for over 20 years.

Very different, however, was the fate of the 1910 and 1911 issues, which were rapidly sold out, and all values of over 5c are still soaring.

Mauritius is a colony that has produced some very scarce varieties in the last few years. The Edward set was the first to start the boom, and all values above 15c of this series are good. The 8c orange, however, having been obsolete for some time, is a value that is generally undervalued and cheap at catalogue quotations.

The Georgians, however, except the elusive 25c on surface tinted paper, did not give much excitement until the Script watermark appeared.

The 12c K. G. in grey and red having had a very small life are both likely to be good. The 50c K. G. on the old watermarked paper is another dark horse. It does not appear to have been on sale in London like many modern Georgians, and it is quite likely that dealers will soon find themselves short, with the inevitable result of soaring prices.

Montserrat, one of the most popular of colonies, has recently been causing some excitement by changing the colours of the low value stamps, without previous warning; and as the new watermark had only just been introduced some varieties had a remarkably short life, so that we have the usual factors for the production of rarities. It is too early yet to pick out the best, but the 2½d blue Script is almost certain to become scarce and worth buying now before prices rise much. Its history is very similar to the 2½d Trinidad on new paper, a stamp that is already catalogued at 2s6d. These stamps will probably move up in each fresh edition of the catalogue for some years. Anyone who can look back to the time when the Edwards, in a similar way, were changing their watermarks and colours at the same time will see how the 2½d bicolour stamps like those of St. Kitts, Grenada or Leeward of 1907 have gone up, and are now almost unprocurable in blocks.

Montserrat itself shows a good example of this, nearly all the bicoloured stamps of 1906 have turned out very well. The 5sh is easily the best, and although only catalogued at 5sh more than the 1908 issue on yellow paper, is really a much better stamp, and well worth the extra 5sh on its market price. The scarcity of the 1d of this series has been noted in these columns already, and it is not a stamp one can buy at half catalogue.

With the almost all-round tendency of price-appreciation following the difficult post war period, the best advice that can be given to the collector is to buy early and consistently in accordance with a definite plan even if it is necessary for purchases to be on a somewhat restricted scale.

No finer investment exists than in our hobby, compared with it the much-advertised "New Issues" of various Stocks and Shares, bearing perhaps a paltry 6%, are beneath notice to the discerning philatelist, and in no field of philately does a better prospect or a more pleasant vista open out than in the fascinating and popular group of 20th Century Colonials.—Philatelic Magazine.

Collecting stamps without a stamp paper is like collecting without a catalogue.

When a man tries to get a stamp collection for nothing, he succeeds in acquiring experience.

Collecting pairs and blocks of common used stamps will usually be found to provide a fascinating new sideline.

The stamp dealer who is wedded to the theory of quality rather than quantity is always sure of a market for his wares.

Yesterday has gone; to-morrow may never come; do it to-day. In other words, profit by the shortlived offers of our advertisers.

Rare postage stamps valued at more than $25,000 were once discovered on old letters in the garret of a house in Philadelphia.

"Miss, may I have a spoon," asked the aged stamp collector. "Not with me," said the pretty waitress, as she stamped her tiny foot.

When a coveted philatelic rarity is in sight, the heart-strings of the pronounced philatelist are keyed to such a tension that they all sound a high note.

Stamp collecting is an investment; it yields you rich returns in history, geography and personal pleasure; so it can truly be called the "King of Hobbies."

Benzine will completely shift the colours of the current German stamps in the numerical type. Do not use it on them unless you are ready to part with them.

In olden times we used to point to the 10,000 reis Official stamp of Brazil as the limit in high figures on a postage stamp, but since the Russians started painting the north of Europe and Asia red they have the Brazilians beaten with their 100,000 roubles.

You can only get enjoyment in collecting stamps if you do so purely and simply as a hobby, and not with a view to selling when you think the market is good. Leave the selling of your collection to those left on this earth after you have left it; they will not trouble about catalogue values.

Latvia's stamps heretofore have been in monetary values of the kopecs and roubles of Russia. This small Republic has now created a new coin called the lat, which is equal to 100 centimes. This necessitates a new issue, the first values of which have appeared, with the currency terms expressed in centimes and lats.

The Prefecture of Police forbade recently the sale of "Rhein Ruhr Hilfe" stamps, which agents of the German Government had put on sale in the French capital. A number of stamps were seized, and the judiciary and the police are actively seeking the persons who introduced them into France. The object of the stamp, as indicated by the name, is to raise funds for the resistance of the French occupation. The collectors of Paris declare that philately is international, but the French officials take the point of view that if the collectors are unable to restrain their ardour when it is detrimental to France they must be restrained. Supporting the Prefecture, the Prosecutor claims the right to intervention whenever stamps are issued for other purposes than the payment of the carriage on postal matter.—Postage Stamp.

ART AND POSTAGE.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

(This article is reprinted from the "Cleveland News," but it is evidently syndicated, as it has appeared in other publications. We thank the several correspondents who have sent in clippings. C. J. West sends us an editorial article from the "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry," in which, under the title "A Nation Honors a Scientist," attention is called to the honor that has been done Pasteur by France.—W. O. W.)

The new French postage stamps bearing the portrait of Pasteur are attracting a good deal of attention. The issuing of these stamps by the government is taken as a recognition not only of the merits of this great French scientist, but of the right of science, in general, to hold a more conspicuous place in the official sun than it has occupied in the past.

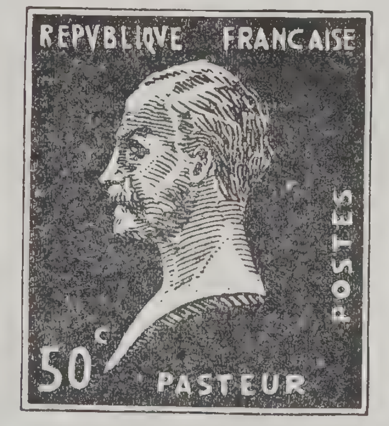
Pasteur's noble head, now appearing on every denomination of French postage, is an acknowledgment that political rulers and plotters and military heroes are not always the most suitable representatives of the essential greatness of a nation.

These new stamps are another reminder that the French are a people of artistic tastes and capacities, which go rather beyond us. I am not an artist or an art critic; I have only my appreciations of such matters, but it seems plain enough to me when I put one of the Pasteur stamps side by side with one of our own stamps bearing the head of Washington that there is here a lesson for us to learn, if only we will take it in good part.

It is not well to give up everything to science, leaving nothing for the esthetic side of our nature. Art can aid science perhaps more than science can aid art. There seems to me to be a touch due rather to science than to art in the machine-like design and finish of the Washington medallion portrait as compared with the free delineation of Pasteur's face and head, set against an indefinite background.

The French design is exempt from the tryanny of detail which is so manifest in the other. The conspicuous, but pinching, oval frame, and the elaborate laurel wreath in the American design tend to belittle what should be the sole feature of the stamp, viz., the head of Washington.

Then why the ugly and awkward designing of the neck? Did Washington always (or ever) wrap up his neck and occiput like that? But it is the general effect that is always to be regarded as the test of excellence, and there in my opinion the superiority of the French stamp is obvious.



I have ventured into this discussion of a question that is strictly out of my line because there seems to be no better way to awaken public attention to the desirability of a wider popular education for us in matters of art. They are able to turn out better things of this kind in France, and elsewhere in Europe, than we can make, because they have a public widely educated in that sense.

There, everybody who is educated at all has a personal opinion that he is not afraid to express about such things. He understands the primary principles concerning them. He has been brought up among objects and persons that keep those principles and their effects continually before his eyes.

Look at the crowds of French people that go to the enormous annual "salon" exhibitions in the vast art palace of the Champs Elysees in Paris, and compare their bearing and their comments with those of the majority of the attendants at an exhibition in the New York Metropolitan Museum. Our people, with the exception, of course, of the specially educated and the experts, may be said, as a whole, to have no ideas or preferences about pictures, and other art products, that they are capable of clearly expressing or in which they have any confidence. They have not thought enough about the subject. They have not learned its A B C. They do not understand its importance to the life not only of a community and a nation, but of individuals.

The French on the other hand live in an atmosphere that is charged with the sense of art. Children grow up in it. Their minds imbibe it as they imbibe their native language. And it is, perhaps, not one of the least of the advantages it gives them that they use much finer postage stamps, bank bills and coins than we have as yet turned out for ourselves. But we shall learn in due time—at least we may hope so.

One way to bring that time on is for everybody to try to have a well-thought-out opinion on these things. Go to look at good pictures and statuary, study the way they are done and analyze the impressions you get from them and the sources of their effects.

THE "IMPERFORATE 3c CANADA.

By Edward E. Goodchild.

Reports are current that the 3c present Canadian issue has been issued imperforate. Such is not the case. Passing by the stamps in the various stages of manufacture on a recent visit to the works of the Stamp Company I enquired of the Superintendent how it came that stamps were issued without the perforation. Such he claimed was impossible and from what I saw I can thoroughly agree.

My next visit was to the Superintendent of the Postage Stamp Department. Certainly not! we have not, and do not intend to issue stamps in such condition, the trouble and inconvenience to the public to separate such stamps would call forth universal condemnation and the department is not seeking for trouble, was this gentleman's reply to my enquiry.

After a few more discreet enquiries I found that before the strict supervision which is now in force, things were a little lax and the only solution is that it is possible that some of the sheets of proofs of the three cent confederation and present issue, which are submitted to the department for approval of color, etc., may have reached the hands of a party who saw a way to turn same to advantage. Such proofs are submitted ungummed and imperforate as I witnessed with my own eyes.

Single imperfs. can and are doubtless being homemade from the stamps of the coil variety and some of the outside stamps on sheets which readily lend themselves to same. Collectors, however, can rest assured, no imperfs. are either issued officially or for postal purposes, the only exception since the introduction of perforated stamps being the King Edward variety.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By Warner Bates,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

William Evans writes us as follows:—"While looking over some of my 3c 1861 covers recently I ran across this:—The cover bears a 3c 1861 stamp. Postmarked 'San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 6,' no year date. It is addressed to Rowayton, Connecticut. The interesting feature is the words 'Island of Kodiack, Alaska, Lery' written at the top of the cover in mss. In pencil at one side is the date Oct. 13/69. The authenticity of the cover is established. Has anyone a cover from Alaska at as early a date?"

For a long time I have had in my collection of the one cent 1873, a copy perforated all around but showing an arrow in one corner. My first thought was that the stamp had been reperforated on the arrow side and, in fact, there seems to be a slight difference in the perforations on that side and on the others. Yet the perforations measure all right and after studying the specimen a while it is easy to convince oneself that the stamp has not been reperforated.

One thing in favor of the genuineness of this specimen is that it was located in a lot of one thousand stamps which cost a very nominal sum and which, I have every reason to believe, was not the remainder of any collector's stock, and therefore unpicked. That being so how would a reperforated stamp come in the lot. Or were there those who would reperforate stamps way back in the seventies and eighties when these stocks were being accumulated for the first time?

At any rate, I was inclined to question the genuineness of this arrow copy perforated all around on the ground that there was no way in which such an error could have occurred in the shop of the printing company that made these stamps. But the other day I made a nice little find of covers that I absolutely know have never before delighted any collectors eyes. And among them was a three cent 1869 on cover showing arrow in upper right hand corner and the stamp perforated all around.

Not being a collector of the three cent 1869, I do not know whether the arrow occurs on stamps perforated all around in this issue or not. I would therefore appreciate it if some reader who has a large collection of the '69 issues would inform this department whether this is the usual thing for that issue or is an oddity. If the latter, I shall be inclined to believe that my one cent 1873 is o. k.

The only way I can figure out that this could have occurred would be that the sheet slipped over so far in being perforated that perforations were run through the center of the sheet which is supposed to be unperforated for cutting the sheet into panes. That is, the sheet slipped over in the same manner that accounts for end roller grills. Who can say whether this could have happened under the method of perforating used at that time?

Somebody please clear up this point for the department.

WHERE TO BUY STAMPS, AND WHY.

"What possible difference can it make if postage stamps are purchased at an office other than the one from which the letters or parcels are mailed—the money all goes to the Government."

That is the question and the natural one, together with the suggested answer that is raised by business men when approached by a local postmaster with a request that he be allowed to furnish them with stamps necessary to cover mailings from his office.

It makes a lot of difference, and the Post Office Department stands ready to lend its moral support to the postmaster in his efforts to induce heavy mailers to purchase stamps at the point of dispatch.

In fact, it is the one obstacle in the way of complete success of the present method of rating postmasters of the first, second, and third class, and for fixing their salaries.

The method is fixed by law and can not be changed or modified by the department. Not only are the salaries of postmasters determined by the amount of revenue produced by their offices, but the allowance for clerk hire, as well as other expenses, is based upon receipts and not on the quantity of work performed.

The system operates as a check and balance, preventing the employment of unnecessary help when a particular office is on the decline and, on the other hand, automatically disclosing the need for additional clerks and carriers when increased business produces increased revenue.

This flexibility renders the system of great value in preventing an excess of employees and in maintaining the service machinery at a standard of efficiency commensurate with requirements for handling the mails. It is deemed far better than any previous scheme for rating postmasters and fixing allowances for clerk hire, and since its operation no plan considered superior has been suggested.

There are, however, a considerable number of firms, principally large corporations, maintaining branch offices in various cities, who make a practice of purchasing stamps in large quantities at the headquarters office and doling them out to their local branches on requisition.

When a large quantity of this mail is dumped into the local post-office, especially one of the smaller offices, the result is a demoralization of greater or less extent, depending upon the quantity of mail.

It is inequitable to the postmaster, whose salary might have been increased had the stamps been purchased at his office, and it is unfair to the clerks and other employees who must handle the additional mail without its being credited toward increased allowance for clerk hire.

But, above all, it is unfair to the regular patrons of the office whose mail, of necessity, must be delayed by an influx of entirely unexpected matter, unless the postmaster or the clerks, actuated by wholly human emotions, hold up the offending foreign mail until the other mail has been dispatched.

Usually a firm is willing to co-operate rather than incur the ill-will of postal clerks, especially when the importance of maintaining the system of rating postmasters and determining clerk-hire allowance is explained to them.

Some firms, however, have been reluctant to make the change. They advance the argument that it is preferable to purchase stamps at the main office so that they may be perforated with the firm's initials to render them less marketable by dishonest employees.

The department answers this argument by pointing out that other firms have solved the problem by instructing their agents or dealers, when making their regular remittances to the home office, to render a certain proportion of the amount in postage stamps. The stamps then are perforated and returned to the branch office for use on the company's mail.

So important does the department consider the maintenance of its rating system, and so concerned is it that its employees be not required to "work for nothing," that frequently representatives are sent to interview firms not conversant with the necessity for the request, with a view to inducing them to make a change in their method of purchasing stamps. Not a single firm has yet declined to co-operate after having had the department's problem explained to them.

The department feels justified in asking this co-operation, particularly in view of the fact that postage rates have not been increased for years.

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

THE EDITOR'S COLLECTION.

Stamps and addresses upon some of the returned request cards show that Fashions of the Hour reaches almost every corner of the globe. Events and happenings, both national and international, are strangely reflected in the stamps in use in certain of these places; France is celebrating the memory of Louis Pasteur with a Dix Centime stamp bearing his head; the new Irish Republic shows its independence with bright red and green stamps; the international city of Constantinople uses surcharged British stamps; while the Panama Canal Zone, once a part of Panama, uses surcharged stamps of that country. Other nations whose stamps are included in our collection are: Argentine, Australia, Canada, Chili, China, Cuba, England, India, the Netherlands, New Zealand, the Philippines, Porto Rico, Sweden, Switzerland and Panama.

Embassies at Constantinople, Peking and Shanghai; missionary schools at Lucknow and in Syria; and military posts in the Philippines and China—all show the widespread circulation of Fashions of the Hour.—Fashions of the Hour.

KLEMANN'S PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

At the International Stamp Exhibition held in Vienna, Austria, from September 1-9 inclusive, John A. Klemann was awarded a Gold Medal for his collection of Philippine Islands entered in Class F, Section 36. The collection was contained in five volumes and among the rarities may be mentioned:—

1854, 5c orange, a very fine reconstructed plate of forty, consisting of a block of four, strip of four and thirty-two singles, of which two are unused. Also two on original covers.

1854, 10c carmine, a very fine reconstructed plate of forty, consisting of blocks of twenty and ten, used, eight singles unused and two used; besides twelve singles unused, and a pair, strip of three and six singles used, also 10c pale rose, five unused, a pair and thirteen singles used and one on original cover.

1854, 1r slate blue, a very fine reconstructed plate of forty consisting of a block of eight, three blocks of six, one with CORROS error, block of four, pair and eight singles used; also duplicates of the ultramarine CORROS error unused and two singles unused and used; in blue, the CORROS error in block of four used, block of six and three singles used and three singles unused.

1854, 2r green, a very fine reconstructed plate of forty consisting of block of ten, two blocks of four, three pairs and sixteen singles, of which three are unused; also in addition two unused, five used and three pairs used.

1855, 5c plate vermilion lithographed, four unused, block of four, two pairs and eight singles used, also 5c vermilion re-engraved, one unused and five used.

1859, 5c vermilion and 10c rose, full sheets of fifty-six.

1861, 5c vermilion, full sheet of one hundred and thirty, also a full sheet of fifty, a very rare and unnoted setting shown for the first time.

1872, Habilitados, 2r blue, block of four, used.

1874, Habilitados, 1r blue, CORROS error, unused, unique; and 1r ultramarine, unused and 2r green used and unused.

1874, Habilitados, 10c rose, unique, complete unused sheet of fifty-six, showing double and inverted surcharges.

The issues from 1870 to 1898 are well represented in singles and blocks used and unused. The 1903 issue special printing, including the rare special delivery, is shown in blocks of four. The collection of O. B. surcharges on U. S. stamps on original covers is the most complete in existence.

PIERCE MATCH CO.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

There are many features in connection with the stamp used by this firm that are similar, or in some way suggests a similarity with that other rare Illinois match stamp—the famous Rock Island. Excepting that they are almost identical in color the stamps themselves have very little in common, but both have been so eagerly sought after and so highly prized by the few collectors who have been fortunate enough to obtain them, that the romantic glamour associated with the Rock Island has diffused its splendor also upon the volcano stamp used at about the same time only 150 miles away.

In one respect, however, the Pierce stamp stands in a class entirely by itself. It is either larger or smaller than any of the other match stamps and its design as a whole does not suggest any other.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Jan. 21, 1867.
First issued, Mar. 5, 1867.
Last issued, Mar. 5, 1867.
144 stamps per sheet (18x8).
52,500 issued on old paper.

"But one lot of these stamps were ever delivered; the balance on hand, 206,700, were destroyed as obsolete."

The entire issue cost the proprietors only $500.00, plus the cost of the die and plate, which probably was not a great deal less than the cost of the stamps alone.

The design forms an upright rectangle measuring nearly 20x36 mm. The central portion is occupied by a circular disk showing a lake or river in the mountains. On the shore of the lake at the foot of one of the mountains are what appear to be the buildings of a town. The largest mountain in the center of the group is a volcano in full eruption. Above and below the central disk are curved labels inscribed "Pierce" above and "Match Co." below. The background of the upper and lower portions of the stamp is formed of parallel vertical lines. The upper part of this background is inscribed "U. S. Inter. Rev." and the lower part reads "Chicago, Ill." There are small ornamental panels in the four corners of the stamp; the upper ones each enclose a five-pointed star and the lower ones similarly enclose the numeral 1. The space between these small panels at the top and bottom is inscribed to read "One Cent" at the top and similarly at the bottom. The engraving in the central disk is a striking piece of work and fully equal to the best bits of scenery portraiture found on any of the Butler & Carpenter productions.

For many years the history of this firm was quite unknown to stamp collectors generally. Efforts to trace a recor the factory or of any Pierce engage the match business in Chicago were ren of result, and the only clue which present writer was able to obtain i search carried on intermittently for eral years, was in the United States B ness Directory for 1867, wherein one E. Pierce is listed as a match manu turer at Charlemont, Massachusetts. seemed not unlikely that this Pierce related to the Robert W. Pierce went from that part of Massachusetts established the first match factory Milwaukee in 1844. One of the proprietors of the Milwaukee fact was Frank H. Greenleaf, whose name earlier Milwaukee stamps bear (Gre leaf & Co.) and who was born in Cha mont and probably went to Milwau from there in 1844.

Through the kind efforts of Mr. E. Sterling of Trenton, New Jersey, h ever, the connection between H. E. Pi of Charlemont and Robert W. Pierce Milwaukee has been established, and original correspondence between H. Pierce and Mr. Sterling in the sum of 1890, when Sterling was gather material for a history of the vari match manufacturers, has been placed the present writer's hands for use in article.

H. E. Pierce was brother-in-law George O. Seward of Trenton, New J sey, who worked in, or was connec with, several match factories in differ parts of the country, and particularly Trenton, where he worked for Hendri son & Leigh, The Trenton Match C and later was Manager of the Sewa Match Manufacturing Co. The matc sold by J. J. Allen's Sons of Philad phia were made by Seward in Trent For several years he lived near Mr. St ling there and they were personal frien sess, their absence is not important, ially as the letters from Pierce are lete and go into considerable detail. e are six of these letters dated from 10 to July 29, 1890. All of them written from the Postoffice Village ar, in the Township of Charlemont, achusetts.

CANADIAN POSTAGE METER MARKING

the first letter bearing date of July 890, Mr. Pierce states:

began the Match Business in 1843 at emont, Mass. I first made round hes. Finding there was no money I turned my attention to the split or match and got up machinery for manufacture of the block match, er, I believe, than any other manu- rer in the world. I had a close run the Boston card match, they coming to 28c, I got down to 25c per gross matches in a bunch. In 1850 they me for infringing on the Phillips et. I made a compromise with them tarted the business in Springfield, near Otsego Lake 2 or 3 years."

ringfield is in the northeastern part sego County, about ten miles south ttle Falls and southwest of Ilion. W.]

1855 I went in a company with 4 e company at Detroit, Mich. (I lived in Charlemont, Mass.) I left it in January, went back first of found the Co. had manufactured of poor matches. Found a part of the company had over-ruled my Agt. that I left there to superintend. I sold out. The company had failed and sunk $10,000 in less than six months. I got 50c on the dollar. A few years after they started up again, called the Richardson Mfg. Co. I don't know but they are running yet. It has been one of the largest in the country."

[In the letter of July 17, Pierce writes, "The Richardson Co. should read Richardson Match Co. instead (of) Mfg. but the Co. at Milwaukee sold out before the Stamp Act was passed by Congress."—C. W.]

"In 1867 I started with a company of 4 in Chicago. I got up the design for the stamp, thinking that the volcano (was) a fitting emblem of the business. I think I sold you the last stamps that I had, (at one dollar a piece).

There were three match companies that happened to start in Chicago about the same time—one called the Pierce Match Co., one the Gates Match Co. (started from N. Y.), one called the Garden City Match Co. They called on us for stamps but we could not sell them any from a private die. They told me they had paid out $11,000 to get started. At that time, the match business was so close that we called a Council of Manufacturers. They came from all parts of the west and as far east as the State of N. Y. and held a 3 days council. One party told me that he had over ten thousand dollars invested in stamps and that he did not expect to get the interest of his money back. That was before the combination. After that, I am told, it became one of the greatest monopolies in the country. Our company lost $6,000 there in the business. Since then I have not had much to do in the business.

(I will say that the passage of that stamp act by Congress giving 10 per cent discount by taking $1,000 worth at one time ruined the business for all the smaller match manufacturers of the country, the larger ones working for the profits on the discount and manufacturing at cost.)

P. S. I am told that I am the oldest match manufacturer in the country living. My age 72 years."

[Note. Alexander Underwood, who was eight years older than Pierce, died June 7, 1890, only a month before this letter was written.]

CANADA'S "OFFICIALLY SEALED."

By EDWARD E. GOODCHILD.

Lack of knowledge of the postal rules and regulations of Canada is accountable for another postage stamp of an official nature being dubbed a label instead of a rare and hard to get variety. I refer to the officially sealed dead letter office stamp.

It may not be generally known that until a few months ago the system in vogue in many countries, that of returning undelivered letters was against the postal rules and regulations of Canada. As a matter of fact even a letter discovered insufficiently stamped was not forwarded to the addressee, but found its way to the Dead Letter Office. These facts cannot be disputed; they are on record for any person to see.

In the course of events letters found their way to the Dead Letter Office containing items of value; these could not be burned as were those of no value, and neither could they be returned as it would be contrary to the rules, as aforesaid, for the department to send through the mail letters for which prepayment had not been provided for. It was therefore decided that the stamp department would issue a stamp which distinctly stated that the letter had been officially sealed by the Dead Letter Office and that the stamp being of an official nature was in prepayment of the postage. No account being available whereby a charge could be made for the postage, such stamps were given no denomination as their use could apply to parcels or letters requiring more than the usual postage rate. The cost of manufacture, however, was charged by the Postage Stamp Department against the Dead Letter Office which it must be distinctly understood is a branch by itself.

The system with the introduction of the Dead Letter Office envelope for the return of such mail, has been done away with, and no more officially sealed stamps are used.

There is absolutely not a shadow of doubt that such stamps did duty for postal purposes, as posessors of used specimens on the original covers can testify.

With the possible exception of Champion I do not know of any catalogue listing same, but they have as much right to recognition as the much sought after but seldom found twelve penny black.

EDITORIAL.

School has begun and as the stamp season is said to start with the opening of educational institutions, the present fiscal year of philately is on. What of the prospects for the season? What of the results of movements that have been under way for some time? An answer is not so easily made this year as on former occasions because there are a number of conditions to be taken into account that were not within our orbit heretofore. It is surprising to us and somewhat mortifying as well that from various quarters that should be better informed, we have had inquiries asking if the interest in stamp collecting was not waning. We attribute this strange blindness to the evidence presented on almost every side, to the several newspaper references to the present state of collecting that we have commented on recently. It is apparent that not a few persons accept without question, comments that they may read, even though they are made by writers who have no conception of the activities of the philatelic world. Thus, it is proved that publicity of the wrong kind is as damaging to philately as advertising of the right kind is helpful. It becomes incumbent upon us to correct impressions based on error as we have reason to know that if they are permitted to have wide currency without being challenged, the effect of them is to disparage stamp collecting in the minds of those who once were collectors or whose interest in stamps is a latent one. Now that we must think of stamp collecting in broad or national terms, it becomes our duty to protect it from the insinuations of those who do not take the trouble to investigate before they place their conclusions on record.

With so many constructive factors at work for the upbuilding of philately, it follows that we are entering upon a period of collecting interest that will eclipse anything of the kind that we have heretofore experienced. While the growth of stamp collecting in its most advanced form mav be aligned somewhat with the financial and social conditions of the country, yet, despite them, there is no reason to assume that anything can check the increase in the number of collectors who do not take the pursuit as seriously as those who have about all their thoughts and energies bound up in stamps. Collecting may be indulged in nowadays under the most favorable auspices as one may obtain a large number of stamps at a comparatively small outlay. The wide-spread interest of the public in stamps as a result of the developments that we have enlarged upon many times is beginning to have its effect and one may say that we have opened a new era. Never before was it to be said without any reservations whatever that a coming year would carry the collecting wave to a height never before known. The long fight to have philately recognized as a work that is worthy of inclusion in the list of standard pursuits will show beneficial results this coming season.

The following clipping is from a newspaper of 1851, whose name we are unable to find: "Great Call for Post Office Stamps.—Seventeen hundred dollars' worth of postage stamps were sold during business hours in Boston on Friday last; this, too, under the rule that no individual can purchase more than three dollars' worth at a time. The reduction of postage has, even at this early period, given ample evidence that correspondence has been and will be materially increased." We suppose that the rule of restricting the amount of the sale of stamps to one person was adopted locally in order to conserve as much as possible the limited supply of the stamps of the new issue of 1851. Any further information on this phase of the sale of stamps at the post-office would be of interest.

In conversation with Mr. W. C. Stone, he said that we were within the bounds of probability in saying that the first philatelic society in this country was the New York Philatelic Society, organized in March, 1867. A correspondent says that he read somewhere that the Royal Philatelic Society, London, was the oldest body of collectors but we know that this society was founded on April 10, 1869. The Dresden society and La Societie de Timbrologie in France did not antedate the New York society; and so the claim is now made that the first philatelic society in the world was the New York Philatelic Society.

The enterprise of the United Cigar Stores in placing on sale the Harding memorial stamp soon after it was issued calls for commendation and in Chicago and no doubt other cities, some collectors had their first sight of the stamp through the forethought of this large corporation. Placards announced that the stamp in question was on sale in the stores controlled by the company. The specimens were marketed in envelopes, five stamps to the packet, that bore the advertisement of the Realite pencil.

he new catalogue is promised for ober and judging from the progress t the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. is ing with the advance sheets, the k will appear on schedule. At this ting the advance sheets are in the M's the seven hundred pages in hand are earnest of the size of the book when pleted. We are already used to the mutilated with a thin colorless line ch is scarcely a defacement of the ure. The United States section is in-esting with its amplified cuts of our ps under the new regulations and illustrations while not all that we d wish for, mark a decided step in dance. We have not spoken of prices ch have generally held their own raises in some expected cases. It ratifying to find that the great rari-ie are priced even though they are n quotations in italics which signify the prices are tentative. We have ced that the Hawaiian missionaries holding their own and prices are same as last year. The catalogue come at a time when its advent will velcome and we predict that the sale the book this year will show that p collecting is growing in popularity.

THE U. S. COLLECTION.

(We have already indicated that the government's stamp exhibit at London is to be shown in various cities of the country. The following clipping from the "Philadelphia Inquirer" is a fair sample of the publicity that the feature is receiving. Without a doubt this move upon the part of the Post Office Department will be of material value in arousing a great interest in philately.—W. O. W.)

So great has been the interest manifested by philatelists and others in the American stamp exhibit, which recently captured a special prize at the International Stamp Exhibition in London, that Postmaster General New has acceded to numerous requests to have the exhibit displayed in nine large cities for a few days at a time. The collection will be brought to this city, probably late next month.

The display was taken to Chicago yesterday, where it will remain until September 22, when it will be sent to Detroit, Mich., and then to Marion, Ohio. Other cities in the itinerary besides Philadelphia are New York, Baltimore, Boston, Indianapolis, Buffalo and Washington, where it will be brought after the tour is completed.

The exhibit was entered in the London exposition by Third Assistant Postmaster-General W. Irving Glover. Since it was not a collection of rare or old postage stamps, but was more in the nature of a work of art composed almost entirely of the newer series of stamps, many of which have not yet been put into current use, the American exhibit did not come within the field of those entitled to one of the regular prizes.

So impressed were the officials of the exposition, however, with its appearance and beautiful workmanship, that a special prize was awarded. The inverted airplane stamp in the American exhibit, valued by collectors at from $1,000 to $1,500, attracted unusual attention and was especially noted by King George of England, who is an ardent philatelist and who has a valuable collection of stamps.

The prize-winning exhibit is made up of various-hued stamps to represent the American shield, which is surrounded by a wreath of blue stamps and a border of lathe and ornamental work reproduced from United States notes and bonds.

At the top, in an ornamental frame, is an engraved portrait of President Harding. At the bottom appears a portrait of Postmaster General New, under which is the gold seal of the Post Office Department with blue ribbon streamers. On the four corners are engravings of the White House, the Post Office Department, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Washington city postoffice.

The background of the exhibit is made up entirely of the new golden yellow ten-cent Monroe stamps. The other stamps forming the design are inlaid. The national colors of the United States shield are made by using the ordinary two-cent stamps of the old issue for the red stripes, the background for the white stripes and the new five-cent Roosevelt stamps for the blue field.

The wreath, surrounding the shield, is formed by a double row of stamps, the outer one composed of the new dark blue 14-cent American Indian and the inner row of the new light blue 11-cent Hayes stamp. Within the circle, in an oramental panel, the entire new issue of 1922 stamps appears, while the old issue is in a similar panel directly beneath. Surmounting the shield is the spread eagle of the United States with transparent rays shooting forth. In panels on either side, above the shield, are the commemorative series of one, two, five and ten-cent San Francisco stamps of 1913 and the tercentenary series of one, two and five, and the three-cent Liberty stamp.

HARDING MEMORIAL STAMPS

On September 12th this stamp was issued perforated 10, a product of the rotary press. The information was not announced until the 10th, so it is doubtful if many were used on the first day. For those interested I offer a very fine copy clearly cancelled at Washington on day of issue at $1.00.

Other Harding items that may interest you:

FLAT PLATE ISSUE—Perforated 11

Used day of issue Marion, O. (Sept. 1)	$1.00
Used day of iss. Washington, D.C. (Sept. 1)	.50
Used day of iss. Philadelphia, Pa. (Sept. 1)	1.00
Mint block of four	.12

ROTARY PRESS ISSUE—Perforated 10

Used day of iss. Washing'n, D.C. (Sept. 12)	1.00
Mint block of four	.12

If you desire to start a specialized collection of this most interesting stamp—now is your chance. One of each of the above items at $3.50.

10c 1847

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

If you have any 10c blacks you've reason to be proud of, please drop me a line. [tf

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Within a week after the Harding memorial stamp was issued in Marion and Washington, on September 1st, it had been distributed by the department to most of the larger cites and by the time these notes reach our reader it will possibly be on sale throughout the country. The Bureau of Engraving & Printing is making extra efforts to have these in the hands of all post-offices as promptly as possible and under date of September 5th the Third Assistant Postmaster-General instructed postmasters "so far as practical, to temporarily displace the regular issue of 2-cent stamps with the Harding memorial stamps in making sales to the public." To date I have found stamps from twelve flat plates on sale, these bearing numbers 14852 to 14863 inclusive.

I now learn that all of the 200,000 stamps alloted to Marion, Ohio, were sold on the first day and an additional quantity of like amount was immediately dispatched. The Marion Daily Star, owned by our late President, tells us that 40,000 were sold on mail orders from this lot. We are also informed that Dr. George T. Harding, father of President Harding, was the first purchaser. A Cleveland doctor motored to Marion to be among the first to purchase. Moving pictures were taken of the event and we are told that the congestion was so great in the lobby of the post-office that small desks were placed outside on the front steps for the sale of the stamps and that even with these precautions that there were two lines over a half block long All sub-stations in the city were supplied.

On the first day the Philatelic Stamp Agency sold stamps to the value of $29,250 with an estimated $5,000 worth of orders unfilled. In a bulletin sent out by the information service of the department we learn that a representative of a large chain cigar stores corporation (supposedly United Cigar Company) called upon Postmaster-General New and laid upon his desk ten $1,000 gold certificates and one hundred $100 gold certificates, a total of $20,000, for the purpose of memorial stamps. The stamps will be sold to the public and the majority probably never will be circulated but will be retained as mementos.

On the day of issue I personally sent special delivery letters to a number of prominent persons and one reply is especially interesting. Written on mourning paper it reads as follows:—

"September 5, 1923.

My dear Mr. Ward:

Mrs. Harding received your letter with the new stamp issue in memory of President Harding. It was the first letter she had received with this stamp and she wants you to know of her appreciation of your kind thought.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) LAURA HARLAN,
Secretary.

Mr. Philip H. Ward, Jr.,
P. O. B. 4216, Germantown,
Philadelphia, Pa."

another letter of the previous day headed "The White House" reads

"My dear Mr. Ward:

The President has asked me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st instant and to thank you warmly for your courtesy.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) C. B. SLEMP,
Secretary to the President."

Similar letters have come from Secretary Hughes, Secretary Mellon, Postmaster-General New, most of the other cabinet members, Henry Ford, Gov. Gifford Pinchot and others and I am looking forward for a number of letters from abroad, for they were mailed to most of the crowned and uncrowned heads of Europe, Asia, South America and the like. I am after a specialized collection of this one stamp and all that pertains to it and I would suggest to other collectors that this single variety will offer untold opportunity of getting together something of interest to collector as well as non-collector.

Under date of September 10th, the department officially announces that the Harding stamp from the rotary press, perforated 10x10, will be placed on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency on Wednesday, September 12th. We are told that "the demand by postmasters throughout the country for supplies of the new Harding stamp has become so great that it was necessary to authorize the Bureau of Engraving & Printing to supplement the flatbed process with the rotary process, used heretofore only on one-cent stamps."

Under date of September 1st, the department announced that the frame of stamps that was prepared for the International Philatelic Exhibition at London and which was illustrated in MEKEEL'S some months back would be forwarded to the different cities where it would remain on exhibition for several days. Indianapolis, the home of the Postmaster-General, was the first city so favored. It remained there until September 8th when it was sent to Chicago, where it will remain until the 22nd, upon which date it will go to Detroit and then to Marion. Other cities which are included in the itinerary, for which dates will be announced later, include Buffalo, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and then back to Washington, where it will be placed on public exhibition for the first time. Such advertisement is certainly a boom to stamp collecting and we would suggest to philatelic organizations throughout the country that they take the matter up with their postmaster and try and have the exhibit which is most handsome visit their city.

Mr. LeGrand Payne, together with Mr. Ioor, kindly sends clippings from an Indianapolis paper showing that the exhibit there was placed on view in the window of one of the large department stores.

AUSTRALIA. — Mr. R. Roberts advises that the ½d postage due stamp, perf. 14, watermarked narrow A and Crown, has been placed on sale.

BELGIAN CONGO. — Mr. Henry Hooreman, writing under date of August twenty-fourth, informs us that the following values of the new set of stamps manufactured in the United States are expected daily: 50c blue, picturing a native hunter (pulling his "arc") to shoot his arrow; 75c orange, showing the likeness of a native weaver at work; 1fr brown; 3frs, with a view of a native working rubber; 5frs, with a view of a Congolese working palm-oil; 10frs, with a picture of an elephant's head. Mr. Hooreman also adds that a 5c and 40c will also appear, the former with a likeness of a Ubaughi Chief and the latter showing a basket maker.

GERMANY.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the 200mk red and 4 dark lilac in the current types.

GREECE.—The set of 56 provisionals sued to commemorate the Revolution rather a heavy philatelic dose to swall but many of the stamps have been ov printed in small quantities and are likely to trouble the ordinary collect Mr. P. J. Drossos states that the 56 va eties listed by us are the only ones c cially authorizied and issued. M other stamps of Crete were overprint but they were ordered to be destroyed, that if any of them come on the mar they can only be the result of leak and cannot be regarded as issued va ties. Applicants at the Post Offices o received five or ten stamps of each k that happened to be available, while complete sets were sold to collect and dealers. An official list of quantities overprinted is expec shortly.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly C cular.

GRENADA.—Mr. R. Roberts has sho us the 5sh value on new yellow pa script watermark.

SARAWAK.—Mr. Ho Hong Soon wri that there is an interesting variety the 10c blue, in the current portr type, all the stamps in the sixth verti row having the word "POSTAGE" right and the line below it double. T specimen before us shows clear traces this, and the variety is, of course, al found in the 1c on 10c Provisional cently chronicled. In the "TWO CENT provisional listed last month there we two different types of "W" in "TWO the first type used for the first to eigh rows and the second for those of t ninth and tenth rows.—Stanley Gibbo Monthly Circular.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—From Mr. W. G. Windhurst, Marion, Ohio, comes the disquieting news: "I have just got word from Cleveland that mail clerk thieves have torn off a lot of pairs, blocks, etc., of the Harding stamps that were on the several hundred of covers that I sent to that city."

—We do not remember having mentioned an article that was published in several newspapers, concerning the enterprise of William L. Leighton of Seattle, Washington, who conducts the Queen Anne Stamp Company successfully, albeit Mr. Leighton has been bedridden for three years with cerebral rheumatism and does his work while lying flat on his back. When he became incapacitated, he found his old stamp collection and began to collect again. Exchanging stamps was followed by the idea of dealing; and the Elks gave him a big lift by getting the brothers who were in a position to obtain stamps to save them for Mr. Leighton. The grit of the man who is down but very far from out has been instrumental in building up the business until now it is profitable and of no little importance.

—Looking through the latest table of transit charges on packages to be dispatched by an indirect service via a foreign intermediate country, we find that the highest tariff on an eleven-pound package is allotted to Northern Rhodesia, with $3.08. Even Ascension, Palestine and St. Thome and Principe may be reached for $1.02, an eleven-pound. These charges are in addition to the postage rate of 12 cents a pound; and both postage and transit charges are to be paid by postage stamps affixed to the packages.

—An advertising cancellation reaches us from Memphis, Tenn.:—"Tri-State Fair, Memphis, Sept. 22-29." Also from Tulsa, Okla., the following:—"International Petroleum Exposition, Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 8-14, '23."

—We commend the enterprise of the Yorkton Sask. Stamp Society in connection with its stamp exhibition held in the Town Hall of Yorkton, September 19 to 22. By courtesy of Edw. E. Goodchild we have seen a program demonstrating that the entire exhibition was well handled. A special cancellation was issued reading:—"Yorkton Stamp Exhibition, Sept. 19th-22nd, 1923." Mr. Goodchild had a paper "What is Philately?"

—We have received from Mr. A. E. Kratz, the publisher, a bound volume of the Chicago International Philatelist which looks well on the shelves of our library.

—Recently, the Los Angeles Examiner showed the portrait of Bertram W. H. Poole and included an interview with Mr. Poole in the course of a column stamp article by a "feature" writer. Here is the finale of the story: "Recently a friend of Mr. Poole dropped a parcel in a hotel lobby. A bellboy found it and returned it to the owner with the remark: 'You dropped some stamps, sir.' 'Yes,' replied the collector, '$2,000,000 worth.' 'Gosh,' bellowed the emissary. 'Ain't that just my luck? I thought they were good for a two-bit trade at Woolworth's.' "

—A. A. Wassersheid sends us a new advertising cancellation from Rutland, Vt.:—"Rutland, Vermont, Live Stock Exposition, Season 1923."

—A new advertiser in the WEEKLY is the Cortlandt Stamp Co., 5 Cortlandt St., New York City. The proprietor of the firm is H. C. Meyer.

—The Rev. L. C. Walter, Kansas City, Kansas, sends three new advertising cancellations for listing:—Tulsa, Okla.: "International—Petroleum Exposition—Tulsa, Okla—Oct. 8-14, '23,, in four lines. St. Louis, Mo.: "Third—National Aero—Congress—St. Louis, Mo—Oct. 1-2-3" in five lines. Minneapolis, Minn.: "Minnesota State Fair—And—N. W. Dairy Exposition—Sept. 1-8" in four lines.

—In a letter from Mr. F. G. Browne, he calls attention to the great preponderance of white and blue stamped envelopes in a large everyday mail; and to the seeming decline in popularity of amber paper which used to follow white paper in commonness. We quote the following details from Mr. Browne's chronicle of little things of interest:

"I have been looking over five or six thousand envelopes as they come in our daily mail, with a special eye to the new two-cent stamp. I am impressed with the immense improvement in the uniformity of color of the different processes and especially with the perfection of centering. It might interest you to know that out of these five or six thousand envelopes I have found exactly four cancellations not black—three were in red and one in purple."

—Mr. G. M. Mosler of Cincinnati passed through Chicago on his annual pilgrimage to the forest primeval of the north. Mr. C. W. Best of Honolulu attended the meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, held September 6th, and made an interesting philatelic talk to the members.

—"On Friday, August 31st, there was started from Saint Joseph, Mo., to San Francisco, a Pony Express rider similar to the famous Pony Express of Civil War times, even taking as nearly as possible the same route. At first only a message from Pres. Coolidge and one from the Mayor of St. Joseph to the Mayor of San Francisco were to be carried, and I was told upon inquiry that no other mail would be carried. Not satisfied, I made the same inquiry several days later and was told that a small pouch of first class mail might be carried. Finally on the day before the start I was informed thru a friend in the post-office that mail would be carried, and that a special cancellation had been made up for the occasion, reading 'VIA PONY EXPRESS ST JOSEPH MO AUG 31 1923 A. M. The rider left at 10 a. m. carrying one small locked mail pouch containing 389 envelopes for California points only. Mail was to have been picked up also at Topeka, Kas., but the rider there "forgot the Mail" (!) and it was forwarded in the regular way. Topeka pouch contained only 14 pieces. No doubt these covers will be much sought after and should be very good property. Mail was carried from here to Omaha the same day by airplane, this being St. Joseph's first airplane mail. No special cancellation was used, the hour of cancellation—'2 P M'—being the only identification."—HAROLD K. FREDERICK.

GERMAN INSPECTOR PECULATIONS.

By J. L. Riedel.

With reference to this notice which appeared in Mekeel's Weekly about German Inspector peculations I wish to say that the case referred to is of much larger importance than seems to be from the report of the Chicago Tribune. I enclose a cutting from a German newspaper, from which you'll see that the postal inspector arrested was at the head of Post Office No. 2 at Munich. From the beginning of the year 1921 until the day he was arrested—21 February, 1923—he stole not only postage stamps but thousands of unregistered letters containing money, etc., and the greater part of these letters came from the U. S. It was estimated that about $6,000, sent from German Americans to their poor relatives in Germany, were stolen and never reached their destination. Unfortunately this is not the only case, because since the dollar went up first to 100,000 M, then to 1,000,000 and 3,000,000 M, the craze for dollar bills has also infested postal clerks and nearly every week at some different places unscrupulous officials are arrested. The postal inspector in question got six years hard labor and when he was tried he boasted that he had caught 20 of his subalterns for pilfering foreign letters. I wish you would publish a warning in Mekeel's that U. S. collectors when sending money to Germany should register their letters to avoid a certain loss. You'll have noticed that in all my ads. I give this advice to my customers.

N. E. CARTER, ELKHORN,

THE RECRUIT.

By Frederick W. Allen.

Jack Bartlett sat bolt upright. The seat across the aisle, only a minute ago empty, was now occupied by a neatly dressed young man of about his own age, rather attractive in appearance and wearing in the lapel of his coat a familiar little button, supported by a dark blue background clearly stood the golden word "Philately."

This was indeed luck, as Jack was beginning to be bored with looking at the fleeting landscape. Rising from his chair, he stepped over and remarked, "Stranger, I guess we are two of a kind. I have a match to that button of yours."

"Well, by Jove! that you have," the stranger replied and the two shook hands, at the same time exchanging introductions.

In ten minutes Jack Bartlett and Larry Stone were fast friends.

Each found the other to be a philatelist of standing. Both were possessors of valuable collections and professed to be striving for quality, not quantity.

"Jack, did you ever get taken in on much of the new Europe stuff," asked Larry.

"Yes, Larry, I did. You remember the Hungary Tanac set. When it cost me three dollars (around one-ninth catalog) I thought it was cheap. It sure was a 'cheap' set. When the bottom fell out, it dropped as low as forty cents. Then again I "invested" quite a few dollars in Baranyas, Czechoes, Fiumes, etc. The whole mess rather disgusted me and I rid myself of the lot of them. Since then I have confined myself to the gilt edge British Colonials and U. S. stamps. I experienced a great deal of pleasure mounting up the artistic new issues for the provinces of Britain but the report comes from England that from now on new series are going to be mighty scarce. Then the U. S. portion of my collection is fairly complete except those very highly priced items. Of late it has occurred to me that I should delve into a side line. There is much agitation for old issue cancellations and also for—"

"PRECANCELS!", broke in Larry. "Why! old man, do you know that this finest side line is in favor with philatelists. It is a specialty of mine and I want to tell you that for every one who is a lover of the good old U. S. stamps there is a whale of a kick in precancels. If you are a lover of variety, you'll find it; if what you seek is beauty, it's there in systematized arrangement, both of the regular and special issues. A page of Aeroplane precancels are as pretty an array as one can find in any sort of a collection. Then if you want an investment this is really the most likely of which I know. There are two live societies catering exclusively to this branch and there is a great deal of talk about combining them. If this is done, there will exist a club which will in five or six years take its place among the leading three collectors' organizations of the U. S. You have, of course, read all of which I speak, but I want to tell you face to face that I have unslighted the hobby and from experience strongly advise you to take it up."

"Larry, you have interested me greatly in it. I may do so, but I cannot think of how to go about the arrangement of the stamps. Also, I don't know how to develop a sense of values that I'll have to have if I wish to consider the investment side. If you can give me any help on these points I shall be grateful and the field of your favorite specialty will be enriched by the addition of another enthusiast."

His friend thought a minute and exclaimed: "Here, we have been so interested in each other that neither of us has asked 'whither bound are you?' My home is in Minneapolis, are you still living in Buffalo? The last 'ad' of yours that I noticed gave that place as your address."

Jack replied that he still lived in Buffalo, according to a fashion being on the road a great deal of the time. Thereupon Larry insisted that he stop over a day and go out to his home. The invitation was gladly accepted for this would break the monotony of long ride.

They were now out of St. Cloud speeding along the Mississippi.

Jack spoke of the contrast the presented with its expansive self far down along "where the Burlington Soon they rolled into the big Union tion. Here they left the train wended their way out onto Henn Avenue; awaiting them was a brand "Studebaker" driven by Larry's Mrs. Stone was a very pleasant y woman and also an exceptionally sk driver. After quite a drive the stopped before a bungalow, nes prettily among some spreading elms.

"Here we are," called out La "Come on Jack, let's eat." The t moved towards the house, Larry Janet Stone hand in hand.

After a meal which seemed wh satisfying to all, Janet said: "Lar suppose you and Mr. Bartlett will to talk stamps. I don't see anythin them but I am glad you have a ho Gladys and I are going out this a noon and so you can go on a rega stamp spree."

An hour later the two philatelists comfortably settled in the library be a table. For some time they exam the various albums belonging to La At last one lone book remained opened. Larry then spoke as follo

"Jack, this is the most precious session along the stamp line that I sess and when you get through loo at it you are going to be a dyed in wool precancel fan. Now sit steady I'll begin."

"I have found Roessler's 'Perman the album best suited to show pre cels at their best. The gray quadri background enables the arrangemen be simplified and the pages are just right size. They lie flat, due to the l hinges of special quality. The sp back binder is a feature and Roes states that it has oil tempered spri The cost is only $6.45 which you'll to admit is very reasonable for suc beautiful book. So much for the alb itself. As I turn the pages I am go into detail and if you do not get t of hearing me talk I'll promise to a definite form of arrangement whi believe is the most beautiful of an tried."

"Well! here goes." Larry then ope the album and Jack got his glimpse the first page. Immediately he let an exclamation of appreciation.

There on the first page was a sm snapshot of Larry Stone, artistically rounded by a colored design. In wording, read the following: "This lection belongs to Lawrence K. St and consists only of U. S. precance stamps, that have been selected w care; quality, not quantity being the ai This brief introduction prettily displa itself, as it had been worked out in striking manner.

The next page gave Jack his fi glimpse of a quantity of aeroplane p cancels. Six stamps across and ei down making forty-eight to a sh "Oh, you Aeros!" was inscribed in panel at the top. Larry now took the conversation, remarking that wh they cost a lot of money, he did not grudge the buying for nearly all w now unobtainable.

Wyo., 16c Dunkirk, N. Y., and 24c Atlanta, Ga. They are my favorites. Then this 6c Minneapolis reading down is a really rare stamp, only one sheet being precancelled and it's absolutely O. K. Few collectors have it. Now we'll pass on to the Victories."

"They fill up four pages, and while not very handsomely engraved, are quite eagerly sought after. I have arranged the printed ones in separate rows according to the position of cancellation. Doesn't that make a neat display?"

"It does," replied Jack. "You sure know how to fix 'em up. Is that 3c red violet variety precancelled La Junta, Colo., worth any more than the ordinary color?"

"You tell 'em! That's a rare bird. It only cost me twenty cents from Mr. Cullers, in Missouri, about two years ago but two dollars would be cheap for it now. There are few red violet Victory precancels in existence and collectors are eagerly grabbing them up. Just a minute before I turn this page. How do those interesting 'errors' from Indiana, Pa., Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn., Moorhead, Minn., and Pharr, La., strike you?"

"Pretty nifty," agreed his friend, "there must be a 'history' back of each."

"There is, but I can't take time for it now. Let's pass on to the Pilgrims."

This issue filled ten pages and comprised 400 varieties. As the stamps were a little larger than the Aeros and Victories, they were hinged five across and eight down, making forty to the page. Here the same plan of arrangement was followed out. The 5 cent variety was considerably in the minority. There were nice showy sets from Knoxville, Chattanooga, Boston, Denver, Easton and other cities. Also dozens of fine things from out of the way towns. Larry produced a few copies of the 1 cent and 2 cent Minneapolis Pilgrims in Type IX. As in the case of the 6 cent Aeroplane, only a few exist which are prized very highly by the fortunate owners.

Precancelled commemorative stamps, Parcel Post, Special Deliveries filled nearly twenty pages and much time was spent discussing them. Larry pointed out the 1c and 2c Columbians from Techny, Ill., which were made to order, but legitimately used by H. S. Powell. A page of Pan-Pacifics produced a cry of approval from Jack. San Francisco, Salisbury, Md., Aurora, Mo., Roseburg, Ore., Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis, Boston, New York, Miles City, Mont., all helped to complete the array. Then Jack saw red fields of Parcel Posts formed by a host of cities.

"You must secure some of these," Larry urged, "for now is the time to buy. They are quite popular and still exist in dealers' stocks. Dr. Mitchell has over 1,500 varieties of these stamps alone, and ranks as the authority on them. Mr. F. C. Mertz of Denver, Prof. A. A. Johnson of Tacoma, and Mr. Theo. Lincoln, of Hartford, Conn., also have a wonderful lot of Parcel Post precancels. Enough, though, for the special issues. Let's begin on the regular series.

I have not made much of an effort to secure the real early ones, as you can readily perceive, but have endeavored to obtain fine things in the 1898 and 1902 sets. Aren't the dated Chicagos pretty? They come in wide and narrow spacings, the narrow being much scarcer. I am very proud of these 125 varieties and will gladly purchase any others I need. Dated early issues are about as fine an investment as there is. I only have a few Binghampton compared to the number of varieties in existence. Notice some of the others; Attica, Ind., Lockport, N. Y., and Boston. Mr. Fred Raff of Chicago is quite a specialist of dated precancels."

After dated, came the others. "Circle type" Northamptons, "cogwheel" Waterburys, "Railroad track" Lansings, "double lined oval" Jacksons, Ft. Wayne "frames," all standing out from the simpler types. Elgin, Ill., precancels, struck Jack as being "quite the berries" and he straightway determined that he would amass as many varieties of these as possible when his precancel collection was begun. This was going to be started without delay for Jack was beginning to catch Larry's enthusiasm and it affected him in no mild way.

Page after page was passed until finally the perforated 11 stamps were reached.

"The most pleasant work I have ever experienced with stamps," said Larry, "was the arrangement of this series into the form you see them. Attraction has been my aim and to perfect it I paid particular attention to color schemes, balanced types and selection of copies. To secure this I have had to put quality first and I do not regret it, for although this is not such a large collection, it has a higher average value per stamps than any I have seen."

"These Surface printings, or offsets as Mr. Bushnell classes them, run 1c, 2c, 3c throughout. Not any series of three from the same city but all three of practically the same type. Here I have a 1c Portland, Ore., 2c Greenville, Texas, and 3c Norwich, Conn., all displaying Universal Type I. Next a Boston 1c, 2c Bangor and 3c Austin, Texas illustrating Type II. So it goes throughout. These regular sized stamps run 49 to the page, seven in a row by seven deep. Having no two stamps of the same denomination lying next to each other is my color scheme for the Surfaced Prints."

"Next is a whole page of Universal Type I precancels making a colorful appearance. The top row are all of the two cent denomination, second, all six centers, third 11 centers, fourth sixes, fifth eights, sixth tens and the bottom row only has twelve centers in it. That 11c Allentown, Pa., is a 'peach.' Also the 12c Bismarck is rare. Look at the various towns using this type: Norwich, N. Y., and Conn., Portland, Me., and Ore., Houston, Easton, Charlotte, Oakland, Duluth, Helena, Roanoke, Utica and Pittsburg, among many others."

"I followed this method in the arrangement of the popular types throughout, but of course do not confine myself to it exclusively for the more varied the methods of mounting the more beautiful the collection becomes. Of Universal Type V and Universal Type XVIII I have similar pages. See this U-5 page. Look at those from Long Island City, South Bend, Cedar Rapids and Cedar Falls, Iowa (the Cedar Falls are quite scarce), Providence, Salt Lake City, Charlestown, St. Petersburg, Fla. Don't they show up fine? Then on this page we have the new U-18. This is becoming very popular. The first cities to use it were Anderson, Ind., Brooklyn, N. Y., Lemont, Ill., and Shelby, Ohio. Baltimore employed a type somewhat similar to it, a few years ago. Then Lincoln, Nebr., Rochester, N. Y., and others came out after Brooklyn in slightly heavier letters. This type I call U-18a but in a revised list of types it might be classed as U-19 and the present U-19 (used by New Washington, Ohio) given a different number. Some new cities using the U-18a are Canajoharie, N. Y., Ottumwa, and Waterloo, Iowa, DeKalb., Ill., Reading, Pa., and Hastings, Nebr."

Jack turned the page and Larry beheld a solid black group of seven centers all carefully put in. The inscription told the story in two words, "Black Beauties." Right after these came 150 varieties of the 13c apple green, a much prized precancel. Jack was enthusiastic over the future of this stamp and had especially gone after them. He said, "Even the common Chicago is worth a dime, and if this is the case with Chicago, doesn't it stand to reason that the small towns are going to be very valuable. There is a greater demand than dealers can supply. Mr. H. S. Haller of Big Creek., Calif., possesses about as many varieties of this one item as any collector I know.

"We'll rapidly skip over these pages of Dues: Rotaries 10x10, 10x11, 10x12; Coils; oddities and types of all sorts (a sort of dumping ground for all miscellaneous types which won't fit in anywhere)." This was done in about five minutes. Before turning over the last named sheet, Larry looked at Jack and said: "You have seen all my precanceled postage except two groups. May I ask you if you feel anything lacking so far?"

"Well, Larry, I am not up much on precancels but it seems as though sets of cities would be necessary in any sort of a precancel collection."

"Good guess, Jack, that's just what we are coming to. When I began collecting I tried to get complete sets from towns but found that it was in most cases a pretty hard task. There were so many blank spaces that the appearance of the collection was spoiled. Therefore I hit upon this plan. Sets of seven from the cities I wished to represent. Why seven? Because seven just makes a row in this album. When I am able to get fourteen varieties from a city then I put in two rows on different pages because I like to have seven cities to a page. It is either fourteen, seven, or none with me. Of course, if I get four or five, I lay them away until I secure seven and then mount them up. In this way there is always a sense of completeness staring one in the face. If I get a more desirable item than one I have in a set, I substitute. My aim is, always, to get the seven scarcest ones and it often works out 7, 9, 11, 12, 20, 30, 50. I do not aim to place the different values in sequence for I pay more attention to color scheme than numerical order."

"How do you like these sets from San Francisco, Binghampton, Los Angeles, Omaha, Bay City, Seattle, and Minneapolis on this page; and Sheboygan, Endicott, Portland, St. Paul, Lima, Piqua and Utica on this? The total number of these sets that I now have is over one hundred. I am mighty proud of them."

"You have a right to be, Larry. I see that condition counts in precancels as in everything else. Do you ever put in a straight edge or badly centered copy?"

"Once in a while I put in a well centered straight edge but not often. As to a badly centered stamp—Never! It would ruin any page. Now to turn to the last group. I specialize in North Dakota precancels and am trying to complete this state. Fargo, Bismarck and Grand Forks are fairly plentiful but all the others are rare. The Wahpetons were hard for me to get as also were these from Kulm, Mott, Minot and Willeston. I only have a few from Carrington, Mandan, Mohall and Devils Lake. I selected North Dakota because of the opportunity I have had to get precancels from there, and because it is not a large user of this class of stamps. That is an advantage for there is not an impossible field to cover in completing the state."

"Good idea," agreed Jack, "I shall remember that when I pick out a state in which to specialize."

"This completes my postage precancels. I am starting a collection of precancelled revenues but have only a few as yet. There are some fine things in the 1898 Proprietaries."

Extracting a small stock book Jack laid it before Larry. "Larry," he said, "I have been laying away a few of these precancelled proprietaries that you speak of, thinking that perhaps I'd run across some one very much interested in them. I want you to accept them as a token of gratitude for the fine evening you have shown me."

They opened the book and sorted over the lot. It contained probably several hundred varieties, including such interesting cancellations as Internat'l Food Co., Chattanooga Med. Co., Pond's Extract, Dr. K. & Co., Morley Bros., Lewis Med. Co., The Piso Co., The Antikamnia Chemical Co., Job Moses & Martin Rudy.

"You are very generous, old man, and I insist that you let me give you a flying start along precancelled postage."

"That'll be fine, Larry. I'm going to order a 'Permanent' from Roessler immediately and begin a collection which will be patterned after yours. I'll fill out this application blank to the Precancelled Stamp Society right now." This being done Jack and Larry went up to bed fated to dream of wonderful finds in sundry scrap heaps.

FIVE-YEAR RENEWAL CLUB.

I. V. S. Hillier, Cranford, N. J.
A. W. Claflin, Providence, R. I.
Willard Hall Porter, Jr., Wilmington, Del.
Edward C. Worden, Milburn, N. J.
J. R. Hurford, Philadelphia, Pa.
Geo. P. Gesner, Hartford, Conn.

We appreciate very much the five-year renewal just at hand from Isaac V. S. Hillier, Cranford, N. J. In making his remittance of $5, Mr. Hillier says:—"Your paper has been coming on a trial subscription and we are pleased with it." This is the first instance of a member joining our Honor Club from the ranks of trial subscribers.

Albert W. Claflin of Providence, R. I., sending in his five-year renewal, wants to know whether we have a "life membership" proposition to offer. We have hardly thought it advisable to try this experiment. Mr. Claflin writes:—"Enclosed find my check for five years' renewal just to join the happy throng." The Club certainly is growing in numbers, and we sincerely trust in happiness as well.

Of all the applicants for membership in the Club, no one thus far mentioned has been so nonchalant in submitting his renewal as Willard Hall Porter, Jr., Wilmington, Del. The check comes in in a very matter-of-fact manner. We welcome Mr. Porter to the charmed circle.

On Sept. 11th three five-year renewals were received, one from Edward C. Worden, analytical and consulting chemist, Milburn, N. J., one from J. R. Hurford of Philadelphia, Pa., and the third from George P. Gessner, Hart Conn. All these subscribers join
Five-Year Renewal Club by sendin their remittances in a very casual ner, just as if it were a customary currence with them to make five-renewals of subscriptions.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK FOR 1923-24.

AN INTERVIEW WITH CHARLES J. PHILLIPS, THE WELL KNOWN NEW YORK DEALER.

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

The largest statistical organization in the country, who as a part of their service present conclusions as to conditions in the business world, travel men in order to gain that personal contact so necessary in forecasting what we might expect. What, therefore, would be more natural than to look to one such as Mr. Charles J. Phillips of New York, for data as to what might be expected in the world of philately for the season just opening. Mr. Phillips since severing his connection in London has been constantly moving about, not only in the United States where he has been traveling from coast to coast but abroad as well. In spreading the famous Duveen collection to the four winds he has come into close personal contact with the larger buying philatelic public. It is this personal contact that lets us know what the other fellow is thinking and planning and when taken in combination with general business conditions can readily be interpreted by one such as this expert who has lately taken residence among us.

It was my good fortune, quite recently, of having the pleasure of spending the afternoon with Mr. Phillips at his apartment and meeting his charming American wife. As our conversation was mainly stamps his remarks will be of interest. Mr. Phillips, it might be well to mention, was for a number of years manager and main owner of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., of London, and during this time, purchased, handled and sold many of the world's finest collections. He was one of the few that had access to Ferrari and his wonderful collection and counted among his friends most of the large collectors and dealers of the last generation and a half. About a year ago he sold his Gibbons holdings and has since moved to this country, where he has applied for citizenship.

"The prospects of good business in the stamp trade," says Mr. Phillips, "never seemed brighter than the outlook for the new season. The great prices obtained in all of the Ferrari sales have opened the eyes of the richer classes to the real investment value of fine stamps. The man who has heretofore looked upon stamps simply as a hobby has been made to realize that in stamps there is a vast opportunity offered for gilt edge investment, comparable with the best seasoned stocks and bonds."

"What is the result," comments Mr. Phillips, "the dealer has been combing the world for the fine old classics to meet this demand. Nothing is to be found in Europe. All reports from visitors to the London Exhibition and to the Continent of Europe confirm this. The dealers in these countries seem to be almost cleared out of the old standard stamps and I cannot help but fancy that prices will advance very considerably in the near future. We see this reflected in the many changes in the advance sheets of the new catalogue."

Mr. Phillips continues, "These advances are well justified when we consider the enormous number of new collectors that have started during and since the European War."

"Your Mr. Glover," referring to our Third Assistant Postmaster-General, "along with your Philatelic Agency, is doing much for philately. Every time you issue a new stamp he tells the whole country about it through the daily press and that reaches the non-collector, many of whom we are gathering into our fold. That framed exhibition he is passing around the country is helping, for it creates an interest in your Post Office Department and its stamps. You are getting more press notices than ever before and that is productive of good business."

"Your societies are doing good work but conditions would be helped if we had something here equivalent to the Royal Philatelic Society of London. This I think of the first necessity to give added stability and standing to our hobby. Here in New York we have the nucleus of such a society in the Collectors Club. I think it should be the firm policy of every American collector and dealer to join and do all in his power to strengthen this Club."

"Philately in Great Britain" continues Mr. Phillips, "owes its deepest debt of gratitude to the Royal Philatelic Society and over here we should be wise to follow in their footsteps. The Collectors

M. & M. WANTED

In order to make my already large stock of Match and Medicine stamps the largest in the country, I desire to purchase most anything in fine, undamaged condition. Whether you have only a few copies, a hundred copies of a variety, a large accumulation or a collection for sale, I ask you to write me. I want common varieties as well as rare items—anything in fine condition. No lot too large or too small, if the condition is there.

I will buy for cash and add 15% to the offer if you will agree to use this cash in buying stamps for your collection from me.

Prompt 24-hour transactions on purchasing is one of the pillars of

H. F. COLMAN SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Club has already arranged to publish a series of philatelic works of the first importance, which I have reason to believe will be in advance of any monograph hitherto published with the exception of the magnificent work on Switzerland by the late Paul Miraband. Through the liberality of Mr. Charles Lathrop Pack the Club started as publishers with his superb work on the Victoria 'Half Lengths.' This is to be followed in the near future by a work now in preparation on 'British Columbia and Vancouver Island' and that will be followed by a monumental work on 'Canada' now in the hands of an influential committee of philatelists of the United States and Canada. The Club will follow this with publications on each of the other British North American Colonies and this series of books will rank with the great publications of the London Society.

"The next point to which I think we should all work with a view to establishing philately on an unassailable position in this country, is to have a club house of our own. The wealth is here and it only needs one or more of the great philatelists of this rich country to found a home for philately which would be a monument to himself and an example to the rest of the world.

"That great American, Mr. Archie Huntington, gave such a home to the Numismatic Society of America. Who is to be the one to do the same for Philately?"

Mr. Phillips dwelt on the ethics of the trade when he said, "It seems to me that this consists in establishing confidence between the dealer and his clients."

"If a collector goes to a dealer for advice or help he should get correct advice and not be misled as is so often the case. Stamp collecting now-a-days is not a boy's hobby but is a serious means of investment and a dealer is shortsighted who advises his clients to purchase classes of goods for which there is little or no sale when he may wish to dispose of them."

Speaking on the point of stamps as an investment Mr. Phillips' thoughts on the subject are of interest. They are not only of interest because he believes what he says but actually practices what he preaches. When he sold out his interest in London he received a certain amount of cash at the time of the transaction. This, along with money that his wife desired invested, has actually been put into stamps and these are buried for the time being, that is, not for sale. He feels that his returns will be greater than on stocks and bonds and that there will always be a market for his holdings.

He feels that investment in all issues of United States is sound and that in spite of what appears to be prevailing high prices that these are going much higher. He thinks the Department issues have been neglected and that these along with the Carriers have a great future. He is especially strong for the classic issues of British North America and a good amount of his money has been placed in this class of stamps. The classic issues or what some designate as the aristocrats of all countries are becoming scarcer every year with a resulting increase in value. Lots of the early South America are gilt-edged, such as Chile, Colombian Republic, Brazil, Peru

SPECIAL NOTICE

After 6 months of very steady work we have at last whipped our immense accumulations of both rare and common U. S. and Foreign Stamps into some semblance of order, and we can assure you it was some job. But—we feel well repaid for our trouble, as we went through accumulations of stamps that have been untouched for more than 30 years, which will now sell at thousands of dollars, while their actual cost to us was less than one-twentieth of their present market value.

We find we have practically everything in old U. S. in all sorts of condition, also a wonderful variety of the Early Foreign, used before 1895, in all conditions, such as fair, good, fine and superb; also many nice things in pairs, strips and a few good Blocks, which we will advertise in later issues from time to time.

As this is a special number of MEKEEL'S, and as other Dealers have many good things advertised, we are holding back on our first Eye-opener ad until next week's issue.

We want to remind you, however, that you had better not spend all your loose change with the other fellows, as our next week's ad is going to start a Big bunch of money coming our way; we are going to have some startling Surprises in our next ad, so wait, watch and read our ads in next issue, then send us your order, we will do the rest. We will guarantee to please you in every way. If we don't, we are always ready and willing to refund your money. If you deal with us, you must be satisfied, we don't want your money if your stamp purchases don't come up to all expectations. Thank you.

A Word to Detroit Collectors

We are now ready for you to inspect our stock while it is in so complete a condition, no matter what you need in the stamp line, or no matter what your particular specialty may be, the chances are we can help you out. In 30 days our stock will be scattered to all parts of the U. S., so you had better Call Early while the picking is good. Also, don't forget we handle practically everything in Philatelic Supplies. You don't have to send away for such things, as we have them here and invite your inspection. We also handle everything in the printed or Loose Leaf Albums published or manufactured by the Scott Co., Elbe Co., Rapkin Co. and others, all of the above are now ready for your inspection at our stamp store at Fourth and Michigan Aves. Our Handsome Red Headed lady stamp clerk will give you the very best of attention when you call.

and the like. One point he especially stresses when he has investment in view and that is condition. Buy the best in condition that the market affords, an inferior copy is high at any price. This, as a dealer, he especially appreciates, for he has seen many market their holdings.

Common Stamps--Superb Copies

The appearance of most collections could be greatly improved at comparatively small expense if collectors would check the off center, badly cancelled specimens of the commoner stamps of the 1861, 1870, 1873 and 1879 issues and let us send them perfect copies to fill the spaces.

How many collections show perfect copies of the 1c 1870 with grille? The 1924 cat. prices it 75c for an ordinarily fine stamp; we can supply a few beauties at $1.00 or fine copies at 65c. Also fine copies of all values of the National, Continental and American Bank Note Co. printings at slight advances on catalog quotations. Why not put these right while they are to be had? Give us a trial.

J. O. Moore, Inc., Hammondsport, N.Y., U.S.A.

In speaking of one large collection in New York he said "if I could buy that I would pay a very fancy price, for every piece is a gem, there would be no waste."

He states that "In the great rush for United States stamps most of the other countries are neglected but this is to the advantage of the student and to the man of vision, who can look ahead and form collections of countries now neglected but which will prove a fine investment in the not distant future."

Mr. Phillips made a great many additional suggestions which he believed if put into effect would promote the interests of philately and put the hobby on an even sounder basis. He suggests that we all support the American Philatelic Society and attend its annual meetings. "This fellowship," says he, "or brotherhood, is a great factor in building up collectors. We get the competitive idea by meeting one another and this all helps business and should be encouraged."

"I have never been one of those fellows," continues Mr. Phillips, "who believed in getting hold of a collector and building a wall around him. The lonely collector seldom becomes a big and permanent buyer. The best men are those who join stamp clubs and associations and thus meet their fellowmen, exchange ideas, and learn how the other fellow collects and then tries to go one better."

Mr. Phillips also believes that an International Exhibition will have a considerable degree of influence on the stamp business of the near future.

"A real International Exhibition opened to the whole world to be held here about 1925 or 26 will be a grand thing to look for and I hope soon to see a strong committee formed to carry out the preliminary work. There has been some talk of a stamp exhibition in connection with the Sesqui-centennial exhibition, to be held in Philadelphia, in 1926, but it might be much better to have our stamp exhibition at a different time and not lost as a small adjunct to a huge exhibition."

"Philatelic conditions were never better and you may tell your readers that fine things are going to bring fine prices and that the one who invests wisely in stamps is making no mistake. Be a booster for philately and help to advance its interest."

CANADA'S "SALES TAX" ON STAMPS.

By E. E. Goodchild.

The following is a copy of a letter received on the 7th Sept. in answer to a communication directed by myself to the Commissioner of Customs:

Department of Customs and Excise,
Ottawa, 6th Sept., 1923.

Sir:—I acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 4th inst., with further reference to sales tax on importations of collections of postage stamps.

Answering your enquiries, you are advised as follows:—

(1.) Postage stamps exported out of Canada, for inspection by a prospective purchaser, are subject to sales tax at the time of re-importation into Canada.

(2.) Postage stamps sent to you for the purpose of inspection and possible purchase are held to be subject to payment of sales tax at the time of importation.

(3.) In the case of collection of stamps valued at $100.00 being imported for the purpose of inspection or purchase, sales tax of 6% would be applicable.

(4.) There is no provision for refund of Sales tax paid at the time of importation of these stamps.

(Signed) S. W. Hobart, for Commissioner.

Most readers like myself will be amazed to learn that a Government can be justified in charging a Sales tax on a person's own property which does not constitute a sale, yet the fact remains, if I send a fellow collector a selection for inspection outside of Canada and it is returned I've to pay 6% before I can obtain my own property to say nothing of the time lost in proceeding to the Customs office to get same.

How little is known regarding the methods of stamp collectors is displayed in paragraph (3). New York collector may send me a selection on approval valued at $100.00, I may not even purchase 5c worth, yet I must pay $6 tax and under paragraph (4). I'm told I have no redress and that no provisions are made for the repayment of a tax imposed under the title of Sales tax, but on which no sale has taken place.

I have no desire to introduce politics into the King of Hobbies but if the fifty thousand stamp collectors of Canada and those engaged in the trade are going to take it lying down then they deserve all that is coming to them. As under the foregoing conditions I defy any man breathing to deny that this is nothing more nor less than a legalized method of extortion.

Early British Colonials

OUR FIVE-YEAR RENEWAL CLUB.

C. W. Haynes, Marion, Ky.
H. Preston Hoskins, Detroit, Mich.
J. J. Lockie, Twin Falls, Idaho.

We are pleased to announce the addition of C. W. Haynes of Marion, Ky., to membership in our Five-Year Renewal Club. It comes in upon one of our renewal blanks in a very matter-of-fact manner.

We appreciate it as a no mean compliment when a brother editor expresses his belief in the Weekly to the extent of a five-year renewal. This is what has happened in the case of H. Preston Hoskins, the president of the Michigan Stamp Club of Detroit. He is connected with the American Veterinary Medical Association as secretary-editor. The postage upon his letter was paid with the new 4c coil, the date being Sept. 14, the first day of Detroit use.

Our dealer friend J. J. Lockie of Twin Falls, Idaho, adds his name to the roll of membership in our Honor Club. Mr. Lockie will be remembered as an advertising patron of our columns and we hope he will be with us during the coming season. Our relations with him as a dealer were very satisfactory and his kindly attitude towards the subscription end of the Weekly is appreciated.

The Managing Editor.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—From an article by Mr. Ward in the latest number of Stamp Collecting to reach us, we take the paragraph: "This last week I had an appeal from an old dealer friend, who before the war had a very fine stamp dealer's establishment on the Nevsky Prospect in the then St. Petersburg. He requested me to send him via the American Relief Committee, a dollar for foodstuffs!"

—Here is a question and answer as reported by way of the Postal Bulletin that will be of interest to precancelled collectors in particular:—

Question. Should the department make some kind of ruling whereby precanceled stamps should be sold in no less quantity than blocks of 25? This will do away with the small folks who persist in getting one or two stamps of each denomination. There is no saving to the department or consumer in this method.

Answer. In authorizing the use of precanceled stamps, it is with the understanding that it will facilitate the handling of matter and be of advantage both to the Postal Service and the mailer. This is not the case under the conditions described in the foregoing question and postmasters should courteously explain the matter to their patrons with a view to having the latter use precanceled stamps only in mailing matter where the advantages will be mutual to the mailer and the Postal Service.

—Souvenirs of the stamp exhibition held at Vienna in the early part of September have been received from C. S. Watson and Eugene Klein. The card sent by Mr. Klein bears a Vienna airmail postmark, while the cancellation upon both cards commemorates the stamp exhibition.

—Messrs. Wilcox, Smith & Co., of Dundin, advise us that New Zealand is to have a new penny stamp on 1st October, 1923, to celebrate the Dominions return to Penny Postage. The design is a map of the dominion, and the color is to be "Flesh."

—We are indebted to C. J. West, a member of our Honor Club, for a specimen of the new 2c Harding stamp from the rotary press. The cover bears the date of first day of use, Washington, Sept. 12. Mr. West also favors us with pages of the Aeronautical Digest which contain no fewer than three articles of interest to philatelists. One is entitled "Extension of the Air Mail Service to Boston," a second "Night Flight of the Air Mail" and a third "Postage Stamps of the Air Mails" by Stanley Phillips.

—A. Atlas Leve of Syracuse, N. Y., issues what he terms a "Lively Little List." It is all that its name implies. If you are interested in books, publications, catalogs or other accessories, to say nothing of stamp bargains, send for a copy.

—We have seen a clipping from the San Francisco Chronicle sent us by W. E. Dunlap, giving the particulars of a big pony express fete held at San Francisco, September 8. The preliminary story recalls pioneer days of the pony express and has a fine illustration of a Wells Fargo cover, the property of E. O. Gerberding, formerly of San Francisco but now of Santa Monica.

—Frank E. Hadley has removed from Plainfield, N. J., to Detroit, Mich., where he has opened a stamp shop at 2033 Woodward Ave. This will no doubt be good news to the collectors of Detroit and vicinity and the change of location upon Mr. Hadley's part will be very welcome.

—A recent caller at the office of the Weekly at Portland was John S. Reynolds of York, Pa. Philatelic visitors are always gladly received at any of our three offices.

—Harry B. Mason of the Stamp Shoppe has been nominated for County Treasurer by the Republicans of Arlington County, Va.

—A new advertising cancellation comes from Milwaukee:—"Food-Home-Elec. Exposition Milwaukee Auditorium Oct. 15-21."

—Wm. A. Lozenz suggests that the sign x be used to indicate a cancelled stamp. We feel that the best plan in writing advertisements is to allow the absence of any marking whatever to indicate that a stamp is in used condition.

Some dealers have employed circles to indicate used stamps, but the policy of past years in this direction seems best. Let the asterisk indicate the unused stamp and the absence of the asterisk the used in preparing your copy for the Weekly.

—The Walcott Co. is a new firm recently established in Cleveland, Ohio. George H. Walcott, the proprietor, has signed a contract for displayed space and the advertising of the firm will appear regularly in the Weekly in coming issues.

—With this issue two new advertisers will be found in the Weekly, Henry L. Dean of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Alling Stamp Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio. We welcome them to the columns of our publication.

—A New York subscriber wishes to know what day in the week the Weekly goes into the mail. A glance at our first page will show that the publication date is Monday and on that day, unless it should be a holiday, the paper leaves the Portland post-office.

—A. E. Hussey, M. D., of Cincinnati, Ohio, a long-time advertiser in the Weekly, is now manager of the Sales Department of the S. P. A. and is working to place it upon a sound basis. Under his supervision the members will be taken care of properly.

—Our subscribers in the west are keeping us very busy in connection with clippings from papers dealing with the Pony Express commemorative events that are being held more particularly in San Francisco. We are unable to use very much of what has been sent in, much to our regret. Our space is limited and we are compelled to use what seems to be most pressing. We appreciate all these courtesies upon the part of our subscribers.

—Richard Lamprecht and various other subscribers have sent us in specimens of German envelopes that are stampless. The postage rate upon these letters was paid in cash at post-offices, this condition of things having been forecasted in a late Weekly.

—The Philadelphia Inquirer is running a series of "Adventures of Dr. Dolittle." Numbers 55, 56 and 57 have a decided philatelic flavor and we should reprint them were they not copyrighted.

STAMP NEWS SEEN BY THE "TIMES."

Late Happenings Commented Upon by the N. Y. Daily.

Clipping from F. P. Brown.

Word has been received by John A. Klemann, a stamp dealer, of 116 Nassau Street, that his collection of stamps from the Philippine Islands won the gold medal in its class in the recent international postage stamp exhibition held in Vienna. The collection was shown in five volumes, containing 25,000 stamps, including all of the rare first issues of 1854 and countless varieties and errors. It is considered one of the best Philippine stamp collections in the world, and Mr. Klemann has spent several years in accumulating it.

This is the first time since 1911 that an international philatelic exhibition has been held in Vienna. Mr. Klemann was the only prominent American exhibitor. At the 1911 Vienna international exhibition, J. Murray Bartels of this city, won a gold medal with his collection of Philippine Island stamps.

The American Philatelic Society at its annual conference in Washington last month contributed a gold medal for one of the leading classes, and a fund for the Vienna exhibition also was sent by the Collectors Club of this city.

The stamp collector has appeared on the stage and the foibles and enthusiasm of his hobby are entertainingly portrayed in the new comedy, "The Talking Parrot," by Hutcheson Boyd, which had its opening night last Monday in Kathleen Kirkwood's Triangle Theatre, on Seventh Avenue, between Eleventh and Perry Streets. The theatre is the latest addition to the amusement resorts of Greenwich Village and is novel in that it occupies a triangular-shaped basement beneath a Seventh Avenue laundry.

There is a real talking parrot in the play and he has been so well trained that he talks only when spoken to. The stamp collector, who fills the role of the hero of the play, is played by John Parrish. He is shown looking over his rarities and calls attention to his fine Brattleboro specimen, his Hawaiian "missionary" stamp, his circular British Guiana and other choice treasures, indicating that he is no mean philatelist.

Against the protestations of his friends and newly-wed wife, he insists upon making an ocean journey from his home in Washington Square to New Brunswick to obtain an early error variety of the first Tasmania issue. His ship is wrecked and his two closest friends reveal an amusing spirit of rivalry as to who shall marry the charming young widow, each insisting that the other is the more eligible man.

The climax is deftly arranged, one of the striking scenes being the apparent appearance of the shipwrecked philatelist as a ghost in the midst of a terrific thunderstorm. He eventually returns, however, telling of his escape and just in time to prevent the contemplated marriage. He intensifies the spirit of philately by first making sure that his album is safe, saying that wives may be replaced but rare stamps never.

J. L. RIEDEL DISCREDITED.

In our Sept. 17. issue we printed an advertisement of J. L. Riedel, Nurnberg, Bavaria. It contained several testimonials and we now find that one of these is protested by the party who sent it in, the firm of H. E. Harris & Co. The subsequent relations between the two dealers were of such a character that the Harris firm feels that the original testimonial was used dishonestly in this advertisement. It has not been our practise to look up the matter of "consent" in connection with the use of testimonials, and it may be necessary for us to make a rule in this direction. We feel that an apology is due the Harris Co. as well as the WEEKLY by Mr. Riedel, and we shall certainly await a letter from him before accepting any further advertising.

The protest received from Mr. Harris of the Harris & Co. is as follows:—

"We are writing to protest the action of J. L. Riedel of Nurnberg, Bavaria, in printing an unauthorized testimonial from us in his advertisement on page 469, September 17th issue of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY. As a matter of plain fact, complaints regarding the packets obtained from Mr. Riedel were received from a large number of our customers, and after a rigid investigation we arrived at the conclusion that he was guilty of flagrant substitutions both in the quality and contents of said packets. We wrote Mr. Riedel that many of his packets were unsatisfactory, requested a cancellation of our entire order, and have not made packet purchases from him for almost a year. The testimonial which he so brazenly produced was therefore not only unauthorized, but extremely misleading, in view of subsequent events explained above."

EDITORIAL.

The stamp season is now declared to be officially opened and for the next nine or ten months stamps will be the ruling passion with many of us. It is strange that each year, philately runs so true to form in that at the close of the outdoor season or with the coming of cold weather, there is a ripple of interest, followed by successive waves whose height may be said to measure the success of the season. Latterly, we have been confronted with a situation that is out of the ordinary and though we have spoken of this circumstance before, we cannot dismiss it readily from mind. We know that the collector who forswears philately and no longer comes in contact with stamps and collectors often wonders if philately is on the wane; and the person who may have a collecting desire but who is not familiar with the workings of the stamp world has no conception of what is taking place in it. Those who fall under these classes seem to be under the delusion that stamp collecting is in the doldrums, judging from comments that have been heard and opinions that have appeared in print. If there was the slightest reason for pessimistic views, we could give heed to the left-handed opinions but as it is, the guesses are about as wide of the mark as they possibly could be. These folks have their umbrellas up on a sunshiny dav and seeing only the shadow made by their covering say it is raining.

We dare not ignore the erroneous ideas that the ignorant have of the present state of philately, else it would be thought that silence was a tacit admission of the weakness that is alleged. The statement is made without any qualifications that stamp collecting is in a happier, healthier condition today than it ever was before. This assurance is made for the benefit of those who are some distance away from the ring, as those who are in a position to see what is going on in philately need no restoration of confidence. The WEEKLY being in the thick of things in a stamp sense, knows that the past summer has more than held its own; and for the past few weeks there has been a decided spurt that puts to blush the preliminary period of other years. Our advertising columns are telling arguments in favor of what we have said; and we know what we are doing in the subscription line. All through the hot months our advertising has held up well and now the inquiries for space are being received in large number. Our five-year subscription renewal club is an indication of the collecting fervor of collectors and soon this club will be a standing refutation of the claim that is sometimes made that stamp collectors are transients. We hear of the formation of stamp clubs and the activities of societies already established. In different ways we learn of the demand for information on stamp subjects on the part of the public; and an outstanding accomplishment is the recognition of newspapers that philately is an accepted and not an eccentric pursuit. The attention given by different governments to their stamp issues fixes public notice on stamp issues; and everything considered, there is no comparison to be made with the flourishing philately of this moment with that of previous years that is not wholly in favor of today.

Here is one of the questions submitted to the Minnesota Postal Conference convention held recently at Minneapolis and the answer to it made by the post-office department: "Question. If Congress authorizes a charge of one cent for return cards how would it be to print and sell for one cent a stamp to be used for this purpose only? It might be a square, or some other distinctive shape, and have the words 'Return Receipt' printed in heavy type at the bottom. Answer. This matter will be given attention, if a charge is made for return receipts. However, it is believed that registered and insured articles (for which return receipts are issued) are in many instances prepared and presented under conditions which render it impracticable or inconvenient to use a distinctive stamp to represent payment of a charge for a return receipt, and at present it is not thought advisable to provide such a stamp if such a charge is authorized."

From a correspondent we have received a translation from a European newspaper which recites how sunshine, a thimbleful of coffee or a few drops of raspberry juice is used to enhance the value of certain stamps. It is alleged that the Baden, first type, black on white is dipped in coffee to produce No. 1, the black on buff; and that the blue Mercury newspaper stamp of Austria is submitted to a sun-bath, with the result that it is metamorphosed into the rare yellow Mercury. The raspberry juice is used to change the white gum of the Hanover stamps into the pink gum of the originals. We cannot say just how successful the results of these experiments are but it is admitted that a scrutiny of the closest kind is justified for many of the stamps coming from some of the countries of Europe.

The following advertisement is taken from the "agony column" of the London Times and sent in by Lowell J. Ragatz: "Business man, married, children, temporary difficulties, requires 750 to 1,000 pounds; has stamp collection; dealer offered 600 pounds; will anyone give more? Write Box H, 134, The Times, E. C. 4." The stamp collection, it is shown, is an anchor to windward. Mr. Ragatz adds: "By-the-way, a granddaughter of Rowland Hill was doing graduate work at the University of Wisconsin last year. Her family name is Crump. She lives in London and did her under-graduate work with the University of London."

Some weeks ago, we mentioned that J. A. Pierce of Chicago had died as the result of injuries received from a street car in front of the office of the Chicago Tribune, where Mr. Pierce was employed as one of the custodians, on the night watch; and we now append the following biographical details of Mr. Pierce with whom in years past we were in contact almost daily. Before the Chicago fire of 1871, Mr. Pierce owned one of the largest sporting goods stores in the city and enjoyed a remunerative business but the great conflagration wiped everything away. About 1874, Mr. Pierce became interested in "scrap-pictures" that were such favorites with the people young and old, fifty years ago; and he opened an office in the down-town section of Chicago, dealing in the little pictures used in autograph albums of that period, fringed cards and postage stamps for collectors. When the decalcomania pictures were the rage, Mr. Pierce stocked them with his stamps. Mr. Pierce pursued the stamp business with varying success and it is not to be said that his aptitude for philatelic salesmanship was great. He really liked his stamps and those that the customer wanted were just the ones that Mr. Pierce was reluctant to sell. Every now and then Mr. Pierce found conditions adverse and on different occasions he disposed of his stamp stock. With the ption of a short time in Cincinnati, Pierce spent his business life in ago and he was most successful in tamp business during the years 1875 386. The first few meetings of the ago Philatelic Society in 1886 were in his office. During the last twenty- years, our friend did nothing to ify himself with stamps but acted as tary of one of the civil war veterans' iations; and later he was with the ago Tribune, as has been mentioned. Pierce was about eighty years old singularly well preserved at the time is passing away. His personality an engaging one and when he cared companionable, he was an interest- addition to any party. Mr. Pierce d with distinction in the civil war in later years was a leader in the activities of the G. A. R. Mr. e while often matter-of-fact with dult customers was uniformly kind considerate in his relations with the g collectors. Mr. Pierce had never ied and his obsequies were con- d under the auspices of U. S. Grant Mr. Pierce was not a philatelist e sense that the term is used today is liking for stamps was so genuine he found it hard to part with them. early price lists showed that his was above the average run but the tion question had not then become ther; and later when it did, Mr. e calmly ignored it. Outside of go, Mr. Pierce was not well known, was not a dealer who catered for le trade by advertising.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 WEST 113TH ST., NEW YORK

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We take the following memorial from the editorial in the London Philatelist for August: "Beyond the general knowledge of this great man open to all readers of the public press, we had only the personal information gathered from the talks we had with our American friends at the recent Exhibition and its attendant functions, to guide us, but the more we heard the deeper we were impressed by his simplicity and transparent sincerity." We need not say that President Harding is the one referred to.

—Concurrent with the change in German postal rates on September 1st, covers appeared bearing no postage stamps but with printed or written inscription, either in French, "Taxe Percue" or in German, "Gebuhr bezahlt."

—L. W. Wickes sends us a copy of the Los Angeles Evening Express containing a news story, in which M. H. Newmark, veteran business man of that city as well as philatelist, figures. The story is a bright and interesting one and is accompanied by a large illustration showing Mr. Newmark studying his album treasures while behind him as a background is a vertical strip of four of the $200 U. S. internal stamps, issue of 1862.

—C. W. Stiles, formerly of Wadsworth, Ohio, is now located at the Lafayette Hotel, Lexington, Ky. During the past two months Mr. Stiles has been unable to give attention to details of business.

—The Christian Science Monitor last month contained an illustrated article, suggested by the new 5m., portrait type, of Egypt, issued April 16, 1923, and called attention to the contrast furnished by this stamp, presumably the first of a new series, to the other issues of Egypt. We submit the following paragraph from the article as disclosing a fact both interesting and important:

"The new stamp has created great interest in collecting circles. It is such a novel design for the land of the Pharaohs; it marks the beginning of the new régime, and last, but by no means least, H. M. King Fuad is a keen collector himself. He became Sultan on Oct. 9, 1917, and possesses a general collection in 35 volumes and a specialized collection of the stamps of his own country."

—From Mr. James A. Cook, Waterloo, Iowa, we have received a two column notice of Mr. Frank J. Stillman of Waterloo that appeared in the local newspaper. A picture accompanies the text which describes the activities of Mr. Stillman as a newspaper man. Older readers of the Weekly will remember Mr. Stillman as our Washington correspondent and also, as having published one number of the Stamp Age in April, 1904, which in size and general make-up resembled the old Boston Stamp Book. The occasion of the interesting write-up is Mr. Stillman's removal from Waterloo to Los Angeles, Cal.

—The government stamp exhibition is being shown in Chicago, where it has attracted the attention of collectors and some of the newspapers have given it publicity, the American having illustrated the "world's finest collection." The frame was exhibited first in the post-office and then at the National Business Show at the Coliseum in Chicago. We welcome the exhibit to our city and trust that its tour will be attended with great favor.

—We find ourselves reading the latest trade circular of the J. O. Moore, Inc., dealers, "Midsummer Gleanings," with interest, and the editor says that he found it difficult to lure U. S. from their holders at the Washington conventions.

—In our issue of June 30th, the news of an accident to Mr. Henry N. Mudge, Chicago, was told and it is only now that we are able to say that an improvement in Mr. Mudge's condition may be chronicled. Mr. Mudge was removed from the hospital to his home several weeks ago and the cast was removed from the injured members; and while progress has been made, Mr. Mudge will be house-bound for some time to come. At the recent convention of the American Philatelic Society, a telegram was sent to Mr. Mudge as an ex-president of the organization, expressing the hope of speedy recovery.

—In answer to an inquiry why a limit of size is not placed on first-class mail, in view of the fact that there is a limit of weight, the post-office department says that the law does not fix any limit of the kind and that "furthermore it would not seem to be necessary to prescribe any limit of size for first-class matter in view of the high rate of postage chargeable thereon."

—The "Weko" Local Stamp Club of Chicago, a branch of the World's largest collector club, is holding now two meetings per month instead of one, that is every second and fourth Thursday of the month at the Hotel Morrison, Parlor "L" 7.30 P. M. Information will be given upon request by the secretary, G. C. Huebner, 1015 Oakdale Ave., Chicago.

HARDING MEMORIAL STAMPS

On September 12th this stamp was issued perforated 10, a product of the rotary press. The information was not announced until the 10th, so it is doubtful if many were used on the first day. For those interested I offer a very fine copy clearly cancelled at Washington on day of issue at $1.00.

Other Harding items that may interest you:

FLAT PLATE ISSUE—Perforated 11
Used day of issue Marion, O. (Sept. 1)	$1.00
Used day of iss. Washington, D.C. (Sept. 1)	.50
Used day of iss. Philadelphia, Pa. (Sept. 1)	1.00
Mint block of four	.12
ROTARY PRESS ISSUE—Perforated 10
Used day of iss. Washing'n, D.C. (Sept. 12)	1.00
Mint block of four	.12

If you desire to start a specialized collection of this most interesting stamp—now is your chance. One of each of the above items at $3.50.

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

If you have any 10c blacks you've reason to be proud of, please drop me a line. [tf

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—The Harding Memorial Stamp has created considerable interest and quite a few correspondents have written to ask about its history as well as advice as to the plates which have been made. Several parties have claimed to have been the one who proposed the idea of such a stamp and as we wanted real historical information upon the subject, I communicated with Mr. W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster-General in regard to the emission.

Under date of Sept. 14th Mr. Glover informs me that a few days after the death of former President Harding he was in conversation with the Postmaster-General when the subject was thought of and discussed. The Postmaster-General stated that he certainly would as Postmaster-General like to show his appreciation of his very dear friend, the Late President, and that he felt that a Memorial Stamp would be the ideal way of doing this. Mr. Glover stated that he would take the matter up with the Postmaster-General at a later day and that he then suggested the same to Mr. M. L. Eidsness, Jr., Superintendent of Division of Stamps, and that Mr. Eidsness put the suggestion in effect and that the Bureau turned out sketches in short order. Mr. Glover states that the Postmaster-General is entitled to the fullest possible credit. I feel that we can safely say that while several people on the outside may have thought of such a thing—in fact your own editor mentioned such a variety in his Chronicle written previous to the announced intentions of the Department, nevertheless, the idea comes from the Postmaster-General along with his Third Assistant.

While I have not as yet received an official list from the Bureau of Engraving & Printing of the exact number of plates used in connection with this stamp, I have found on sale flat plates numbering from 14852 to 14863 inclusive. These stamps are perforated 11. I have also seen stamps from two rotary plates which are perforated 10 bearing plate numbers 14866 and 14867. A number of collectors have called attention to numerous imperfections to be found in the plates and we notice that on the row of stamps immediately below the right and left plate number of No. 14857 that there is a horizontal line—no doubt a guide line on the plate running nearly across the entire sheet. Mr. A. A. Leve states that there is a blemish in the engraving of the stamp consisting of a black line across the face from above the temple to the necktie. Personally, we believe the stamp to be a very fine piece of work and cannot feel that the shadow described by Mr. Leve is a blemish.

The latter part of August the Department arranged that registered letters valued at $100.00 and so insured at the time of mailing by payment of a register fee of 20c should be indicated by a round circular mark ¾" in diameter with the figure "20" enclosed within. This mark is put upon the front of the envelope.

Belgian Congo.—We have just received from Mr. Henry Hooreman the following values of the new set, 5c orange, 50c grey blue, 75c red orange and 1fr olive brown.

British Levant.—We are officially informed that, on the ratification of the Treaty of Peace with Turkey, the British Post Offices in the Levant will be closed and the overprinted stamps withdrawn from sale.—Whitfield King & Co.'s List.

China.—The dollar values of the current issue were issued sometime ago overprinted "Manchuria" in Chinese characters. The Director General of Posts, Peking, informs us that these were issued for use exclusively on money orders issued by certain offices in Manchuria and other districts, that they are not available for postage, and are not sold to the public.—Whitfield King & Co.'s List.

Germany.—Our Berlin agent, writing under date August 16th, states that on August 24th a new postal tariff would come into operation, increasing the present postal charges twenty-fold, for example the postage on an inland letter will cost 20,000 instead of 1,000 marks. All stamps now current will be withdrawn and some will probably be surcharged with higher denominations pending the printing of a new definite series. The same thing will probably happen in Danzig, where stamps of 10,000, 20,000 and 100,000 marks have already appeared, the latter being overprinted on the 20,000 mark stamps.—Whitfield King & Co.'s List.

Mr. James Van Meyers advises that he has received the following new stamps, type A31, 5,000mk slate green, 10,000mk Cologne Cathedral, but upright in ol green; type A26, 30pf surcharged Tausend" in black in two lines, type A 12mk overprinted as the 30pf but w the value "20" instead of "8." Also ty A35, 200mk has been surcharged in l manner and value also in black.

Greece.—Our Athens Special Cor spondent, Mr. P. J. Drossos, sends cop of a new value used on cover postmark July 24th:—

TASSER, 2518 Jay, Cleveland, Ohio

Type of 50l of 1913-18. Lithographed.
801 dull purple.

With regard to the recent provisionals, Messrs. Yvert & Tellier affirm that it is the 1 drachma of Crete, 1905 issue, overprinted for Greece, which has now been surcharged "EPANASTASIS—50 LEPTA."—Stamp Collecting.

HOLLAND AND COLONIES.—On August 31st, the birthday of Queen Wilhelmina, new stamps were issued to commemorate her 25 years reign. The following is a list of denominations:—Holland, 2, 5, 7½, 10, 20, 25, 35, 50 cents, 1, 2½ and 5 florins. Curacao, 5, 7½, 10, 20 cents, 1, 2½ and 5 florins. Dutch East Indies, 5, 12½, 20, 50 cents, 1, 2½ and 5 florins. Surinam, 5, 10, 20, 50 cents, 1, 2½ and 5 florins.—Whitfield King & Co.'s List.

MEMEL.—Five more provisionals are chronicled by L'Echo de la Timbrologie. We should prefer to have ignored them.

2 cent. on 50m yellow-green.
3 cent. on 40m purple.
10 cent. on 400m dark brown.
50 cent. on 1,000m blue.
1 lit. on 1,000m blue.
—Stamp Collecting.

SAN MARINO.—To mark the presentation of an Italian flag to this tiny Republic, and the fêtes which took place on the day it was publicly presented (April 6th), two oblong labels have been issued, examples of which are to hand from our Milan confrère, Ing. L. Rivolta. The first, 30c, is upright in format, with the picture of a haloed patriarch hammering with chisel and mallet at what is either a boat or his coffin. The other 50c, transverse, has a Venetian vignette at left, the tricolour of Italy in the centre, and the three familiar towers of San Marino at right, both stamps having suitable inscriptions, which we are too exhausted to decipher.

30c brown. 50c grey.

Also a provisional, viz.: "Cent. 60" on the oblong 25c rose, Express stamp.

60c on 25c Express.
—Stamp Collecting.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS — Trengganu.— Mr. C. D. Twynham informs us that there is no immediate intention of issuing 6c, 12c and 35c stamps, though these are now the rates most frequently required.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

A. H. WEBER MEETS WITH DISASTER.

As we go to press we have just received a telegram from A. H. Weber, North Berkeley, Cal., announcing the devastation of that part of the city by a serious fire. We quote from his wire:—"Fifty blocks have been burned. My home has gone with contents, including my collection. Tried to save a few approvals but don't know what I rescued. I walked out with some clothes that I could grab. Will start life over again. I am broke financially but not in spirit."

Mr. Weber will have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances in the terrible experience he has suffered.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS.

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the WEEKLY are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it.

THE SEASON'S SENSATION

Announcing the Harrisco "Super-Six"

HOURS OF PLEASURE—MANY DOLLARS OF PROFIT

One big surprise from start to finish and as full of real "thrills" as the Japanese earthquake!

It is unnecessary for us to delineate on the wonderful value of this lot, for the list of contents below will speak for itself. Suffice to say that every stamp is in perfect condition and guaranteed genuine, while only popular, fast moving stock is included.

Don't perplex yourself trying to figure out how we do it! Just dig up a five spot, add 35c for postage, and the finished product—the Great Number Six—will be at your door by return mail!

British Colonies!

2,250 Colonials Only, Cataloguing from $256 to $300

Special "Season Opener" at $37.50!

Not more than one lot to any purchaser—

Large Variety and every stamp in perfect condition—

Here's your BIG CHANCE to make 200% to 300% profit!

Responding to an overwhelming demand, we have assembled from our own stock a packet of the popular British Colonies which is of such excellent quality that it will be hailed with delight by the most fastidious!

It was impossible for us to compute the cost price of these lots, but we have a feeling that they are being offered at actual cost or less; hence our strict ruling "only one to a customer."

Each packet contains several hundred distinct varieties, and more than 75% of the total value consists of stamps cataloguing from 5c each up to several dollars. Of these, there are in no cases more than ten of any one kind. It can readily be seen that the cheap, trashy varieties are practically all eliminated and that the packet is filled with popular, quick-selling stamps.

A complete description is impossible. We guarantee your entire satisfaction or your money goes back without question—that's the most eloquent recommendation anyone could give!

Quick sales with 200% to 300% profit are easily possible!

Remember! Over 2,250 stamps—catalogue between $265 and $300—everything in perfect condition.

Here's the best news we've been able to report for many a day! a lucky purchase, we are able to offer just one collection of 20,000 diffe stamps, all specially picked and selected specimens, for $745.00—a re tion of exactly $150.00 from our regular price!

Words cannot do justice to the aristocratic and thoroughbred ap ance of this excellent assembling, nor to the fineness and quality of stamps contained therein. It is easy enough to get together 20,000 sta of a kind, including a lot of unlisted varieties, but it's a different matt obtain a collection of the same number of standard and major varieties all in the pink of condition, and containing a large number of the sca stamps cataloguing up to $10.00 each.

The collection is mounted by countries in twenty ruled books. countries of the world are represented, 20th century and new issues quite strong, but the older issues are by no means neglected.

Don't confuse this offering with similar collections offered in this c try and abroad, most of which contain thousands of telegraphs, reve and minor varieties. We will back the quality of our collection agains competition, and the best proof of our sincerity is the fact that we are ing to allow a rigid, ten-day inspection by any prospective purchaser, may return the stamps for a full refund if not more than pleased.

Dealers! Here's a chance to obtain a big collection of the most lar stamps, which will prove a great "counter-book" attraction and scores of collectors into your office. And every sale at half catalogue represent a big profit for you! If you do an approval business, the c tion will solve the perplexing problem of catering to customers who "books by countries" or who send in want lists.

Mr. Collector! Our Bulletins, being of interest only to the trade dom find their way into the hands of the collector. If you should by ch be lucky enough to see this exceptional offer, remember the old adage portunity knocks but once" and act immediately! Don't forget: Ou eral "money-back-if-not-satisfied" guarantee protects you in every wa

THE MARK FALLS—MANY NEW STAMPS

(Christian Science Monitor.)

The postal history of Germany for the last five years may be described as one of continual change, and the different stamps have followed one another in such a peculiar manner that it is by no means easy to place these frequent emissions in their proper sequence. Very different from the old days, when the postal issues of Germany were as strictly regulated as most things in that land of ultra-official supervision.

A late issue is a single denomination, 5,000 marks, blue, with quite a novel design, for with one or two exceptions the pictorial type of adhesive has not been included in German issues. The stamp shows a view of the Castle of Wartburg, and is line-engraved on stout white wove rag paper, watermarked with a mesh design and perforated 14.

THE SANGERSAAL OF WARTBURG.

The Wartburg is near Eisenach in the grand duchy of Saxe Weimar, and is built at the top of a precipitous hill. It is notable not only on account of its historic associations but as one of the best examples of the palace Romanesque in existence. The original, of which some parts still remain, was built by the landgrave, Louis "the Springer," who flourished in the early days of the twelfth century, and from his time till 1440 it was the seat of the Thuringian landgraves. Under Herman I, it was made the scene of high revel, and from all accounts the wandering minstrel and the strolling player came there in one incessant stream. Day and night this boisterous court presided, and here in 1207 was held the minstrels' contest immortalized by Wagner in Tannhäuser.

The minstrels and the courtiers pass away, the Sangersaal is silent, and "Junker Jorg" takes up his abode at the Wartburg. He came one day in May, 1521, and for 10 months or more he was busy writing. He was always writing, this mysterious stranger, and Frederick the Wise, Elector of Saxony, was at great pains to safeguard the industrious student, who was no other than Luther, and the work which occupied so much of his time was the translation of the New Testament. You may still see the room in the buildings of the outer court once occupied by the great reformer and the Sangersaal, or hall of the minstrels, with its fine fresco representing the contest by Moritz von Schwind, who also did the frescoes in the other parts of the building illustrating the legends of St. Elizabeth and the founding of the castle by Louis. The armory has a fine collection of arms and armor, with suits once worn by Henry II of France, the Elector, Frederick the Wise and Pope Julius II. It was after Luther's stay that the Wartburg began to fall into gradual decay, until it was restored in the eighteenth century in the questionable taste of the period, and its present magnificence it owes to the Grand Duke Charles Alexander of Saxe Weimar, with whom it was a favorite residence during certain seasons of the year.

SAID TO BE ALREADY OBSOLETE.

The collapse of the German mark has long been an everyday topic and the appearance of this high value stamp is a sign of the times and a very sure indication of how matters stand in the country. It is said that this 5,000-mark stamp is already obsolete and is to be replaced by one of double this amount; possibly there will be an entirely new series of high values in various pictorial designs. This last issue is really a very creditable production, simple and artistic, but the same cannot be said of the other emissions which have appeared since the armistice.

The original series which appeared early in 1921 comprised six designs, a large numeral for the values up to 50 pfennig; three designs representing smiths at work, miners and harvesters, for the middle denominations; for the 5 and 10 marks an oblong "bank-note" type; and for the 20-mark a plowing scene. These were surfaced-printed on white wove paper watermarked lozenge, at the Government Printing Works, Berlin, and perforated 14. It will be seen that 20 marks was then considered a sufficiently high value for postal purposes, but the tariff for all letters was to undergo considerable change during the next 12 months. In July of last year the rates were increased 50 per cent; by October these charges were trebled, and now there has been a further increase of 200 per cent. This means that an inland letter costs 300 marks—nominally £15. A letter going abroad is 800 marks and a post card is 480 marks. To meet these demands additional high values have been added from time to time, certain denominations have been abolished and bi-colored stamps have been supplied in one color.

FLYING SHIPS URGED IN 1822.

WASHINGTON, MARCH 27—More than a hundred years ago, when the United States mails were being transported by carriers on horseback the editor of the Freeman's Journal, now the Norristown, (Pa.) Herald, suggested the use of flying ships" and Postmaster-General Work has decided it is time publicly to acknowledge receipt of the "friendly advice."

In the issue of the Freeman's Journal of March 1, 1822, the editor wrote:

"We would advise the Postmaster-General to avail himself of the novel and the very ingenious flying machine, invented by James Bennett, of Philadelphia, by which we conceive, the mails would be transported with more celerity and their arrival at the places of destination be much more certain than is the case at present."

In approval of the development of the air mail service Postmaster-General Work said:

"If that was true then, it is true today, and I wish I might be able to advise this old editor that we are today using the 'flying machine' with splendid results in transporting the mails with safety and celerity."

Post-office records show in 1833 a 'wonderful feat' was performed in carrying the mail and news despatches by relays of horses every five miles, between Washington and New York, in fifteen hours.—Norristown (Pa.) Herald.

CORONATION STAMPS OF PERSIA.

By J. J. KLEMANN, JR.

In Champion's Bulletin, No. 243, dated July 25th, mention is made of several sets of stamps issued by the Persian Government during the years 1914-1921. This reference does not apply to the Coronation stamps, the subject of this article, but to the provisional issues.

Anyone reading this Bulletin casually must be struck with the extraordinary story how these provisional issues were put into circulation one day, only to be withdrawn the next and again put into circulation, due to a lack of fixed policy but more often to politics which sometimes play a considerable role in the issuing of postage stamps.

Sometimes these issues were reported to the Postal Union but more often because of the few numbers issued the postal officials did not report them. Most of these issues were temporary issues as the stamps which for years were not made locally could not be supplied because of the World War. Then with sudden changes in policy the stamps were withdrawn or put into circulation again seemingly at the whim of the administration.

Here we have a record of stamps which have been in circulation for several years and only become known to us now and on further investigation find that the Postal Union has been informed regarding their issue at a time considerably later than when the stamps were in current use. Such a state of affairs must not be considered unusual for it must be remembered that Persia had been completely cut off from the contemporary world for some time during and following the period of the war. The philatelic facts which I am about to present will, I hope, explain much that has been obscure concerning the recent postal issues.

For more than twenty years the stamps of Persia were printed by the firm of Joh. Enschede en Zonen in Haarlem, Holland, and it was in 1910 the Persian Government placed an order for an issue of stamps in commemoration of the coronation of the Shah. In everything concerning style and execution they were to be the finest that had ever appeared in the way of stamps, and at the same time were intended to create a sort of propaganda for the mysterious fairy-like country of the Orient by the magnificence of the landscape and historical designs and by the richness of their truly oriental coloring. The important sovereigns who had distinguished themselves as heroes and the most beautiful parts of the country had been selected for the designs of the stamps and the government did not spare any means to produce something really remarkable in this line. It is said that the designs alone cost more than £1,000 in gold and 38 different plates, not less than 60,000 francs in gold. These figures speak for themselves.

A well known Parisian stamp collector who was well connected with the Persian Government went personally to Teheran at two different times in 1910 and it is especially to his ideas that the style and execution of these stamps are due, because he presented on those occasions finished plans according to the wishes of the officials. The following excerpts are from letters of that time on the part of the Ministry:

"It is well understood that the stamps shall be printed at Haarlem with actual control mark; but after having said that you would furnish the post-office with stamps for its use, you say that the cost of printing will remain a charge against the post-office which appears to me to be contradictory.

In the name of the Council of Ministers the Postmaster-General has charged me to enter into communication with you for the purpose of concluding this matter. I have the honor, therefore, of advising you that it is the desire of the government to conclude the contract given you."

Evidently this concluded the contract with M. Saatjian and the Director took up the matter with another contractor, whose name unfortunately did not appear on the photographic copy of the letter on the subject which follows, but taken in connection with the rest of the correspondence undoubtedly was the firm of Joh. Enschede en Zonen in Haarlem.

1) the conditions under which you would undertake the matter of the commemorative stamps proposed by M. Saatjian which he appears to have abandoned.

2) in case you would not desire to undertake this business, the conditions under which you would set yourself of making another commemorative set, which appears preferable, being given, as M. Saatjian has paid no attention to a letter in which I asked him to remit immediately all the plates and dies of these stamps to the firm of Enschede en Zonen at Haarlem.

He received this letter three months ago and during this time he has had the leisure of duplicating all these cliches. This is why it appears preferable to abandon that business and create another series on the subject of which I wait your suggestions.

I am, dear sir,
THE DIRECTOR GENERAL."

March 8, 1911, the Persian Post Office Department wrote as follows concerning this issue:

"That it will not be possible to employ the plates of the regular stamps for printing the commemorative stamps even by placing the lion with the effigy of the Shah, providing that the cliches are destroyed when the correspondence in which we are engaged with another house for the sale of the complete stock of these provisionals shall be terminated.

Under these circumstances if you continue to have a preference for a commemorative series of 1 chahi to 30 krans without a postal packet series, &c., I beg of you to acquaint me with any new propositions .... which you suggest to make an ordinary series, a postal packet series, an official series and a postage due series of these commemorative stamps."

There seemingly was much correspondence, but mostly departmental delay because the next letter of importance is dated May 7, 1913, and is from the Director-General to the same unknown person.

"TEHERAN, May 7, 1913.
Postal Administration of Persia Direction General
No. 9462

Sir,

I have your letter of April 25th, and your proposition on the subject of the issue of a series of commemorative stamps of the date on which His Majesty Sultan Ahmed Schah shall attain his Majority.

This proposition has interested me very much and I would be disposed to submit it to the Minister of Posts and the Treasurer-General, if you would be so kind as to give me the following information:

1) you will undertake to submit to the Postal Administration the suggestion for vignettes for printing in the frame of the cliches furnished by M. Saadtjian; if in the affirmative, I would ask you to send me designs.

2) you consent that the quantity of stamps to be printed be limited to the ordinary needs of the Postal Administration for a period of 15 days calculated according to the sale of the year preceding the issue.

3) the sets which remain not used of the quantity mentioned in Section 2, will these remainders be the property of the Postal Administration?

4) would you explain to me the significance of the phrase following your letter: "the quantity that the Postal Administration will demand and the remainder will be sent directly to me according to the order of the Administration as soon as these stamps will have been put out of course."

5) do you not think it is preferable to write me a letter for the total number of ordinary, service, and postal packet sets which you desire to receive for that sum of 50,000 francs which you offer independently of the payment of all expenses.

In awaiting your response, I am, &c,
THE DIRECTOR GENERAL."

Evidently the progress was too slow, and complaint made to the firm of Enschede en Zonen, because on February 24, 1914, they write:

"JOH. ENSCHEDE EN ZONEN

TEHERAN,

Sir,

In response to your valued communication of the 7th current we have the honor of informing you concerning the subject of commemorative stamps, that we regret very much to have to tell you that it is impossible to furnish one series of stamps in taille douce or typographed (the only two methods which resist counterfeiting), for the month of June, because the preparation of the engraving and of all the necessary material demand much time. In view of our contract concerning the exclusive furnishing of the stamps of the Empire of Persia it goes without saying that if the execution of that order were within our power, we would employ every means to satisfy you.

We can assure you that it is impossible for any house in good faith to furnish in such a short time a set of Jubilee stamps in taille douce or typographed and in addition a kind of stamps, the execution of which must be made carefully in every particular first class, because the issue will appear on the occasion of the coronation of H. I. M. Sultan Ahmed Shah.

Confident that you will agree with us, we are," &c.

The note of October 7, 1914, quoted in full is one of the most important documents relative to this issue as it would tend to show that only with the authorization of the government could the order have been carried out and the delivery of the stamps made:

(Signed) JOH. ENSCHEDE EN ZONEN."

When all the details were finally settled and the first impressions were being made, press of work for the Netherlands government held up the delivery of the Persian stamps and the postmaster complained to the printer. His reply of February 1, 1915, is very interesting, especially as it shows that the delay in delivery had only begun.

"JOH. ENSCHEDE EN ZONEN
HAARLEM
HAARLEM, 1st of February, 1915.
REGISTERED

Dear Sir,

I hasten to answer your personal letter of January 21st last. Yes, it is indeed true you have much reason for complaint, but on the other hand we have none to reproach ourselves.

It goes without saying that you complain because of the delays which have arisen in nearly all the work which you have demanded of us, but we have been swamped and overwhelmed with work which we were given by other governments.

For instance, the Netherlands Jubilee stamps of 1913 made it necessary to employ all our electro and taille douce equipment and when one was able to breathe, there came the terrible year of 1914, and we had to suffer the severest exigencies of the Empire of Persia and (after the declaration of war) of our own government. Being the official printers of paper money in Holland, we were obliged to leave everything in order to procure to the State and to the National Bank the values without which our politics and commercial independence would have run the greatest danger.

So please do not be vexed, we believe we have done our duty. This will always be with us the reverse side of the medal.

You will find with us the greatest honesty of purpose and the greatest security possible, but when the needs of the government become urgent, we will be obliged to accord them the first place.

These are our excuses. We can do nothing. We appreciate very much the relations with you and we promise you to work regularly on your different stamps, hoping that time will be more favorable to us on this subject.

In case that you no longer desire the commemorative stamps, will you kindly advise us definitely in that regard?

We are, dear sir," &c.

Of course, it is impossible in a brief article of this kind to give all the correspondence written concerning the issuance of these stamps but from various letters it is shown that delivery was delayed partly through inability to obtain the proper materials and partly because of the time required for the execution of the work. Then too it must be remembered that all Europe was at war and that deliveries could not be made freely and in many instances parcels of mail were stolen or held up and confiscated by the censors so that when the stamps eventually arrived, if ever, many were very often in bad condition.

In a letter dated October 4, 1916, bearing on this subject we find the following reference:

". . . . except the shipment of commemorative stamps entry of which is forbidden in France, and which we have asked the post-office to return to us and will hold after their receipt."

In this same letter on the question of costs the printer says:

"It goes without saying that we will fix a price for 1,000 commemorative stamps when you will have ordered the printing; for these small quantities we are obliged to fix the prices quoted in the invoice."

Suffice it to say, however, that the first delivery was made on August 4, 1915, and the amount charged for them 5273.48 Dutch Gulden. The stamps were printed —From Dr. Emilio Diena we have received a postal card bearing his best wishes from Vienna and the International Stamp Exhibition there. The 200k stamp on the card shows an ornamental cancellation especially employed to celebrate the exhibition and is dated September 5th. Dr. Diena says: "The exhibition is interesting although not to be compared to the last one at London."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—In a letter from Mr. R. S. Nelson, Birmingham, Alabama, we read: "My friend, Judge Alfred H. Benners, is a gentleman of seventy-five years and he has just begun to collect stamps. He told me that it was through me that he began and that I had started him in a most wonderful field of pleasure." A white mark of credit goes to Mr. Nelson.

—Dr. C. W. Hennan, Chicago, has about completed his book, Stamps of Holland, Curacao, Dutch Indies and Surinam, which will be published in sumptuous form as the first hand-book of the Chicago Philatelic Society. The edition will be limited to five hundred copies and for the information of readers, prices will be placed on the blocks and pairs, as well as other stamps. Those who have ideas on prices of such things might get in touch with Dr. Hennan, to the advantage of all concerned; his address is 852 E. 63rd St., Chicago.

—On Sunday of the week of the conventions at Washington, August 12th, Mr. James F. Duhamel of that city was represented by a sterling stamp article in the magazine section of the Star and in the mass of material is a description of the use of the "semi-official" issues of the U. S. that impresses us as worth quoting:

"Just before the days of our regular carrier system it became the custom of various local postmasters to receive the national mail at an authorized post-office, and charge the addressee about a cent for delivering the mail to his house or place of business. Very few of our cities back in 1850 were so large that the people could not find it an easy matter to visit the post-office once or twice a day, but such cities as Baltimore, Boston, Charleston, Louisville, New York and Philadelphia issued these stamps in denominations of one, two and three cents, to be charged against the party addressed and in addition to the prepaid five-cent letter rate of that day."

—We have received a beautifully illustrated booklet of thirty pages or so from Messrs. Plumridge & Co., the philatelic auctioneers of London, in which is depicted a host of the noteworthy stamps that have been distributed through the means of the Plumridge sales, during the season of 1922-23. The auction buyer will find the book, with its foreword by "F. J. M." something to linger over and if he has engaged in any of the auction tilts that yielded the stamps shown, he will have an intimate interest in the compilation. The several New Yorks pictured sold at good prices.

—We have received the first two instalments of Kohl's Briefmarken-Handbuch, through Bhopal; and it is seen that over three hundred pages are required to get well into the B's. The catalogue is progressing on encyclopedic lines and it will be a monumental work when completed. Not alone are the stamps listed thoroughly but descriptive text covers practically all of the details of the issues from first to last. For exhaustive treatment of the stamps of the countries of the world, the catalogue will be without a peer, as a compendium designed for general use. We express our admiration for the application of Dr. Herbert Monk, the compiler and Kohl the publisher, both of whom have unbounded faith in the permanency of philately.

—L. W. Morrisey sends us a clipping from the Washington (D. C.) Post giving the particulars of a new photoplay "Loyal Lives" which will depict the romance of the United States mail service. We do not know the lines that the photoplay will follow and shall be glad to hear more concerning this tribute to letter carriers and the men in the postal service.

—Greetings are acknowledged from Donald A. King, a long-time subscriber to the WEEKLY, who has been spending a brief vacation in Minnedosa, Manitoba. Also from Harry E. Huber, who has been taking his annual trip to the south and has been visiting Cuba, Yucatan and Mexico.

—The September-October number of The World's Correspondence, official organ for Weko, contains the pictures of three philatelists of national standing. We refer to Joseph Gallant, George Zimmerman and A. R. Wyser. The ma- zine is published in English and Germ and gives evidence of being the rep- sentative of a flourishing organizati The vice-president of Weko, Ad Gunesch, kindly inserts a large com- mentary advertisement of the WEEK which will no doubt bring good resu Mr. Wyser forwards the WEEKLY se subscriptions as his material interest our paper.

—We have received a subscript from one W. H. Krinsky of Chica Ill., and no street address was furnish Can anyone supply the desired infor- tion?

—A. S. Davenport and others have s in clippings concerning the present pr- tise of the German government in mail letters without postage stamps. The ters bearing cancellations indicating t the necessary postage has been paid, the new order. The WEEKLY has cently received a letter from Germ bearing two stamps of the 100,000 m value, indicating the rate paid on a ter of the lowest unit of weight.

—The Chicago Daily News recen showed a photograph of a young la holding up for inspection a letter ceived from Chemnitz, bearing seve hundred stamps on front and back, w the heading: "Here's 'Fortune' Stamps." We take the following t that appeared under the cut:

"Business men in Germany must millionaires, reckoned in marks, if th conduct much correspondence by m nowadays. Marshill Field & Co.'s wh sale house has just received curi proof of this in a letter from one their agents at Chemnitz. The cost the postage was 330,500 marks.

The front of the envelope conta forty-five stamps of 2,000 and 3,000 ma denomination. Barely enough space left for the address. The back of envelope is completely covered w stamps. Nearly 200 stamps were us on both sides."

—Every now and then someone ri to bewail the fact that philately has tricksters who cover up their trac rather well at the expense of the c lector. We have always thought that were fairly well off in this regard a the following statement that the depa ment of commerce at Washington issu some months ago does not change o opinion. was found to be wormy, to his over-connection, but no market could be found for this parcel. This consignment would have caused a great loss to the exporter were it not that the consignee happened to visit an antique furniture factory. The manufacturer was at that time making antique grandfather's clocks and found the oak in question to answer his purpose very nicely, because it eliminated the work of boring worm holes by hand. The parcel was disposed of at a premium and a profitable connection was established."

—The Daily Record of Kitchener, Ontario, has been giving us a bit of publicity recently and its story of the sale of stamps to philatelists through the Canadian stamp agency at Ottawa, recently established, is well told. The paper takes occasion in the course of the article to say: "It is reported that there are over sixty journals published in the interest of stamp collecting and that there are, in the different countries of the world, at least six million stamp collectors."

We always admire the hardihood of the man who will estimate the world's census of philatelists and the six million named on this occasion is all right with us.

—The news of the resurrection of Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal is most welcome and we shall await impatiently the coming of our new old friend that in years gone by was facile princeps in the class of journals that while serious were not unbrokenly scientific.

—The question of the special envelope for registration purposes has been given further consideration and from the post-office records we take the following discussion of the subject:

"It is respectfully suggested that the Post Office Department issue a special stamped fully prepaid envelope for registered mail. This envelope to have a thin cloth lining. Purpose, to easily recognize and for better protection of the registered mail. Envelopes of this kind are used at the post-offices in England for registered mail.

This subject has been given consideration by the department from time to time for years past. There are several things to consider in connection with the manufacture of a specially designed registry envelope. The Third Assistant Postmaster-General in his report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, stated on this subject that "there are various ways in which such envelope could be manufactured—such as the addition of an extra fold, which would bear the name and address of the sender and become the card receipt of acknowledgment to be torn off and signed by the recipient of the mail on delivery and returned to the sender; or, the use of an envelope having a pocket in which to carry the card receipt to be signed upon delivery and returned to the sender. After consideration of the subject I believe that an envelope having the pocket feature would be preferable," and recommended "that the department adopt a specially designed envelope, exclusively for registered mail, bearing an embossed stamp representing the registration fee, and that it be sold at the cost of manufacture in addition to the value of the stamp."

It is anticipated that the increased cost of manufacture of an envelope which would meet the full approval of the department, and the inability to require the use of such an envelope to the exclusion of every other for registered mail, would retard its use, and in the face of such difficulties this feature was doubtless allowed to rest without decisive or aggressive action in the past.

The department is still open minded on the subject if it becomes practicable to introduce a special designed envelope for registered mail only, but it is not believed that a linen-lined envelope would sufficiently answer the purpose unless the lining failed to extend to the sealing flaps and the sealing flaps were made of sufficiently thin material to prevent opening without detection."

—Frank Hein sends us a new advertising postmark from Trinidad, Colo.:—"San Isabel National Forest, Colorado."

—Henry L. MacMillan, Box 5146, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn., is refusing registered mail addressed him by A. Bauer of Palmyra, N. J. The letter had been forwarded to Mound.

—New advertising contracts are coming along so rapidly that we think it hardly necessary to give each one an individual welcome. We trust the old advertisers returning, as well as the new ones now testing the pulling powers of the WEEKLY, will be pleased with the business relationship that has been established.

DEATH OF F. E. HEYDON.

E. R. Vanderhoof of Denver calls our attention to the death of F. E. Heydon of Washington, D. C., which occurred about the time of the A. P. S. convention in that city. Mr. Heydon will be remembered by many of our readers for his painstaking and authoritative work on the stamps of Panama. It is a MEKEEL booklet and will stand as a monument to his energy and ability as a philatelist. We do not have the material at hand for an obituary notice and will be very glad if some Washington subscriber will give us some of the facts in Mr. Heydon's philatelic career.

FIRE DESTROYS WEBER COLLECTION

Stamp collections representing the work of 40 years and with an estimate value of $100,000 were lost by Adolph Weber when his home at 1515 Euclid avenue burned to the ground. The Webers had less than five minutes in which to leave the place and saved only a few clothes. Besides the stamp collections Mr. Weber lost geneological records which he had collected on a recent trip to Europe.

Upon his return to Berkeley he brought 500 certified copies of family records as well as the data to augment the records. A valuable library was also consumed at the Weber home.

The stamp collections of Mr. Weber were the finest in the west and had been completed only after years of work and a great expense. Mr. Weber is prominent in fraternal circles in this city and has been active in Charter Rock Lodge No. 410, F. and A. M., and in other Masonic lodges.—Berkeley Gazette.

To Auction Buyers

Realizing from experience that auction buyers unable to inspect offerings or to attend sales are handicapped in bidding by the brief descriptions which catalog space limitations impose and therefore frequently lose items which, if seen, would gladly have been purchased, I offer, to serious collectors, a reliable service, as follows:—

Send me a list of stamps, covers, or pieces which you earnestly desire together with a detailed description of just what is required on each in the matter of condition, margins (on imperf.), shade, cancellation, centering, etc., also the price you are willing to pay, and as I personally attend all sales of importance in N. Y. C., clients are assured of exactly the same results that their own attendance would secure.

Be explicit in detailing your needs; the term "very fine" covers many degrees of fineness, "beautiful" may be a matter of viewpoint, hence if minor imperfections will be acceptable, just note the fact and secure some bargains. Tell me your time limitation on your order, set a maximum for monthly purchases and give me two references, for the closer the co-operation the better.

The finest collections in the world are now largely marketed in N. Y. C. and many items are only procurable when such properties are dispersed, so write me at once and eliminate your auction worries and uncertainties.

EDITORIAL.

An astute playwright, Hutcheson Boyd, aware, no doubt, that philately's star is in the ascendant, makes a stamp collector the hero of "The Talking Parrot," which opened September 10th, we read, at Kathleen Kirkwood's Triangle Theatre, in Greenwich village. The stamp collector certainly has come into his own and we shall assuredly give ourselves airs now that a discriminating dramatist has selected him to stand forth as the hero of a play that must be a success. From a review of the comedy that has been read, it is evident that the parrot shares the lime-light with the collector-hero, who is impersonated by John Parrish, but there is no jealousy between the two on that score, as the real talking parrot is so well trained that he speaks only when spoken to. We take the following readable description of the play from the columns of the New York Times:

"He is shown looking over his rarities and calls attention to his fine Brattleboro specimen, his Hawaiian "missionary" stamp, his circular British Guiana and other choice treasures, indicating that he is no mean philatelist.

Against the protestations of his friends and newly-wed wife, he insists upon making an ocean journey from his home in Washington Square to New Brunswick to obtain an early error variety of the first Tasmania issue. His ship is wrecked and his two closest friends reveal an amusing spirit of rivalry as to who shall marry the charming young widow, each insisting that the other is the more eligible man.

The climax is deftly arranged, one of the striking scenes being the apparent appearance of the shipwrecked philatelist as a ghost in the midst of a terrific thunderstorm. He eventually returns, however, telling of his escape and just in time to prevent the contemplated marriage. He intensifies the spirit of philately by first making sure that his album is safe, saying that wives may be replaced but rare stamps never. The Triangle Theatre is as entertaining as the play in which Ruby Hallier enacts the part of the English aunt with her cockney accent in a very engaging manner."

Philately is no stranger to the stage, as in the '60's Sardou in Paris presented one of the characters in a play as hopeful of accomplishing a philatelic coup in connection with the issues of the Confederate states. In the late '80's, the "Postage Stamp" was given issue in New York, and at one of the meetings of a stamp society there it was moved and seconded that the members attend a performance in a body. We have somewhere a leaflet telling of the rich delights of this roaring farce, whose name was the only philatelic attraction about it. We trust that the Talking Parrot will have a prosperous run and vindicate the judgment of the author in making a hero out of a philatelist. Collectors should be true to their own and make it a point to patronize this play; and the playwright would not take it amiss if appreciative collectors would write to him to say that they commended him for the true touch he has given philately in the comedy.

From the Duluth News Tribune of September 17th, a bit of grist comes to our mill; and Mr. F. R. Gellerman, Cloquet, Minn., who sends in the clipping, does not allow himself to comment on it. We read that a newcomer to Duluth, aged 26, asks the editor of the News Tribune, as a fidus Achates, how he may employ his evenings and Sundays to advantage. The young man has ambition and while not professing to be a saint wants to lead "at least a semi-respectable life." The editor divides his answer into three parts, the first one of which furnishes our mutton: "Get a hobby and ride it. It doesn't make much difference what the hobby is. It might be anything from such a dumb-bell occupation for a grown man as collecting postage stamps or it might be studying music. But get a hobby and ride it." We are glad that the ed. says, by inference, that it is permissible for kids to collect stamps as we should dislike to have the little innocents thus cruelly characterized even by inuendo. However, according to the editor, grown men who collect stamps cannot escape the dread descriptive but it is possible that the dulled minds of these collectors, recognizing an athletic suggestion to "dumb-bell" may think that a compliment has been paid them. Among the adult collectors that we know are university professors, doctors of all kinds and a host of chaps who are perfectly at home in the aristocracy of intellect, as a fanciful writer calls it. If the men who have seared their eye-balls bending over stamps under the midnight lamp should turn their reproachful orbs on the Duluth editor, we are sure that he will feel ashamed of himself and easily grant that while some of those who collect stamps may be dumb-bells, stamp collecting is not a dumb-bell occupation.

In the New York Times of September we find a column of timely philatelic news based primarily on the news that the Philippine collection entered by Mr. J. A. Klemann in the recent Vienna exhibition was awarded a gold medal. It is to be added that the Associated Press made a seven-line story out of the success of the "Yankee philatelist" and newspapers taking the service carried the notice, as a rule. The New York paper gave a few details of the exhibition and said that the only American who attended was Mr. Klein and it was mentioned that at the 1911 Vienna exhibition, J. Murray Bartels was awarded a gold medal for his collection Philippines.

In a recent issue we told of the ma ner in which James Stephens, the Ir writer, paid his disrespects to philat and at the time we said that the li that was quoted was not his sole offen Here is another fling at collecting, whi is taken from his story, "The Horse and it is needless to say that we plore that the brilliant pen of this ge ius just will catch in the paper at tim and spatter ink on us harmless folk "Whoever has married a prim wom must hand over his breeches and purse, he will collect postage stamps his old age, he will twiddle his thum and smile when the visitor asks him question, and will admit and assert th a man's place is the home—these thin come to pass as surely as the processi of seasons." ne thing that collectors must become reconciled to is criticism, now that lately is making preparations to take place in the sun and they must school nselves to take ridicule and sarcasm nly. One of the surest indications the advance of collecting to a position of independence is found in the ntion that philately is receiving from ers of all kinds. The humorist and philosopher, each has an opinion on subject now that philately has bee of sufficient importance to merit a ight and writers generally are turning it to account. Sometimes, collecting he victim of uncomplimentary comt to say the least. Recently, an Engs doctor of divinity said that it was candal that thousands of dollars ld be spent for an ugly postage p when so many people are starving. idea conveyed that stamp collectors a scurvy lot because of this condi was not allowed to go unchallenged we believe that the English collec had something to say in rebuttal. know that the Rev. Clarence Clark ster, All Hallows Rectory, Wyncote, wrote to the English critic and we et very much that our friend did keep a copy of his letter, which we sure was a complete, if courteous, tation of the claims of the English-

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—From the Nassau Stamp Company, we learn that according to a telegram received from Mr. H. B. Phillips, A. P. S. director, he suffered no loss personally through the devastating fire at Berkeley, his home city. We regret that some of the other philatelists there lost everything practically and to them we extend our deep and abiding sympathy.

—A. F. Helinske, 615 S. Elwood Ave., Baltimore, Md., would like the present address of L. H. Perry, formerly 157 E. 17 St., N. Y. City.

—A specimen of Dutch enterprise is shown us by Joseph A. Steinmetz, who submits an envelope mailed by an Amsterdam dealer by the name of Mebus from Charlottenburg in Germany. The meter marking on the envelope is for 12,000 marks but this translated into Dutch money reduces the postage rate tremendously.

—J. A. Urquhart of San Francisco submits a clipping from the September number of the Pacific Telephone Magazine dealing with the Pony Express. We wish it were possible to find a place for it in the WEEKLY but we cannot begin to use the excellent clippings that have come to us dealing with the presentday revival of interest.

—We notice that at the meeting of the Nottingham, England, Rotary Club recently, Mr. L. O. Trivett, "a recognized authority on the subject," spoke on "Philately as a National Asset." It is well to bring the many phases of philately to the attention of Rotarians; and in this connection it is to be said that both Mr. Wylie of the WEEKLY and Mr. Charles J. Phillips of New York qualify as members of their local clubs, as "philatelists."

—From a despatch in the Chicago Tribune it is learned that the Italians have placed their own stamps in circulation in Corfu and all of the other occupied islands.

—In the illustrated news pages of the great dailies of different cities, we notice an excellent picture of Charles Lathrop Pack, who has been signally honored by France "in recognition of his gift of American tree seeds for reforesting war areas." We are proud to hear that our great philatelist has been given a commandership in one of the French orders.

—A newspaper says that Japan has now about resumed its mail service in the stricken areas, and that the foreign mail is being distributed by volunteers. Several weeks ago the news of the safety of Congressman Ackerman was given but we have been gravely worried of the absence of word about Prof. and Mrs. Middleton of Tokio. Happily, our fears are set at rest by the receipt of a letter from Mr. Middleton: he says that they escaped with their lives and the clothes on their backs, all else being destroyed. Mr. Middleton will soon be at his old home in Madison, Wisconsin, his friends will be glad to know.

—In offering his services as a "philatelic commission agent" to auction buyers, at London sales, an advertiser says: "In cases where clients examine the lots themselves and give me a limit, I charge a nominal sum of one shilling per lot plus 10% on the difference between their limit and the price at which they are purchased."

—The Associated Press sent out a despatch dated September 22nd, saying that it is now impossible to place enough German stamps on the envelope to prepay the carrying charge, and that in consequence the government has abandoned the use of stamps, resorting to a cancellation that indicates the payment of the necessary postage.

—The Association of Air Philatelists founded by Mr. Theiry in Brussels two years ago has been taken over by George H. Jaeger, editor of the Baltic Philatelist.

—H. P. Atherton has presented us with a nice addition to the office collection of advertising postmarks. Under date of Sept. 22 the cancellation was used at Springfield in connection with the "Eastern States Exposition." A railway mail car was stationed inside the grounds and there this advertising cancellation was applied to all letters mailed on the grounds:—"R. P. O. Exhibit Car, Spg., Mass."

—Collectors are advised to beware of facsimiles that are coming on the market from one Panelli Angelo, an Italian dealer. In his circular letter he advises that he can send 25 different complete sets of French Colonies, also the same overprinted in various errors, varieties, etc. He also offers to exchange. Dealers are advised to have their French Colonial stamps expertized before they offer them for sale in the WEEKLY.

—Mention has been made of the Weko Club's magazine The World's Correspondence. The second special American edition has just been issued and sample copies of the same will be sent for 10c each. Address A. R. Wyser, 994 Atlantic Av., Brooklyn, N. Y., or Joseph Gallant, Hempstead, N. Y.

—The Evening Express, September 10th, Los Angeles, Cal., carries a front page feature with illustrations based on the stamp collection of Mr. M. H. Newmark of Los Angeles. A portrait of Mr. Newmark bending over his stamp album is flanked by a five shilling St. Vincent, first type, and a strip of four of the $200 second issue revenue civil war period. Mr. Newmark's stamps are well known to collectors of his section as being something to brag about.

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

If you have any 10c blacks you've reason to be proud of, please drop me a line. [tf

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—Many of the larger cities have exhausted their initial supply of the 2c Harding memorial stamp but these stocks will shortly be replenished, for the Bureau of Engraving & Printing is daily increasing its output and it is hoped that in short order the country will be supplied. Up to September 19th, forty-three plates had been made and most of these have gone to press. Twelve transfer rolls in all have been made, three of which have not been used at this writing. The first supplies were entirely from the first twelve plates bearing numbers 14852 to 14863, but panes from the other plates will possibly be on sale by the time these remarks reach our readers.

There has been quite a little demand for the variety in an unperforated condition for the purpose of framing and the like, and there is a strong possibility that the department will comply with these requests and that we will have this stamp from the flat plate in an unperforated condition.

All of the printings from the flat plates to date have been distributed in panes of one hundred, perforated 11, with straight edges on two sides of the pane. Those from the rotary press are in similar size panes, perforated 10, but as these have margins on all sides there are no straight edges. The rotary variety by the way shows the lines of the engraving more clearly and softer so that it has a more pleasing appearance. The rotary stamp is vertically about a millimeter longer and the black border lines appear to be made up of small lines instead of one solid border as is the case with the flat plate stamp. They are, however, all from the same die. The stamp has already appeared precancelled from Indiana, Pa., and from Gaston, Pa., but I am afraid both of them have a philatelic tinge.

A very interesting letter was received this week on crested paper from the Private Secretary to the Prince of Wales acknowledging receipt of the Harding memorial cover that we mailed him on the day of issue. We are still awaiting a letter from the King telling us that our letter to him arrived safely.

Under date of September 18th, the Second Assistant Postmaster-General informs me that the question of operation of the night transcontinental air mail service has not been given final consideration and they are not in a position to state at this writing when the service for which the special stamps were issued will start. I understand unofficially from another source that they are held up on account of lack of proper funds. If this is really the case it will mean that the service will not start until after Congress meets in December.

Mr. B. K. Miller writes to inform us that he has recently obtained something that I did not know existed, namely, a complete set of the Columbian issue of 1893 in mint imperforate pairs. I have not had the pleasure of inspecting these varieties but heretofore had never heard of any of this series in this condition with the exception of the 2c denomination.

Under date of September 24th, Col. Clyde S. Ford, the last representative of the Post Office Department to leave China, reported at the department at Washington regarding the official closing of the United States Postal Agency at Shanghai, China. This branch in the Orient was suspended under the agreement of the Four Power Treaty signed in Washington. Col. Ford also reported that the other nations had closed their agencies.

Although all arrangements had been made to suspend the agency on January 1, 1923, maturing of United States War Savings stamps made it necessary to keep the station open three months longer. War Savings stamps matured on the day the office was to be closed and as a result, Col. Ford said, a riot almost precipitated. When the office was finally terminated in May more than $125,000 in War Savings stamps had been redeemed. These stamps had been purchased not only by Americans but by a great many Chinese. This business has now been turned over to the Bank of Asia for the Treasury Department.

The United States Postal Agency in Shanghai was established in 1868, its business being conducted by the Consul General until September 25, 1907, when a direct representative of the Post Office Department was appointed to take charge. The agency did business to the amount of $125,000 a year, utilizing the services of two American clerks and 40 Chinese.

In appreciation of his services the Chinese Government conferred upon Colonel Ford the order of Chia Ho, but due to the restrictions on honors this decoration is being held at the State Department. Colonel Ford was in charge of the agency for two years.

Danzig.—One of the forebodings which clouded our otherwise peaceful holiday was the knowledge that, on our return to the chronicler's corner, we should find an accumulation of new denominations of stamps of the Free City of Danzig. And here we have the following, for examples of which we have to thank Capt. H. Streatfield, and Messrs, Singler, Blümel, Hepworth, and Whitfield King & Co.:—

TRINIDAD.—The Economist Stamp Co. reports the 2d postage due stamp on script watermarked paper.

VIRGIN ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts informs us of the following new items: 2½d orange and 5sh new yellow paper, both on script watermarked paper.

PONY EXPRESS CANCELLATION.

We are indebted to Harold K. Frederick for the privilege of inspecting a most interesting cover, connected with the recent Pony Express trip across the continent. The cover in question is postmarked St. Joseph, Mo., August 31, 10 A. M., and bears the receiving postmark of San Francisco, Sept. 9, 3.30 P. M. The Pony Express cancellation is in black and is circular in shape accompanied by three heavy horizontal rules. The marking reads:—"Via Pony Express, Aug. 31, 1923 A. M." In addition to this cover (which is in excellent condition) Mr. Frederick submits two other specimens that give evidences of a hard passage. Pinned to the two torn covers is a notice signed by Postmaster Power of the San Francisco office reading:—"The enclosed piece of mail matter was damaged by abrasion while in transit by Pony Express."

Among other things Mr. Frederick writes:—"This ride was made partly with an eye to beating the old record, and it was prophesied that it could not be done because the old riders had great endurance. Nevertheless the ride was finished just forty-two hours ahead of the best time ever made."

STAMP TRIBUTE TO POILU.

(Clipping from Robt. Heubach, Jr.)

France aims to honor various fields of activity of the country by representative scenes on her postage stamps. Thus agriculture was symbolized in the "semeuse" design recently replaced by the Pasteur stamp, in honor of scientific achievement. The Olympic games stamp, soon to be printed in honor of the games to be held in Paris in 1924, will symbolize French athletics.

The latest suggestion for a French postage stamp is that of the brave poilu. Such a picture would have a general appeal throughout the country even on the most remote mail route. It is suggested that the poilu be used on the 25-centime stamp, the "horizon blue" of his uniform harmonizing with the color of that stamp. No official action on this has been taken as yet. It comes merely in the form of a suggestion to the postal department from M. Dessein, deputy of the Haute-Marne, and from M. Bertrand, deputy of the Seine.—N. Y. Tribune.

CANADIAN NOTES AND NEWS.

By WILLIAM BUTLER.

Precancel fans will be interested in a brand new type of precancel. Instead of the customary "Toronto Ont." and its bar enclosures there appears only three parallel pairs of heavy black lines running directly across the face of the stamp, the name being omitted. The only specimen of this type that I have seen so far is the one cent orange, but as such an overprint would be much cheaper than its predecessor it is likely that the new type will become general despite the fact that it greatly resembles the issues of the eighties and nineties.

Toronto, Ont., is using two new cancellations as follows: "Broadview Boys Fall Fair, Sept. 12-15. Toronto Y. M. C. A.," in four lines; and "Place Return Address On All Mail," in three lines. Other admonitory exhortations of this nature that have been used are: "Post Your Mail When Ready and Ensure Early Handling," four lines; "Stamped Envelopes Save Time and Money," three lines; "Mail Early and Take Advantage Of Mid-Day Mails," three lines; and "Have Street Address On All Stationery," in four lines.

Co-incident with the announcement that postage stamps can no longer be used as revenue stamps a new light blue excise stamp of the value of two cents has appeared, which replaces the brown stamp of the same denomination bearing the likeness of King George, and the blunt inscription "War Tax." At the very top of the new stamp "Canada" appears while under this is "Excise" in English and French and at the bottom is "Cents," the numeral "2" being the principal part of the design. A number of fancy scrolls and maple leaves complete the design, which, on the whole, is much better than the old stamp. One of these stamps must be affixed to each check and receipt so that the discontinuance of postage stamps for this purpose will make a noticeable difference in the postal revenue.

The Canadian Postal Exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, which, by the way, is the world's largest annual fair, was of immense interest to the 1,500,000 visitors to the Exhibition, the majority of whom were totally unfamiliar with Post Office routine.

Hitherto the Post Office has always been in the Government Bldg., but this year it was changed to the International Building, where all that transpired "behind the scenes" could be plainly observed by the public. A general postal business was conducted, including the sale of stamps, money orders, postal notes, and the handling of registered and special delivery letters. The actual process of cancelling (both by machine and hand for purposes of comparison) and sorting of the mail posted and received for delivery throughout the grounds.

In the commodious lobby provided was a large Union Jack composed entirely of postage stamps together with the original document of the First International Postal Conference between the United States and Canada, Dr. Work signing for the former and Hon. Charles Murphy, M.P., K.C., B.A., for the latter.

The Dead Letter Office had an extensive display of wrongly mailed articles, experts being in attendance to give advice and suggestions. A unique feature of the exhibit was a school for postmasters while close by an illustrated postal lecture was given every fifteen minutes in which "movies" and "stills" were shown.

Philately is booming in Canada. Dealers are doing an unprecedented business, and have been all summer, local clubs are springing up everywhere and the hobby is gaining many new followers. Some of the new local clubs that have recently come into existence are: St. Lawrence, Montreal; Nova Scòtia, Calgary Philatelic Society, Eastern Townships, Edmonton Stamp Society, and the Yorktown Stamp Society, which staged an unusually successful Convention and Exhibition on Sept. 19-22 last. Among the established clubs the only ones showing any activity are the Winnipeg Philatelic Society and the British Columbia Philatelic Society. The Canadian Philatelic Association, being afflicted with rigor mortis, if it has not already passed to its reward.

An event of the year is the Broadview Boys Fall Fair which has been held annually for over twenty years by the boys of the Broadview Y. M. C. A., Toronto. This year special prizes were given for stamp and coin collections, some excellent ones being on display. There can be no doubt about the excellent publicity our hobby is thus receiving.

I would like to correct a mis-impression that exists concerning the postal meter which has recently been officially sanctioned for use in Canada. It has been erroneously stated in various philatelic journals in an article reproduced from the Montreal Gazette that these machines are in actual use. The machine authorized is the Pitney-Bowes Postal Meter and while it has been officially approved it has not been used and will not be for some time.

Commencing with "Have you a little postage meter in your home?" a phrase already hackneyed and threadbare from continual usage, the article gives one the impression that the postal meter can be bought for a song down at Woolworth's on the corner. The machine is admittedly expensive to install, but it is believed that it is worth the price. One of these machines was shown at the Postal Exhibit at the Toronto Fair.

Sample impressions have been made and the specimen that I have is exactly the same as that now used by the United States Post Office with the exception that the device containing the license and meter number is slightly different in shape. At the top is "Canada" and at the bottom "Postage" while between the two "3 Cents 3" appears; it is overprinted "Sample," the license and meter numbers being ciphers. It is in red and is marked Ottawa.

IN SUPPORT OF MR. MORTON.

By H. M. Konwiser.

The James F. Morton, Jr., article, in a recent issue of your paper, is splendid in its criticism of the snobbish gentlemen who appear to sit in the high spots in philatelic journalism, as well as the stamp business.

Tho' not a general collector, I can visualize the thought that the great mass of stamp selling is done to general collectors. The specialists—despite their high-brow attitude—do not support the philatelic industry.

In a measure these specialists are to be compared with the typical office-holding type of politician—their's the glory, the other chap produces only to help along the good work!

Specialists have their uses, but not as valuable adjuncts to the stamp industry and it behooves the philatelic press to throw a little ray of light on to the trade generally.

Personally I have no grievance. I am not a general collector (I am aiming to specialize, because it pleases me to do so). I agree absolutely with Mr. Morton and so will many of your readers.

Possibly, most of the philatelic journalists have forgotten they were once young. The same may be the fact with some of the stamp dealers—but the fact remains that the greater proportion of stamp sales are made to young people and these young people should not be made to feel as if they were only an evil part of the stamp industry.

FIVE YEAR RENEWAL CLUB.

Morton D. Joyce, Princeton, N. J.
John P. Kientzle, Erie, Pa.

We are indebted to Morten Dean Jo of Princeton, N. J., for a very k letter of appreciation with a remitta of $5 for a five years' renewal of his s scription to the WEEKLY. Mr. Jo takes his place as a member of Honor Club, adding one more to long list already received. He is som what of an optimist, for in his letter adds:—"I expect to read the WEEK for the next five years." We now ha quite a circle who have given tangi proof that they are in the same catego of faithful readers as is Mr. Joyce.

We are glad to enter upon our Hon List John P. Kientzle of Erie, Pa., w is an oldtime subscriber to the WEEK and a booster for our publication. H remittance of $5 is acknowledged w thanks.

CORONATION STAMPS, PERSIA

in panes of 25 and of some of the denominations only 100 sheets were printed and delivered, so that there are only 2500 of them in existence, and this was the sole delivery intended for Teheran which arrived there.

The confidential agent who negotiated for the production of the stamps went in person to Teheran but he could not supervise the other necessary deliveries in consequence of the unexpected and ruling circumstances due to the war. One revolution followed another, the invasion of Persia by the Bolshevists, the rebellions, other invasions by the Russians and the English, the flight of the Shah, the change of government almost from day to day saw that there could be no question of a normal state or a coronation ceremony of the Shah. The stamps of the coronation exist but the coronation ceremony never took place.

As stated in the beginning this issue is one of the most interesting and one of the most beautiful which has ever been produced. Each stamp is printed in two colors with gold borders and on a fine quality of paper. The difficulties which the government officials and the printers had to surmount in the production of this series were enormous considering the times and the many details which of necessity had to be decided.

To many collectors this issue may seem speculative because so long a time elapsed between the placing of the original order and the final issuance of the stamps, but when one considers the times during which these stamps were made and the general unsettlement existing in Persia since the delivery was made, it is quite natural to understand how each temporary government would decide not to put out these stamps in circulation and the question of a series of stamps was not raised until a stable government had been formed for some time. Under these circumstances it was most natural for the government to economize and use what was already on hand, especially as the set was so beautiful and depicted the national heroes and important views of the country.

The chahi values bear the portraits of the national heroes while the kran values represent the historical and important views. The denominations with their descriptions follow:

1 Chahi (orange, sepia and gold)—Nader Shah, the rescuer of Persia, in the year 1736. He was a shepherd in Kaalath, when the Afghans occupied entire Persia, and the city of Ispahan, the old capital, was surrounded. Nader revolted with his tribes and drove them out of Persia. He became the commander of the army of Persia and later, King of Persia. He led the war against Russia and Turkey and made a treaty with India.

2 Chahis (red lilac, moss green and gold)—Kerim Chan Zand, who reigned from 1747 to 1779. He united again under his reign West Iran. Conquered Basra in 1775, and died in Schiraz in 1779, where he had resided since 1755. Had the reputation of being a good ruler.

3 Chahis (green, red, orange and gold)—Agha Mohamed Khan Kadjar—1779 to 1796. He was a descendant from the Turkish race of Kadschar, and became the founder of this dynasty. He was seized as hostage, but was able to free himself, and became leader of the troops and conquered Persia. He was also acknowledged as ruler of entire West Iran. In 1795 he invaded Georgia and conquered Tiflis, and undertook in 1796 a crusade against Chorasan. He made Teheran his capital. He was murdered in 1796.

5 Chahis (carmine rose, dull blue and gold) — Feth Ali Shah — 1796 to 1834. Nephew of Agha Mohamed Khan Kadjar. He conquered Chorasan, but lost Baku in 1797, and Georgia in 1802, to Russia. At the peace negotiation of Gulistan and Tiflis 1813 and 1814, he was forced to cede a large part of his territories to Russia, and had to allow the Russian war flag in the Caspian Sea. At the peace conference of Tabris (confirmed in Turkmantschai 1828), he also had to give one part of Armenia to Russia, which influence dates from this date. He died October 30, 1834.

6 Chahis (slate green, bright red and gold)—Mohamed Shah—1834 to 1848, son of Abbas Mirza. His brothers, of whom each reigned over a province, revolted against him. He conquered them and had them exiled to Ardebil. They made their escape and fled to Turkey where they were well received. Mohamed Shah led a war against Afghanistan which the Russians advised him to do, but through the courageous resistance of the Afghans and the appearance of an English fleet in the Bay of Persia, was unsuccessful. He died at Herat in Afghanistan on the 6th of September, 1848.

9 Chahis (blue, rose carmine and gold)—Abbas Mirza, born 1785, was the second son of Feth Ali and his proclaimed successor. He died before his father in December, 1833. While still very young he was proclaimed governor of Azerbaijan. He built an arsenal, foundries, conducted a printing shop and many other enterprises but they all failed through lack of money. He had his army trained by English officers, and when Persia declared war on Russia, he led the chief army but without success. The peace of Gulistan cost Persia the countries in the Caucasus. In 1826, he compelled his father with Hussein-Kuli-Chan to declare war against Russia. He was obliged in spite of courageous fighting to yield, and through the peace of Turkmantschai had to give up his part of Armenia. Abbas Mirza was the man who first really began to relieve war-broken Persia. Of his 24 sons Mohamed Mirza followed him as Crown Prince, and in 1834 succeeded his grandfather as Shah.

10 Chahis (brown, deep green and gold)—Nasr ed Din—1848 to 1896, son of Mohamed Shah. He continued the war against Afghanistan and conquered Beloochistan and Kurdistan in 1860. He came to the throne at the age of 18. In the years 1873, 1877 and 1889 Nasr ed Din made trips to Europe. On his return he made several reforms in the reorganization of the army and the states, which proceeded very slowly. He was murdered in 1896 by the anarchist, Mirza Reza.

12 Chahis (slate blue, magenta and gold)—Musaffer ed Din Shah—1896 to 1906. Oldest son of Nasr ed Din. He completed the reforms of his father and gave Persia the constitution.

13 Chahis (gray, violet and gold)—Mohamed Ali Shah—1906 to 1909. He wanted, contrary to his predecessors, to take the constitution away again, but was obliged through a revolution to renounce his throne and now lives in Paris.

24 Chahis (yellow green, brown red and gold)—Ahmed Shah, son of Mohamed Ali, the present ruler of Persia. He avoided taking part in the world war through observing strict neutrality and keeping his agreements. He has helped his land to welfare and prosperity.

1 Kran (brown red, deep blue and gold)—The Town-Gate of Teheran and the street of Kazine. The gate is adorned with renowned Mosaic in blue and white.

2 Kran (blue green, chestnut and gold)—Gate of Teheran and the street of Chab-abdoll-azim, the celebrated pilgrimage place.

3 Kran (sepia, carmine and gold)—The Diamond Gate in the palace of the Shah; it is so glazed that it looks as if it were adorned with diamonds.

4 Kran (ultramarine, ochre and gold)—Castle of the Shah in Enzeli on the border of the Caspian Sea.

5 Kran (brown orange, black and gold)—Castle of Kadjar near Teheran. Summer residence with the famous gardens.

10 Kran (carmine, sepia and gold)—Castle of Nayeb Saltehneh in Teheran. Residence of one of the uncles of present Shah.

20 Kran (yellow green, ultramarine and gold)—Seat of Parliament in Teheran.

30 Kran (black, carmine rose and gold)—Throne Room with the famous throne of Darius, a masterpiece in the history of art.

50 Kran (red lilac, red orange and gold)—Interior of the palace of the Shah, showing part of the world-renowned gardens, which are of incomparable beauty, and known to every traveller who has visited this old country.

Officials—Same denominations, designs and colors with the vignette printed in black, overprinted with the word "Service" in red in small sans serif type.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER III.

The First Issue.

In The Philatelic Record for August, 1881, the arrival of the new Haytian stamps was announced in the following paragraph:—

"The stamps were issued on July 1st, on the entry of the Republic into the Universal Postal Union. They are evidently of French manufacture, and are lithographed upon tinted paper. The artist has not wasted his time over any of the conventional emblems of peace, but perhaps because they are more easy to draw, has substituted in the lower spandrels, in lieu of the usual olive branches, anchors, bales of merchandise, and such lamb-like trash, two good honest piles of cannon balls."

The stamps of this type, so indecorously introduced in the foregoing paragraph, form a very interesting group for philatelic study on account of the story connected with their issue, the method by which they were manufactured, and the fact that though they are a comparatively modern issue so little is known about them. Indeed for many years the only article of any importance, and the one upon which all recent writers have founded their comments, is one written by the late Monsieur J. B. Moens. This originally appeared in Le Timbre Poste but was later translated into English and published in the Monthly Journal (Vol. X, page 64).

The first notes of any importance concerning these stamps seem to have been those contained in the late Mr. J. B. Leavy's article, which appeared in the American Journal of Philately for February, 1898, and it was the manifest errors in that article that led M. Moens to study the subject. Mr. Leavy asserted that the stamps were produced by lithography, and though the method described by M. Moens seems, from some points of view, almost to border on the impossible, there can be no doubt whatsoever, as we shall endeavor to show later on, that this famous philatelist was nearly correct in all his statements.

In 1881, President Salomon who, according to Mr. Hesketh Pritchard, was "a notorious sectary of snake-worship, beneath whose iron hand the country groaned for years," was in office and it was probably due to his initiative that Hayti decided to follow in the steps of her civilised neighbours in the matter of issuing postage stamps. It was suggested by some of the President's toadies that his portrait should adorn the new stamps, but Salomon was averse to this and proposed the Arms of the Republic as a more suitable device. This proposal did not win general favor and a deputation waited on the President to suggest that the portraits of former Presidents and national heroes should be placed on the stamps to mark the "glorious past of the Republic." The natural jealousy of the negro prompted Salomon to give a flat refusal to this proposition and, in turn, he offered a new suggestion—that the head of Liberty, as typifying the Republic, should form the central device in the design of the proposed stamps. This was ultimately agreed to, the Haytian Minister in France was instructed to order the stamps, and arrangements for their issue when ready and the opening of various post-offices on July 1st were made.

Some hitch occurred regarding the production of the labels and at one time it seemed very probable that the Republic would have to open its post-offices before the stamps could possibly reach the island. However, matters were satisfactorily settled so that the stamps arrived before the official date for their issue.

In "My Souvenirs," which were published in the Monthly Journal (Vol. XVI, page 273), Monsieur Pierre Mahé gives an amusing account of how he very nearly secured the contract for the manufacture of this first issue, and from this we make the following interesting excerpt:—

"The Haytian Minister had come to Paris to make arrangements with a printer in our city. The design had been accepted, the price agreed upon, and a contract entered into by the printer to supply the whole edition by a fixed date.

But, sad to say, almost on the eve of the date fixed for delivering the stamps, the printer announced that it would be impossible for him to do so within the time appointed. There was a great ado on the part of the Minister and Chargé d'Affaires of Hayti in Paris. The date of issue had been published in the official journal; all the post-offices had to be furnished with the stamps on a certain day, and at all costs the stamps must reach Port au Prince by the right time. There was not a moment to be lost; steps must be taken, and at once.

The manager of the Crédit Industrial et Commercial, a bank which had the charge of Haytian interests, Monsieur H. D———, who was one of my best customers, knew that I possessed a knowledge of printing matters which would enable me to carry out successfully an operation of this kind. He sought me out, explained the critical situation to me, and said at last 'Monsieur Mahé, you alone can get us out of the mess in which we are now. I have assured the Minister that I know a person upon whom we could depend, and I have undertaken to meet the case. It is absolutely necessary that you should do us this service; you cannot refuse us.' There was scarcely a fortnight for putting the matter right; it was running things very fine. However, I accepted, for by hurrying up a bit it was more than enough for carrying the matter out properly.

I asked for a list of the values and colors, with the quantity of each stamp to be supplied, and I told Monsieur D——— that we were going to make a provisional issue by lithography, for that would give time to prepare a permanent issue produced by a better process. I told him also that the following evening I would submit a scheme, that I would have seen a printer, and ascertained what would be the cost of the stamps per thousand, and I added that I would bind myself to supply at the appointed time the desired quantity of each value of the stamps.

I spent a good part of the night making sketch after sketch, and finally I was satisfied with the last I had made, in the designing of which I was helped by a piece of Haytian money bearing the Arms of the country, I had produced something similar to the designs of the issues of 1891, 1892 and 1898, but of a simpler nature— lighter and with better effect. At least, such was my opinion, which was shared by everyone.

On the following evening, according to promise, I laid my plans before the assembled council, who accepted it with enthusiasm. I had saved the situation. I told the Minister that I could supply the stamps at so much per thousand, all gummed and perforated, and that I undertook to be in time for the departure of the boat. My price, moreover, was considerably lower than asked by the first printer.

All was thus for the best, and peace returned to the minds of those gentlemen from Hayti. On the following morning—for it was a case of hurrying up—I was to receive the official order, and it would only remain to go straight ahead. But on the morrow all was changed. The night had brought wisdom to the Ministers' printer who, having learned what was going on, and thinking better of it, had sent an express messenger to say that, thanks to a new method, he was able to promise the execution of the order which he had accepted. And there I was left stranded, after all the trouble I had taken, and obliged to inform my printer that he must not reckon upon this work, for which he had to make special arrangements. I was rather ashamed of the blunder."

The design, which is stated by Monsieur C. Lemierre to be the work of M. Laforesterie, a Haytian sculptor, consists of a profile to left of a female head, typifying Liberty, on a circle of solid color. Around this is a circular band inscribed "REPUBLIQUE D'HAYTI" at the top, with the word "POSTE" at each side below, the upper and lower inscriptions being separated by small dots. In the centre below the head, is a small tablet containing numerals to denote the different values. This extends across the lower portion of the circular band and reaches to the bottom margin of the design, crossing a tablet at the foot, which bears the word "CENT" at each side. This is an abbreviation for "centime," the currency of Hayti then consisting of a gourde divided into one hundred centimes, and worth about 96c in American money. In the centre at the top is a small Cap of Liberty, which projects into the outer frame of the design; in the upper spandrels are palm branches, spears and flags; in the lower spandrels are piles of cannon balls; and at each side of the upper part of the shield is a curved scroll-shaped ornament. The design is completed by an outer frame line.

Altogether it is a very warlike and aggressive design, and opinions as to its merits as a work of art are somewhat divided. Monsieur Mahé, who was perhaps a little prejudiced, describes it as "an old, bloated, white negress, with a grin on her countenance and wearing, in place of the Phrygian Cap, a Madras handkerchief, like those which the aged Naiads of the bathing machines wrap round their heads." Other writers describe the design as "admirable," and though it can perhaps hardly be described as beautiful or as representing the highest form of art, the design as a whole is not unpleasing. It has suffered somewhat by the unskilful manner of its production, and gives ample corroboration to M. Mahé's remarks that the stamps were manufactured in a great hurry.

The "Liberty Head" stamps of Hayti have always been more or less popular with specialists owing to the fact that they can be plated, though we believe no one succeeded in reconstructing both the imperforate and perforated series until the late Mr. L. L. R. Hausburg took the matter in hand with his usual characteristic thoroughness and at the New York Exhibition of 1913 he showed practically all the plates complete.

While we fancy it has always been understood that these stamps were platable (in fact the imperforate set was worked out by Mr. Alex. Holland many years ago, though the results of his investigations were never published, and his plates formed the foundation of the usburg collection) the method by ch they were produced was for long exed question. Some collectors con- ered they were lithographed, others ned their faith to the typographic cess, and to make "confusion worse founded" our indispensable Gibbons ior to the 1911 edition) hedged by ting that the imperforate issues were duced by lithography and that the forated stamps were printed by graphy.

he paragraph quoted from the Phil- tic Record at the head of this chapter as the stamps were printed by lithog- ay and this statement was accepted out question until 1899 when M. ns published an interesting article n Le Timbre Poste in which he ex- sed the opinion that all values of the rforate stamps were printed from n common plate, composed of fifty rate electrotypes, in which holes e drilled so that movable plugs could sed to denote the respective denomi- ons required. This theory seeems to been accepted by most students of tian stamps until Mr. Hausburg e his article on the subject in the lon Philatelist for June-July, 1912.

e must confess that when writing article on the subject of Haytian ps for Gibbons Stamp Weekly in (although not actively collecting the ps of the Repubic at the time) we were very sceptical regarding the Moen's theory of movable plugs. It seemed such an awkward and almost impossibly stupid method of procedure and yet, on the strength of the published evidence, we had to accept this theory as there seemed to be no legitimate or logical grounds on which it could be combated. We were, therefore, delighted to read Mr. Hausburg's article in the London Philatelist and find that such an eminent authority was of the opinion that the Moen's theory was untenable and, moreover, adduced excellent arguments showing its weak points. We cannot do better than quote Mr. Hausburg's own words:—

"Various theories have been put forward as to the method of production of the 'Liberty Head' stamps of Hayti. At first they were thought to have been lithographed but any specimen, when closely examined, points to another process having been employed. There is none of that smooth appearance which is essential to a lithograph, and in many cases the paper is very deeply dented by the figure of value. In Le Timbre Poste of May and July, 1899, M. Moens gives some interesting data with regard to the production of these stamps. A Haytian sculptor (M. Laforesterie) is said to have designed them, and a die was engraved on wood by M. J. Richard, of Paris. The plates were made up of electrotypes. The shield which contains the figure of value in the completed design was at first left blank. It is stated by M. Moens that these shields were filled up by movable plugs, thus indicating that there was only one plate and that the plugs were altered for each value. This theory I am afraid I do not agree with. In every one of the fifty stamps on the plate of each value the position of the figure of value varies, and the edges of the plug in the shield are more or less defined by lines of color. But taking a stamp of any one value in any particular position on the plate, it will be found in all copies of that stamp the figure in the shield is always in exactly the same position. This shows that if the plugs were altered for printing each value, and only one plate was used, the whole number printed of each value must have been done in one printing. This is hardly likely, and a study of the stamps will, I think, show that it was not the method employed. Supposing the 1c were all printed first and the 20c last it would mean that the 1c would be only from the early state of the plate and the 20c from the last, but this is not the case. It is possible to find both these and all the other values in early and late states. There is another point against the use of one plate only, and that is that in each value it is possible to find flaws and defects in the design itself, apart from the shield, which are peculiar to each value. My idea is that a separate plate was made for each value from the original plate with vacant spaces in the shield for the value plugs. Some of the values exist in such different shades that there must have been more than one printing of these values."

MARKET IN MODERN COLONIALS.

The demand for fine used Colonials continues brisk. Postally used Edwards have in some cases been selling for more than mint, particularly of the Falkland and Turks and Caicos Islands. Both these Colonies employ clear and distinct postmarks, and the numbers used on genuine postal traffic is small.

The 6d Falkland Is. stamp of the Edward series is one of the best. It is catalogued at the same price as the 1d with sideway watermark, viz., 10sh, but is really far the scarcer. The war stamps of these colonies seem to be the only issues that are temporarily under a cloud owing to over-speculation. The first 1sh War of the Southern Dependency is rather scarce, but is obtainable for less than ⅓ of the catalogue figure, as the difference between it and the succeeding issues is not very marked.

There has been a brisk demand for Georgians with good postmarks on pieces of entire. The Scripts, not having been in use long, are still somewhat elusive, and in the case of certain smaller colonies, i.e., Caymans, are fetching almost full catalogue. These prices will tend to ease somewhat as more supplies come on the market all the time. The new stamps of the African colonies are coming more freely and some of the Kenya stamps will soon be really common, as there is a considerable stamp-using population there. The only exception is Gambia, with its one tiny settlement and handful of Europeans, as its stamps are always hard to get used, and the fine new pictorial series, with its interesting shades, is really booming, especially as the next printings of some denominations may be on the new paper. The 2s6d and 4sh are elusive stamps.

No collector, however cheap he likes to buy, is pleased when the prices of his stamps fall still lower. Although a fair number of modern colonials have been coming over from Germany and elsewhere, the supply appears exhausted, notably in Edwardians which, with the exception of the commoner values, are very hard to buy abroad, in fact London is by far the cheapest market for these, and prices will probably show a marked hardening during the next few months, especially in some of the West Indian and West African stamps.

Lagos, Nigerias and Sierra Leone have in particular been obtainable at much below ordinary rates during the past few months, and an investment at summer prices would probably turn out very profitable, and some of the rare values of the single CA series of Sierra Leone and Lagos have actually been obtainable at far less than certain rare obsolete Georgian stamps of which similar numbers exist.

There is no reason, also, why anyone should not invest in stamps as in any ordinary shares, also only paper representing value; and wisely chosen, it is on the average a far sounder proposition. Whatever may happen to oilfields or mines, rare stamps have an international value, like gold, and even better than that commodity, have a constant upward trend.

The only discouraging feature is the presence of certain disgruntled collectors who have joined the ranks with the idea of getting rich quick, then perhaps, disposing of their holdings themselves, instead of consulting an expert in touch with the market, have lost on the transaction. Then no word is bad enough for the dealers who sell at say half catalogue and will only buy at one-fifth. Of course, all this is very futile and foolish. Pick up bargains by all means, and there are plenty of them to those of discernment, but stick to the stamps and learn to love them so that parting is a pain, and build up a collection with the idea of passing it on intact to posterity.

This is the true spirit of the stamp lover and if practised will bring honour and increasing popularity to the hobby, which unites the world and links up the British Commonwealth of Nations with its ever-widening bonds.—Philatelic Magazine.

K. Y. Woodward, Blairstown, N. J.

W. R. Taschenberger, Waterbury, Conn., adds his name to our Honor Club by remitting $5 for a five-years' renewal. It is accompanied by the terse statement "Can't live without the WEEKLY." This class of subscribers is growing more numerous as the months go by.

It belongs to K. Y. Woodward of Blairstown, N. J., to be the least informal of all the number who have yet become members of the Club. A letter is at hand containing the sentiment, "Shoot the enclosed on to my present subscription." And it is signed "W." However, Mr. Woodward did not fail in the most important part, as a check for $5 was enclosed in the letter.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

MINOR VARIETIES.

A reader writes that he wants his money back if the Editor does not have something stirring to say every month. Unfortunately stirring topics do not present themselves at regular intervals, while we have been dashed into comparative silence by a French contemporary's heart-breaking description of a recent effort as "literature à la Lloyd George."

There is, however, one subject which we may treat with benefit both to our readers and to ourselves—that of minor varieties. Every Editor and New Issue Chronicler receives hundreds of letters each year, sending stamps for inspection as worthy of catalogue rank or a place in the Chronicle, and a large proportion of these consist of minor varieties of stamps already listed.

Now we do not claim that the Gibbons' Catalogue is absolutely consistent—as the work of many different hands, it would be strange if it were so—but there is a general basis on which Catalogue Editors and Chroniclers work, for if they mentioned everything submitted to them they would be swamped within a very short time.

For example, the Gibbons' Catalogue does not include inverted watermarks, yet we receive notes of dozens of these every year, most of which we know of, and none of which can be listed.

Then, again, there are varieties of surcharge or overprint. These are so liable to show broken or misplaced letters that there is practically unanimous agreement against according such varieties catalogue rank. Yet, here, too, there is a continual stream of letters from readers who point out such minor variations.

Shades, too, are a prolific source of correspondence. While there are certain distinctive colour variations which must be included, it is impossible to include all that come along, and in cases where there are many variations, lack of space causes a stricter censorship than where there are only one or two. This makes for inconsistency, perhaps, but it avoids overloading the lists, and thereby confusing the collector. Given a catalogue list, there is nothing to prevent him from elaborating the shades in his collection to any degree which pleases him. Catalogue Editors prefer to have unused stamps for comparison, when shades are in question, as exposure in the post, moisture when floating, and the presence of the postmark, tend to destroy the colour values of used stamps.

Freaks caused by foreign matter on the plate, and other "curiosities," are also submitted, though they cannot be given catalogue rank. A variety of any kind should be "constant," i.e., present in the same position on the sheet throughout at least a considerable portion of a printing, before it can strictly be accorded ca logue rank (this also applies to o prints), and even then the ease which it may be distinguished, and general importance, have to be con ered, before it can gain admission. Ot wise our catalogues would speedily come unwieldly and unintelligible to ordinary collector.

For the collector of comparati limited experience it is a safe rul consider that if a minor variety of stamp more than ten years old is already in the catalogue there are reasons for its exclusion, and littl be gained by submitting it to an Ed Students with greater knowledge of course, always likely to make coveries, and are better able to app them at their true philatelic value.

We would not have collectors t that we do not want to hear from th We are always glad to see anything puzzles them and to help them in e possible way, but if they will ce their "discoveries" on the lines sugge here, they will save both themselves the Editor and chroniclers concern great deal of time and trouble.—Sta Gibbons Monthly Circular.

SPECIAL POSTAGE STAMPS.

(Clipping from F. H. Hawley.)

There will be general approval only by philatelists but by the e American public of the special issu 2-cent postage stamps bearing the trait of President Harding. It is a fi tribute to his memory and a wo addition to the already consider series of history-recording stamps is by the post-office department.

It is a reminder, too, of the differ between our postage stamp system the systems of other countries. Great Britain stamps of all denom tions are of the same design but different colors, all bearing the por of the reigning sovereign. So in Fr all bear the symbolical representatio the republic. Japanese stamps, admired for artistic beauty, all dis the chrysanthemum. Some coun eschew portraits and put minia landscapes, mountains, pyramids what not upon their stamps. We a use chiefly portraits of eminent me the past, generally with a different ject as well as a different color for denomination, and in addition pra the plan of making special issue memory of great events.

It is well thus to honor the men of Warren G. Harding. Judicious s tion and artistic execution may ma collection of our postage stamp pictorial record of the high light American history.—New York Trib

STAMP COLLECTING ON INCREASE.

(Clipping from F. W. Boling, Jr.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The old fad or collecting postage stamps not only s not on the wane, but is going stronger han ever, according to members of the American Philatelic Society, who recently concluded here what they characterized is the most successful gathering since he organization was founded 38 years go. More than 250 attested to the poparity of collecting when they bid quick nd lively at an auction in which several hundred stamps and groups were put up.

In all more than $6,100 was paid over is a result of the bidding. The highest rice paid was $560 for a four-cent blue tamp issued by British Guiana in 1856, nd which was considered a rare specinen. The fact that such a price was aid for a stamp not in best condition vas regarded as indicative of the interest ollectors still retain. This stamp in rime condition is listed at a catalog rice of $4,000.

Stamp collecting, though, isn't what it ised to be, the "old timers" say. There re too many "wise ones" in the field and t is no longer possible to pick up valuble rarities for a song. Even the children, hey declare, now know a good one when hey see it. They all hark back to the ime when such and such a stamp could e got anywhere for a few cents but is ow quoted and bought for as many lollars.

One of the interesting specimens which voked a lively minute of bidding and inally brought an exceptional price was pink three-cent United States stamp f the issue of 1861, the cancellation on vhich was a Devil with pitchfork. This ype has come to be known as the "Old Boy Himself" issue.—Norfolk Virginian Pilot.

PIERCE MATCH CO.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

In the second letter, bearing date July 15, 1890, Mr. Pierce wrote:

"First, I began the match business in Charlemont, Mass., bought out a man in West Troy, N. Y., by the name of Williams who had been manufacturing some kind of a card match. Added to his receipt some Chlorate of Potash to harden the composition and make it nearer waterproof, called it the Percussion Match. Began on a small scale. Cut my strawboard for boxes with a butcher knife. Cut out the corners with a chisel. As I have said before, I began on the round match finding no money in it. Turned my attention to the split or block match taken from plank, sawed the right length, put glue on one end to hold or stick the match(es) together, split with a hand machine worked by a lever.

Finding the business so close my first attention was to get up machinery for saving labor. My first machine was for cutting strawboard the whole length of the sheet. It consisted of a knife worked up and down by cam motion and would cut through 2 or 3 inches of strawboard at a time and would do as much work in a day as a man could do by hand in a month. The next machine was for marking or scoring by cutting the sheet half off so that you could pick the corners out with the fingers. It consisted of an iron cylinder turned by hand or power with circular cutting knives hung in a frame above the cylinder and turned or raised up and down by set screws. I have scored or marked with power as many as 30,000 in a day. The old way was to mark or scratch with an awl around a pattern block put on the strawboard by hand.

The next machine I got up was for splitting the block into matches by power. It consisted of a table or frame of wood upon which rested the iron work of 3 half circles, one at each end and one in the middle of the wooden table or frame. Upon the 3 half circles of iron ran a shaft. At one end was a balance wheel. at the other end a driving pulley. In the middle hung a lever on which was a splitting knife. By a cam on the shaft the carriage was drawn forward that held the blocks by a ratchet wheel worked by a cam at the end of the shafts at right angles to the cam that drove down the knife. With this machine a man with power could split over 20 bbls. a day, by hand power 3 bbls. was a good day's work.

The next machine was for crushing the fibres of the timber together so as to hold the matches together instead of glue, saving the stock as well as labor. This was patented Jan., 1854. It consisted of iron rollers hung in (an) iron frame and geared together in such a manner as to be driven nearer together by set screws and matting the fibres of both ends of the block—one end to be shaved off for the composition and the other end to hold the matches together. It so happened with me as it has with others, I have done the work for others to make the profits. Well, I have the satisfaction of thinking I have done some good in the world.

You will please excuse me from writing more at this time. I have sold machinery at nearly all the match firms in the northern states from Maine to California. At some other time I may write you more.

As I have said before, I was sued by the Boston Match Co., called Byam, Carlton & Co. They owned the Phillips Patent, dated in 1836. I employed Hon. George T. Davis to defend me. He went to New York City where they had suit, where (the) Hyatt(?) Match Co. got beat. That cost I have heard over $60,000, he got evidence of the trial, among it was a copy of the Phillips Patent. The question (I think I have the papers somewhere) turned on the point whether Antimony was a mineral or a metal. The Phillips Patent claimed any Mineral substance. He used whiting(?) and the Hyatt Co. Antimony. As I have written you, I preferred a compromise so as not to have cost and went to Springfield, N. Y.

I was not interested in the Washington Match Co. I have seen the paper but don't remember much about it. In the Pierce Match Co of Chicago we employed about 50 hands. The company did not fail but dropped the business because there was no money in it. I don't remember how many stamps we took but think there were $3,000 worth printed. I have heard that the building where the die was kept with all the stamps was burnt up. It was in Philadelphia not New York."

[Note. There were 52,500 Pierce stamps issued and 206,700 remainders, indicating a total printing of 259,200 stamps, which if ordered at one time, would have cost the Pierce Match Co. $2,356.37. The Jayne Building in Philadelphia, where the Carpenter firm had their establishment. was burned on March 4, 1872.—C. W.]

"That council at Chicago was, I think, in the month of April, 1867. I don't recollect all the parties that were there. There was Gates of N. Y., one of the largest making 1,000 gross a day, Richardson of Detroit, Bruns(?) of St. Louis, Greenleaf of Milwaukee, Wis., and others."

On July 16, 1890, Mr. Pierce wrote:

"I have been think(ing) since I wrote you yesterday that I would like to give you a short history of that last machine I described to you and got patented in 1854.

I had a cousin that was with me when I began the match business. He went west soon after we began, to Grand Rapids, Mich., and from there (to) Milwaukee, Wis. I visited him in 1848. I had then got my first machine for cutting strawboard for boxes—found him cutting his with a butcher knife. Sold him a machine price $150 and others as I got them up at about the same price. In 1852 I wrote him to know how much glue he had used in a year. He replied that he had used $1,100 eleven hundred dollars' worth the year before. I wrote him that I was getting up a machine to do away with glue. I thought it would pay to be to some expense. It succeed(ed). It was two years before I got one that was satisfactory & got it patented. I had spent many hundred dollars and built and rebuilt several machines before I had one that was satisfactory—some of them costing as high as five or six hundred dollars.

During the year I went out and satisfied him it would do the work and made a contract with him to do the work by the thousand feet of lumber. I estimated for the amount of business he was doing it would give as much as two thousand dollars a year clear profit but he failed to carry out the contract having sold out the business without making any reserve of my contract. The parties he sold to would not fulfill that contract but would pay me one thousand dollars for the machine. I was obliged to take it as I had been to so much expense—was in need of the money. After having sold out in a few months he was about to put an opposition factory. They told him No, we will sell back to you & did so including that machine I had sold them. (They were party I went in company with at Detroit & failed up.) They told me that the machine paid for itself while they ran it 5 months.

This cousin of mine, R. W. Pierce, the one you spoke of as being in Detroit, went in Co. with others. I believe it was called R. W. Pierce & Company. They did a large business running three splitting machines & put from fifteen to  thousand dollars a year clear profit more than one half of which was clearly due to that machinery that I had let them have or (they) got at such low figure."

[Note. R. W. Pierce & Co. are mentioned in the article on the Milwaukee Match stamps. They operated the Milwaukee factory before it was sold to Greenleaf & Co.]

In the letter of July 23, 1890, Mr. Pierce says:

"In regard to the Pierce Match Co. of Chicago, it was not an Incorporated Co. —had no officers. It was composed of four men—Pierce, Parsons, Rowley and Wells. I furnished the machinery, the other parties the capital that was needed to carry on the business. The factory was located down on what was called the sands, or new made ground from the washing of the Lake. In 1870 the building was burnt with others when the city of Chicago was burned. I believe I have written you in regard to the breaking up of the Co.

In regard to the failure of the Detroit Match Co. I think the failure was due to having poor matches and having to start a new set of customers from what they had at Milwaukee. I think that I wrote you that I had dealings or been interested with most of the manufacturers of the split or block matches from Maine to California. Among the larger ones were Pittsburgh, Columbus(?), Cincinnati, St. Louis, St. Paul, San Francisco. My experience has been that the more capital they had the less likely they were to succeed.

Among the small manufacturers the most of them had small capital and succeeded better than the larger ones until the stamp act was passed that killed them all off. I could write you quite a history of some of the larger ones at Pittsburgh, St. Louis, St. Paul, etc., if you wish some other time. I don't think of anything more just now."

The letter of July 25, 1890, contained the following paragraph:

"In regard to the passage of the Stamp Act I wish to say that I have been told that Byam, Carlton & Co. were at the bottom of it. Giving 10 pr/ct discount by taking $1,000 worth at a time was done to put down the smaller manufacturers and that their profits from the discount some years were as high as $30,000 thirty thousand dollars and that it had ruined the business of more than three-fourths of the manufacturers of the country."

[Note: In the 17 years, 1866-1883, Byam, Carlton & Co. bought about 30,000,000 adhesive stamps and 310,000,000 wrapper stamps, all of the denomination of 1c. This gives an average of 20,000,000 per year.

In about nine and a half years, from 1866 to 1875, however, they used about 280,000,000 stamps and wrappers, which is an average of nearly 30,000,000 per year. To obtain a bonus of $30,000 worth of stamps they would have to buy $300,000. worth, or 30,000,000 1c stamps. Their average from 1866 to 1875 is so close to the required figure that it is evident there were some years when the bonus—miscalled a discount—yielded them $30,000.—C. W.]

In the last letter, which is dated July 29, 1890, Mr. Pierce states:

"In regard to the Match Cos that have started up since 1860 I do not know much about (them). It is just thirty years ago this month that I was in St. Louis and sold machinery to J. L. Dunham & Co. I have heard that they had failed. D. M. Richardson Co. I think started the next year after J. W. Hibbard & Co. (Hiberd?) or 1856. I don't know anything about his stamps. I have been told that (he) used about 3,000 dollars worth a week.

Mr. Seward can tell you about the Washington Match Co. as he worked for them nearly one year. Also the Griggs & Scott Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa. Also the Alexander Co. of Baltimore. Also of Mr. Donely of Philadelphia. There are so many parties that I have had dealings with or been interested (with) that I could hardly name them all now. If you have any more questions to ask please do so. I will endeavor to do so."

Directly from Mr. Pierce, or throug George O. Seward, Mr. Sterling obtaine eight copies of the Pierce match stam Mr. Sterling disposed of these in 187 1877, swapping one of them to Willia P. Brown, the New York dealer, in exchange for an unused $5.00 Proprietar

If these eight copies are still in existence they comprise more than half th known supply. The writer has been abl to trace just thirteen different copies an it is scarcely necessary to remark tha hardly any of them are in strictly fin condition. One specimen which is only little off center has full original gum an all the brilliancy which it had whe issued in 1867. As all the known copie probably came from one printing b Butler & Carpenter in Philadelphia an slight variations in the green color ma be attributed to influences which hav affected the stamps since they were made

Like the Rock Island stamp the Pierc volcano has never been common. Sterling quoted it at $20.00 in 1888 while th Scott prices from 1894 to 1896 wer $25.00; 1898 to 1901, $40.00; 1902 to 192 $50.00; 1922, $60.00. In view of th actual rarity of this stamp and that comes on only one variety of paper, th quotations given cannot be considere inflated.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have seen a new advertisin cancellation from Brockton, Mass., reading:—"Brockton Fair, 50th Anniversary Oct. 2-3-4-5-6."

—We have received from D. D. Berolzheimer a copy of the Masonic New published in N. Y. City. It is the September number and it contains a ver interesting article "The Nation's Histor in New Stamps."

—Erwin Strasser submits specimen of the Canada Dead Letter Office stamp recently described by Mr. Goodchild They are certainly fine examples of th engraver's art.

—The well-known Detroit dealer W F. Fratcher has been compelled to go t a local hospital for an operation and i will be several weeks before he can attend to the details of business. He wil have the wishes of a host of friends fo a speedy recovery.

—Will our subscribers please note th respective department editors of th Weekly. If you have anything of precancel nature send it to Mr. Allen If your news concerns U. S. stamps sen it to Mr. Ward, and on foreign stamps Mr. Smith. If this matter of detail i attended to your favor will be promptl noted.

—We have received a selection o Christmas greeting cards hand-tinted i transparent water colors by Wm. S Biechele, Lima State Hospital, Lima Ohio. The work is exceedingly wel done and the prices are reasonable. Mr Biechele also submits a calendar and some Christmas cards with postage stamps neatly mounted upon them which give a distinct philatelic tinge to his work Any subscriber desiring Christmas cards or philatelic remembrances should communicate with Mr. Biechele.

—The Torrington, Ct., Register of Sept. 27, contained an interesting story of the stamp collection of Postmaster A. E. Wellman of that city. Mr. Wellman's collection is confined to stamps issued by the U. S. government.

—So many new advertisers are appearing in our columns that we find it difficult making individual mention of them all. We hope our subscribers will not be bashful in trying the wares of these new aspirants for trade.

—The Karelia set should have been 49c instead of 68c. My mistake probably but am refunding on answers to it.—R. H. Mower.

—The Toronto (Canada) and district readers of this journal interested in the formation of a local stamp club are requested to communicate with, B. Turner, Box 24, Terminal Station "A," Toronto, immediately.

A RARE AND POPULAR STAMP

New York 5c

I have several of these to offer, on or off cover, used or unused, with or without initials; several more not perfect at bargain counter figures. If you need one of these old-time classics, allow me to send some on approval, after I investigate your reference.

I have plenty of all early U. S., no shortage in 5c and 10c 1847, 5c 1851, 90c 1857, 90c 1868, 90c 1869, and the like, at this office.

British North Am. stamps, too, in all grades, all the rarities in these, including shillings of N. F. (both colors), N. S. and N. B. Also a 12d Canada unused, etc., etc. Address entire unused envelopes in the Weekly ne time ago, a correspondent, Charles Patteson, giving his address as Hotel ster, Milwaukee, Wis., sent me some elopes for inspection under date of gust 15th last. I was in the east at time and did not return home until tember 7th. On Sept. 13th I returned envelopes to Mr. Patteson by registed mail to the address given but the artment has returned the package rked "not there'." We believe that . Patteson will tell Mr. Westphal ere to send the envelopes.

N. E. CARTER, ELKHORN, WISCONSIN

-As a consequence of the convention the Metropolitan Philatelic Society in icago, on Sept. 27th and 28th, the cago Journal gave almost a column a stamp story, headed: "War Pro- tes Stamp Pursuit. Collectors Kept sy as New States, Created at Peace, rn Out Issues." On the same even- the Chicago Post contained a similar icle. The convention of the Metro- tan Philatelic Association was at- led by Chicago collectors only, and sessions resolved themselves into tings of a committee on the whole. structive measures were favorably sidered and according to the reports e of the departments are in good ning order. Mr. Hollister seems to e the sales department well in hand the report of the secretary, Mr. hand-Vertfeuille, showed that he has ked to the utmost to develop the nization.

-A subscriber in Topeka writes to that he thinks that there is no more resting subject than stamp finds, and elates that on a document he found ntly six of the $5 periodical, used for documentary, No. 3999. We are ned to associate finds with the dis- past but here we have proof that e are good finds to be made of the paratively recent issues. Our reader that he supposes most collectors m about finds; and we can say that s a poor collector who has not med of making them.

-From General C. A. Coolidge, De- , we have the communication: "The gn on the cover of the American atelist may be considered very artis- and aesthetic but I, for one, prefer list of names and the addresses of officers of the society on the outside r for convenience and propaganda ertainly they should be given promi- e inside the magazine with each and y issue for ready reference without our being required to refer to some back number when, as frequently is the case, we desire to write to an officer of the society. Even the address of the secretary is not given at the end of his report."

—Further news has come about the Middletons of Tokyo and the report is confirmed that while they lost "furniture, clothing, books, stamps and lots of miscellaneous goods in just two seconds" they escaped injury. Professor Middleton is now to be addressed: F. C. Middleton, 416 State Street, Madison, Wis.

—We have received the last section of advance sheets of the new catalogue and we are expecting the bound volume by the time this paragraph appears. The book will be a substantial one of well over 1,400 pages and its issue on time will have a helpful influence on collecting.

—Franklin Coombs of the Metropolitan Stamp Company, New York, has been revisiting Chicago, where he spent several years in preparation for his triumphal entry into New York's commercial circles. Mr. Coombs finds that while a score of years makes a difference in some ways, some of his old friends are unchanged, thereby proving that the pursuit of philately conduces to a philosophic acceptance of the joys and jibes of life.

—A correspondent calls attention to the fact that since 1898, Salvador has been tranquil and progressive and that its currency system is on a gold basis with no depreciated paper circulating medium. The population is now estimated at one million and a half.

—Madrid Filatelico comes out with a ringing editorial in favor of the fiscal stamp as an object of collection and after reading the strong case made out in behalf of the fiscal, we really wonder why there seems to be almost no interest whatever in revenue stamp issues outside of the countries emitting them.

—The Chicago Tribune exhibits in a frame in its down-town office several envelopes with enclosures from its correspondent in the brigand sector of China which bear nondescript labels, as to looks, which are said to be signs of authorization by the bandits that the letters should not be interfered with.

—Will the reader who sent in his reminisences, signed evidently by a penname, give us his address? While we have no particular convictions about the propriety of using anonymous matter when it is general in its application, we must have the name of the writer who discusses personal topics.

—A stamp man says that if the demand for stamps becomes as great as he thinks it will, the large stocks that many dealers now have on hand will melt away as butter on a hot platter. It is not to be denied that the stamps that have been coming from Europe have afforded the dealers a chance to fortify the weak places in their stocks.

—To those who have complained about the irregular receipt of the Weekly we wish to say that we have been trying to remedy conditions affecting the mailing. We have not been wholly at fault and without wishing to be too sanguine, we may say that we are hopeful of overcoming the delay that readers have called attention to.

—In Country Life, London, September 1, 1923, we find the following profound paragraph:

"There was probably never a time when more was written about civilisation than there is at the present moment. Reversion seems to be indicated as a succeeding theme. It has begun in a small way in the German post-office. The postage stamp will on all sides be admitted to be a sign of civilisation. The absolutely uncivilised have neither postmaster, post-office nor postage stamp. Germany has had all of them at a high state of efficiency, but the fall of the mark has had what the novelist calls a repercussion on the postage stamp. That erratic coin has been going up and down in a tortuous way that could not be followed in the case of the stamp. So there has been a final issue of stamps, and when the supply is exhausted notice is given that letters will be paid for in the simple, old-fashioned way that prevailed during the day of the great-grandfathers of this generation. Instead of having a letter brought to him by the postman as he is accustomed, he who expects a letter will have to go to the post-office, get it over the counter and pay the charges. A little thing, to be sure; but then, straws show the direction in which the wind is blowing."

Recent Issues

For the benefit of the busy collector we are grouping the issues of the past few months under this head. This will enable you to pick up items not received in New Issue distributions, etc. Why not join our New Issue Service. No deposits. Any countries or groups you want. We make no claims about its being the best or next best service. We do, however, get many items not received by most dealers, our connections abroad being second to none. Unused, of course.

EDITORIAL.

The collectors who for many years have sought to place philately in an attractive guise before the public, by using every legitimate means in their power may now take stock of results with much satisfaction. In fact, we could say that they had worked themselves out of a job if we did not know that they would never relax their efforts to promote philately. Some of the older workers, however, have earned a rest whether they will take it or not; and we address ourselves to the relatively young collectors to prosecute the work that has for its end, the full and free recognition of stamp collecting as a matter-of-fact pursuit or occupation. Progress has been made to such an extent that it is to be said that the goal is in sight but we dare not assume that it is to be reached without further striving. One of the best ways to be helpful is through the organization of stamp clubs in high schools and other institutions of the kind; and we have found that instructors as a rule encouraged the formation of such bodies. Some leading spirit must be depended upon to start the society which though it flourish for a time, only to fade, is not without influence for good. Individual effort on the part of collectors has accomplished so much for philately that we want each collector, even though he is young in the pursuit, to feel that the success of the philatelic movement depends on his own efforts to present stamp collecting properly before the outside world.

A reader informs us that John R. Hooper, who as "Canadensis" was a prolific writer for the philatelic press thirty years or more ago and concerning whom an inquiry was made recently is still alive and after many vicissitudes has reached a position of some affluence in Manitoba. Our correspondent says that he had a talk only "comparatively recently" with Mr. Hooper, who, it will be remembered, was pardoned after having been sentenced to death on the charge of wife-murder. It is needless to say that many of his philatelic friends were firmly convinced of his innocence.

From a correspondent we have word of the second order for three hundred million Harding stamps, by Postmaster General New; and under date of October 1st, advices to that effect appeared in the newspapers. The memorial stamps are being well accepted by the public, to whom the novelty of such a stamp greatly appeals, aside from sentiment.

We think that Stephen Leacock, the Canadian humorist, is as rich and refined an artist as ever syndicated a smile; and we are for him in all senses of the word. Yet, no sooner do we pin our chariot to a star than something goes wrong and we find ourselves fallen in the dust. Stephen Leacock essayed a bout with stamps and we wish that he had not; or that he had not told about it. In his weekly contribution to a selected list of newspapers, Mr. Leacock says he has at different times been thrilled with the thought of collecting something and he began with postage stamps. He says that he received a letter from a friend who went to South Africa and that the three-cornered stamp on it hit his fancy. When he caught sight of this stamp he decided that he would devote his life from then on to stamp collecting. He bought a printed album and started to fill the spaces and for three days he reported progress, he having acquired the one, two, five and ten cent American stamps; and then came dissolution. He became tired of his stamps even though he boasted of having several "rather valuable South African stamps." Mr. Leacock says that he soon became tired of lying about the collection. It pains us not that Mr. Leacock so curtly dismissed stamp collecting from a place in his esteem or that he lied about his collection but because he lies in so inartistic a manner. We hope that we are wrong in our understanding of the words used by our idol who so shamelessly shows his feet of clay but Mr. Leacock does say that he got a letter from a friend with a three-cornered stamp on it from South Africa, inferentially, Cape of Good Hope. All that we can say is that if he got a triangular Cape on the letter from his friend, we will eat—or rather, go without eating for a day.

Having seen a reference to Samuel Dawson who was so well known as a stamp dealer at San Salvador through his advertisements in the philatelic press thirty or forty years ago, we sought information from one of his old friends here, in the hope of being able to answer the inquiries of those who wish to know what has become of Mr. Dawson. Samuel Dawson, who, we understand, was of English birth, was appointed postmaster general of Salvador many years ago as a result of his interest in stamps and for nearly twenty years he was connected in some way with the postal service of Salvador. In fact, he entered so completely into the life of his adopted country that he found it difficult to speak English on his occasional trips to this country and had to proceed haltingly. Mr. Dawson certainly liked stamps and their suggestions and he had several correspondents in this country until some years ago, when Mr. Dawson seems to have disappeared from view, leaving no particulars in his wake.

We read with feelings of deep regret of the death of J. H. Smyth, Sydney, Australia, who was best known to us as editor of the Australian Stamp Journal. We remember the first number of our contemporary which appeared in 19 and since that time the interesti monthly has paid us many visits, to o pleasure and profit. Mr. Smyth, w was born in 1856, and died July 14, 19 possessed a sturdy philatelic instinct, a as an editor his disposition was equal and engaging. Somewhat to our su

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 WEST 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES,
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

Following is a very interesting communication from Dr. William Evans, 313 East Freemason Street, Norfolk, Va. The evil of fake cancellations is with us, has been with us for some time and probably will be with us forever. The most successful manner of combating such an evil is publicity in the stamp press, such as Dr. Evans is giving in this article. As he says, it certainly behooves one to be cautious.

Note that Dr. Evans does not pronounce all of the examples he speaks of as fakes—in many cases he merely says that they look like fakes to him and he would be delighted to have someone show him indisputable evidence to the contrary. To discuss and obtain a consensus of opinion on certain suspected cancellations that are going the rounds is one of the very valuable functions that this department can perform. In some cases it may be that through obtaining evidence from a number of readers we will be able to establish the authenticity of some cancellations that are so "pretty" and so unusual as to render them open to suspicion when presented as singles off cover.

I cannot quite agree with the last paragraph of Dr. Evans' letter, or at least I would modify it. Of course, one can buy with a certain sense of security from some dealers and some individuals but then no one is infallible and the value of dealing with responsible parties is that one is reasonably sure that any mistake made will be satisfactorily adjusted, rather than that this is sufficient protection against error.

Personally, I feel that the greatest protection one may have is knowledge of the game. That, of course, comes slowly and sometimes is costly. But there are certain things that can only be gained by intensive study of thousands and hundreds of thousands of specimens. For instance, the student of lower values of early U. S. comes after awhile to believe that only certain shades and certain types of ink were used during those years. Black, just for example, runs into many shades among the postal markings of these years. After he has this knowledge sufficiently ingrained in his mind, he will question any difference in shading, printing quality or effect of the ink on the paper that he detects in a cancellation on early U. S. For example, out of curiosity, I recently bought a tar baby cancellation that is put on with an ink that looks to me to be too intense a black for any cancellation of that period. I paid a fair price for it, believing it to be a fake, because I want eventually to prove it a fake and then be able to show and warn others against that particular fake.

Suspicion being aroused in the student's mind, he will naturally study the specimen closer for other evidences of its being a fake. If the cancellation looks wrong and he discovers faint traces of another postal marking under the pretty cancellation, he can be pretty sure that it is faked, for the cancellation faker usually works with lightly cancelled specimens. There are of course many other things to be considered and these I will bring out later after we have received more on the subject of fakes for this department. But the point I have tried to make is that there are sufficient quantities of lower values of early U. S. existing for study so that every earnest student of cancellations can be reasonably sure of becoming in time enough of an expert that he is not likely to get stung in buying some of the real rarities and the fact that the faker is abroad should not deter anyone from starting a specialized collection.

"A few years ago when cancellations first began to be collected one could make selections with a degree of security that what he chose for his collection had actually been placed upon the stamp by the postmaster of some town. Today the faker is abroad in the land and it behooves one to be cautious.

Recently there has been submitted to me a selection of cancellations containing some fearfully and wonderfully produced specimens of the art of one who wants something for nothing—fakes placed upon the stamps with the evident intention of defrauding the unwary.

Has anyone ever seen a phoenix genuinely used? If so I should be glad to know it. This selection contains a pair of 3c postage due stamps cancelled by a phoenix. On one it is beautifully inverted, probably to give the impression that the Postmaster was anxious to please some philatelist forty years after his work was done.

Another very impressive one is a large interrogation point. Also we have a pretty fleur-de-lis, a sun with numerous rays, an Indian's head, a pointing hand, three links, i.e., an Odd Fellow's emblem, and two Masonic emblems, one crudely cut from cork, the other a rather elaborate affair large enough to cover the whole stamp with a G in the center of the square and compasses. This one is on a 1c blue American print and is artistically presented in a green ink, the composition of which was not invented until after the stamp had been superseded by at least two succeeding issues!

Oh, yes! And a very pretty little horse in blue on a stamp with a blue cancellation of a different type, including part of the postmark also. It's really real cute.

Now these things were sent out by a firm whom I believe to be reliable. They were evidently taken in by the party from whom they purchased them. Having seen many of them before from a different source it is evident that some people are being deceived by them.

The moral is the same old moral, don't buy except from those who can guarantee genuineness, whether it be stamps or cancellations."

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

If you have any 10c blacks you've reason to be proud of, please drop me a line. [tf

WINDOW PUBLICITY.

Would you do something to promote an interest in stamp collecting? All you need do is fix up an attractive card of something new and novel in the philatelic line. Most any storekeeper will be glad to allow the use of window space for such a display, and you will be surprised at the number of people, old as well as young, who will be drawn to the exhibit. Some of our subscribers used the Harding stamps on and off the cover in this way, and the new airmail stamps soon to be issued can perform a similar service. Give the hobby this advertising, which can be easily and cheaply obtained.

Small Dealers! Attention!

Send either $5 or $10 for one of our small dealers' stocks. You get the benefit of our experience of what should sell. Often we purchase more of a certain good seller than we need because the seller makes us a very attractive price. We held the big American Philatelic Society's auction sale in August. Consider what our experience and judgment should mean in picking a stock for you. Our supply of these stocks is limited. You had better order at once. [10

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—I am informed by the Bureau of Engraving & Printing that up to September 19th, forty-three plates had been made of the Harding Memorial stamp. One die was cut and this was given number 721. From this die twelve transfer rolls were made bearing numbers 1270 to 1281 inclusive and from these the plates were made for both the flat bed and the rotary presses.

From roll 1270 were made plates 14852, 53, 54, 57, 61, 73 and 14905. Five plates were made from roll 1271, these bearing numbers 14856, 62, 69, 85 and 14904. From roll 1272 were made plates 14855, 60, 74, 75, 84, 90 and 14906, while from roll 1273 were laid down plates 12858, 68, 72, 78 and 91. Roll 1274 made 14859, 70, 77, 87, 94, 14903 and 908. From roll 1275 were made 14863, 71, 79, 93 and 98 while the next roll 1276 made 14886, 92 and 14902. Rolls number 1277, 1278 and 1279 were not used while plates 14866 and 14900 were made from roll 1280 and 14867 and 14901 from roll 1281. I believe the last four plates are for the rotary press from which we obtain our perforated 10 variety while the other plates produce the flat plate perforated 11 stamps. I have seen stamps so far from twenty-seven of the above plates and no doubt most of the others went to press. The department has just placed with the Bureau a second order for 300,000,000, making 600,000,000 ordered to date. In spite of this large number but few appear on the daily business mail.

Mr. B. K. Miller writes that he has just secured a block of thirty-seven of the 1875 Eagle Carrier reprint in perforated condition. His block has plate number 1 in the margin. Mr. Miller also states that he has a perforated copy of the Franklin Carrier reprint on white paper. I have never heard of this variety perforated and would like to know more about it before accepting it as a government perforation.

Mr. F. R. Demmerly writes a very interesting letter regarding the government exhibit of postage stamps at Indianapolis. He states the "Exhibit attracted a great deal of attention here. I saw it at the Post Office the last evening of its visit. Displayed in the lobby in the evening, it was attended constantly by a crowd who wanted to know. A clerk recognizing me, I was pressed into service to dispense stamp information. Had an enjoyable hour and found I was lacking in several bits of stamp facts. Have not had much time to follow the recent issues very closely and except for reading your weekly Chronicle would have little knowledge of them."

I noticed a remark in the WEEKLY recently wherein some one stated that he was surprised to find on examining a great number of stamped envelopes that most of them were white with some blue and that amber was almost entirely missing. He could not understand how this could be the case when the amber envelope was so popular. This is very easily answered by stating that on January 1, 1922, the department discontinued the manufacture of the amber and buff envelope and nothing can be furnished, other than old stock on hand, except white and blue.

In a recent Chronicle I mentioned that I knew of three different advertisements that appeared on the back of the 3c green, National print. Mr. B. K. Miller kindly adds a fourth to the list reading in three lines, "Buy Radway's Relief."

I have seen in another publication remarks to the effect that a certain stamp collector in attendance at the American Philatelic Convention was responsible for the 8c Air Mail stamp being sold one of the evenings at the convention. This is very far from the fact and when an official does such good work in our behalf he certainly is entitled to every bit of the credit. This good work was entirely due to the instructions given by Mr. M. L. Eidsness, Jr., Supt. of the Division of Stamps to the Philatelic Stamp Agent, and he had not even been in conversation with the party claiming the credit. In addition, when the first supply was sold out, Mr. Eidsness arranged for an additional quantity immediately. It was also through the courtesy of the same gentlemen that your editor was allowed to announce at the convention that a Harding Memorial stamp would be issued—the first public announcement of this interesting fact.

ALGERIA.—It is now definitely announced that this country is to have stamps of its own. We hope a tight rein will be kept on its stamp-issuing propensities from the start, as the fever for new issues is apt to rage very fiercely when once it has attacked a fresh victim.—Gibbons Monthly Circular.

BRAZIL.—Mr. Wilfrid Cole sends us the following translation of an official notice recently published: "On the 12th of September next, a new stamp of the value of 200 reis will be placed in circulation, in commemoration of the Centenary of the Revolution in Bahia on 2nd July, 1823. The stamp will be rectangular, 29 mm by 19 mm, carmine, the design showing the entry of the relieving army into Bahia."

CHINA.—Mr. D. Schofield sends us a cutting from an unnamed newspaper which illustrates what is described as probably the rarest stamp in the world. It is stated to have been affixed to a letter which one of a party of English people captured by Chinese bandits wrote to a friend in Shanghai and consists of the words "PAO TZU KU BANDIT POST TEN CTS." in a type-set border. Perhaps this "rarity" was created in the hope that by its sale something might be raised towards the indemnity which the bandits doubtless extracted from their victims! The absurdity of the suggestion that a bandit messenger would re-

New Zealand.—The new 1d stamp, foreshadowed last week, is expected to be in red or pink, in conformity with the requirements of the International Postal Congress. The design had not been decided upon definitely at the time of our Special Correspondent's despatch, at the end of July.—Stamp Collecting.

Rhodesia.—Southern Rhodesia, which for about thirty years had been governed by a Chartered Company, was officially incorporated as part of the Imperial Dominions on September 12th. On the 10th inst. The Times published the following:—

"The transfer of Southern Rhodesia to the Imperial Government will mark a new era in the philatelic, no less than the political, history of that country. At present the postage stamps current in the Chartered Company's territories bear, as they have always done, the inscription 'British South Africa Company,' in addition to the name 'Rhodesia.' It is probable that some form of overprint will be struck upon these stamps in token of the new régime, pending preparation of a new definitive issue under the Crown. In any case, separate stamps will be required for the Northern Territory, which is to remain in the company's control, so that philatelists will have two series to collect where there was but one before."—Stamp Collecting.

Russia.—Mr. Karl Koslowski advises that the set of Exposition stamps recently issued in imperforate condition have now been placed on sale perforated 13. Mr. Koslowski also informs us that he has had the 30r on 50kop and the 40r on 15kop with surcharge inverted.

Turkey.—Mr. A. W. Lockhart, of Newport, I. W., kindly shows us what we presume to be the first example of a set commemorative of the long-drawn-out "Peace" of Lausanne. Remembering the hundreds of thousands of innocent Christians who have been murdered in cold blood by the Turks, it is somewhat difficult to reconcile the idea of an Ottoman peace stamp. Nevertheless, this label will, we suppose, be regarded as such; oblong in format, red in colour, and perforated, it has a vignette of Mustapha Kemal Pasha shaking hands with General Harington, against a background composed of a devastated town and broken bridge with Turkish inscriptions and floral ornamentation. Mr. Lockhart had a mint block of twelve from a friend who purchased them in the streets of Constantinople.—Stamp Collecting.

Uruguay.—The 5 centesimos, Mercury type, which, as chronicled in Stamp Collecting for June 16th, was originally in grey, has now appeared in light brown. Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. show us a copy, together with a 2c carmine. Figure of Mercury. Wmk. "Republica del Uruguay" (in sheet). Perf. 11½. 2 centesimos carmine. 5 centesimos light brown.—Stamp Collecting.

MR. LOCHER REMOVES TO TEGNO.

(Taken from a Prospectus.)

Jubilees of all things possible and impossible are now the order of the day. Why not have one as well for stamp collectors?

And so I am launching this catalogue for 1923 to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the establishment of my firm.

The concern was started in 1898 at Geneva; soon after it was transferred to Berne and in 1915 to Zurich. What undreamt of changes we have seen these 25 years of stamp collecting! Where are those old days when the "manager," only 20 years of age, used to sort out whole heaps of beautiful "rayons"—acquired for a mere song—in that little old den at Geneva, which served as parlor, living-room, work-room and show-room.

Without blowing my own trumpet, I may say that the flourishing of the firm gives good reason for satisfaction.

My clientele which at first was rather limited now extends to all parts of the world. The correspondence has increased to an uncanny extent so that with the best will in the world inquiries from faithful old customers have had to be neglected. I take this opportunity of apologizing for this remissness and at the same time I can assure them that in future their letters will be more promptly attended to.

I have now decided to give up the salesroom in Zurich in order to avoid the loss of precious time occasioned by casual customers and callers, desirable and otherwise. Thus I am going to attach the chief importance to the corresponding department.

I have chosen the sunny south of Switzerland for the new seat of my business and am moving to—Tegna presso Locarno (Switzerland) Oct. 1.

Tegna is situated at the opening of the valley of Centovalli (second station from Locarno, on the line Locarno-Domodossola).

In this paradise I intend to devote myself to my extensive clientele, seconded by my able and well trained staff. Any requirements can be met, thanks to my old and ample stock, which has lately been increased by considerable acquisitions.

I have transferred my present premises to my young and most capable colleague, Mr. Ed. Luder, with whom I have always been on a friendly footing in spite of the fact that we were competitors, and will add my best wishes for his success.

Hoping that my clients will continue to show me the confidence which I enjoyed for so many years, I assure them that I shall do my utmost to prove myself worthy of it.

With these few words of introduction I have the pleasure of submitting this catalogue to you and trust that it will serve to maintain the connection of the philatelic world with my firm.

An Appeal to Reason!

¶ Why be a General Collector?
¶ You cannot hope to get everything ever issued.
¶ A big proportion of what you do get will be ordinary junk, issued without reason and valueless when you want to resell.
¶ Much of this you can buy at a small percentage of catalogue price, but you can't sell at any price.
¶ Why not specialize in a group of countries the stamps of which have proven worth and stability?
¶ For several years I have featured 20th Century British Colonials, because I had knowledge of their past and faith in their future.
¶ The hundreds of collectors who had faith in my judgment and who did not buy stamps merely because they were cheap have beautiful and valuable collections, increasing in value every year, instead of decreasing.
¶ The 1924 catalogue advances prices considerably in these issues, but the market continues bare of large holdings and the future will see still larger advances.
¶ Get in touch with me on these stamps—I not only get all new issues, but hold the largest stock of obsolete and current King's Heads in America.
¶ Why bother with trash any longer?

1,000 British Colonies Mounted

Price Now $16.00

The most popular stamps are those of the British Colonies; furthermore, they are good investments, attractive in appearance, and are seldom to be obtained at large discounts from catalogue. We offer this month a collection of 1,000 British Colonies only (no Great Britain)—standard varieties, which will be equally interesting to collector or dealer. Many unused specimens will be found, and practically all of the colonies, including Antigua, Brunei, Somaliland, British Honduras, Palestine, Falklands, Hejaz, Nauru, Niue, Zanzibar, etc., are represented. Commemoratives, war stamps, provisionals and occupation issues are in great abundance. The stamps are either unused, mint, or lightly cancelled, used, and particular pains have been taken to exclude all straight edged, heavily cancelled, or otherwise defective copies.

Each Collection, $16.00; 2 for $30.00; 3 for $42.50

1,500 British Colonies Mounted

Now Only $37.50

There are certain outstanding points of quality which put this excellent collection in a class of its own:

(1) British Colonies only—absolutely no Great Britain.
(2) Every stamp distinctly different; no watermark, perforation, or other minor varieties. With the thousands of changed watermarks now appearing, this point alone means an increased value of from 25% to 40%.
(3) Picked copies only; to our knowledge there is not a damaged specimen in the entire collection.
(4) About 20% of the stamps are unused, mint; and small, out-of-the-way countries such as Turks Islands, Virgin Islands, Antigua, Zanzibar, Maldives, Cyprus, Dominica, Lagos, Montserrat, Sarawak, Togo, Papua, etc., are well represented.

Only a few of these super-collections have been assembled, so an early order is advisable.

Each Collection $37.50; 2 Collections for $70.00 which is evidence of how his philatelic endeavor is appreciated. Besides being a thorough student of regular postage stamps, he is an eminent authority on precancels and heads the firm possessing the largest stock in existence. It was largely due to his effort that the precancel convention was run off with such success.

Detroit was chosen by a unanimous vote so let us all try to make the words "see you in Detroit" run true to form. The Detroit collectors are known throughout the middle west as good fellows and royal entertainers and this fact we should keep in mind when we lay out plans for our next summer's vacation.

NOTES OF THE MONTH.

Quite a few interesting items have come to hand of late, but I shall list the majority of these next time. A couple of new fourteen-centers arrive from San Francisco and Lincoln, Nebr. I believe there will be considerable specialism in this stamp. Let me call attention to the scarce thirteen of the series going out of use. In the precancel catalogue they are much undervalued. Even the Chicago and New York varieties seldom show up. It will pay to fill in while you can secure them at all. Minneapolis is using the new one cent stamps in the standard type furnished already to Chicago, New York, Cleveland and Schenectady. It is hard to say to what extent the new Harding stamps will be precanceled. I am afraid it will make a rather "mussy" affair as such, although the stamp itself appeals to me very much. Who will be the first to report a "Harding precancel?" I shall appreciate hearing from interested readers at any time and am always glad to smooth the way for a prospective addition to the precancel ranks.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS.

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the WEEKLY are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it

AERO PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

America being "first in the Air" through the early scientific work and airplane construction of Prof. Langley of the Smithsonian Institution and later by the Wright Bros., who built the first airplane to rise in successful flight, followed by Curtiss and Martin, in the splendid development of "Heavier than air flying machines," gives an opportunity of perpetuating these national honors, by collecting air mail stamps and covers of the world, and through this effort to sustain and broaden the use of aircraft for carrying the mail of the United States, and thus connect America up with the linking routes of the air mail of the world.

The collecting of air mail stamps and the preservation of covers showing dated postmarks and establishment of special air routes will serve to commemorate the heroic trial flights of pioneer aviators and brand new air routes over and across our broad land, as well as perpetuating these events in the annals of our country's history.

The civilian interest in national defense being stimulated and sustained by the air mail extensions and the development of new and improved airplanes, as well as the training of a great group of aviators for our national need in event of war, will be furthered by the collection of air mail envelopes, showing historic postmarks with dates and designation of air routes.

Collecting air mail stamps and air post covers has now become such a popular and important branch of philatelic activity, that the necessity of an organization consisting of and catering to such collectors becomes essential. To this end, therefore, has been organized The Aero Philatelic Society of America. The officers chosen are — Pres., Joseph A. Steinmetz; Vice-Pres., Harry A. Truby; Sec'y-Treas., George W. Angers; Purchasing, Sales & Exch. Mgr., Joseph T. Daly.

The purpose of the society is: to promote interest among philatelists, particularly those interested in assembling and collecting air mail stamps and covers; to disseminate information in all parts of the world, and to maintain a purchasing and exchange department to aid collectors in obtaining specimens for their collection and disposing of duplicates in an advantageous manner. It is also proposed to publish articles on all matters of interest to its membership.

A further purpose of the Aero Philatelic Society of America is to sustain the Post Office Department in the extension of the air mail routes and the establishment of the night air mails, also to assist in broad publicity to popularize the use of the air mails, and to request the use of "special event" and "air route" postmarks and designations, that the historic significance of America's development of the air mails may be memorialized.

The charter of the society will remain open until January 1, 1924, and anyone wishing to join may do so without the payment of an entrance fee. After that date a fee of $2.00 will be required. Membership in the society will entail an annual fee of $2.00.

All amateur philatelists over 21 years of age are eligible and their co-operation is urgently needed to make this society attain the success which is hoped for it. All who are interested are invited to write at once to George W. Angers, 888 Worthington St., Springfield, Mass., for further details and an application blank.

"SPEED STAMP" PROPOSED.

A "special speed postage stamp" to insure transmission by airplane, express train, motor car or fast steamer is proposed by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. The chamber has addressed a communication to the Chicago Association of Commerce asking that organization to question the business interests of this city on ways and means of improving and taking advantage of the present airplane mail service.

Answers to the questionnaire by local business men indicate that the latter believe the reliability of air mail service has been demonstrated, and that if method of transportation were spee

THE PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT

Edited by Frederick W. Allen, 312 Walnut St., Minneapolis, Minn.

Much action of late has been seen among the precancel fraternity. The International Precancel Club and Precancel Stamp Society have finally united into one organization. The name of the younger club has been retained as it seems to more fitly attach itself than any other. At the Washington convention results of the annual election of the P. S. S. and special election of the I. P. C. showed that there were no collectors opposed to the union. All but nine favored the adopted name. The editor of this department was honored by the vote of the combined membership, being chosen to head the society for the coming year. Mr. D. D. Berolzheimer of New York City, prominent in the business world as well as in precancel circles, is the new vice-president. The duties of the secretary-treasurer will be handled by Mr. W. H. McLin of Old Orchard, Maine. Out of the twelve candidates, all well known collectors, for the three directorships, Dr. Mitchell stood foremost when the ballots were counted. The balance was closely grouped, Messrs. B. Gordon Bushnell and John C. Kringle winning out with small margins of votes over the next highest contestants. The sales and exchange departments experienced no change of hands and upon this the society may congratulate itself, for two more efficient men than C. W. Haynes and J. S. Burns are hard to find. A prominent Minneapolis collector, Mr. E. M. Oleson, has accepted the office of Librarian. Mr. Oleson will make a collection of all bibliography concerning this branch of the hobby. So with a new set of officers and a complete reorganization, this new club will soon make its influence felt in the philatelic world.

The precancel convention met in the Hotel Raleigh at Washington, and was called to order by Dr. H. A. Davis, the chairman. In addition to the regular business the question as to "just what is a precancel" was considered. Messrs. Ernest A. Smith of Topeka, Kansas, and Howard S. Wheeler of Boston submitted articles on this subject. Mr. Wheeler had along his wonderful collection of Aeroplane, Victory and Pilgrim precanceled stamps which swept all who viewed it off their feet. The rare set of Nogales, Ariz., Pilgrims, which Mr. Wheeler paid Mr. H. A. Pippel twenty-five dollars for, was much admired.

Former I. P. C. secretary, Dr. C. W. Hennan, is back in the game and attended the festivities. Dr. Hennan for many years ranked among the biggest men in the precancel world and when he announced his retirement he left a gap which has never been filled. That he will now take active part again is indeed good news. "Doc" will always have a warm place in the heart of "ye ed," as he gave me my first real start along this fascinating sideline and always was ready with the best of advice and consideration. Welcome back, "Doc."

One of the pioneer collectors, and without whom a convention is hardly complete, is J. D. Hubel of Detroit. J. D. took part in the general good time this year. Ashley C. LeDuc attended and has evinced such a liking to precancels that he is starting a collection beginning with the new issue.

From down Texas way Mr. and Mrs. J. Eustace Guest journeyed to the convention. Mr. and Mrs. Guest between them have the most complete collection of Minneapolis (their former home) precancels in existence. They say it is "family property" and in my opinion it is something to be really proud of. Its worth will increase rapidly and in ten or twelve years it will be of substantial value.

Otto Arco, well known physical culture expert, and Fred Green, were other noted philatelists in attendance. It was regretted that General Coolidge found it impossible to be present but his telegram suggesting Detroit for the 1924 convention was read at the meeting.

Victor W. Rotnem, of course, took a leading part in affairs. His enthusiasm was contagious and many philatelists sought from him the details of this branch, for as Mr. A. S. Fennell stated, precancels can no longer be termed a side line; they are a branch of U. S. collecting. Many collectors say they should be a part of every U. S. collection, and I am inclined to agree. Mr. Rotnem was chosen as president of the S. P. A.

THE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION RECORD.

With September 30, we closed a most remarkable year of active work in promoting the subscription end of the Weekly. That we were able to succeed so well was due to the hearty co-operation of scores of dealers and subscribers who introduced the Weekly in quarters where it touched a responsive chord. It is difficult for us to individualize in bestowing credit when such excellent work has been done by so many. Naturally the name of the Fennell Stamp Co., will stand out pre-eminently with 373 subscriptions taken during the twelve months, and receives therefore the first prize. The second prize goes to the C. E. Hussman Co. with 229 subscriptions, and the third to W. W. Betts with 144.

The record of Paul F. Cornish with 127 is closely paralleled by L. B. Dover with 123. Joseph Gallant sent in during the past month 82 new subscriptions and W. W. Betts 38. The spurt made by Mr. Gallant came very near giving him third position. There has never been a year when so many dealers have participated in our subscription campaign as during the past year, and we hope to have it continued in the months to come.

We wish to place emphasis upon the 42 subscriptions sent in by Eugene Klein. Mr. Klein is a busy metropolitan dealer and the time given by his office help in securing new subscriptions to the Weekly is appreciated more than words can tell. It is a good object lesson for other dealers to pattern after. Vahan Mozian has the best New York record, with 35 subscriptions to his credit. Mr. Mozian has been a firm friend of the Weekly through all the years that he has been dealing.

A new Roll of Honor has been begun, and all subscriptions received since October 1 will be credited upon the new year and the initial report will be made early in November. As it is quite true that we are compelled to look to dealers for the larger results we offer prizes to the three competitors who lead in securing new subscriptions during the coming year. The contestant securing highest honor will be given a half-page of advertising and the next two will be given a quarter-page each. The totals from October 1 of last year to Sept. 30, 1923, are as follows:—

POST LETTERS WITHOUT STAMPS.

Last Issues Before New Era in Germany.

Berlin, Sunday, August 26th.

Throughout Berlin yesterday there were long and patient queues at the post-offices.

That was because of the new surcharged stamps being issued for the first time.

Not even at the Reichsbank in the worst days of the mark famine, or at food shops when supplies were scarce, have the queues been bigger. Everybody wanted some of the new stamps, which will soon be rarities, and stamp dealers bought up large quantities for the home and foreign market.

The new surcharged stamps are certainly remarkable. On the old 30 and 40 pfennig stamps, and on those for 3, 8 and 10 marks—all of which have long been lying useless—the surcharge is 8,000 marks. Stamps of 12, 25, 40, 200, 300, and 500 marks have all been given the value of 20,000 marks.

Eleven New Issues.

This is equal to eleven "new issues," and other surcharged issues will be available within the next few days—certainly a windfall for the philatelist.

But these stamps will be interesting for another reason. After the supplies are exhausted—in a few weeks' ti no more stamps of any kind are t issued.

So the postal authorities have cided. As the mark jumps up down—mostly down—it is necessar be forever printing and issuing stamps. No sooner is a new stamp than it is useless.

It is impossible any longer to abreast of this state of affairs, an stamps are to be abolished, and people are to return to the method seventy-five years ago.

Pay Over Counter.

Letters will have to be handed i the post-office and paid for.

This system has been in vogue s time with regard to parcels. The ge public (not to mention stamp de and collectors) will protest very stro and doubts are expressed if the system is possible under modern co tions.

On September 1st new postal r come into force.

It is interesting to note that for first time letters from Germany to E land will cost about the same as let from England to Germany. The rate will be 225,000 marks, which is nearly 2½d.

Even with the new 20,000 mark sta it will be necessary to stick twelve sta on an envelope—eleven of 20,000 ma and one of 5,000.—Daily Chronicle.

WASHINGTON MATCH COMPANY MANUFACTURERS OF ALL KINDS OF MATCHES.

OUR NEW WATERPROOF PARLOR MATCH IS NOT AFFECTED BY DAMPNESS OR CHANGE —OF— CLIMATE.

OFFICE AND FACTORY:
Washington Depot, Litchfield County, Conn.

This concern was located at Washington Depot in the Township of Washington, Connecticut. Washington is in the western part of the state in the southern part of Litchfield County, twenty miles northwest of Waterbury and about a dozen miles east of the New York State line.

The concern is listed in the Connecticut State Gazetteer for 1875, but no other references have come to the writer's attention.

Through the courtesy of Mr. E. B. Sterling, of Trenton, New Jersey, the following information has been obtained, some of the notes being written by Mr. Sterling himself and other data apparently was written by his friend, George O. Seward, on a letterhead of the New Jersey Match Co. of Trenton, early in the 1890's.

The Washington Match Co. was organized in January, 1873, under a charter granted by the State Legislature, with a capital of $20,000, of which $12,000 was paid in. The officers were Simeon H. Mitchell, President; Senator Seth S. Logan, Secretary; Walter Logan, of 54 Wall Street, New York, Treasurer, and Legrand M. Anway, Superintendent. The business was continued until April, 1876, but as the plant was located too far inland the distance to the market and the freight carriage were too expensive for it to be conducted profitably, and it was closed down by mutual consent.

The machinery was imported direct from Germany. About thirty people were employed and all of them were imported from New Haven, Connecticut, and Trenton, New Jersey. Half of the capital came from New Jersey and the other half was local capital supplied in Washington. The plant was established in this out-of-the-way place with the hope of building up a factory site. The originators of the scheme were all interested in property in the immediate vicinity but the railroad station was over a mile from the factory. The Shepaug Valley R. R. had recently been completed to Litchfield, the county seat of Litchfield County, and the match factory was one of the efforts made to build up the places on the line of the railroad.

The labor problem was unsurmountable. The plant was too far from the labor markets and the labor, which was induced to go to Washington, would not stay. The owners of the business were all men of capital but as there was no sign of success they disbanded and sold the business, and the building was converted into a carriage- and blacksmith establishment.

The chemical problem also proved formidable, but the superintendent, L. M. Anway, sent for Mr. George O. Seward, who had spent a lifetime in the match business. Mr. Seward gave up his position with Hendrickson & Leigh in Trenton in March, 1875, and took his two daughters and nine other girls to Washington, to assist in the business, inducements having been held out by the Company for them to do so. Mr. Seward and the girls were under contract for one year and remained in Washington until April 1, 1876. The plant was shut down in February of that year.

The new edition of our Handbook on the Stamps of the United States issued during the Twentieth Century is on hand.

In previous ads we have included a small folder of U. S. illustrations but the printers of this pamphlet have run out of stock so in the future the book must sell without the pamphlet.

(OVER.)

Both the sulphur and the parlor matches were packed 100 in the box. All were made from long sticks — five inches—cut in two. The price list of the company quoted prices on both styles of matches in boxes containing 300, 400 and 500, as well as 80 parlors and 100 sulphur matches, but there is no evidence of any other packages than those containing 80 and 100 being made. The boxes were made by the Cleveland Match Box Company and were of the tuck lid pattern.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, May 31, 1875.
First issued, June, 1875.
Last issued, July, 1875.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
176,000 issued on silk paper.

The entire issue comprises less than 840 full sheets and represented a tax of barely $1,700.00. The single plate was engraved by the firm of Jos. R. Carpenter. The stamp is one of the very last of the Philadelphia productions and is a remarkably fine piece of work, fully equal to the high standard of art so justly associated with the output of that firm.

The design forms an upright rectangle of the usual 1c size and is an adaptation of the 90c U. S. postage stamp of August, 1860, to which it bears much resemblance. The likeness of Washington in the center of the stamp is from the Trumbull portrait and is practically identical with the portrait on the first 90c blue. The chief difference is that on the match stamp the background around the head has been removed. It seems likely that the match stamp was made by taking a transfer from the old 90c die and changing the background. Close study reveals very slight other differences but it can hardly be doubted that both portraits were made from the same original engraving.

Jos. R. Carpenter continued the business of Butler & Carpenter who were the successors of Toppan, Carpenter & Co., who engraved and printed the U. S. postage stamps of the 1851-1860 series. The portrait on the Washington Match stamp also resembles the head of Washington on the 90c postage stamp of the 1861-67 issue, but the latter stamp was engraved by the National Bank Note Company of New York and while the portrait greatly resembles the portrait on the preceding 90c and on the match stamp, there are many slight differences to be noted by careful students.

A panel at the top of the match stamp bears two slightly arched lines of letters reading "Washington—Match Co.," and in two straight lines at the bottom of the stamp is found "One Cent—U. S. Inter. Rev." All the lettering is in colorless capitals. The slightly arched top is supported at the sides by delicate scroll work and at the middle of each side these scrolls are opened to form narrow panels enclosing the numeral 1 at each side. Tiny floral ornaments are placed in the corners at the tops and bottoms of these small numeral labels. The design is simple, well balanced, and effective.

In spite of the small quantity issued and its short life the stamp is not rare. Not very many years ago a supply was found in Hudson, New York, and there are several unused blocks in existence, some of which have original gum. The stamp is not known to have been used in multiple and whatever pairs, strips and blocks may be in existence come either from supplies obtained from the firm while the stamp was in use or else from remainders.

Probably most of the available supply which was in existence before the Hudson find came from Mr. Sterling. He made some geneological investigations for Mr. Seward and was paid for his work in stamps.

The stamp gradually increased in price from 10c in the 1880's to 50c in 1898; it was quoted at $2.00 from 1900 to 1920. The 1922 quotation of $1.50 places it more nearly in line with stamps of similar relative scarcity.

A NEAT ADVERTISING SCHEME.

(Clipping, Joseph Meyer.)

Florenz Ziegfeld telegraphed last week to Postmaster-General Harry S. New offering to finance an entire issue of 1,000,000,000 two-cent stamps, if these would carry the photograph of his wife, Miss Billie Burke.

"The offer is made in perfectly good faith," said Ziegfeld yesterday. "The idea came to me from the recent announcement of the Italian Government that it would sell advertising privileges on Government postage stamps to raise special revenue. The Italians have estimated that by this means the Treasury should profit to the extent of between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 annually and I do not see that it would be beneath the dignity of the United States Government to follow the example of Rome. I offer to give the Government 60 per cent. of all gross receipts on the same terms as requested by the Italian Government."

HALLE PROVISIONALS.

The postmaster at Halle, Germany, has solved the stamp shortage by printing some labels locally to be used on the office mail indicating postage paid. Two values are before us used on a cover submitted by Richard Lamprecht, Valparaiso, Ind. They are a 30,000 marks printed on green paper and a 75,000 marks on red. The descriptive matter on each reads "Gebuhr bezahit taxe percue" and a fancy border encloses the printed matter.

Mr. Lamprecht adds "A registered letter just at hand bore 24 stamps of 250,000 marks, surcharged on 500 type A35. An ordinary letter also had three stamps of the same denomination."

SAN FRANCISCO STAMP SOCIETY.

By Donald Piercy.

The regular annual meeting and elec- n of officers of this Society was held the new clubroom, Fraternity Hall, onday, September 17. A large and en-usiastic gathering of 40 members and ests were present and a very enjoyable ening was spent.

The regular annual reports from the veral officers were submitted and owed a very flourishing condition in ch department. Twenty-two new mem-rs were admitted during the year, bring-g the total membership list up to date 91 members. Seven new members re elected and four new applications re received.

A resolution offered by Librarian Tur-l was passed and ordered submitted to e Postmaster-General for his approv- It asked that the Post Office Depart-nt provide special cancellations for plane stamps when regularly used for -mail, in order that they might "be early distinguishable from similar ecimens used for parcel post or other vice."

The following officers were elected for e ensuing year: President, A. H. Wil-lm; Vice-President, Dr. F. Fischer; cretary-Treas., Donald Piercy; Li-arian, Chas. B. Turrill; Auction and les Manager, J. W. Mally; Executive mmittee, E. B. McPherson, S. Hertz-nn, C. B. Turrill.

After the meeting light refreshments re served and an auction sale of mps was held.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

But "even Homer nods" and for once this eminent authority made incorrect deductions even from the wealth of material at his command as we attempted to show in an article contributed to the Postage Stamp for June, 1914. Readers will perhaps be able to follow our arguments more clearly if we reproduce them in extenso as originally written:—

"Some time before Mr. Hausburg's article appeared I had become a Hayti 'enthusiast,' had myself made considerable headway in the work of plating, and was willing to accept the theories propounded by this able philatelist quite wholeheartedly. Lack of material, or rather material in the shape of pairs and blocks, made the plating of the perforated stamps a wearisome process until, at the time of the New York Exhibition, Mr. Hausburg kindly loaned me his collection so that I could plate my singles and also verify my plating of the imperfs. Having identified all my stamps I started to make a list of the minor points distinguishing every variety with a view to publishing an article that would enable other collectors to reconstruct the plates from single stamps. With the close study this work necessitated and consequent comparison of the corresponding stamps on the plate of the different denominations, several interesting points soon began to obtrude themselves—I am referring now to the imperforate stamps. First of all I noticed that the 1c and 20c seemed to have many things in common and appeared to belong to a class by themselves, while the 2c, 3c, 5c and 7c appeared to fall into another class.

Then I noticed that, occasionally, stamps of the same denomination, which undoubtedly came from the same position on the plate, showed small differences. For instance, No. 40 on the plate of the 1c sometimes has one and sometims two colored dots below and to the left of the left lower corner. Some of these varieties could be accounted for by 'wear' of the plate, others made it seem not improbable that the 'printer's' plate consisted of more than one reproduction of the block of fifty electrotypes after the value plugs had been inserted. If the latter supposition was likely to be correct (and we were told the printer's sheets consisted of at least four panes of fifty, according to Mr. Hausburg, or six panes, according to M. Moens) it was only reasonable to presume that certain stamps in each pane would develop peculiarities of their own, and thus make the plating of these stamps rather an appalling undertaking.

In fact, the probability of there being more than one pane for the 1c seemed almost certain after an examination of seven panes of fifty I had managed to borrow for comparison. These fell into two groups quickly distinguishable from certain marks which appeared between certain stamps of the two first vertical rows of one group and which were absent from the others. These marks are as follows:—between Nos. 21 and 22 is an almost vertical colored line running for a distance of about 4mm; between the base of Nos. 31 and 32 is a similar line but shorter and running diagonally from left to right; and between Nos. 41 and 42 is another short diagonal line which just touches the frame line of No. 41. These marks appear to be portions of what had once been a continuous line. Three panes showed these tiny lines and four did not, which seemed fairly satisfactory evidence in favor of two reproductions of the block of fifty—still presuming that the theory of a separate plate for each denomination was correct. But a little later on examining Mr. Hausburg's superb reconstructed plate of the 20c in which there is a block of five from the left lower corner of the sheet, I was surprised to find similar marks showing between Nos. 41 and 42. Careful examination revealed the marks between Nos. 21, 22, 31 and 32 and, though I made diligent search, I failed to discover any copies of these particular 20c stamps which did not show the marks.

By no means of stamp plate production or reproduction known to me could I account for this peculiarity. If there were separate plates for each denomination all cast from one common source, why did the 1c and 20c only show these marks? Had the marks been confined to one value they could easily be explained, for all sorts of small imperfections can arise in reproducing plates by the stereotype process. It was, of course, probable that one of the casts made from the original had these particular marks and that this cast, in turn, was used as the matrix in making another. This seemed the only theory that would account for two plates showing the same marks. But if this were the case how is it possible to reconcile the two states of the 1c. If these represented two separate casts then the positions of the numerals should differ. Close examination failed to reveal the slightest discrepancy of position. Then again, if it were not for the 20c, one might argue that after the 1c plate had been completed by the insertion of the value plugs another plate was cast from it which developed the small marks referred to. But the existence of the 20c in the same state upsets this theory just as surely as the two states of the 1c upsets the theory of one cast with the marks having been used as the matrix for another cast. I must confess I was completely puzzled by this problem for, as I have already stated, I had whole-heartedly adopted the Hausburg theory of separate plates for every value.

Finally, as I could arrive at no solution of the problem on the ground of separate plates, I went over the whole of the stamps again, even more carefully comparing peculiarities common to all values or found only in connection with certain denominations, and after a time I found—I must admit to my utter astonishment—that neither Mr. Hausburg nor M. Moens were strictly correct, though the theory advanced by the latter was more nearly correct. Instead of there being separate plates for each value, as supposed by Mr. Hausburg, or one plate for all values, as stated by M. Moens, there were two plates, one of which was used in the production of the 2c, 3c, 5c and 7c denominations and the other in the production of the 1c and 20c. I am confident that any unbiassed student of these stamps who has the opportunity of studying uncut or reconstructed plates will agree with me in this. Moreover, though it does seem highly improbable, as Mr. Hausburg says, in view of our generally conceived notions of the way stamps are produced, the entire supply of each denomination was printed at once (of course such printing might have extended over several days, which would satisfactorily account for the existence of shades) the value plugs being removed and replaced by those of the next value to be printed.

My idea is that the plate, as originally constructed, was first used for printing the 2c. My reason for thinking so is that the lines in the value shield, above and below the numerals, are always more prominent in the 2c than in any of the others. These lines evidently represent the upper and lower edges of the holes punched in the plate, and the constant changing of the value plugs wore them down or removed them wholly or in part. In some cases, too, as is evident by the greater pressure of the numerals the value plugs were a shade higher than the rest of the plate, so that the lines in the shield would, naturally, print indistinctly or fail to print at all. Next, I believe, the 3c was printed, then the 5c, and finallv the 7c. This can be proved by the wear of the plate. On the 3c the lines above and below the numerals on the value shields are not so prominent as on the 2c and, broadly speaking, the shading on the face, etc., is not so fine and clear. The 5c is but little inferior to the 3c, but flaws are beginning to develop which prove a later state of the plate.

For instance, on No. 14 an uncolored flaw has started to show below the 'P' of the right hand 'POSTE,' and this attained considerable prominence by the time the 7c was printed. That the 7c represents the last state of the plate obvious from the numerous flaws, so of which show slightly on the 5c not at all on the 3c and 2c. It is possible, as Mr. Hausburg states, to early and late states of all values. Tr there are states of each value and c tain stamps on the plate are always better condition than others, so that only comparisons admissible are th between stamps from the same positi on the plate. Take No. 24 for instan It is impossible to find a copy of the in the early state of the 2c, or even the comparatively early state of the The earliest state of the 7c can comp only with the latest state of the the earliest state of the 5c only with last state of the 3c; and the earliest st of the 3c only with the last state of 2c.

Now with regard to the second pl used for the 1c and 20c. My idea that this plate was constructed after 2c had been printed and before the va plugs were inserted for the 3c. reason for so thinking is that the (which was printed first, as I shall sh later) is never found in the early st which characterises the 2c, but is d tinctly a later state. The lines above a below the numerals in the value shiel show plainly on comparatively few stamps. Evidently they were re- ved in the process of punching the essary holes for the value plugs. But ere the lines, or traces of them, do w, they prove that this additional e was certainly constructed from the e used for the 2c, 3c, 5c and 7c. That re was an additional plate is proved only by the general absence of lines he value shields, but also by a promi- t flaw on No. 6. This consists of uncolored patch on the background to l left of the 'P' of the left hand STE.' This flaw only occurs on the and 20c. That the 1c was printed first proved by the fact that this flaw is ch more prominent on the 20c and re are other flaws as well on this er value, all due to wear.

he colored lines between the two t vertical rows, as detailed earlier in se notes, evidently developed from e cause or other during the process printing the 1c. They show a late state that value and the only state found connection with the 20c."

lthough the printing plate consisted but fifty stamps it seems that the ets consisted of several impressions m a plate. M. Moens says that there e six panes of fifty on a sheet ar- ged in three rows of two panes each. ore the stamps were printed the sheets paper received a lithographic impres- in color this giving a tinted surface. the margins of the sheets correspond- with the extreme edge of the colored ression are a number of more or e circular marks and as panes are wn with four varieties of markings in margins it seems more probable that e were four impressions to a sheet er than six. Possibly most of these ets were cut up into panes of fifty re being dispatched to Hayti. This not always done, however, for tête-bêche varieties of the 1c and 2c are wn caused by two impressions from plate being printed upside down in etion to each other.

he paper for the 1c, 3c and 20c values tinted buff, for the 2c it was pale , for the 5c greenish, and for the 7c . The tinting varies considerably in depth of tone making quite a difference in shade at times. We have seen the 2c printed on the wrong side of the paper and M. Moens records the 1c in the same state.

M. Moens tells us that the following quantities were despatched to Port-au-Prince in the first supply:—

1c,	300,000
2c,	150,000
3c,	150,000
5c,	150,000
7c,	250,000
20c,	25,000

Either the figures for the 5c are incorrect, or further supplies of the 2c and 3c were despatched at a later date, for the latter values are far commoner than the 5c.

The plating of the stamps of this issue is a comparatively simple matter and those collectors desirous of building up plates from single copies will find minute descriptions of all the fifty stamps in an article we contributed to the Philatelic Gazette in 1914.

THE NEXT FERRARI SALE.

By Philip H. Ward, Jr.

The catalogue has been distributed for the next Ferrari sale which will take place in Paris, on November 7, 8, 9, at which time a very unusual lot of early issues will be offered.

We note that there are quite a few choice pieces in the way of early Austria, including two very choice blocks of the 6 and 9 kreuzer showing the St. Andrew cross. In addition there are some splits on the cover as well as a 12K essay. Of the latter issues I note several double prints, one or two with figures omitted as well as some split varieties. There are quite a few choice pieces among the early newspaper stamps. Belgium is represented by two wonderful mint blocks of the 10 and 20c in addition to pairs. There will be sold a beautiful copy of Baden 9K error on cover of which but three copies are known. This is Scott's No. 5 which was printed on the green of the 6K instead of lilac rose. There are several very fine Brunswick, including magnificent mint copies of the first issue. There are also some unusual varieties in the way of Dominion Republic not only of the first issue, but the second issue as well. There are some choice errors in Grenada and some very fine copies of the first issue of Hungary.

Oldenberg is represented by a magnificent lot, including several superb copies of the ⅓g of 1858. There is a magnificent pair used of the ¼g 1860 and a very fine horizontal strip of three of the ⅓g of the same issue. Instead of separating the Orange Free States, a substantial collection of 1195 varieties is offered as one lot.

It has been many a day since such a fine lot of early Peru have been offered, which includes used copies of the Steamship issue and several copies of the later errors. A magnificent and unusual assortment of Transvaal will be offered, including quite a few of the later rarities. Spain is represented by a goodly array, such as the 1851 2r blue error, most of the inverted centers, one of which is in a magnificent used block of six. There are several unused copies, including a pair of the perforated variety, with one stamp showing the error.

Practically all of the first three issues are represented by single copies or better.

For the Victoria specialist there is a very fine lot of "half lengths," including several blocks and I note off-hand from the illustrations one of the errors without value. Nothing in the way of United States is offered in this next sale.

STAMP NEWS IN BRIEF.

Algeria.—It is now definitely announced that this country is to have stamps of its own. We hope a tight rein will be kept on its stamp-issuing propensities from the start, as the fever for new issues is apt to rage very fiercely when once it has attacked a fresh victim.

Brazil.—Mr. Wilfrid Cole sends us the following translation of an official notice recently published: "On the 12th of September next, a new stamp of the value of 200 reis will be placed in circulation, in commemoration of the Centenary of the Revolution in Bahia on 2nd July, 1823. The stamp will be rectangular, 29mm by 19mm, carmine, the design showing the entry of the relieving army into Bahia."

Brazil does not miss many chances of issuing commemorative stamps. Fortunately they are stamps, not sets.

China.—Mr. D. Schofield sends us a cutting from an unnamed newspaper which illustrates what is described as probably the rarest stamp in the world. It is stated to have been affixed to a letter which one of a party of English people captured by Chinese bandits wrote to a friend in Shanghai and consists of the words "PAO TZU KU BANDIT POST TEN CTS." in a type-set border. Perhaps this "rarity" was created in the hope that by its sale something might be raised towards the indemnity which the bandits doubtless extracted from their victims! The absurdity of the suggestion that a bandit messenger would require to have his mails franked in this way is self-evident.

Egypt.—Capt. Charles Royds, R.N. shows us a copy of the 10 mils., blue, on distinctly buff paper. Mr. A. S. Mackenzie Low, to whom the stamp has been shown, states that he has seen the Harrison printing of the 5 mils. on similar paper.

Greece.—Mr. F. B. Welch kindly sends us a list of the numbers overprinted of the Revolutionary series listed last month, which space, unfortunately, does not allow of our publishing in full. The rarer varieties appear to be Nos. 558 (7650), 573 (4300), 590 (3950) and 601 (7000), the quantities overprinted of the other values ranging from 10,000 up to half a million.

Judging from notes in the Continental Press, some of the other varieties which were overprinted and ordered to be destroyed, are now beginning to leak out. According to reliable information from Athens correspondents only the varieties listed last month were legitimately issued and offers of socalled "rarities" outside this list, should be disregarded.

Holland.—Mr. Gordon Wimberley states that the new Jubilee stamps will be issued late in August or early in September, so that our readers will be hearing of them shortly after these lines appear in print.

Japan.—Mr. W. D. Cameron kindly sends us a cutting from the Japan Advertiser which reads as follows: "The Department of Communication wants a new design for postage stamps. The present design was adopted in 1913, but the officials think it is now grown too antiquated. Mr. M. Hirata, who has been designated to select a new type, says that the use of symbols, the head of the Emperor or King, such as are used in other countries, is not adaptable or proper in Japan. He wants something which characterizes 'the ideals of new Japan' which will not grow out of date."

Memel.—(Lithuanian Occupation.)—Continental journals are listing all sorts of fantastic new provisionals and commemoratives from this philatelic pest-house, but the only ones that now come postally used on correspondence from Memel itself, so far as we are able to judge from small lots purchased, are the provisionals listed in the June M.C., with the addition of certain other values which we have not yet been able to secure. It is pretty certain that the stamps so far listed by us will have to be accepted, as they are included in the latest German catalogues, but journals from that country are looking askance on a commemorative set and certain provisionals, none of which we have yet listed, and there is a suggestion that some of these are entirely bogus, quite apart from the merely "speculative" efforts of the Lithuanian authorities themselves. The "doubtfuls" are, of course, only obtainable in complete sets, at prices well above face value, while those of which we have seen used specimens are offered at reasonable prices on the Continent and are priced singly.

Paraguay.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie states that the quantities printed of the two stamps listed last month were: 1 peso, 150,000; 5 pesos, 50,000. The same journal adds that a recent decree authorizes a new issue which will comprise the following values and designs:—

5c green (Act of Independence).
10c olive (General Diaz).
20c red (José Bergès).
50c blue (Lieut. Herreros).
1p green (General Diaz).
1p blue (Map of Paraguay).
1p 25c, blue-green (View of Asuncion).
1p 50c, violet (Act of Independence).
2p carmine (Map of Paraguay).
4p blue (Map of Paraguay).
5p orange (José Bergès).
10p lilac (Cascade of Guaira).
20p grey (Map of Paraguay).

Persia.—The Philatelic Journal of India gives the following offical explanation of the "Controle 1922" overprint, quoted from the organ of the Universal Postal Union. During 1922 it came to the notice of the Persian Postal Administration that complete unused sets of the current issue (with the portrait of Sultan Ahmad Shah) were being offered for sale in various European philatelic journals at an absurd price much below face value. It is assumed that the stamps thus sold had been stolen during the troubles and invasions of the preceding years, or were counterfeit. In order to avoid speculations based on the ridiculous price, the Administration decided to overprint the whole of their stock. Only the overprinted stamps are accepted in payment of postage with effect from the 1st January, 1923.

ge-green in the catalogue. The bluish ade is the rarer, he says. The same nder learns that a certain quantity of e Pasteur stamps has been sent from ance to be surcharged for use in Syria fore the permanent issues are put in e. The latter are being held up, ostensly to allow stocks of the surcharged ench stamps to be used up, but we ould think the people interested financlly in the numerous Syrian surcharges the last year or two have had some y in the matter, as the arrival of a manent issue will mean the end of ir little games. At the same time we uld not class the issues of Syria with ose of Memel. For many of the anges in surcharge there have been ry good reasons but now and again e hears of a limited issue of a certain riety which is inspired by philatelic nsiderations. The arrival of the defitive series will lead to increased intest being taken in the surcharged mps; so it would be as well to secure e ordinary varieties of these fairly on.

The new 10 centiemes surcharge listed s month is required for printed matter culated locally, and other similar items which this low rate of postage applies. . Omar Farroukh informs us that the orange with this surcharge is already solete, and copies are fetching 1 franc h locally.

From the same source we learn that e new sets for Syria and the Lebanon ll consist of 19 values each (great ades of Seebeck!) and will now show ws of places of interest in the respecte districts. They are not expected to on sale before the beginning of next ar.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circul.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By Warner Bates.
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

This week we have a query from Dr. William C. Evans, 313 East Freemason Street, Norfolk, Va., regarding a rare cancellation on some covers that he recently found. Perhaps some reader may be able to throw some light on the subject:—

"Two or three years ago while going over a mixed lot of three cents green, U. S. stamps, one was found cancelled by the figures 30 in a circle. A little later in another lot the figures 20 in a heavier circle were found. Both of these cancellations were in blue. The significance of these figures have been a puzzle until recently, when a possible solution has been reached.

A few days ago in a small lot of covers there were two postmarked University of Va. One was dated on the 14th of some month, the name of which could not be deciphered. The stamp was cancelled with the figures 14 in a circle in blue. The other cover has a clear postmark University of Va., February 21. The stamp is cancelled 21 in a circle in blue.

From these two covers it seems fair to presume that in that office the Postmaster had about thirty-one cancelling stamps each bearing a numeral from 1 to 31, and that the stamps passing through his office were cancelled with the numeral corresponding with the date in the postmark. No two of the circles of these four cancellations are alike, and the two off cover may have come from some other town.

Can anyone throw any more light on this subject?

These numerals are not the old ones used in the days before stamps. These old numerals are sometimes found on stamps as late as the 1884 or 1887 issues, but they can almost always be recognized. They are of course 3, 5, 10. None of the other older ones have come to my notice later than 1857. In this issue there have been seen 22, 24, 96. They were probably used to indicate the rate of postage and are very different from the blue ones.

Did any other town use these first mentioned numerals?

Any information will be gladly received."

One subject of considerable interest to the writer is that of cracked and scratched plates of the low values of the 1870 to 1882 issues. It would be appreciated if collectors who have made study of these minor varieties would send in some information regarding their specimens or general information on the subject to be printed in this department. While the writer, personally, is most interested in the issues named above, others who read this department are interested in cracked and scratched plates of all low values from 1851 to 1890 and therefore information regarding any of them will be appreciated.

In sending information of this kind, it is better if the sender will send his specimens by registered mail, enclosing registration fee for return, as in this way I can check the written description and add any comment that may seem pertinent to the subject.

For instance, who can give a clear description of the distinguishing differences between a cracked and scratched plate? This ought to start something. Is anyone in possession of singles or strips or blocks showing plate number with cracked or scratched plate attached?

There probably are collectors who have several such items at hand. If so, they can give readers of this department some most helpful information as to the plates in which these minor varieties occur.

AN 1851 PRECANCEL.

The collecting of "Precancels" has grown so astonishingly in the last few years that even the staid "nineteenth century only" collector and specialists in early U. S. have taken notice of this new collecting branch (we fear to say "side-line"), and this note is based on data furnished us by Mr. William C. Michaels, whose philatelic interest is largely confined to the 1851 issue of United States. There has been some discussion of late among precancelists on what is properly included under the term "precancel" and we understand that there is a movement afoot to exclude everything but the type-set printed cancellations. This would of course bar the early precancels made by drawing a pen line across a sheet of stamps or by use of the regular postal handstamp on the stamp sheet before separation in the same manner as is done on the familiar foreign "cancelled to order" varieties, that is by stamping four stamps at a time, the canceler falling on the four adjoining covers. What was for some time recognized as the "first" United States "precancel" was so brought about by the postmaster at Wheeling, W. Va., who applied the stock canceler, a gridiron, in red, to whole sheets of the 5c and 10c, 1847, issue. This was done only to insure cancellation, as after the stamps had been cut apart and affixed to letters the usual blue cancellation was again applied. Mr. Michaels sends us a pair of United States one-cent 1851's on which appears the word "paid" PRINTED on each stamp and remarks that this is the first printed pre-cancellation known on a U. S. stamp, differing from the Wheeling variety also, in that the cancellation was final and probably used in the same manner as the modern type. Mr. Michaels goes on to say that he has owned this pair of stamps some thirty-nine years and recalls its source vividly. He and a schoolboy friend, both eager collectors, were permitted to ransack an "attic" collection of old letters and an event of that kind is a never-to-be-forgotten memory to a collector. It was among these papers that this pair was found, but the cancellation naturally did not interest him at that time, nevertheless he feels quite certain that the pair came off a circular, such as a price list, and as the two cent rate carried printed matter of that kind in the '51 period, a distance of 500 miles and over, it probably came from some of the larger Eastern cities to Fort Dodge, where it was found. While this pair is the only one known to U. S. specialists a number of single copies have been found authenticating the cancellation. Perhaps some reader of this page has an exmaple on the original? Any information on this will be of the greatest interest.—Precancel Gazette.

Our "Quality-Bilt" Packets Are Synonomous With "Satisfaction"

Try One and Be Convinced!

4,000 Varieties Mounted Only $22.50

Does your collection contain less than eight thousand varieties? Do you ever "exchange" stamps? Have you not had the ambition to become a dealer? Opportunity knocks! Here is a collection of four thousand, all different postage stamps—no telegraphs, revenues, cut squares or other objectionable material — regularly priced at $30.00 — for only $22.50, just about one-half cent per stamp! For real value this collection has no equal. It contains large numbers of British, French and Portuguese colonies, lots of attractive South and Central America, as well as a liberal sprinkling of picture sets, new issues and novelties from Europe. The stamps are mounted by countries in four large books. Catalogue value is guaranteed at least $120.00.

Our Net Price Only $22.50 Two Collections for $40.00

5,000 Varieties Mounted Special at $35.50

Very attractively mounted by countries in five books. British, French and Portuguese Colonies, as well as good South and Central America, will be found in abundance, while many of the new issues and central Europe are in complete sets. Among other choice items are a complete set of Spain Cervantes (Nos. 464-71), good stamps from Zanibar, British Honduras, East Africa, Bosnia, North Borneo, Quelimane, Labuan, etc., etc. This collection is as different from the ordinary run of "packets" as day from night. Absolutely free of telegraphs, revenues, cut-squares, duplicates, damaged stamps and minor varieties. Just the thing for the dealer, exchanger or medium collector. Catalogue value guaranteed to exceed $175.00.

Low Net Price Now $35.50 Two Collections for $60.00

EDITORIAL.

We have drawn fire from the clouds and been scorched for philately's sake. One of the mighty has been graciously pleased to write directly to us sealing his letters "in confidence" on the subject of philately, in consequence of criticisms that we have made of writers in the newspapers and elsewhere on stamp collecting that know so little about it that it is irritating to see them pose as authorities on the subject. Our correspondent enjoys a great reputation for his journalistic work but even so, he is not infallible and as far as philately is concerned, he is childishly vague. The letter that has been referred to takes us to task for so waspishly attacking the good intentions of writers who have touched upon stamps, when the occasion could under no circumstances warrant extreme measures. It was asked how we would like to have our motives when we knew that they were good, impugned and ridiculed. Too, the hint was given that we were not so invulnerable as to make it impossible to pierce our armor. We have refrained from quoting the exact words, as certainly after the confidential ban that has been imposed upon us, we shall be careful not to mention the name of the writer or even use his own precious words. So far for us; and now for the case that is made against philately.

The man whom we have mentioned in the foregoing paragraph says that the adherents of philately are making too much noise and intruding it upon the notice of folks without justification. That its claims for consideration are far-fetched and open to contradiction, and are of a character to incur resentment on the part of the thinking person are demerits that are charged against the pursuit. It is finally said that it is reducing stamp collecting to absurdity to tout it in extravagant language and that it would be well if collecting partizans restrained their passions when no provocation had been given. It is something to say that the shafts are not aimed against collecting itself but collectors themselves. We are willing to admit some champions of philately are not paragons of tact and that a few are bum sports in reality but we cannot see why philately has to suffer for their sins. The trouble about critics of the stripe that have written is that by insinuation the impression that is given the reader is that philately itself is unduly proclaimed and is undeserving the attention that is asked for it. As a result, the foundations of a pursuit in which many people have a good bit of money invested is shaken and the man whose home is attacked will have something to say. If philately is important for no other reason, it is because of the amount of money invested in it and we cannot stand aside and let the ignorant, even if they have no bad intentions, throw stones at our structure that cost a pretty penny to build.

In W. Somerset Maugham's "On a Chinese Screen," No. 30, "The Consul," there is a reference to collecting. Mr. Pete, British consul in China, was eccentric, absent-minded and a bachelor who collected brasses, carved woods, etc., as "his more legitimate enterprises," but it was declared that he also collected stamps, birds' eggs and postmarks. He was particularly proud of his postmark collection that had no equal in the empire. While we cannot say that stamp collecting is very high on this "scale of intelligence" yet we know that Mr. Pete cared much more for his stamps than Mr. Maugham suspected.

The Associated Press sent our newspapers a dispatch from Rome telling of the decision of the Italian government to permit the backs of postage stamps to be used for advertising purposes on terms highly favorable to the government. Enterprise of this kind should be credited to New Zealand as the first of countries to utilize the backs of postage stamps as a source of advertising revenue. It was in 1893 or 1894 that progressive New Zealand experimented with this form of publicity and while our collection of these three or four stamps of New Zealand shows a wide range of important advertisers, the plan was abandoned in a comparatively short time.

It is apparent that there is a disposition on the part of collectors to turn to the consideration of U. S. envelopes now that the catalogue furnishes illustrations that show the die differences of these interesting stamps. We have felt the charm carried by this collecting division and regretted that the difficulty in placing the envelopes militated against their popularity in a collecting sense. Yet we are informed that notwithstanding these conditions and the puzzle imposed by the question of entire or cut square that cannot be solved by a good many collectors, the demand for cut squares while not strong was always with us; and it is known, of course, that the entire enthusiasts are always to the fore.

"The Foot of the Leisure Class," by Josephine Daskam Bacon in the Red Book Magazine for October shows a few philatelic veins. Mr. Hughson, the butler in the story, at one time, is represented as "immersed in his stamp collection" and in another place he is influenced in favor of a fellow worker by the gift of "a rare Guatemalan stamp." We always like the butler whether we see him in the pages of a dear old English novel or on the stage. Sometimes he is a philosopher when he speaks; he has a gentility of manner and he possesses an admirable poise, qualities sometimes lacking in his addle-pated masters. Now we know that our favor is worthily bestowed; and the butler does not spend his time frivolously or in bootless pursuits,—he collects stamps.

One of the delvers on our staff writes that he has found in the Memphis Appeal of August 26, 1861, the advertisement of "a private post, under the superintendence of Mr. Antonio Costa." It was announced that Mr. Costa would take charge of letters for Europe and "places out of the United States. The mails will leave every two weeks on the 10th and 25th of each month, and the postage will be to Mexico, 50c, to Cuba, 75c and to Europe, one dollar."

An old-time collector says that when he was a boy before the civil war, one of the stock jokes that circulated through the press was that which told of a farmer "out in Iowa" who asked a postmaster if he could not sell the stamps at a reduction if he bought three or four. The postmaster said that he could not because the government now punched holes around the stamps for the convenience of the people and that the cost of stamps had gone up in consequence. The explanation satisfied the bargainer. While there may have been many jokes having a stamp suggestion that went the rounds in the early days, we think that the palm in this connection must be given to that classic, written by the cautious sender of the letter, under the stamp: "Paid if the damned thing sticks."

ONLY A PARSON.

Among the devotees of our hobby who are familiar figures in the London auction room, there is a good sprinkling of reverend philatelists. As one who had the pleasure of meeting Sir Heaton Rhodes, of New Zealand, on some of his philatelic wanderings in London a year or two ago, the following yarn of him, told by my friend Mr. R. F. Joyce in the Australian Stamp Journal, is worth reading.

Sir Heaton and Mr. Joyce used to compare notes, and consulted together on limits to bid on lots at the auctions.

"One day," says Mr. Joyce, "Sir Heaton went to the sale by himself, and on his return I asked him what luck he had."

"I bought them all," was the reply, "but not at your prices though."

"What do you mean?" I asked. "Those prices were the limit you had to go to."

"Yes, but the other chap kept going higher, and I could not let him have them, could I? He was only a parson."

Higher Class 20th
My next Auction Sale, No. 251, to be held on Nov. 14th, will contain a higher class and better grade of 20th Century stamps than is usually found in Auction Sales. There will also be a choice assortment of early United States, British Colonies and many other desirable countries of 19th Century stamps. The catalog of this sale has been mailed to you if you are on my mailing list.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 WEST 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

—Arthur Barger of the Northern Stamp Co., Framingham, Mass., recently underwent a serious operation. He will attend to correspondence as soon as he is physically able.

—At the meeting of the Boston Philatelic Society of October 16th, the exhibition of Mr. Sawyer's Falkland Islands Entires was scheduled as the feature. An auction was billed for the evening, as well.

—A reader says: "Try the following quotation from a writer on your readers: 'The only time he had varied the order was to request 'un vin blanc gommée' but on that occasion the waiter served him with a postage stamp for 25c." Not having a copy of the Bar-Keepers Friend at hand we do not feel competent to discuss any question so involved.

—From L. T. Brodstone, publisher of the Philatelic West we have word: "I am sorry to see that the column you used in the issue of Sept. 17th, 'From All Quarters' and credited to the Postage Stamp was published originally in the West, with the exception of the two last paragraphs. Mr. Sparks who contributed the matter in question is up in arms at this deception." While we are absolved from any blame in this connection, we dislike to be a factor unwittingly in any case that withholds proper journalistic credit.

—We wish to thank Mr. Charles J. Rose for a copy of the circular describing the operations of the Colombian Air Mail Service that was issued by Mr. Gonzalo Mejia of New York as representative of the Sociedad Colombo-Alemana de Transportes Aereos.

—Paul Montgomery Mulford informs us that a stamp club has been formed among the Boy Scouts of Troop 21, Buffalo, N. Y.

—It was recently reported in the WEEKLY that the 3c Canada had appeared imperforate. Thos. S. Futcher submits a communication from the Canadian P. O. Department claiming that no such stamp has ever been regularly passed through the Department

—We have received from J. C. Matthews several bargain lists that interested subscribers will do well to ask for. Address Mr. Matthews at Olympia, Washington.

—"We have been trying to find out when the rest of the Newfoundland new issue were due. Now we have a letter from a man in St. John's who has taken the matter up with the Deputy Minister of Posts. The latter said, that he would cable the printers in England to send a supply of the 20c and 24c by the next boat if possible. He also stated that the airmail stamps would not be issued for some time."—Jos. V. WELLS.

—Mr. Bertrand L. Drew has acquired the collection of Mr. Allen of Greenfield, Mass., and says that he will dispose of it at auction on November 23, 1923.

—A reader asks if it would not be interesting to hear who are the oldest stamp collectors among the readers of the WEEKLY. We are of the opinion that a symposium on the subject would be readable, indeed, and we should be glad to publish records that might be submitted by those whose affiliation with collecting extends over say, fifty years. The year 1860 is about the first in which collectors made any stir in this country. The lamented Dr. Geo. F. Heath of Monroe, Michigan, father of Donald R. Heath, was one of the fathers of philately in this country, as he began to collect in 1863.

—From N. B. Paulson of Chicago, who has been roaming about in Europe opening up stamp veins we have advices that he is now resting in Switzerland after his arduous work.

—One of the curiosities of philatelic literature is found in the old ads of Voute's Stamp Collectors' Figaro, in which "death" is invoked on counterfeiters and reprinters.

—One of our subscribers says that he recently purchased a stamp that an advertiser in a foreign paper described as a "fine piece." He now complains that he got more than he bargained for as when he soaked the stamp it came apart in two pieces.

—We have received a clipping from the Philadelphia Public Ledger in which Rear Admiral W. F. Fullam, U. S. N. Retired, declares it a superlative blunder to cripple or abandon the air-mail service. He regards it as vital both for commerce and as war training.—Clipping from L. P. MacCubbin.

—An organization meeting of Wilmington, Del., local branch of "Weko" was held Thursday, Oct. 4, at the home of N. S. Hufnell, 402 Geddes St. Many members were present, and questions of club welfare discussed. A stamp auction followed the business meeting. Any collector interested is requested to communicate with Mr. Hufnell.

—Erwin Strasser sends us a Brisbane clipping, in which the well-known writer declared that Mussolini will have a difficult task selling advertising space on postage stamps. For worthlessness he ranks it with street car advertising.

—We are always glad to see stamp articles, even though the matter is copyrighted. Subscribers will understand that we must be careful how we reprint matter of this kind.

—From Mr. Grant L. Lamorris we have a letter from which we quote: "It is gossip that several dealers who invested heavily in the issues of Neurope when German exchange was relatively high have written off what in financial circles would be called 'hugh losses.' Collectors who may have overpaid for some of their sets of the stamps of central Europe may take some consolation from this circumstance." Our contention is that there are two sides to the picture and that increases in the prices of a set here and there do something to equalize the losses on others.

—A correspondent says that he saw stamps advertised at a discount of 63% and he wonders if the dealer in question believes in the potency of odd numbers.

—In answer to an exchange ad that one of our readers placed in a paper abroad, he received a letter that if he would send the writer a set of Columbians, an "even exchange" would be sent in pictorial postal cards of the Holy Land.

—The post-office department is advising the use of standard sizes of U. S. stamped envelopes rather than small or undersized envelopes. Odd sizes of envelopes slow down the handling of mail.

—A reader says: "I was much interested in the notice of the death of J. A. Pierce of Chicago, whom I knew well and I wish to say that you sketched him very well. When I visited Chicago in 'the golden days' I always called on Mr. Pierce and I spent many hours with him. He had his own ideas about stamps and on occasions he almost refused to sell his stamps, perhaps on the theory that anything that a customer wanted was worth keeping. He often told about the wonderful lot of department stamps that he bought one day, including even Executives in used condition. You will remember, perhaps, that he had an office in the old McVicker's Theatre Building at one time. By-the-way, what has become of Mr. S. B. Bradt of Chicago, once very prominent and secretary of the A. P. S.?" At last accounts, Mr. Bradt was running an old book store on the south side in Chicago.

—One of the "best sellers" in philately is about due. It's the catalogue.

HARDING MEMORIAL STAMPS

On September 12th this stamp was issued perforated 10, a product of the rotary press. The information was not announced until the 10th, so it is doubtful if many were used on the first day. For those interested I offer a very fine copy clearly cancelled at Washington on day of issue at $1.00.

Other Harding items that may interest you:

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

If you have any 10c blacks you've reason to be proud of, please drop me a line. [tf

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—In response to the demands from every part of the United States, Postmaster-General New under date of October 4th, authorized the issuance of one billion additional Harding Memorial stamps. The new order will make a total authorization of 1,600,000,000 stamps of this type since the first order was placed in August.

In the September "Monthly Supplement" to the Postal Guide, the Postal Service pays a tribute to our late President in the following remarks: "Before this issue is in the hands of its readers the Postal Service will have erected a splendid memorial to Warren G. Harding. This memorial of the Postal Service has a significance that could never be expressed in marble or in bronze which must forever remain rooted to one spot to be visited by scattered bands of pilgrims. The Postal Service's memorial, like its own broad duty, will encompass the Nation. It will be a mourning seal, replacing for three months the George Washington 2-cent stamp. It will undoubtedly in that time go into every home in the United States, a tribute to a great President and a true American.

The mourning stamp for the late President has for its central design an etching taken from a photograph, a favorite of Mr. Harding's. A simple black border outlines the seal and in the upper left-hand corner appears the date 1865, the year of the late President's birth, and in the upper right corner the year 1923. The seal, the design of which has the expressed approval of President Calvin Coolidge and Postmaster-General New, was first presented to the public on September 1, one month after the death of Mr. Harding in San Francisco.

The first sheet of stamps was selected personally by Postmaster-General New at the Bureau of Engraving & Printing to be presented by him to Mrs. Harding. A special messenger from the Post Office Department took the first consignment of the memorial stamps to Marion, Ohio, where they were placed on sale September 1. All requisitions for 2-cent stamps from post-offices for three months, ending December 8th, will be filled with the Harding memorial stamp.

Only one other similar memorial stamp has been issued. This was a stamp in tribute to President Lincoln. It was also printed in black but the denomination was 15 cents. Even the agreements of the International Postal Union were waived to permit the memorial to Harding. It is one of the rules of the Union, in which the United States holds membership, that the ounce-rate postage shall be printed in red. Postmaster-General New cabled the headquarters at Berne advising them of the temporary change in color."

Stamp collectors will particularly note in the above remarks that the stamps will be distributed up to December 8th and that during that time all requisitions from all postmasters for 2-cent stamps will be filled with this variety. A full page illustration of the Harding etching shown on the stamp is used in this "Supplement."

So far only forty-three Harding plates have been made and some of these have not been used. To date I have found plate blocks from thirty-three. Now that more stamps have been ordered it is possible more plates may be made.

In the same "Supplement" there is an interesting article on the experimental transcontinental air mail flights illustrated by a map, pictures of the pilots, in addition to one of C. F. Egge, Superintendent of the Division of Air Mail.

There is a detailed illustrated story of the Chicago Post Office followed by a semi-humorous story headed "Where is Franklin?" dealing with the numerous town names. We are told to give thought before naming a town and we are asked to make it short and snappy. Be original, don't use Washington or Franklin or the like, for there are numerous such cities throughout the country. They mention that Kodak sold a camera, Uneeda a biscuit, Victrola a phonograph. Indians, the post-office states, are dead, but their atrocities live on. A man will write to his mother-in-law in Elco, Nevada, before he will write to his best friend in Natchitoches, La.

On page 14 we find an illustration of the 1½d Great Britain stamp, wherein our attention is called to the postmark. Uncle Sam breaks his own law by not having the usual white line running through the illustration. Numerous other remarks and instructions to the Post Office add to the interest of this "Supplement" to the stamp collector.

Mr. Benjamin Cadbury advises that he has found on mail coming from A. W. Shaw of Chicago, the new design 1c Franklin with Schermack perforations. The 2c was reported some time back.

Mr. H. A. Thatcher sends an interesting piece consisting of a damaged portion of a sheet of 2c stamps which has been backed up by the Bureau by means of a piece of dark paper, which paper has been gummed and perforated.

Mr. W. G. Windhurst states that the Government framed exhibit which is passing from city to city will shortly be exhibited in Marion and that local collectors will at that time offer prizes for the best arranged and classified sheets of stamps to be shown by boy collectors, and it is hoped that in this way increased interest will be aroused in stamps.

One of the oddest communications that has come to my post-office box for some months is a first class registered communication from a Milwaukee correspondent wherein the letter came through with all of the registration postmarks but without postage stamps. The communication is not an official one, but the person mailing it overlooked the necessary postage and both the postal clerk in Milwaukee as well as Philadelphia did not notice that the stamps were missing. It would have been an odd thing had the error been noted in Philadelphia for there is no arrangement under the postal laws whereby postage due can be collected on registered letter, as the l call for prepayment of postage in s a case.

CHINA.—With regard to recent marks on the "Manchuria" provision Mr. A. W. Tyrrell, the well known C non Street stamp dealer, assures us t it may be taken very definitely fr him that these did come through post—not par complaisance, but on ev mail parcel to an ordinary firm. It Mr. Tyrrell who first spotted the ov print and we recall that he showed a postally used copy at the time translated the superscription for benefit. Our friend remarks that he only seen it on the $2 value, howe Altogether he had about fifty cop the result of several purchases of "o lots" from a certain city firm. The need be no doubt whatever, he says, t the $2 value was actually used in a b fide manner. Mr. Tyrrell had them original pieces of the packing, and no hesitation in putting down the $2 v "Manchuria" overprint as a perfe "straight" variety.—Stamp Collecting.

DENMARK.—Mr. A. E. Pade rep the 5c official stamp in brown.

GERMANY.—Mr. H. F. Metz adv that he has had come to hand the 10 type A29 with the overprint "15 T send" and the 1000mk small num type with the surcharge "75 Tausend." In addition Mr. R. Roberts sends the 30mk type of A26 with the surcha "8 Tausend" in black, the 12mk 40mk reaper type overprinted "20" "15" respectively. Also the 200mk sm number design with "30 Tausend" blue.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts ports the 2½d orange yellow, 3d ult marine on script watermarked paper.

PERSIA.—One of our good friends the Persian Gulf district, Mr. C. Houghton, writes (18.8.23) :—

"Some time ago I wrote to you inform you of the issue of a 3 chahi 12 chahi, Persian provisional. I can n let you know that there has been issue similar 6 chahi on 24 chahi. Very f seem to have been issued, as the short of 6 chahi stamps lasted only a few d

TRIBUTE TO MY FRIEND J. H. SMYTH.

By James Mursell.

One of the most eagerly anticipated delights of my visit this year to Australia was that of meeting my dear friend, J. H. Smyth; and though it was a matter for regret on arriving at Fremantle to hear that he had not been well, the message was so hopeful that there seemed no reason for concern—nor did the tardiness of his recovery surprise me, for he had evidently overworked himself, and at his age recuperative processes are often slow. The latest news was that he expected to get down to business shortly, and then, on Sunday morning, July 15th, I found in my vestry a telegram to say that he was gone. How I got through the service at Collins Street that morning I do not know—I was stunned. One of the two men I had counted on seeing more than all the rest of Australia put together had gone, and in another month I should have seen him! My friend had gone, and in another month I should have clasped his hand and looked into his face and heard his welcome words. And now! In spite of her nearly a million inhabitants, Sydney will be an empty place to me when I arrive.

I think of my friend less as a philatelist than as a friend, one of the men whom to know is to love. He was great in his own way as a stamp dealer. Without having kissed the blarney stone, he had a way with him that easily became irresistible; and when, as was always the case, the wares he commended were worthy of his commendation, one had to be made of philatelic adamant to go away with as much cash and no more stamps in his pocket than he came. But if he touched greatness as a business man he achieved it as a human being. He was so human, so clubbable, so quick to catch the other fellow's point of view and to appreciate and understand it, even though he might not agree with it or respond to it. He was one of the men who created sunshine wherever he went. The brightest company was brightened when he joined it; he saw light when everyone else could only see clouds, and lugubrious people after spending half an hour with him were sent away more than half certain that the world was not half a bad place after all. He described himself in one of his letters as "an incorrigible optimist," which is exactly what he was.

Only such a man, at half-way through his fifties, dare have started life all over again, and in less than twelve years could have created a business that would survive comparison with any other under the Southern Cross. It was a great feat. Only a brave man with a big heart and an unconquerable spirit would have made the venture, and only one of rare ability, dogged perseverance and unflagging purpose could have carried it through to a triumphant issue. There was iron under the sunny exterior of the friend who has gone from me. Somewhere about him, too, there was a little magazine where high explosives were hidden away. But the explosions took place only when something that aroused his moral indignation called for them. He was incapable of malice; independent, generous, open of heart and hand; a true comrade, a staunch friend, a true and loyal man; the world of philately is the poorer for his passing, immeasurably so; and we shall not soon see the like of him again.

I had not seen him since March, 1915. But rarely, if ever, has a mail left Sydney for England or England for Sydney that did not carry letters from me to him and from him to me. What delightful letters they were! So natural, so chatty, so full of interest in men and stamps, touching everything like a glancing sunbeam with a light that left it and you the brighter for his comment. I don't know how he treated my letters to him, but I know how I treated his to me. Like the boy who eats the pastry round the jam and leaves the centre of the tartlet for a last delight, I kept his letters to the last, the sweetest morsel and the most poignant pleasure of my mail; and there was never a disappointment. How I shall miss them—and him! The world of stamps will never be quite the same to me now J. H. Smyth has gone. And I am only one of many more.—Australian Stamp Journal.

PRECANCEL STAMP MOUNTING

By R. R. Rudolph.

I have noticed in the Gazette and other stamp papers suggestions from various collectors of how they mount their collections. I am going to offer my way now, hoping that it might be of interest to the philatelic world.

For several years I have been trying to select a way that would be inexpensive, yet to make my collection have a neat appearance, and just recently I have solved the problem, if such it may be called.

I will first take up the bindings; these measure 8x10½ inches, are a plain solid color and made of stiff cardboard. The front and back are separate pieces, so most any number of leaves can be fastened in between. I find that from 150 to 200 leaves makes a very neat looking album.

The leaves that I use are not quadrilled, yet they have small squares over the entire surface which makes it easy to place the stamps at regular intervals. There are about 36 squares to the square inch, and they are made by a concern in St. Louis and can be secured at most any drug store. I use Denison's paper fasteners to hold the leaves secure.

Now for the way I mount my collection. On each sheet I place only one city, one type and one style of reading, using just one position for each denomination on the sheet. To make it clear you will find a diagram of the way I arrange both old and new issues.

The cost is very reasonable: the binders, both front and back, come to about 15 cents together, and the leaves, which come in packages of about 30 sheets, sell for one dime. I mount my stamps with hinges, for I consider this the best way. One objection I have to a stock book is that a stamp could fall out of these very easily and lost with the possibility of never being found again.—Precancel Gazette.

THE CHRONICLES OF FERRARY.

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

Money talks, even if, for most of us, it has an impediment in its speech. A few readers have suggested it is unwise to devote so much attention to the high-priced stamps, as in our Ferrary Chronicles, and fear that to read of such vast philatelic treasures will deter the young collector. We think they under-estimate the imagination and the pluck of youth. No youngster worth his salt is deterred by examples of greatness; youth indeed responds readily to their stimulus. Remember how we loved the tales of the buccaneers, loading their ships with doubloons and pieces of eight. Did they ever deter youth from the even tenour of life and interests? So far as stamp collecting goes, the young enthusiast knows full well he gets more fun out of his collecting than does the Crœsus who pays someone else to collect for him. So read these Chronicles, if you please, as a romance, or as the story of an historic collection; but pray do not let them drive you into the Cave of Despair—rather skip these pages and frivol with the "New Issues."

Fifth Sale.—The fifth eruption of the Ferrary volcano has thrown up a great variety of philatelic gems, covering a wider area of the stamp world than any of the previous sales. During three days, November 15, 16 and 17, 608 lots were offered, the great majority of them being composite lots rather than single rarities. A total was realised of 1,356,170 francs, or with tax 1,583,499 francs, representing approximately £25,016 at the prevailing rate of exchange (63 fr.=£1). This brings the aggregate for the five sales to 9,834,064 francs (with tax), or about £198,638.

I was not present at the sale, but was fortunate to have the opportunity of making a full inspection of the lots while passing through Paris on my way back from the Geneva International Stamp Exhibition in September. The interest in this sale is of the broadest, and probably touches a wider circle of specialist collectors than any of the previous sales, including stamps of more than fifty countries and colonies. As on previous occasions, there was a spice of excited speculation as to a few outstanding items, and some notable high prices were recorded.

British South Africa.—About £130 was realised for three lots of British South Africa (66 stamps), the most interesting item being an error of the One Penny on 4s. with the overprint reading One denny (illustrated), with the certificate of the expert committee of the Royal Society; in this same lot was a pair of the B. S. A. overprints on Cape stamps without the word "COMPANY" (S. G. 65), a variety rather highly rated by Gibbons at £75. On the other hand the error illustrated is probably of great rarity, occurring once in a sheet of sixty, and only eighteen such sheets being surcharged. The lot, comprising with these two items 26 stamps in all, fetched £74.

The Bahamas were all mixed lots, but totalled £250 for about 200 stamps. A collection of 292 Barbacoas must have been a remarkable lot, for Gibbons only list 74—it fetched, along with some other "B's," £92. In this lot were ten stamps of Barbier Island—oh where! oh where! can that be?

Barbados.—Nearly two score lots of Barbados brought about £1400, the chief items being £323 for the rare 1s blue error of colour (S. G. 37), of which only nine copies are said to be known. Unused pairs of the 1d on half 5s rose fetched about £148 per pair.

Among the Barbados was a prolific array of the 1892 halfpenny provisional, including several of the scarce doubles with surcharge in red and black, and a double surcharge of the black in a block of 60.

A pretty complete lot of Bechuanaland and Protectorate, comprising over 500 stamps, brought £130.

Belgium was represented by a fine lot, but there were some dubious "unused" blocks. The finest piece here was a mint block of sixteen of the 40c red—a stamp which as the catalogue states "est à peu près introuvable, même en bloc de 4, l'on ne recontre guère que les unités." It brought £350.

The drab stamps of Bergedorf were in the sale in entire sheets, and following them were two of the most notable items in the sale, the primitive first stamps of Bermuda.

The Perot Stamps.—These primitive Bermudas were long in being discovered by the philatelic world. Made between 1848 and 1855 by the postmaster of Hamilton, the chief town, no philatelic knowledge of them was obtained until half a century had elapsed. Yet their use and history are well authenticated. The postmaster was Mr. W. B. Perot, who held that office from 1848 to 1862. After retiring from the Post Office he became a member of the Bermuda Parliament, and my colleague, Mr. H. R. Holmes, has given me a note that he died on October 13, 1871, in his 81st year.

An Act of 1846 had provided for the prepayment of all inland postage at the time of posting "at and after the rate of 1d of lawful money of these islands for each and every letter not exceeding 1 oz. in weight," and the postmasters and assistant postmasters were to retain and appropriate to their own use all inland postage receivable by them "as a further remuneration for the performance of the duties by this Act enjoined."

Mr. Perot was in receipt of a salary of £70 a year, and he appears to have recognised, as the American postmasters had done a few years before, that the issue of stamps for prepayment was not only a convenience to the public, but one which could increase his emoluments as postmaster. He made the stamps with his postmarking "chop," from which he removed the plugs denoting the day and month, leaving a die reading "Hamilton—Bermuda" in circular form with the year in the centre. This was hand-stamped in black (and at a later period in red) on sheets of paper, it is supposed in sheets of a dozen—one shilling's worth. On each impression was added in manuscript the value "One penny" and the signature W. B. Perot in black.

An old Bermudan, Mr. J. B. Heyl, who had a store adjoining the Hamilton Post Office, stated in a letter written in 1898: "I suggested to him (Perot) the stamping on a sheet of paper a number of stamps with his signature and the 'One penny,' which I cut off in squares and pasted on the letters, which were brought in and placed in a letter-box on the door of the office. The reason for this was that the money was not always correct in the box, and he (Perot) could not find who put the notes in the box without payment, which he had to make good."

It is remarkable that the stamps should have remained unknown to collectors for so long, especially as Bermuda had been most thoroughly searched for old stamps by the late Major E. B. Evans, R. A., when stationed in the colony in 1885. But the very crudity of the stamps probably led any holders to regard them as mere postmarks. The first copy to turn up was sent to the old established firm of Alfred Smith & Son, then of Essex Street, Strand, and here is their reference to it in the July, 1897, issue of their Monthly Circular:

"A correspondent has sent us a letter written from Hamilton in April, 1855, addressed to a gentleman at St. George, and on the sheet is pasted a stamp in carmine with HAMILTON, BERMUDA, in a circle, with 1854 in the centre. Above this date is written 'One penny,' and below is the signature, W. B. Perot. We believe there is no doubt Mr. Perot was postmaster at Hamilton in 1854, and his signature can be identified by many. The stamp is cut into a sort of rough octagonal shape, and seems attached to the sheet by gum, but it appears to us very very doubtful if it was originally on the identical letter on which there is no postmark, and the stamp is half hidden under the closing fold at the back. Perhaps some of our readers who have more knowledge of Bermuda than we have may have met with the stamp, which at first sight appears to have been a device on the part of the postmaster at Hamilton to introduce stamps of one penny for interinsular postage."

After ineffectual attempts to find out something about the stamp, the firm rejected it and sent it back to its owner. This was a late impression of the stamp, in red, dated 1854. The next copy sent to this country was a black one dated 1849, which came into the possession of the late Mr. B. W. Warhurst in 1898. Mr. Warhurst pursued his investigations into the origin of the stamp with considerable zeal, and extracted an interesting letter from the Colonial Postmaster, Mr. Allan W. Smith, which I quote:

"Colonial Post Office, Bermuda,
18th June, 1898.

Sir,

I have to acknowledge the receipt of yours, etc., etc., in which you make inquiries respecting a hand-stamp used in Bermuda, 1849-55.

I have been unable to obtain any information from official sources respecting the stamp in question, but from a reliable private source I learn that it was the practice of the Postmaster at that time to issue stamps such as you describe to persons who desired to post local notes, that is, for places within the Colony. The impressions of the stamp and the signature, etc., were made on a sheet of paper, and cut off as required by the purchaser and affixed to the note to be posted . . . in cases where it was most convenient to the sender. When a note was sent to the Post Office with a penny to pay the postage, the note was simply stamped with the date stamp.

However this may be, it appears to be clear that the stamps in question were used sometimes, as postage stamps are now used, for prepaying postage within the Colony . . .

Your obedient servant,
(Signed) ALLAN W. SMITH,
Colonial Postmaster."

The character of the stamps was further established by the researches of Mr. E. D. Bacon, who found among other points that up to some time in the early part of 1849 Mr. Perot was using black ink for his postmark "chop," and subsequently carmine ink, which explains the colour difference.

The first of the Ferrary specimens was lack one dated 1849 not on the letter. is not the "Warhurst" copy, as will noted on comparison with the ac-mpanying photograph of the first black e discovered. The Ferrary black specimen was secured for Mr. Arthur Hind £280, and it was on view at the Lon- Exhibition.

The red one in the Ferrary sale was entire cover, and is in fact the one ich was described in the Monthly cular in July, 1897. An interesting nt about it is that although the stamp dated 1854 the actual letter is dated hin 1855, which appears to substanti- the case for the stamps being sold at each and held by purchasers for use their convenience. This was secured M. Burrus for £580.

t would be of value as well as of in-est to trace and record all the speci-ns, well under a dozen, of these two mps that have turned up.

he Costly Nigers.—A little over £700 realised for ninety-three Niger ast stamps, and some of the mixed here were probably cheap, containing ne of the rare varieties of the half-ny and other surcharges. The two standing items here were the 20s on surcharges, which were born rare. surcharge was struck in violet (five ies), in vermilion (two), and in black o). At the fifth sale mint copies of the et and the black were sold, realising 7 and £232 respectively. In comparison violet one which fetched the higher ire is the less rare of the two, but e is not much in it; of the five copies charged in violet one is inverted, ing a possible 4 of the normal violet nps.

here are more Nigers to come, and nderstand that there is the third vari- of the 20sh on 1s, namely, the ver-on surcharge.

ere again with surcharged stamps of rarity one cannot too strongly em-sise the value of preserving a careful ord of where such rarities are, and ough whose hands they pass.

little-known Dominican.—Little is wn of one of the rarest of British onial surcharges, the "One Penny" on ence green of Dominica, which Gib-s prices at £250 unused, £175 used. does not appear to have been chroni- with the "Half Penny" on 6d and e Penny" on 1s in 1886, and it was bably printed in error; Mr. Poole to the extent of one sheet of 60. re is an unused one in the Tapling ection; Ferrary's used copy, illus-red, fetched £94.

randees of Spain.—Spain, covering 136—217, was a very remarkable An interesting block of eight of 10 reales blue-green of 1850, used, ws the four lower stamps without the tablets at the bottom showing.

oens described such a variety, but Mr. Griebert's careful plating has wn—and this curious block further onstrates—it must have been just a k of printing. It fetched £223.

he 2 Reales Blue.—The sensation of sale was the settling once and for of the long disputed status of the ales blue error of 1851. A copy of se tenant with the normal 6 reales sold for £2400 to Mr. Griebert, our ing authority on Spanish stamps, was acting for Mr. Arthur Hind. Griebert, in his magnum opus, "The mps of Spain, 1850-1854," published 1919, certainly threw ice-cold water it, if he did not condemn it en-y—and scarcely disguised his con-on that it only existed as a forgery. t of the alleged copies, as Mr. bert has shown, are undoubtedly eries, but having seen the Ferrary illustrated, Mr. Griebert found it the real thing at last, and as it must nique in this condition, acquired it hat must be considered a moderate e for as rare an item in European p issues as anyone can have.

here is no doubt whatever," writes Griebert in the American Philatelist, t the error recently sold in Paris ne of the Ferrary sales is genuine in y respect." But our friend is still tical of any other genuine specimen ting, and says, "Even now, some writers mention the specimen which is said to have been discovered by Messrs. Alfred Smith & Co., of Bath, in 1868, and which was proclaimed by Mr. Westoby as a genuine error."

The Westoby Copy.—I am afraid I have mentioned the Westoby find more than once. It is the very genesis of the story of the 2 reales blue, genuine or otherwise. It was found in 1867 by Mr. Westoby amongst a lot of other stamps he received from Spain, and was not sent him as something exceptional or high-priced—and Westoby believed in it. Ferrary (who acquired the specimen) is said to have considered it a proof, following the opinion of Moens and Legrand—a proof which has passed through the post.

The Westoby stamp is still in existence, and will in due course come up for sale in Paris. If, as I am assured by M. Gilbert is the case, the cliché marks on this single used specimen correspond with those of the 2 reales blue in the pair already sold, Mr. Westoby's judgment—and he was an accurate observer and discriminating philatelist—will be confirmed.

The 1899 Find.—Several stories have appeared in the accounts of the sale dealing with the finding of the pair, 2r+6r blue se tenant. They are approximately correct, but, as often happens in these cases, memory is liable to go astray on details. I had the yarn from Senor Manuel Galvez some months ago, and his father has published a similar statement in the Revista de la Sociedad de Filatelistas (Jan., 1923).

I give Sr. Galvez story (A), and one (B) quoted by M. Griebert (American Philatelist, XXXVI, p. 276) for comparison:—

(A)

I believe in the existence of the error in the 2 reales blue, 1851, because when it was discovered in Madrid I might have purchased it for a very low price, and such as it is, all the facts relating to this error are engraved in my memory as if it had happened yesterday and not more than twenty years ago. The details are as follows:

Early one morning Don Francisco Mifsut entered my shop in the Calle de la Cruz with a block of 18 stamps of 6 reales, 1851, and offered it to my assistant who was at the shop, Rafael Gorrity, and he asked 20 pesetas a stamp, but his block was heavily obliterated and no deal resulted.

Thereupon Senor Mifsut betook himself to the shop of Don Antonio Vives, who was established opposite my house in the Calle de la Sevilla, No. 2, and as we had not purchased it he sold it to Senor Vives. Senor Vives gave the block to an employee so that it might be cut up into single examples, as was the custom at that time, and the employee thereupon proceeded to divide it into single copies. But when she reached the last vertical pair, she saw that one of the stamps bore the word "dos" instead of "seis." She pointed this out to Senor Vives. Shortly after it was shown to a collector who entered the shop, and he, filled with interest, came and told me, and asked me to go and see this curiosity. He took me to the shop of Senor Vives and showed me the stamp.

Senor Vives offered this stamp in various places, and finally it was purchased by Senor Ferrary, who already had a single copy, which he had always considered as being a proof. This, however, made it plain to him that he was dealing with an error. All the other histories which have been related are incorrect.

(B)

The late Senor D. Francisco Mifsut discovered in archives of the province of Toledo a used block of 19 stamps of 6 reales, 1851. After offering it at least to one dealer, he showed it to the late Senor D. Antonio Vives, a well-known dealer of Madrid, who promptly acquired it by paying 40 pesetas per stamp for it, without, however, noticing that one of the stamps in the block was a 2 reales instead of 6 reales. Very few collectors went in for large blocks 25 years ago, and the good Vives always cut into the block whenever he wanted a 6 reales stamp. One day a girl assistant pointed out to him that one of the stamps read "DOS REALES" in the remaining block, and this is how the discovery of this famous rarity was made It was soon after offered to M. P. Mahe, the custodian of the collection of M. La Renotiere von Ferrary, who promptly purchased it for the price of, I believe, 25,000 francs or 5,000 dollars approximately.

The chief points of difference are the size of the block originally found by Mifsut, and the price at which he sold to Vives. The price stated in the one account as paid by Ferrary, 25,000 francs, strikes one as high for the period; Sr. Galvez does not mention one, but his son told me he thought it was 10,000 francs, or about £400.

The Size of the Block.—What was the size of the block? Mifsut may have found it as a block of 19 or 18, but it appears to have reached Madrid as a block of 14 only, and Sr. Galvezs recollections mav be revised by the contemporary advertisement of Senor Vives, which, after much searching, I found in L'Echo de la Timbrologie of Oct. 15, 1899:

"RARETE—RARETE—RARETE
Pour l'Exposition de Paris 1900.
La Maison A. Vives, de Madrid, rue de Seville, 2, vient d'acquérir la RARETE la plus importante connue en timbres d'Espagne. Il s'agit d'une pièce précieuse—2 Reales bleu, 1851, se tenant à un 6 Reales, bleu, 1851. Ces deux exemplaires ont été coupés d'un bloc de 14 timbres, de 6 Reales, bleu, 1851. Cette Maison admet des propositions."

Other Spanish Items.—A fine lightly cancelled copy of the 1 Reale pale blue of 1854, catalogued by Gibbons at £60, fetched £94. Among the 1867 numerals there was a hitherto unrecorded tête-bêche of the 5M. de Escudo, which, together with a tête-bêche pair of the 10M. de Escudo (Gibbons £160) fetched only £111. Senor Galvez, in his new Catalogue (London Exhibition edition) lists both, but does not put a price to the 5M; his quotations for tête-bêche pairs of the 10M. are 12,500 pesetas unused, 6000 pesetas used.

The tiny quarter-stamps of Spain are familiar to most collectors, and some of the issues occur as genuine original tête-bêches, though others, I am afraid, are modern creations.

A British Honduras Bargain.—Another very rare British Colonial surcharge, British Honduras 1889 surcharged TWO in black on 50c on 1s grey, went cheaply at £49. The old 1s grey stamp was converted into a 50 cents stamp when the currency was changed, and later a surplus stock of these was converted into 2 cents stamps by the surcharge TWO CENTS in words. The printer set up a group of these overprints and surcharged two rows at a time. He started with black ink, which did not show up well on the grey stamp, so he changed over to a red ink. In doing so he again surcharged a portion of his first sheet in red. The normal stamp has the TWO CENTS in red, but the few that were left black, or those with the words in black and in red are great rarities, as witness Gibbons' quotations:

34.	TWO in black on 50c,	£200	£180
35.	TWO in red on 50c,	25s.	25s.
36.	TWO in black and red,	£120	—

It has been estimated that there were only about ten of each, the black, and the black and red; twelve, i.e., two horizontal rows of six, may be the more likely figure. One lucky collector secured nearly all of them; he believed all except three, purchasing them over the counter at Belize Post Office. One of the three he did not get was the one that went to Ferrary. The other two were preserved in the official specimen book of the Post Office, which was subsequently destroyed by fire. The lucky collector, a Mr. A———, got seventeen in all. For the subsequent history of these I quote Mr. R. Roberts (Scott's Monthly Journal, July, 1922):

"Two he told me he lost or mislaid. He sold four of each to Mr. W. H. Peckitt before he (Mr. Peckitt) retired. Two or three he gave to relatives, but afterwards got them back, and he sold me some three years ago, four red and black, and three black. Mr. A—— was an old collector, and had the luck to go into the post-office the morning that these stamps were put on sale. And his investment, made with the keen acumen of a collector, and a Scotsman to wit, was one of the luckiest from that time to the present day."

Two years later the same collector got another scoop, purchasing nearly, if not quite all, of the 6 cents on 10 cents inverted surcharge of 1891, but that is another story.

India: Inverted Heads.—Starting off with twenty-eight examples of the curious Scindes, there were upwards of sixty lots of India and the Convention States, some fine 4 annas, e.g., a vertical pair, plate I, unused £122; a superb part sheet of twelve, plate III, £592. The inverted centres, of which there were two, went cheaply, the first and better of the two copies fetching £62, and the second, sold along with a no-centre curio, brought only £37 10s. The inv

THE MAZZINI COMMEMORATIVES.

(Clipping from Geppert Marsh.)

Fifty years ago, at Pisa, Guiseppe Mazzini, revolutionary patriot, passed away, and now the country for which he sacrificed so much and of which he saw little, does honor to the some-time exile by the issue of a special series of stamps to mark the fiftieth year of his passing.

The designs are by Vittorio Grassi, and on the 25-cent lake-brown is an allegorical combination showing the Sword of Right in the Flame of Love. The 80-cent blue depicts the Mazzini monument near Genoa. Carducci's epitaph reads, "L'uomo che tutto sacrifico, che amo tanto, e molti campati, e non odio mai," which may be rendered as, "The man who sacrificed all, who loved much, pitied much, and never hated." These designs have been engraved by Signor Blasi and the stamps surface-printed on white wove paper, watermarked with a crown and perforated 14.

Mazzini sought to obtain a free and united Italy, and it is a free and united country which is doing honor to Garibaldi's old companion; but it is not the Italy for which he strove, for a kingdom was the last thing in the world which the Peoples' International League and its founder wished to see. When the Italian monarchy was established Mazzini wrote: "I too have striven to realize unity under a monarchical flag. The Italian people," he added, "are led astray by a delusion, a delusion which has induced them to substitute material for moral unity and their own reorganization. Not so I. I bow my head sorrowfully to the sovereignty of the national will, but monarchy will never number me among its servants or followers." It was this antipathy to the new régime which prevented him from taking the oath of allegiance when elected a delegate for Messina in 1865.

There appears to be an ever-increasing interest displayed by collectors to learn more about the different stamps they collect, and particulars at one time considered as mere sidetracks of philately have now become of paramount interest. Here we may class stamp, designs and all, about the people and places depicted there. The issue with which we are dealing now offers quite a fund of interest, both to the collector and to the general reader. Here we have a prominent revolutionist and exile with a special series of commemorative stamps in his honor. The son of a professor at the University at Genoa, Mazzini was born on June 22, 1805, and while yet very young entered the university. He studied law, and was graduated at the age of 21. It was during his student days that he developed a taste for writing, and his first essay was entitled "Dante's Love of Country."

Soon we find him taking a more active interest in politics and an enthusiastic member of the Carbonari, a connection which was to bring him into his first conflict with the powers that be. Intrusted with a secret mission to Tuscany, he was betrayed, while initiating a new member, to the Piedmontese authorities, and was imprisoned in the fortress of Savona on the Western Riviera for six months. The evidence against him was not convincing and he was released, but he was now a marked man and his liberty so restricted that he left the country to commence what was to become a long life of exile. France was his first refuge, and we hear of him at Marseilles. He appears to have tired of the Carbonari and their theatrical and puerile ways. As the founder and leader of "Young Italy" his name was familiar enough in European politics of those days, and in course of time this organization became "Young Europe," to include in its ranks Poles, Germans, Italians, Savoyards and French. With his fellow exiles at Lyons he started "La Giovini Italia."

There were three futile attempts between the years 1831 and 1834. In 1837 he came to London and found a home with the brothers Ruffini, in the neighborhood of the Euston Road. Here he became a prolific writer, but his inability to write in English prevented it being better known, and his work lost by translation. He had other activities, too, and did much good work in looking after poor Italian boys who were lured to London by rascally padrones in those days. David Masson gives a vivid pen picture of Mazzini at this period and speaks of him as the man "with the marvelous face, the forehead full and high under the dark hair, the whole expression impassioned and sad, and the eyes large, black and preternaturally burning." The Peoples' International League, which included many English sympathizers, was started in 1847, and in the following year he was again on Italian soil and a participator in the unsuccessful revolution in Rome, after which he fled to Switzerland, returning to London after about two years.

After 1870 his days of conspiracy were ended, and the following year he left England for the last time. In Italy, and more especially in his native Genoa, his name is still one to conjure with, and they still tell how in the old days, when the exile visited the town of his birth, workmen with arms concealed watched the road from the station to his lodgings to prevent possible arrest. This is a brief sketch of the man who has been added to the portrait gallery of postage stamps, and Mazzini will take his place with his colleague Garibaldi, in whose honor a stamp was issued in 1910.—Christian Science Monthly.

"No one can object to being praised for work well done, so I take the liberty of telling you that I believe your paper is doing more to advance the cause of philately and to bring collectors to know and understand stamps and their fellow-collectors than any one thing in this country today. As these are the pleasures of our hobby I consider yours a work decidedly well done. Keep it up and good luck to you."

We received week by week a great many testimonials as to the value of the WEEKLY. We very seldom print them, but in this instance break over our rule in quoting a letter from a prominent New York collector, Edward S. Knapp, who accompanies the above words of commendation with a five years' renewal of subscription. A letter such as this gives one new heart and new ambition to do his level best.

We are very glad to enter J. W. Willy of Stockton, Cal., as a member of the Five-Year Renewal Club. Mr. Willy is chief deputy in the office of the County Assessor of San Joaquin County, Cal. He is a longtime subscriber to the WEEKLY.

Rev. Peter Pfister of Garfield, N. J., expresses his confidence in the WEEKLY by making the necessary remittance to cover a five years' renewal. Father Pfister is associated with the Franciscan Fathers at the Church of the Most Holy Name. He is keenly interested in philately and we thank him for this evidence of good will.

The fourth application for membership this week comes from Valley City, N. D., where Vernon T. Gale is connected with the Post Office Department. In remitting his renewal for five years he states that he has been reading the WEEKLY for twenty-five years. A portion of his letter will bear reproduction:—"You are getting out a fine paper, only it does not come out often enough." Welcome to the Honor Club.

In the same mail a remittance was received from Geo. H. Grinnell of Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Grinnell is well known and seeks admission to the charmed circle "lest the calamity of an expired subscription shall come upon me unexpectedly." It is needless to say that we approve Mr. Grinnell's good judgment.

Just as we go to press we have received from Arthur M. Goldman of Brooklyn, N. Y., a remittance of $5 for a five-years' subscription for Arthur H. Lamborn, Montclair, N. J. We think it very proper to include Mr. Lamborn's name in our honor club, and take pleasure in introducing him as a member.

THE PORTRAIT OF THE U. S. 5c 1847.

By Percy McGraw Mann.

There has always been a question in the minds of the collectors of United States stamps as to the original of the Franklin portrait shown on the United States 5c 1847.

There have been guesses and suppositions in unusual quantity, but the subject has remained unsolved until, I believe, this writing, with which I propose to disclose for the benefit of Philately, and incidentally for the benefit of Government History, where the portrait which was used for our "first" United States postage originated.

I regret my haste in disclosing this without giving more study to the matter, but it is a matter that should not be delayed in being set before students of our stamps. Therefore I jump immediately into print and let collectors have the benefit of what I believe I have discovered.

Dr. Carroll Chase, in his magnificent work on the 1847 issue, which was published in The Philatelic Gazette in 1916, gives the official description of the 5c:

"FIVE CENTS. Portrait of Franklin, after painting by John B. Longacre, three-quarters face, looking to the left, on an oval disc with dark ground, white neckerchief and fur collar to coat," etc.

Dr. Chase continues: "Of 'John B. Longacre', a painter, mentioned in the official description of the 5 cents stamp, I have been unable to find any trace even in the New York Public Library. There is no doubt that the artist meant was James Barton Longacre, who was born in Delaware County, Pa., August 11, 1794, and died in Philadelphia, Pa., January 1, 1869. He was most famous as an engraver and die sinker, although he was also an artist with the brush and pencil. He certainly was unusually versatile. With James Herring of New York, and afterward alone, he issued the 'National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans' (3 vols., New York, 1834-9). Many of the portraits in this work were either engraved by Longacre himself, or from drawings made by him. The first plate in the second volume is the familiar portrait of Franklin (see Figure 8). Beneath it appears 'Eng'd by R. W. Dodson from a Painting after an original Miniature in the possession of W. J. Duane, Esquire'. The stamp portrait is a faithful copy of this engraving except that Franklin is shown facing a little to the left, instead of a bit to the right as in the original."

I have in my collection quite an array of the broken-bank bills with engravings printed by Rawdon, Wright, Hatch & Edson, and other engravers and printers, but I have never yet been satisfied that any of these engravings were the originals of the 5c '47. Likewise I have never been convinced that the Dodson engravings used in the National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans was the original of the stamp portrait.

The New York Times Magazine, Sunday, October 14, 1923, contains a wonderfully composed article on the "Much-Pictured Ben Franklin" by John Clyde Oswald. He tells us:

"The most familiar and the most famous portraits of Franklin are those by Joseph Sifrede Duplessis. They are in the possession of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, Philadelphia, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, the New York Public Library, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and several others are in private hands. The New York Historical Society possesses what is either an original Duplessis or a good copy. It is accepted by experts as a genuine Duplessis, but is not signed or inscribed, and there is no record of its early history."

"The Duplessis portraits, excepting the pastel in the New York Public Library, are known as 'fur collar' portraits. * * * "

" * * * A miniature of the 'fur collar' variety by Duplessis is owned by Mrs. Edward P. (Ellen Duane) Davis of Philadelphia, a lineal descendant of Franklin."

"The Franklin portrait in the Governor's room in the State Capitol at Harrisburg, Pa., was copied by J. E. Longacre from the Duplessis miniature owned by Mrs. Davis."

It is the Duplessis painting in the New York Historical Society, an illustration of which is given with Mr. Oswald's article, which is the original of the portrait on the United States 5c 1847 postage stamp!

I have not seen all the Duplessis paintings of Franklin, but it is possible that SS are the initials of two words that I will begin to use in combination of December 1st. These words have been frequently used in my advertisements in this space in the past six months. If the initials were SAH, you would all guess "Stop at Hudson", or if they were DCB, all would say, "Dollar Cover Bundles".

Try your luck at SS. For the first correct answer, I will give a new edition of Scott's Specialized U. S. Catalogue and to each of the next five to get to me a correct answer, I will give one of my "Dollar Cover Bundles".

The meaning of SS will be announced in the issue of November 26th.

H. F. COLMAN
SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

they are all, with the exception of the pastel in the New York Public Library, as described by Mr. Oswald, much alike, because the Longacre portrait from Mrs. Davis' miniature, or the Dodson engraving from Longacre's painting thereof, and the N. Y. Historical Society portrait resemble each other very much. But there is something about the finish and the expression of the latter which matches up exactly with the stamp portrait, viz., the left cheek is fuller than the Longacre portrait and is identical with the stamp; the eyes are practically on a horizontal line with each other and the left eye is not dropped down as much as the Longacre copy; the right ear shows the lobe and depth of shadow of the interior of the ear more distinctly than the Longacre portrait; the depth of shading on the right side of the face is well represented in the stamp, this shading extending down onto the chin and neck, just like the N. Y. Hist. Soc. portrait, and not almost bare of shading as Longacre has it; likewise there is a depth of shadow between the left side of the neckerchief and the fur collar like on the stamp, which the Longacre portrait does not have, at least, does not show in the reproduced engraving.

The 5c '47 was no doubt engraved in New York City, therefore it is more reasonable to suppose that a New York portrait was copied rather than a Philadelphia painting or engraving, and as I have stated there is something about th expression of Franklin's face which both the N. Y. Hist. Soc. portrait and the stamp have which do not appear in any other previously supposed originals. The engraver made a wonderfully accurate copy for the stamp, if one compares the attributed Duplessis portrait with the stamp engraving.

In conclusion, I may be permitted to state that the "broken-bank" bill engraving which closely resembles the stamp is probably by Dodson or Longacre after Longacre's copy of the miniature, altho even here descriptions of the engraving and miniature would not agree with each other.

SALE OF THE TERRY COLLECTION

(Clipping from H. M. Konwiser.)

One of the finest collections of United States stamps to come into the auction room for some time is that of Seth Sprague Terry, lawyer of this city, which will be sold by J. C. Morgenthau & Co. on Nov. 7, 8 and 9 at the Collectors' Club, 120 West Forty-ninth Street. The extent of Mr. Terry's collection will doubtless be a surprise to many of his friends and the close attention that he gave in securing all possible varieties of many values places him well in the front ranks of philatelists. Mr. Terry also had the hobby of getting his United States stamps, so far as possible, in blocks of four, and among the early issues he had some very rare blocks. The catalogue, which has just been issued, discloses the fact that some of these choice items were obtained from the Worthington collection sold several years ago.

Of the 1,464 lots in the catalogue, 1,245 lots comprise United States stamps, including 35 lots of the Confederate States. Practically all of the later issues, from 1882, gave each value in unused blocks of four and in very many cases there are larger blocks. This block collecting has become a specialized feature of the philatelic hobby within comparatively recent years. To many of the advanced collectors single copies of a stamp no longer give the thrill which comes to the youthful collector when he obtains a new specimen. They want pairs or blocks and as four unsevered stamps in a block of four—to be correct they must come in two connected horizontal pairs—present an attractive appearance, the demand for these blocks, especially in United States stamps, has increased to a remarkable degree.—N. Y. Times.

SCOTT'S U. S. PRICINGS.

By Frank Godden.

I am somewhat diffident about undertaking a review of a catalogue which is recognised by all collectors and dealers throughout the world as a standard work and the leading authority on the stamps of the United States of America.

The great drawback to this catalogue in the past has been the lack of illustrations of the stamps listed, owing to the United States Government's stringent laws on the subject. It is with pleasure, therefore, that one notes it is now possible to include enlarged illustrations of portions of the stamps described. These are a very great improvement to the catalogue, and not only facilitate the understanding of the descriptions, but also make it easy to refer to any issue at a glance. The latter advantage is particularly noticeable in the more modern issues, in which it is difficult to memorise the dates of the somewhat numerous changes of design.

As to the prices. The "Postmasters" seem to be at about the same figures as last year, though such movements as are recorded are upwards. "New Yorks" still stand about the same (though the "R. H. M." has advanced from $500 to $600), and compared with recent auction figures the values certainly appear to be on the low side for fine copies. The general issues show the same upward tendency of from 10% to even 50%, though most of the rarities, e.g., the 1869 "Inverted," stand at the same figure as last year. The 1880 "Special Printing" is raised considerably, while the "Special Printing" of 1875 stands at the same figure, but, of course, the relative rarity of the former is very much greater than the latter.

In the "Carriers" section many items are the same as last year, but some are very considerably increased, due, I presume, to the result of specimens changing hands at the Ferrari sale, which have not been on the market for many years past. For instance, I note that "Honours Post" No. 1820 in the catalogue has gone from $60 to $200, and that No. 1821 has risen from $100 to $200. Another feature of the "Carrier" section is that many more of the rarities are priced than has been the case in the past. This is also due, no doubt, to the Ferrari sale.

With reference to the "Periodicals" section—Envelopes, Fiscals and Con erate States. There is very little serving of comment, though I notic the last named that the "Ten" cents rectangular frame has gone up $22.50 to $30, and is, I suppose, gradu approaching its proper figure, as, in opinion, fine copies of this variety worth at least $50, or more.

Generally speaking, this catalogue very great improvement on the old tion, and no one who makes any prete of collecting the stamps of the Un States of America can afford to be w out it.—Philatelic Magazine.

United States Covers

If you are a member of the American Philatelic Society and a collector of U. S. stamps, chances are you are reading Dr. Chase's authoritative articles on the 3c stamps of 1851 and 1857. If you are not a member and are a U. S. collector, we believe you will find that one series worth ten times the cost of membership.

All of which is apropos of the fact that Dr. Chase reminds us the Type I 3c 1857 is far from the common stamp its catalog quotation would suggest. And also reminds us we have a number of fine copies on bright, fresh covers to offer at $1.00 each. Also a very, very few of the double, recut frame lines.

If you are on the lookout for interesting covers from the New Yorks to the Bank Note issues, we may be able to send you something of interest—if you only ask us.

THE PHILATELIC PEPYS.

ranscribed by ALDEN M. WHEELER.

) March—Comes this day a letter rn Sir William, my father, telling me the hour of their arrival, and chiding cause I write not to my Lady Mother. l he is right, and I do wholly wish o write her and to do all to pleasure but as the spirit is brave and gallant do wish all things to be most pleas- for her, the stubborn flesh is weak I do procrastinate and do ever say ill write to-morrow, and so great passes and I feel ashamed and sorry yself that I do so neglect her and do e her pain and make her to think I am ld son and not dutiful. But I glad to e from Sir William and most sweet to k that they do arrive so soon now, but day hence. My wife do come to my of- and do beguile from me 2 pounds say- in the pretty way she hath to get coin n me that she do make ready for my y Mother and Sir William's visit, gh God knows they would be very orants could they devour 2 pounds ood in so short of a time. But I do ect my wife do go to the linen er's and to the hairdresser and do r her needs for food, so she mayhap have left some change for her own gs. She very quaint always when do ask me for money and fair-speak- She is a spritely wench and I do her much. I not feeling well e afternoon do go home and lie on couch, my head akeing. Early I ard all a-gog for tomorrow and my parents coming.

3 March—This day late in the after- , in their Hudson coach, comes my Mother and Sir William and we o to the Inn in town and like old ; it was to see them and to talk and ver all that has passed between the we last saw them and now, this months Back home and after chatting awhile we all to bed they tired from their long ride. All very happy to be together again. My Lady Mother do bring a quart of Canadian Club and we do make merry with part of it in honor of their coming. And so to bed.

Lord's Day, 1 April—Praise God, I have this day reached 34 years of age, and in good health and with a good mother and wife and all my family alive and well and with Good Fortune on us all. At noon to the Inn, where we did have a most excellent dinner served well and after to the train with Sir William, who must needs go to San Francisco on business of his tenants and his bankers. My Lady Mother do intend to stay with us biding his return and my wife and I pleased beyond measure at that. So home and to dine at home, and My Lady Mother do give me 2 pints of champayne, which we do drink to my birthday, with much merriment. To talk and to bed, I praising God for all his goodness.

2 April—Monday and very busy at my office and sorry not being able to see more of My Mother but this is the busy time with me, and making vast numbers of accompts of my month's work. Comes a packet from Master Hussman of St. Louis, containing adhesivs for me to select from, but the wight is so tardy and behind time that I have already ordered to meet my present needs from Master Harris of Boston, Master Egner of Philadelphia and Master Roessler of Newark, so he must needs go without though I would have given him some were he not so slow in his despatch of business. To town and do get my birthday present at the Inn, whither my Mother had sent it, and I am pleased with it marvellous, it being a travelling bag of good honest leather, and my initials on it, very handsome and pretty to look on and now I do wish to journey that I may display it and pleasure in it. After dinner home and chatting and talking of all things and to bed.

10 June, Lord's Day—Up betimes and with a merrie heart, with all the birds a-caroling their pretty lays and the June day resplendent like any Seebeckian galaxy of color. This long time, I have made no entry in my journal and this morning I do with high resolve swear to be at it again and keep to it with a right good will. In the afternoon, do play at ball in the fields and we do vanquish the others by 10 to 3. I do get two blows, both for single bases and at the first base do care for all that comes my way with agility and a high skill. At night to the Inn, but I with a cold and my head aking do not enjoy it muchly. To the Playhouse, where do see Mistress Dorothy Dalton, Master Kosloff and Master De Roche in a gipsy play. Very good, and my wife do sit on the end of her chair, when the fire do leap up the minaret, in which last lie Mistress Dalton, and Master De Roche helpless and distressed. To bed and ill and do take callomel and very worn and sick.

11 June—My body lame and I sore distressed. Lie at my home and go not to the office till after midday and then only till the Royal Post is despatched. Home again and getting our orders out, but I with no spirit in it. Comes some new Mexico stamps from my Lady Mother she does barter for in Ensenada and also a letter from Master Passmore crying his wares. I lying talking to my wife, who doth sew on some woman's frippery. We last night did go again to Master Jones of Santa Maria and do view his U. S. adhesivs. He very entertaining and to tell us of his find of the "Kicking Mule" cancell at Goleta, Calif., and I do see the American Philatelic Journal do comment on it and him. To bed and I do hope that I do be mended in the morrow.

22 June—This eleven days have I been distraught and ill of a megrim, two days in bed and other days but little better. And so doth my Journal lie cast aside and naught entered therein. But this day do feel well and blithe again and to my labours with a right merrie heart and do attend my businesses with pleasure. At night to the Playhouse, where Mistress Sophie Tucker do disport for the pleasure of the groundlings in "The Pepper Box Review." Very excellent discourse of sweet music and pleasant reverberation of jazz songs. No music of the lute and harp, but much blowing of the saxaphone and drums beating, but withal most witty and comick and I do chortle now and then and again do laugh aloud like any lack-wit. So home and to bed, and reading Master Bloss' letter to Master Severn and he do make much to-do and pother over the dealer's trials and he is right, as a great number of collectors wot not the miserable practices of certain sorry knaves that we encounter. Master Bloss hath the comick gift and I did laugh at his sharp wit. To sleep and slept well this night.

23 June—Up betimes and labouring at my office all morning and in the afternoon to town and did encounter Master Jeff Jones and did purchase from him two copies of the five dollar 1902 reissue that he had lately come by. All afternoon with my wife putting pochetts or my own collection and whilst we did labour at it, we do have great argument as to which is which in our firm name She do claim that she is Wheeler of Wheeler and Wheeler and that I, who God knows am more versed in philatelic knowledge, and "and Wheeler." I do protest that I am the first named, and she doth prevail upon me that she be first, and so back and forth, until I do say, with a sly cunning, that she may be the first as always the first named is the elder, whereat the pretty wench do abandon all her logic and argument and do concede me first and so thru woman's frailty anent age, I do assume the first place. At night comes a post from Master Bloss, who is in charge of Sir Bertram Poole's shoppe, whilst he do stay in London Town at the Exhibition. He do send me two stamps that I did bespeak of him for one of my clients, and also a $1 Omaha, which I ordered four months agone. The stamps he do charge me mightily for, altho Sir Bertram do tell me of certain concessions he would make me. But Sir Bertram being gone, a-gadding about in London, I the innocent must suffer for it. I would he would stay home, as his absence do cost me near three shillings. Also Master Bloss do dunn me for 8 shillings, 3½ pence for stamps my wife do buy in March, and I do send him the cancelled cheque and I doubt not he will be chagrined that he come a-dunning when long ago his score was paid. I do write him caustic words, but with good nature and a laugh underneath, which I do think that he will see. All evening making ready books for our clients, and so ends this week, my wife happy and I too and all agog against the morrow, which is her natal day.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES.
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

Chester J. Moore, 106 Hamilton Street, Albany, writes: "Am greatly interested in the notes in MEKEEL'S. They are stimulating the search after dots, dashes and other missing links. After reading a recent issue, I went over a lot of the two cent brown, 1883, and found those with the shade beneath the medallion about equal in number to those without. I also found in an average of one to ten stamps that after the figure "2" is what I call a white line running down the right hand side of the curved part of the two. This cannot be due to rubbing as all the specimens seem to run alike. One stamp has a small pearl (presumably in the same location) instead of the line. What in your opinion is this line and how formed?"

Regarding the white line and pearl at right of "2" that Mr. Moore speaks of, won't some reader who has made a study of this interesting stamp give us his opinion as to whether it was due to a lack of proper inking (dry-printing) or is it a true plate variety?

HERMANN SUBMISSIONS.

Charles H. Hermann, 3652½ South San Pedro Street, Los Angeles, Cal., submits some interesting varieties. One is a three cent 1869 showing a dot under the left leg of the "H" of "Three." A horizontal line crosses this dot about one-half millimeter under the bottom of the design. This line extends clear across the stamp from left to right. A vertical line also crosses the dot, running at right angles to the other line, extending upwards into the design and off the stamp at the top perforation line. These are guide lines, running through a guide line, I believe.

He shows a three cent 1873, which shows a mussy design due to being what I have seen described by some stamp dealers as a wet plate or wet printing. Or it may have been overinked.

Mr. Hermann says that "double transfers on the two cent brown, 1882, are very common and may be found at any corner of the shield, etc." He mentions that this is a cheap stamp to study. Personally, I wouldn't say that shifted transfers on any U. S. stamp are exactly common. There are more examples of shifted transfers to be found on the two cent 1883, I believe, than on almost any other stamps of the 1870 to 1889 vintage, but they are not exactly common.

Many readers have sent to the editor specimens or asked questions about stamps after 1889. It is not our purpose in this department to consider stamps after this date. The reason for this decision is that the line had to be drawn somewhere and, as the title indicates that early low values specialized are those under consideration, it seemed logical to draw the line at the time the Bureau took over the printing of U. S. stamps.

However, the stamps of this country from 1890 on present a fascinating field for the specialist and the low values may be secured in quantities and at a minimum of costs. More and more collectors are going in for these and their value is constantly increasing, as is seen by the latest catalogue. We have nothing against this later phase of the game. It is a royal game and worthy of serious attention of studious collectors. More power to the specialists in the later issues.

E. A. Young, No. 363 Third Avenue, West Haven, Conn., sends in some curious plate varieties on the old favorite, the three cent green of 1870, 1873 and 1879. One copy, a stamp of 1873, according to a penciled date on the envelope although the stamp really looks like an American printing rather than a Continental, shows a distinct straight line parallel with the lower edge of the design running across the stamp through the figure "3" at the bottom and showing in some of the letters of "Three Cents." The writer has a copy of the plate variety which he obtained from Mr. Young, which is indisputably a stamp of the 1879 vintage. This shows the line in the same position but a little more clearly and it is evident that the line continues beyond the design of the stamp at the right, running clear through the perforations. This therefore would probably have shown on the next stamp and may be a cracked plate. Will some reader inform this department whether plate cracks are ever absolutely straight lines. The writer has believed that cracks usually came more or less irregular in shape and that when a line was found straight enough to have been mechanically ruled by a sharp instrument on the plate it was more of the nature of a guide line. The two stamps mentioned are on cover, the one belonging to Mr. Young being postmarked Worcester, Mass., Nov. 15, and the writer's, Stockton, Cal., Oct. 19.

The next specimen submitted by Mr. Young is a cancellation that I have casionally seen on the three cent gre

Another of Mr. Young's submissions a cracked or scratched plate on the ree cent Continental printing, cover arked in pencil, 1878, postmark, Hoboen, N. J., May 7. The line in this case tarts in the background lines of Washgton's shoulder, runs diagonally downard, crossing the white frame of the val just above the "N" of "Cents," connues downward and to the right across e vertical lines of the background at e lower right of the shield, crosses bel and the upper part of the "S" of Cents" and continues across the white pace outside of the design clear to the erforations. This line goes off the amp at about the middle of the second erforation at the lower right. I think is is a genuine cracked plate, although r. Young calls it a scratched plate. It uns in a pretty straight line but is not arallel to any of the lines of the design, unning diagonally as it does, and shows ny traces of irregularity, such as a rack might show. It is a rare item.

Another three cent green, American rinting, shows a rather thick line runing from the top of the "R" of "Three" the bottom, crossing the white frame the oval about the first "E" of "Three" nd running into the lines of the background within the oval.

How many readers have the varieties oted in this article? Most of them, I elieve, are scarce and some even rare.

PRECANCELLATIONS OF THE ANTIKAMNIA CHEMICAL COMPANY ON THE U. S. PROPRIETARY ISSUE OF 1898.

By Franklin S. Smith.

The printed monogram, dated cancellations of this company are more or less familiar to the collectors of U. S. revenues, and next to the "Dr. K. & Co. I. R." on postage stamps the most popular. Before making these cancellations a number of "provisionals" were used, regarding which the following letter dated June 26, 1903, is interesting.

"When the Internal Revenue Law went into effect on July 1, 1898, we bought what might be called a 'job lot' of revenue stamps from the United States Revenue office in St. Louis. These stamps were of all denominations, from ¼c to 2½c and the quantity furnished did not supply our needs for more than two or three days. We therefore had provisional 2½c stamps printed on white paper and we used these provisional stamps for about a week or ten days, before we received notice that 2½c regular stamps could be obtained.

When using the smaller denominations of revenue stamps, on or about July 1, 1898, we found that to make 2½c for each package required an additional ⅛c stamp. This the government could not furnish, so we had printed a small quantity of ⅛c provisional stamps to be used with the regular stamps to make up 2½c. We cannot recall just the denomination of stamps we used with the ⅛c provisional, but there may have been a 2c and a ⅜c and a provisional ⅛c to make up 2½c. There were various denominations which when added together would make 2⅜c this requiring an additional ⅛c stamp, but just what denominations we had, we cannot now recall. The ⅛c provisionals were printed on yellow paper to distinguish them from the 2½c provisionals, and very few were used, probably not over 500, but possibly 1,000."

The Antikamnia Company,
Frank A. Ruf, Pres. & Treas.

The provisionals were worded as follows, which was identical with those used by at least seven other St. Louis makers of proprietary articles:

"Internal Revenue Tax, 2½c
Stamps not being obtainable at time of sale and shipment of this package will be made on sworn returns thereof to COLLECTOR of INTERNAL REVENUE, 1st District of Mo.
The Antikamnia Chemical Co.,
Frank A. Ruf, Pres. & Treas.,
St. Louis, Mo."

Both the stamps were gummed, and cut 2¼"x1½". They were cancelled with a rubber hand-stamp and purple ink, the design of which was that of an AK tablet actual size surrounded by a wreath with ribbons. Above, the title of the company, and below, the date, July 1, 1898.

At this time there was also used a gummed label of the same size, as follows:

"Special Notice!
This is a free sample removed from the laboratory for gratuitous distribution. Any person selling or exposing for sale this sample, at any time, will be liable to all the pains and penalties of the law, denounced against persons selling or exposing for sale unstamped articles taxable under Schedule B, War Revenue Bill.
The Antikamnia Chemical Co.,
Frank A. Ruf, Pres. & Treas.,
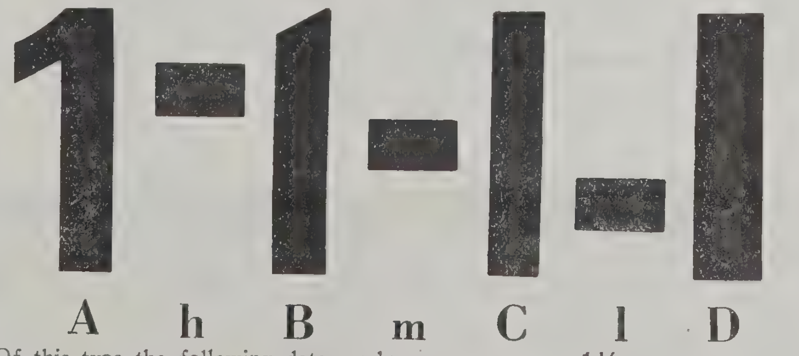
St. Louis, Mo."

The 2c and ⅜c stamps referred to in the above letter are not known to exist; the only cancellations being on the ⅝c, 1¼c, 2½c, and 3¾c. Previous to the printed cancellations the same hand-stamp and ink were used to cancel the regular issue ⅝c up, down, and horizontally, and the 2½c up and down.

When a full supply of the necessary regular issue was obtained, a printed cancellation followed; an electrotyped design consisting of a large AK in the center, above it the title, "The Antikamnia Chemical Co." in a curve conforming to the frame of the picture of the battleship. Below it the dates were type-set, and the figures from two different fonts were used; the earlier dates with a heavy, and later with a smaller and lighter type. The numerals of the earlier dates were from a font of "block type" among which four varieties of the figure 1 are found. Type A with a serif; B with none, but with a pointed top; C with a square top, and D much thicker and also with a square top. On the 3¾c two kinds of 0 were used: the ordinary oval cipher, and an almost circular O. There are also three positions of the hyphens between the numerals, above the central line, at the central line, and below the central line. The combinations of the different numerals and the positions of the hyphens make a very interesting series of varieties. The following diagram will illustrate the above description.



Of this type the following dates and varieties are known.

2,000,000 MARKS TAXI FARE CHAN

Eugene Klein, Stamp Dealer, Gets Roll of German Money.

(Clipping from Geo. M. Emery.)

Eugene Klein, a Philadelphia dealer stamps, has returned from Hambu bringing with him 200,000,000 Germ marks. It was his change from payi the taxi driver who drove him to steamer in Hamburg.

Mr. Klein, traveling with his wife a two children, spent three months in a c cuit of Europe, which included Lond Paris, Switzerland, Italy, Hunga Austria and Germany.

The most striking statement which M Klein made was one showing the co trast in conditions and outlook on l between Austria and Germany.

In Vienna, where he attended t European stamp collectors' exhibition, found prosperity, even luxury. A samp fair which took place during his stay w attended by buyers from all of Euro and even from the United States, a there, as in the stores of the city, beau ful goods were on display. Every o was working steadily. This is due, sa Mr. Klein, to the action of the League Nations commission, which undertook put Austria on a sound economic foo ing. Money does not change in val from day to day. It is perfectly stabl although values are figured now thousands of kronen, which former were in kronen.

Germany, on the contrary, Mr. Kle found to be in a hopeless state. talked to many merchants. All of the felt that there is no remedy," he sai "On all sides I heard the merchant cla lamenting that they had not paid up aft the Peace Conference when the oppo tunity still existed. Nothing is definit They feel that they can count on nothin

"I saw great towns of smokestack Nurnberg, Leipzig, but no smoke w coming from any of them. There simply no reason to work. Coal is pr hibitive and many kinds of raw materi can't be bought at all. So the papers sa revolution, though the merchants do want it at all. I can't speak for th working people, for I happened not talk to any of them.

"Frequently I went into a store an asked for several of an article, and could get only one. For it doesn't pa to sell any more than is necessary to pa current expenses. If a merchant gains surplus one week, the marks he has le over will be of less value the next wee and with those same marks he will hav to pay increased wages and costs.

"I was never told a price offhan Goods on display bore index number which had to be multiplied by the quotation of marks at the time of the deal t get the selling price of the moment.

"Poor people simply can't get enoug food in the cities, and if they could is too expensive. In front of the Nurnberg station, I repeatedly saw hundred of children with go-carts in which to tak home food which their parents woul bring back from the country. Fourth class railway fares cost little, so that thi is the cheapest way to buy food, eve though the purchasers have to take all day trips of fifty or a hundred miles.

"Time is nothing. Rich people haven the heart to eat abundant food wher they may be seen. Many of them go fo occasional week-ends to Denmark o Switzerland or other countries to have a couple days of square meals where the won't be watched." — Phila. Publi Ledger.

CANADIAN NOTES AND NEWS.

By William Butler.

Toronto, Ontario, always enterprising sofar as cancellations go, is using two ncellations reading "Royal Winter air—Toronto—Nov. 20th to 28th," in ur lines, and "Use Postal Notes, Safe, heap, Convenient" in three lines.

In a recent issue of Stamp Collecting ondon, Eng.) a correspondent states at the colour of the current Canadian ree cent stamp is to be changed from own to carmine, and that an entirely w series, believed to be pictorial, and include the portrait of the Prince of ales, who recently visited his ranch in berta, is shortly to be issued. This is ws to us, for no confirmation has been ceived from Ottawa.

For many years Toronto was without local stamp club and all philatelic actities have been suspended, but of late number of stamp collectors in Tonto has increased so greatly that the istence of such a club is a vital necesy. Very soon a meeting is to be held the residence of a local collector, and is hoped that the "turn out" will be ge. Further particulars can be had m B. Turner, Box 24, Terminal Sta. ," Toronto, Can.

Fred. Jarrett in his book "Postage mps of Canada" gives some additional ails regarding Canadian aero stamps. the first issue, Toronto to Ottawa, of denomination of 25c, only 3,000 were ued; while of the $1 stamp, Toronto New York, the number was about same. In some instances these labels re on sale at Post Offices, but were in any sense official; these were, however, authorized by the Post Office Dept., as such rank as semi-official. Of the ronto-Hamilton $1 label issued in y, 1920, by the Grand Army of Canaa, an ex-service men's association, ich was amalgamated with another anization to form the "Grand Army United Veterans," little seems to be own. The work was done by Grip, ., Graphics Arts Bldg., Toronto, but other particulars are available.

10c 1847, BLACK GRID., 3 superb margins, lower frame line gone. A cancellation classic. S. U. S. $40; net $37.50
5c 1847, BLUE GRID., very fine, 4 margins, except L frame 2 mm. at bottom barely cut, net $6.00
5c 1847, FINE 14-BAR RED GRID. Barely touched at top, but frame line remains $6.00

SATISFACTION OR PROMPT REFUND.

STAMP DRUMMER approvals please shrewd philatelists. Good to superb U. S., priced according to condition. Fine B. N. HOW MANY? HOW MUCH?

By Clarence J. West.

The collector of United States stamps—and who does not collect these most interesting and valuable bits of paper—must have wondered at times as he was studying the pages of his album, just how many United States stamps he should have, to say that he had a copy of each catalogued variety; and, what is even more important, how much such a collection would catalogue. Not that he had a ghost of a chance ever to realize such a collection. Just curiosity, that's all. Having had this question in my mind for some time, the advance sheets of Scott's 1924 catalogue prompted me to find the answers. After all, the only things needed are the price list, an adding machine and the time.

First of all come the provisionals; these we can put in a class by themselves, for many of us will not even see some of them. Scott lists a total of 37 priced varieties, 16 major and 1 minor, unused, and 15 major and 5 minor used, which catalogue at $38,733; $100, $43,650 and $950 respectively. That is, a complete set of the priced provisionals would cost us: Unused, $38,833; used, $44,600, or a total of $83,433. Then there are some unpriced varieties, and of some others, Scott says, "Several varieties of each." What's the use?

Our second difficulty will be met in the so-called Re-issues and Special printings. Most of these are priced unused only but are very scarce in any condition. I have been told that there are probably not more than a dozen complete sets of these in existence, so you see the average collector has no show at all. Anyway, they are as follows:

Issue	Number of Values	Cat. Unused	Price Used
1847	2	$ 8.50
1857-1860	8	119.00
1867	10	325.50
1869	11	147.00	148.00
1873	11	1,170.00
1875	2	1,350.00
1879	13	3,200.00
1882	1	50.00
1883	2	65.00

This table totals $6,435.00 for the unused sets and $148.00 for the 1869 used set. Then there is one horizontal pair of the 1883 issue at $150.00, or a grand total of $6,733.00, which we may also forget.

Now for some of the things which we may possess. In preparing these data, it seemed that it would be of most interest to follow Scott and list each issue separately. In the table given below, then, the first column gives the year of issue, the second, the total number of listed varieties, whether they are priced or not, the third, the number of unused major and minor varieties which are priced (that is, 2-4 indicates that there are two major and four minor varieties in that issue), the fifth and sixth columns give the catalogue prices for these varieties, while the last three columns give like information for the used major and minor varieties. A summary will be found at the end of the table.

Date of Issue	Total Varieties	No.	Unused Major	Minor	No.	Used Major	Minor

This table shows us that there are 1,095 varieties of United States Adhesives (Postage only, and not including such issues as Parcel Post, Registration, Special Delivery, etc.) which catalogue at $52,614.60. If now we add to these figures the provisionals, reprints and re-issues, we have 1,102 varieties, representing a potential value of $142,780.10. But do not let these figures disturb you. We can enjoy our hobby even if our collection does not catalogue this much.

EDITORIAL.

The new edition of the Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue appeared on the dot and we are visualizing a scene that is being enacted in thousands of homes throughout our land. We see the owners of the eightieth edition bending over the new book, under the lamp or other light, absorbed in the hunt for price changes, which meet their approval in some cases at least. It is a satisfaction to have the stamps that are in our albums jump in price but we are not so enthusiastic in having that of the missing numbers hoisted, it is needless to say. The catalogue has become a book of large proportions and the new edition numbers over 1,400 pages of good typography. The popular features of past catalogues are retained in the volume under notice; and we find the present edition more helpful than ever because of the additional notes of explanation attached to many items and issues. Naturally, the one who consults the catalogue wishes to absorb all the information possible about the stamps, as well as their prices, and so all the aids to an easy understanding of the subject are welcome. In the illustrations of the catalogue there is a change, all the cuts of foreign stamps being threaded with a thin blank line that really is unnoticeable, so far as effect is concerned. The United States section resolves itself into one of the most important collecting assets imaginable, as now portions of all the United States stamps are shown, postage to revenue. Identification of all our issues is now to be made by the holder of the catalogue and probably we do not realize to what an extent collecting of U. S. will be helped by the pictures. We know how, heretofore, many collectors struggled with our issues only to become more and more confused by the differences that could not be described adequately by text; and now that this obstacle practically has been removed, the assumption is that the cry for U. S. will be louder than ever before. The quotations in the catalogue evidently have been well considered, as the publishers are astute and experienced enough to know that an impartial review of each stamp in its price relation is necessary, if the catalogue is to meet the expectation of collectors. It may be added that the later issues are treated thoroughly and the fluctuations in price that some of them have undergone make an appraisal no easy task, but the work of pricing in these instances seems to have been done successfully. We like the new catalogue both inside and out.

Complaints come to us occasionally from readers who have had unsatisfactory experiences because of the ignorance or inattention of postal employees in handling foreign letters with contents supposed to be dutiable. Our only recourse has been to advise those presenting their cases to refer them to Washington. Evidently, both the treasury and the post-office departments have felt that there is room for improvement in the treatment of mail suspected of being liable for duty, as we have received Order No. 9714 from the Postmaster-General, effective November 1, 1923, amending Section 664 of the Postal Laws and Regulations. The "joint regulations adopted by the secretary of the treasury and the postmaster-general governing the treatment of mail matter received from foreign countries involving the customs revenue" are set forth at great length and seem to cover all possible cases of routine procedure. We think that these new regulations will simplify the irksome practices that collectors have protested against.

Neal R. O'Hara, whose stuff is syndicated by the Press Publishing Company, lays down a barrage of "wise cracks" on the enterprise of Premier Mussolini in selling advertising space on the reverse of the Italian stamps. Neal is intrigued by the cleverness of the scheme and he develops it wittingly and applies it to our own country. He thinks that W. L. Douglas, the Smith Brothers and Lyd Pinkham would adorn our stamps as well as Washington but why stop there, he urges. For a Friday special: "study of a live lobster" on the one cent while the two cent shows the lobster broiled. There could be all sorts of stamps series, such as political, golf, pugilistic and so on, Mr. O'Hara thinks. A good many newspapers have commented on Italy's stamp advertising plan as an original departure.

We are glad to see that Clare Briggs, the cartoonist, who plays so skilfully on the human chords, reintroduces Skinnay, by request of the host of admirers of the artist; and Briggs starts off with a stamp theme. In the cartoon, the boy, who is Skinnay's pal, is importuning his mother to let Skinnay come on over, giving as a reason for his pressing need for Skinnay's society that he wishes to show Skinnay his stamp collection. Briggs, too, has turned philately to good account on previous occasions and as we have remarked before, the artist has vivid recollections of his stamp collecting days, as it is not so many years ago that he was an avowed collector. If our memory is not at fault, Briggs was a member of one of the smaller stamp societies before he set up his tent in the east.

A reader who is interested in the subject of counterfeits asks when counterfeiting was first warned against in the philatelic press, as he was surprised at the verdict of an expert who upon examining an old collection that descended to him from a relative, said that many of the supposed rarities were forgeries. As the stamps were gathered "fifty years ago," our correspondent does not understand how the stamps in question could be bad. Counterfeited stamps were common fifty years ago and the average collection made at that time contained some of them. As philately became more of a regulated pursuit and the means of news exchange became improved, forgery of stamps was checked in some measure; and the later collections showed a cleaner bill of health than the older ones. Looking through the first edition of Dr. Gray's handbook, London, 1862, we find in the preface a reference to French counterfeits which were lithographed instead of "block-printed." J. B. Moens of Brussels published his first book on falsifications of stamps in 1862.

From a subscriber in Kingston, Jamaica, who wrote us some time ago relative to the change in currency to approximately the currencies of the United States and Canada, we hear that the plan has been delayed because of the inability of the West Indian colonies to agree upon details. However, business men are represented as favoring the change which "must soon take place."

In his department in the Smart Set, Mencken gives a Portrait of a Man, who is "my friend." A catalogue of contrasts and inconsistencies is submitted, among which we find the statement that the man likes the idea of an absolute despotism and collects postage stamps for the little child of his brother. Thus philately is starred as the antithesis of autocracy and we suppose that we should take a smug satisfaction over the classification. We are suspicious of the chap who collects for his "little boy" and a little nephew is in the same category. However, we are pleased that the truculent Mencken nominates stamp collecting as a peaceful pursuit; and we are willing to let it go at that.

HE POWER OF A STAMP EXHIBIT.

By RALPH H. NICKERSON.

Much has appeared in the philatelic ss the past few months on the value the cause of philately of the great rnational exhibition in London, with grand gold awards, its royal visitors l its millions of dollars worth of rare mps on display. A great deal of ess has likewise been laid on the nber of converts to the ranks of philatts which might reasonably be exted from the newspaper publicity the ibition received.

Vithout wishing to detract from the dit due to such a "philatelic world's r", a number of stamp exhibits, held each town where there are one or re live collectors, would do far more actually swell the ranks of active colors than anything else that could be anged. The imagination of a possible ector is far more apt to be fired by sight of a few attractive stamps tly displayed, even if they are of no at intrinsic value, than he is by reada couple of columns of newspaper licity about stamps worth millions.

collected stamps as a youngster but the collection away about 1907 or and did not see it again for years. little over a year ago, I visited the nty fair and finally reached the curio artment. Among the exhibits I saw amp album lying open with a number stamps exposed to view. I obtained mission of the superintendent to mine the album. I recognized many nps as the same ones I had owned in kid collector days and found many comers I had never seen before.

hen I returned home, my first act to search for and find my kid collec. Before I retired that night I had ten to the publishers of the album for e price lists, within a week I had hased a new album and some packets tamps, had hunted up the address of KEEL'S in a newspaper directory (I been a subscriber when collecting re) and again enrolled myself among elect. I had the fever again and this ten times worse than before. The lay of a few stamps had done it re endless newspaper propaganda ld have had no effect.

took even less than that to get a hbor of mine interested. I received copy of MEKEEL'S at noon one day could not wait to get home to get a ce at its pages. I opened it on the street car and when I got off the car at my corner a newcomer to the neighborhood introduced himself and said he had seen me reading MEKEEL'S and that he had once collected stamps. I made a date to meet him, let him look over my budding new collection, saw his, and in less than a week he, too, bought a new album and was started once more. And he was bitten just as hard as I was. It seems to take better the second time.

A month later I received a selection of Newfoundland stamps. I opened them in the hall of the office building where I work and by chance another acquaintance of mine saw them as I was putting them back into the envelope. He looked them over with interest, remarked that he had once had a stamp collection himself and then and there I made a date to visit him.

To make a long story short, he succumbed in less than a week, has a new album or so and is collecting as enthusiastically as any Hind or Ferrari. Once more it only took the chance display of some stamps to make a former collector into a real philatelist.

This made three active collectors in our small town or rather two towns close together. All three of us are now collecting United States almost entirely and are building up specialized collections. Between us we have subscribed to every philatelic publication printed in America, I have joined the American Philatelic Society and the other two are going in. In the community we found there was one active stamp collector outside of our trio and one who had built up a magnificent collection and then stopped. We found another former collector who joined us at one of our informal gatherings and who dug up out of his vault a collection he put away in 1888 and had not touched since.

It is chuck full of rare old stamps, some of them worth three figure sums, according to the catalogue. At the end of our session, its owner had decided to buy a new album and to remount the collection. He is almost sure to be an active collector once more.

Philately is on a firm basis in our town. Presents of small quantities of stamps to youngsters are laying the groundwork of the future. A find of over 50 covers, including a magnificent copy of the 1c 1857-60 type 1a, has helped our collecting circle to think of little else.

But the point I want to make is this: At least three active collectors, each spending more dollars now than he did cents before, has resulted from my happening to see a stamp album displayed at a county fair. We have talked it over and have agreed that next year and each succeeding year we will have an exhibit of our own, each collector contributing a little to make up an attractive whole. With it will be a card or two so that any former collector who may get the fever again will know where to look to find companionship. There won't be any grand gold medals nor royal visitors but it is a plan we sincerely recommend to philatelists who would like to do their bit toward advancing the cause.

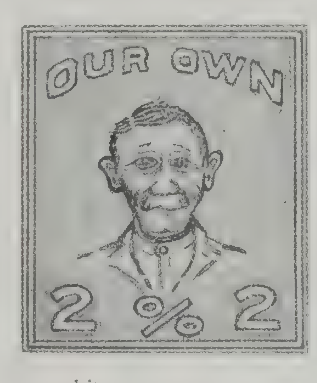
A PROPOSED NEW ISSUE.

By R L. HUSTIS.

(We notice in "Philatelic Gossip" that Oklahoma is about to issue a new stamp, though how and why is not very clearly indicated. However, many things are happening these days in this western state and one can hardly tell what a day will bring forth. A subscriber, R. L. Hustis, has anticipated the new issue from Oklahoma by sending us the design and specifications of what he proposes to designate "Our Own" stamp. There may be some who will wonder how this copy got by a dry editor, but there are times when one should really be magnanimous.—W. O. W.)

There has been so much discussion "pro" and "con" stirred up by the beauty of the French "Pasteur" issue contrasted to our own recent stamps that we are forced to show the world that "artistry" is not dead in America! So we offer the following Proposed Specifications and Design for "Our Own" Stamp.



Paper—white wove.

Watermark—is "bull," as can be proven by a watermark-detector.

Gum—(standard) "spear-mint," Paris-green shade. Other flavors or colors to order.

Perforation—to be home-made (as issued imperforate).

Color—Gray (on white) so that it may be hand-colored to suit. (Prizes offered for bizarre effects, red noses barred as not being in line with XVIIIth Amendment. Set of colors free with 20 stamps.)

Condition—sold upon condition not to be used for postage or revenue.

Varieties—as many as you can make.

Design—by M. T. Dome (after Dark).

Size of Stamp—as illustrated.

Size of Issue—as many as paid for in advance.

Date of Issue—as soon as advance receipts total $10, and until one week after last order received and filled.

Face Value—2% for 10 days at least. If this becomes as popular as expected we shall raise to 3, 4, 5, 6 and up to and including 100%, when the issue will automatically be completed. A 1% may later be issued as a Rarity. A ½ of 1% stamp has already been requested for use on "home brew" and other lubricants. This denomination will no doubt be in great demand.

History of Design.

Face—not based on a composite of the faces of 100 prominent philatelists, collectors, dealers and others interested in stamps (as was first suggested), nor on the face of any of the presidents or "famous men of America" other than one of the "common people."

Vestments—we have dared to deviate from the one-button BVD outfit (which someone has forced Washington to wear for the past 'steen years) as it has not been sufficiently proven historically to us that he ever wore it, none having been found in his effects. It appears to us much like a Turkish bath negligee and certainly is not as dignified as our own one button design which has been and still is worn in many parts of this country.

"A fact which," writes Mr. Dome, "prompted us to eliminate them as tending to confuse future collectors as to the date of issue."

Background—lightly line-shaded. (The wavy indistinct lines were caused by the smoke arising from the model's cigar, which he insisted on holding onto while posing. They are not due to any shift or plate-crack.)

Border—simple, throwing the design itself into greater prominence.

Figures, Letters (Type)—plain, clear and legible.

NOTE—(By M. T. Dome, himself.) The hair lines, which are quite noticeable just below the nose must not be confused with the Canadian "hair-line" issues. We do not copy!

Any suggestions or criticism will be welcomed by us, but do not rush in your orders until our notice of sale has been published.

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.

Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

If you have any 10c blacks you've reason to be proud of, please drop me a line. [tf

UNITED STATES.—Since my last notes the Postmaster-General has ordered an extra billion copies of the Harding Memorial stamp from the Bureau, making 1,600,000,000 in all. In view of this extra number it has been necessary for the Bureau to add to the number of plates originally made, so that up to October 6 twenty-six new plates were laid down, making sixty-nine in all. It will be noted from the accompanying list that most of these are of the flat plate type. It is quite possible that additional plates will be made before the issue is discontinued next December.

Through the courtesy of Mr. L. A. Hill, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, we are able to bring our list of plate numbers up to October 1, 1923.

Mr. B. K. Miller informs us that he has recently purchased a set of newspaper stamps in imperforated condition of the special printing of 1875 Scott's No. 2028a to 2028x inclusive. These are single copies and Mr. Miller calls attention to the fact that some of the values differ in color from the perforated series, of which the higher values are said to be unknown.

There was a recent find in Philadelphia consisting of a strip of three, seven pairs and about fifteen singles of the 10c 1847 which were from the same correspondence and seem to have come from the same sheet, for several of the pairs readily fit together. Unfortunately these were all soaked from the cover, but they are neat and fresh in appearance with a bright gridiron cancellation. Mr. Philip Dengler showed me three of the horizontal pairs which readily fit together and form a reconstructed block of six.

Relative to the new Harding stamps, the clerk at the Germantown Post Office recently handed a lady twenty-five in reply to a request for 25-2c stamps. She picked them up, looked at them and asked if he did not have any others. He stated yes, that he could furnish the 2c red and wanted to know if she objected to the color. She said no, the color did not bother her, but that she was a Democrat and did not care for stamps with Harding's portrait upon them. This actually happened and the story is not drawn from imagination.

Under date of October 12th, President Coolidge and Cabinet gave consideration to a request from the Japanese Government for assistance rendered necessary by the destruction of the Government Printing Office in the Tokio earthquake. The wrecked plant corresponds with the Bureau of Engraving & Printing at Washington.

It was decided that the American Government wishing to be helpful in every possible way to the Japanese, should spare some surplus equipment at the Bureau and that they would interest themselves in bringing the Japanese Embassy into communication with American Bank Note Engravers.

CANADA.—It is stated that the colour of the 3 cents stamp is shortly to be changed from brown to carmine. Mr. W. Ward understands that Canada is to have an entirely new series, believed to be pictorial, and to include the portrait of the Prince of Wales, who is at this moment on his way to his very own ranch in the Dominion.—Stamp Collecting.

DANZIG.—We have received from Mr. James Van Meyers a set of four values of a new design of stamps. They are 1,000mk brown, 2,000mk light blue, 3,000mk deep blue and red, and 5,000mk red.

GERMANY.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the following new issues: 5,000mk greenish blue, 50,000mk bistre, 20,000mk on 200mk, 100,000mk on 400mk yellow green, 125,000mk on 100mk pink, and 250,000mk on 500mk lilac rose.

Mr. G. R. Bonneau also adds the following new items: 15,000mk on 40mk green, 30,000 on 40mk blue and 75,000mk on 1,000mk green.

Mr. Walter C. Brink advises that on a letter just at hand he notes two yellow labels with this inscription: "75,000 M Gebuehr bezahlt Taxe recue Postamt Braunschweig." These labels are perforated on three sides and signed by the postmaster.

GRANDE COMORO.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie states that, in the absence of regular 5 and 20c postal adhesives at the Moroni office on July 13th, local authority was given for the employment of fiscal stamps of corresponding denomination on correspondence. Copies of the 5c blue and black, and 20c red and bl fiscal labels, have been received t these being accompanied by a rub stamp mark in red, reading "Gra Comore: Affranchi ainsi faute timb poste." According to our Amiens c temporary, about two hundred of two values mentioned were used in way.—Stamp Collecting.

IRISH FREE STATE.—Mr. R. Rob has sent for chronicle the new 4d g in the same design as the 2½d rece

JAPAN.—Mr. W. D. Cameron kin sends us a cutting from the Japan vertiser which reads as follows: "

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—On October 25th, Friday, at 7.30 P. M., C. E. Severn, editor of the WEEKLY, will give a twenty minutes talk on the Story of the Postage Stamp at Station W M A Q, the Chicago Daily News.

—H. L. Lindquist, who made his mark in Chicago as a philatelic journalist and publisher of the old Collectors Journal and who later moved to New York, has been a welcome visitor to the old home town. Mr. Lindquist now has charge of the excellent quarterly of the Collectors Club, New York City, which is one of the best things in the printed line that philatelists have ever seen. Mr. Lindquist wears his honors lightly and good-naturedly tolerates the crowds that follow him along the streets of Chicago, recognizing, as he does, that hero-worship is a natural concomitant of the human family. We may add that his collection of Norway is even bigger and better than ever before.

—Henry Ades Fowler again is about to shy his castor in the philatelic ring and we have it that he is going to enter the stamp business and make a specialty of auction sales in Chicago.

—The hard-pressed cartoonists are taking to stamps as a theme for pictorial exploitation with an ardor that we commend. The other Sunday, King in his Gasoline Alley, depicted little Skeezix pasted all over with stamps and asking the letter-carrier to take him to his grandmother, postage paid. Murphy, in his Toots and Casper, shows the baby crying his dear little heart out for something that his fond parents are at a loss to discover, until they find that it is the stamp on a letter that caught his eye. The last picture shows the little pawn of love looking at the red stamp with the air of a philatelic connoisseur.

—Italy is considering the advisability of renting advertising space on its stamps. The privilege will go to business houses that pay 60% of their earnings to the government. The matter is in the air and it is doubtful whether it finds the earth.

—An interesting feature of Poole's next sale is the fact that over five hundred lots of early imperforates only will be sold.

—J. J. Prendergast sends us a Mexican official cover. The envelope bears the marking "Official Mexico D. F." with the date in the center. It looks like a postmark and is applied where a stamp would ordinarily be found.

—We wish to announce the removal of A. H. Pike to 21 Moeller St., Binghamton, N. Y., where he is very pleasantly located in a house ideally built to accommodate his hobbies. He intends to continue his various lines of work as in the past. It is probable that a stamp club will be organized shortly, as Mr. Pike has already found some stamp men. He will index the WEEKLY for 1923 and has two other years in process of completion.

—At the convention of the American Philatelic Society at Washington last August, the death of R. W. Boisselier of St. Louis was announced. Mr. Boisselier was an old collector who for many years was devoted to philately, and in the Chicago Journal we find the following despatch from St. Louis dated Oct. 16th:

"Richard W. Boisselier, a public accountant, who died Aug. 1, had a hobby of collecting postage stamps, as shown in an inventory made by the St. Louis Union Trust Company, executor of his estate. He has seventeen albums of stamps, among them being $1,700 in uncanceled United States stamps. A large part of the collection consists of United States stamps of unusual issue. Boisselier paid $35 a year for a safe deposit box in which to keep the collection. The inventory also shows stock in various mining companies with a par value of $17,290, but which is said to be of only nominal value, and $2,000 life insurance. Boisselier left his estate to his wife."

—The following order by the post-office has been sent out for publication:

"In order to provide for the sending of heavy clothing, blankets, etc., to earthquake victims, the Japanese postal authorities have agreed, as a temporary measure, up to and including December 31, to accept from the United States parcel-post packages up to a weight limit of 22 pounds.—PAUL HENDERSON, Second Assistant Postmaster General."

—H. Raymond Stiles, Schenectady, N. Y., can get no replies to letters addressed Carl Hiemenz, 557 W. 124 St., N. Y. City. Interested parties should confer with Mr. Stiles.

—A. A. Leve informs us that the U. S. exhibit at London will be shown in the First National Bank Building, Syracuse, October 29-31.

—It was stated recently in the WEEKLY that the Pitney-Bowles meter had not yet been used in Canada, but J. Fisher informs us that he has the 2c postmarked Sept. 28 from Toronto, Canada. It is being used by the firm of T. Eaton Co.

—A new advertising cancellation comes from Pasadena:—"Fiftieth Anniversary Pasadena All the Year 1924."

—Herbert T. Putnam, Sherman Ave., Glens Falls, N. Y., would be pleased to hear from collectors living within ten miles of that city with the purpose of organizing a stamp club.

—In the Masonic Digest of July, 1923, we find an admirable article by George H. Grinnell of Los Angeles, appropriately illustrated, entitled Stamp Collecting. The editorial note prefaces the article: "The author of this article was given a handful of old stamps not long ago, forty-three of which were sold for a cash consideration of $65,000. We asked Brother Grinnell for the story but instead he gave us this very interesting story of stamp collecting in general. We hope to get the other story for a later number." Then, in the September issue of the same magazine we find a readable essay based on Masonic teachings, entitled "What Do You Most Desire?" and illustrated by a cut of Mr. Grinnell.

—Our old friend and enthusiast on western franks, Mr. Fred Ross of New York, has been heard from and we learn that he is traveling with The Cat and the Canary, the record-smashing play, as manager. We hope that he soon makes our town, as when he does, we shall have a seat free.

—We enter a news aspirant in the camouflage contest. A young man at a dealer's place said that he was buying stamps for his girl's little brother but from the way in which he scrutinized the stamps we think that he knew more about them than the aforesaid little brother.

—From Mr. R. McCumber, Chicago, we have had word that he exhibited in his store window a sheet containing an unused set of Columbians on the occasion of the thirtieth anniversary of the World's Fair at Chicago, with the result that "crowds were around the window much of the time." We think that a well-selected stamp display is a fine advertising attraction for a shop window, almost anywhere.

—A general talk on philately will be given from radio station W B Z at Springfield, on October 23, by a member of the Springfield Stamp Club. This talk was gotten up by the Springfield Junior Philatelic Society on the occasion of its second anniversary.—T. J. GRIDLEY, Sec.

THE PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT

Edited by F. W. ALLEN,
312 Walnut St., Minneapolis, Minn.

The first Harding precancel that comes to my attention is Chicago. Since its arrival I have seen the following: Windom, Minn., Van Buren, Ark., Pewaukee, Wisc., McCook, Nebr., and Osborne, Kansas. The Osborne is precanceled in red ink and shows up quite well. New York is the first city I've noticed using the new six cent. In a small lot of stuff I picked out one, together with a six cent Aeroplane. Both were precanceled in the staggered roller type, the former being normal and the latter inv. A number of cities are in the field with the new fifteen cent. Dallas, Chicago, New York, Kansas City and Watertown, N. Y., were the first to my knowledge precanceling it. The fourteen cents from McCook, Nebr., Milwaukee (handstamp), Gaston, Ind. (a new type), Portsmouth, Ohio and Paonia, Colo., also arrived during the week. This is going to be a very popular stamp with the precancel collector.

The coils are interesting precancels and I am of the opinion that there will be considerable specialism in them. The government recently contracted for a number of machines to furnish fifty cities. At this writing these coils are becoming quite current. The overprint reads up or down in light plain capitals of medium size, and usually on each stamp the name appears twice. There will be some scarce varieties now that the old type coils are being superseded by the new. Chicago is already using the new four cent, and by the way I see that Chicago has precanceled the new issue one cent, Schermak perforation. There has appeared in the Precancel Gazette and Junior Philatelist a list of cities which were furnished with this standard coil type. It needs no repetition here. Sufficient to say that New York, Chicago, St. Paul, Detroit, St. Louis, Nashville, Kansas City and Toledo have made their appearance in the course of the last few weeks. At some later date I intend to write an article on coils and so shall not speak further of all the various types used in the last eighteen months. It is my belief that this new box type will become a standard and that there will be less variety from now on.

Ashland, Pa.—Willard P. Snyder informs me that this city has been using precancels since Dec., 1921. All values from one to fifty cents and the dues up to five cents are precanceled. From a sample submitted I see that the type is the U-23 roller.

Beloit, Wis.—Mr. A. S. Mark solves a question which has been in my mind for some time. I wondered why Beloit stopped using the U-18 electro and returned to the old up and down roller, a much less striking cancellation. Mr. Mark writes as follows: "There was only one printing of stamps with the U-18 electrotype plate. Because the printers charged such an exorbitant price the P. M. went back to Type I (the up and down rubber roller) and has been doing the work himself with this apparatus." Needless to say the press printed varieties will be scarce.

Barnesville, Ga.—This city, besides using the U-14 electro, precancels with a handstamp similar to U-16. Have seen the 1, 3, 4, 5 and 6 cent.

Brockton, Mass.—No longer shall Brockton printed precancels be a smudgy affair. They are now coming in a new sort of ink which shows up beautifully. Perhaps the bureau is furnishing the ink to offices in order that prettier precancels be the result. However, that is just a guess. Brockton is the only city I have noticed using this distinctive fluid.

Boston, Mass.—In my notes of Sept. 17 I called attention to a Boston 2 cent imperforate, which is uncatalogued. Mr. L. G. Barrett sends for inspection imperforate pairs of the 1, 2 and 3 cents engraved and the same values, surface printings. Mr. H. L. Nichols writes that he has a fine strip of four of the 2 cent imperf. Finally Mr. Hans Schmidtmann of Worthington, Mass., says he has just received an imperf. block of six of the new one cent precanceled in the type discussed herewith. This is the electro type, showing Boston, Mass., in two lines with single bar above, between and below and catalogued under Boston as Type IV.

Cypress, Ala.—If ever a precancel had a southern flavor this one has. Cypress, Ala., comes handstamped in two lines of medium sized caps between bars. In sorting over a lot I ran across a number of the above, all of the one cent denomination.

Denton, Texas.—I uncovered a pair of seven cents handstamped in a bluish ink DENTON, TEX., the type being fairly large capitals between bars which stood out prettily in its blue dress against the black background.

Ennis, Texas.—Ennis is now using the U-24 roller which will be Type II. Type I is also a roller but the letters are much smaller. In this latter type reading down I have a 1 cent Pilgrim which is quite a rarity. Some new Pilgrim precancels that have come to light are Virginia, Minn. (U-6) 2c inverted; Newark, Ohio (large handstamp) 1 and 2 cents; Iowa City, Iowa (U-6) 1 cent; Monticello, Iowa (U-16) 1 and 2 cents; Maquoketa, Iowa (U-24) 5 cents. The Victory precancels have just about all been used up but a couple of uncatalogued ones are Maquoketa, Iowa, and Virginia, Minn., both normally canceled. I might mention here that San Francisco is using large numbers of these stamps. The reading up variety is about twenty times scarcer than the reading down.

Ithaca, N. Y.—A roller type is coming on current issues. The letters are tall and rather thin between lines. I have seen quite a few values.

New York City.—In a job lot of precancels I found half a dozen one cent coils perforated 14 vertically. These were precanceled with a thickish sort of a handstamp very much like U-1. I am informed that it was either the Funk-Wagnalls Co. or Crowell Co. who used them. I shall be indebted to any interested reader for further information on these stamps.

Paonia, Colo.—New type handstamps precanceling 25 at a time have been furnished Paonia, and Pueblo, Colo., and Casper, Wyo. This information is furnished me by Dr. W. I. Mitchell, who writes: Paonia, Colo., is precanceling all values from one cent to two dollars old issue together with one and two cent dues, also the following new issue: 2, 4, 5, 10, 14 and 25c. The 5c are all inverted and 25c all reading up. No errors or doubles and no "made to order" stuff. The type is in large caps somewhat similar to U-4 electro but thinner. You should have seen the lot going out today on peach baskets. A carload of baskets with anywhere from 56c to $1.44 on each one, going to Pueblo, Colorado Springs, and Denver. They will be used continuously until after apple season is over in November. Mighty few will be saved as they are all pasted flat on the tops of the crates and baskets. The old 2, 4 and 5 cents are all used up and o a few 10 cents remain.

Seattle, Wash.—Bushnell lists o one type when in reality there are the Type II is an odd sort of a roller wh overprints Seattle twice on a stamp which resembles Type I in size and s of makeup. Type III is a roller m up of plain medium sized capitals w out having any lines or bars. This impresses the name twice on a stamp three lines in a light plain styled lette

Catalogues of precanceled stamps be purchased through me, as I shal glad to help out any party desirous securing them. The edition listing P 11 percancels sells for 60c; the one ing Perf. 12 only, for $1.00; and the issue catalogue for 35c. The new P 10 catalogue will soon be off the p Also I am always ready to give in mation on this branch of the hobby.

Notes of interest are acknowle with thanks from Chas. Metz, W Black, and others. If Mr. Ward-Mal of Chicago will submit for inspection Cincinnati oddity I shall be glad chronicle it.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The man who does the "funn Hitz and Mrs., shows one of the cha ters ornamented with a sheet of sta on his coat-tails as a result of having down on the stamps. Even so, we ca say that the artist is a philatelist a calls the sheet an "entire page of pos stamps."

—Where is that philatelic le bureau? PHILATELY IN THE FAR EAST.

By L. Andree.

The hobby of Kings finds as many ardent collectors in the outposts of Empire as it does in Britain or America. In my experience collectors abroad do not, as a rule, go in for all-world collection but confine themselves to those special countries in which they are interested. Taking the collections on a whole I should group the countries they specialise in somewhat as follows:—

Biggest percentage—British Colonials.

Next biggest percentage — French Colonials.

Next biggest percentage—Portuguese Colonials.

Next biggest percentage — Dutch Colonials.

Others again specialise in War and Air issues.

Singapore.—The capital of the Straits Settlements with the adjacent State of Johore and the Federated Malay States as a hinterland, is a veritable Clapham junction of the East. It is practically the jumping-off ground for Borneo, Sumatra, Siam, Java, and the Philippines. It is an up-to-date city with docks and wharves extending for miles, is electrically lit throughout, and has a population of about 750,000.

Singapore boasts of three live stamp shops where one can purchase stamps of both the expensive and inexpensive variety. For some time past nearly every stamp window in the place was choc-a-bloc with zoological varieties from North Borneo, which country as one tourist tersely remarked, had more stamps per capita than any two stamp-issuing countries in the Postal Union—and the majority of these issues were held in Singapore. In fact, Borneo issues got into such bad odour at one time that collectors began to look upon it as a country

Where art of man deviseth,
  Apt pictures put on stamps
And revenue contriveth,
  To give that place a chance.

But things have rapidly changed, and vendors who once stocked unprofitable rubbish are now stocking the better class stamps only.

One of the finest collections of the Straits Settlements, which was recently sold in London for something like £10,000, was put together by Mr. Jas. Bicknell, at one time Auditor-General of the Straits. Another fine collection of Straits and F.M.S., but which is not likely to come into the market, is a collection owned by a very prominent official who at one time held the office of Deputy-Governor of the Settlements.

Singapore, peculiarly situated on the cross roads of both Indian Ocean and China Seas, is a place of great interest to philatelists who, if they are keen on enlarging the Asiatic portions of their collections, can obtain at a small outlay the stamps of at least a dozen different countries.

In the immediate neighbourhood of the Straits Settlements of which Singapore is the capital, are situated the native States of Kedah, Kelantan, Trengganu, the Federated Malay States and Johore, with Siam, Sarawak, Borneo, Labuan, and Brunei, lying within easy reach, whilst Timor, Sumatra, Java, Dutch Borneo and the Philippines are only a few hundred miles away. The stamps of all these territories both old and current are always procurable in the native shops in Singapore.

Singapore, owing to its cosmopolitan nature, opens up a wide field to philatelists who are anxious to procure some of the classic issues of the Far East, which are often picked up at the weekly stamp auctions where collectors and dealers often clash in friendly rivalry.

I think it is Kipling who states in c of his works that "If you miss a man London and fail to meet him in P Said, you are bound to run up agai him in Singapore." The truth of t has often been realised by many a c who has had the recollection of meeti in Singapore some old friends in p lately, who from all reports were lieved to be away in the Old Country the enjoyment of a holiday.

In Kuching (the capital of Sarawa all bona-fide tourists who are desir of obtaining a complete set of obso Sarawak after the issue of 1900, co obtain a set from the Treasury in Ku ing on production of an order issued the Rajah, who is a keen collector hi self and has one of the finest collecti of Asiatic rarities in the Far East.

The Federated Malay States.—T Federated Malay States, which compr the States of Selangor, Perak, Pana Negri Sembilan, Sungei Ujong, and recently-acquired States of Trengga and Kelantan, is a country as large France but with a population of so thing under five million inhabitants.

In the old days each of these Sta had its own ruler (a Malay Sultan) w issued his own stamps and, with assistance of a political agent, manag the affairs of his State. But with advent of Sir Frank Swettenham, at time Resident General, the whole these States were federated and pla under one administration, which, course, meant a big saving in the reve of the country.

The Federated Malay States and Straits Settlements are exceedin wealthy territories. The development the rubber industry of that country one of the world's industrial roman and is a long story I need not tell h In nine years the quantity increased times, and the value twenty times. attention paid to the rubber industry unfortunately, retarded the developm of general agriculture, but the Gove ment have just awakened from t sleep and are opening up huge a which will no doubt attract further ca tal into the country and provide w for thousands of people.

Siam.—Almost adjacent to the Malay States and only three days' from Singapore, is the highly-develo and rich agricultural State of Si whose enlightened ruler, King Rama is as keen a collector of Siams as Crown Prince of Japan is for the sta of his country.

Bangkok, the capital of Siam, wh is picturesquely situated on the ba of the Mekong river, is a modern of some 75,000 inhabitants, possessin fine service of trams and railways wh traverse all parts of the country. It city of beautiful parks, and one of sights seldom missed by the tourist a visit to the myriads of temples which Siam is famous. Bangk though out of the beaten track, posse one of the most progressive stamp c in the Far East, the members of wh not long ago issued one of the m attractive handbooks of the older more modern issues of Siam.

Java.—Another little spot in the where stamp collectors are as thick blackberries is Java, the gem of Orient, where from January to Dec ber it is one eternal summer.

Batavia, the capital of the Dutch Indies, is an up-to-date city with a po lation of something like 850,000. houses in the city are situated in midst of beautiful and picturesque g dens which are conceded to rank as foremost in the East. Through the w directed effects of horiculturists, ai by the heat of a tropical sun, J possesses some of the finest flower g dens seen in the eastern world.

Batavia is also the possessor of a r live stamp association which me monthly in the club's own buildi which is equipped with reading a billiard rooms. It was mooted some t ago that members start a monthly a tion in the club, in order to attract m bers in the country whose attendance was at times very irregular but, as this was thought by some of the members to run counter to the monthly auctions held by the Government, the idea was abandoned for the time.

The Government auctions held monthly in Batavia consist of the sale of stamps of the Dutch East Indies and Holland, which is a collection made by the Post Office of the Stamps attached to documents of the Department. In the Indies all stamps intended for parcels are affixed on a declaration form which is the property of the Postal Authorities. These are kept for one month, and at the end of that period are made up in lots and sold to the highest bidder.

If there are counter attractions in the city on the date of these auctions, one is often able to secure large parcels of the high values of Holland and the Dutch East Indies at a very nominal figure.

Hongkong.—Hongkong, one of our oldest possessions on the China Coast, is a wonderful shipping centre which, according to tonnage, ranks 4th in the shipping registry of the world.

As Hongkong possesses a very large floating population, the possibilities of starting a stamp club or stamp association has been looked upon as very remote indeed. A hazardous attempt was made some years ago by the skippers of some of the coasting vessels to get up a small club, but it only survived a few months. Irregular attendance and paucity of membership they say. was the cause of its short-lived career.

But with all these drawbacks philatelists still manage to transact business and do a little interchanging in the roomy and comfortable lounges of the various hotels, which are often supplemented by purchases from itinerant vendors so common in all Eastern Ports.

As Macao is situated in close proximity, a large number of the sturdier sons of Portugal find suitable employment in the busy port of Hongkong where, whatever their hands find to do, they do it with their might, stamp collecting being one of their pet hobbies.

Nearly all stamp dealers in Hongkong are young Portuguese from Macao, with the usual sprinkling of Chinese, of course, who, as a rule, only handle the cheaper grade of stamps. In short, if there is anything good in the stamp line in Hongkong you can be sure that the Portuguese of Macao have got it.

Shanghai.—Shanghai, like ancient Gaul, is divided into seven parts, first of all there is the large French concession with its pretty boulevards for all the world like a bit of Paris transplanted in the East. Then there is the British, American, German, Russian, Scandinavian and Japanese portions of the town, all of smaller dimensions, but quite as busy as the older colony which was conceded to the French many years ago. In no country in the world (Constantinople included) are there so many Consular flags flying as in Shanghai, the model settlement, the Queen of the East.

Shanghai is typically a Western city, Western in architecture, Western in embellishments, but only Eastern in appearance. It is an up-to-date city with a population of 950,000, and is noted for its beautiful parks and drives. World travellers will tell you there is no place in the world that harbours a more friendly class of foreigner than China. (The Chinese, by the way, call everyone a foreigner who is not a son of the soil.) And whether one come from Burma or Birmingham makes but little difference in the hospitality of these kind and homely folk situated quite 10,000 miles away from home. In fact it would be easier to avoid one's own shadow than to try to avoid the hospitality of the Shanghai public. It is a country devoted to public brotherhood and the idea and ideals of fraternity as is demonstrated by the various clubs and fraternal orders existing all through that country.

Here, business is based on friendship and as business is a matter of co-operation the only true co-operation that is possible is where there is a perfect understanding between those engaged.

Prior to the closing down of all Foreign Postal Agencies, Shanghai held the unique advantage of a network of postal systems embracing five different foreign Post Offices in her midst, viz.: the British, French, Russian, American, Japanese and Chinese Post Offices.

As all up-country mails had to pass through the Chinese Imperial Post Office, all foreign postal agencies had to send their mails to the Central Office of the Chinese Imperial Post, who alone were responsible for the transit of all inland matter.

Besides a large number of native vendors in the city and surroundings, Shanghai possesses a large and progressive stamp club with a membership running into quite half a hundred.

The one and only regret among stamp collectors in those far-flung outposts of Empire is the conspicuous absence of any sort of a collectors' journal or stamp information bureau where matters concerning philately can be gleaned, and it is to The Philatelic Magazine, which I have very frequently seen in my travels, and which is highly esteemed, that collectors all over the Orient readily turn their eyes to. As all overseas collectors are dependent on offers made to them from dealers at home, and are particularly responsive to those offers of stamps, outside of their own particular neighbourhood, such as those of New Europe, Br. West Indies and the United States, it should amply compensate any dealer with a reputation in fair dealing to cater for this market, where there is always a ready demand for the better class stamps.—Philatelic Magazine.

GERMAN STAMP DELUGE.

Recent Provisionals swept away by further rise in postal tariff.

Of the eleven surcharged provisional stamps at 8,000 and 20,000 marks recently announced in the "P. M.", only four have appeared—in spite of the official decree—as follows:—

"8 tausend" on 30pf (numeral—old watermark).

"20 tausend" on 12mk, on 25mk (both Harvesters).

Ditto, on 200mk (small numeral).

A still newer rise of tariff has, however, meanwhile swept away these stamps, too, and brought a second series of provisionals in other denominations in their stead. On September 1st were issued:—

"5 tausend" on 40pf orange (numeral—new watermark).

"15 tausend" on 40mk green (Harvesters).

"30 tausend" on 10mk blue (Harvesters).

"75 tausend' on 400mk green and "75 tausend" on 1000mk green (both small numeral).

It is interesting to observe that the two stamps surcharged with "75 tausend" are both green, whereas the 400 marks in an unoverprinted state only exists in brown, and the 1000 marks in grey. One can only suppose that these two stamps have been specially printed in green in order to make a clearer background for the black lettering of the two provisionals.

On the same day was issued a "definite" 100,000 marks stamp, red, in the current broad numeral type. That the "definiteness" of this large size stamp, which on appearance had already sunk to the level of the every-day postal fee, will not last three weeks, may be taken for granted.

Three provisional Official stamps have also been made by surcharging old Officials with higher denominations:

"5 tausend" on 5mk brown.

"20 tausend" on 30pf orange (without "21").

"75 tausend" on 50mk violet.

The surcharge is, in the case of every stamp, black and two-lined, the former value being barred out in some of them.

Further surprises along the whole line are in store. This new deluge of stamps which, to the astonishment of all collectors, has so suddenly swept over Germany, may be illustrated by the following figures: On August 23rd an ordinary inland letter in Germany still cost 1000mk, from August 24th 20,000, and since September 1st it costs 75,000mk!

The German Post Office, whose fees for several years had, from month to month, been left farther behind by the mark depreciation and which in consequence had at last a deficit of billions of paper marks, is now overtaking this sin of omission with seven-league boots. Since September 1st it has (like the State Railway) placed its fees on the basis of a standard figure which, in case of necessity, is to be multiplied twice a month by a new index number.

The effect of this sliding scale on new stamp issues cannot as yet be estimated.—Stamp Collecting.

ALEXANDER UNDERWOOD & CO.

By Christopher West.

This firm first appears in the Directory of Newark, New Jersey, for 1867, at 115 New Jersey Railroad Avenue. In that Directory the firm name is given as Underwood, Burchard & Co., and the members were Alexander Underwood, Henry M. Burchard, John H. Hubbard, John B. Fellows, all of Newark, and William L. Carthers of Utica, New York. Mr. Underwood resided at 872 Elm St., and the other gentlemen resided at 78 Elm Street, Newark. The Directories for 1867, 1868 and 1869 list Alexander Underwood, or Alexander Underwood & Co., at 115 or 115-117 New Jersey Railroad Avenue and during, and for many years after that date, Mr. Underwood lived at 78 Elm Street, which is about two blocks from the location of the factory. The Directory for 1867-68 lists Mr. Burchard and Mr. Fellows as residing at 78 Elm Street, but they do not appear in any of the later directories.

Henry M. Underwood is listed as a clerk, residing at 78 Elm Street in the Directory for 1868. Another son, named E. Alexander Underwood, is listed in the Newark Directories as early as 1873 and, until he died in September, 1920, was engaged in banking and other business in Newark.

The following data regarding Alexander Underwood is taken from "The Underwood Families of America" (1913) :—

"Alexander Underwood was born October 10, 1810, at Forty Fort, Luzerne County, Penna. He was an architect and builder, mill owner, and patentee. He resided first at Newark, N. J., but on his second marriage removed to Ilion, N. Y. In his first shop, * * * (now site of the Masonic Temple.—H. M. U.) he placed the first steam engine brought to Ilion, since so famous for its numerous manufactures. Here he conducted a sash, blind, and door factory. Later he invented numerous forms of machinery, including the first automatic machine for manufacturing matches (1858), and later the first twine binder for harvesting grain. For a time he was engaged in the manufacture of matches at Newark, N. J., then lived in Kenosha, Wis., and finally returned to Newark, N. J., where he died June 7, 1890."

The Newark factory on New Jersey Railroad Avenue was next to the southeast corner of Green Street and the block No. 113 to 123 N. J. R. R. Avenue is now occupied by a large brick factory building. At the time the Underwood factory was in operation the tracks of the New Jersey Railroad ran through the avenue at the street level. The middle of the avenue occupied by the railroad tracks has since been elevated and is now a section of the main line of the Pennsylvania System. Stamp collectors—and others—traveling over this line between New York and Philadelphia pass the site previously occupied by the front door of the Underwood factory, a few hundred feet south of the present Newark station.

On the editorial page of Mekeel's Weekly of November 14, 1914, the following appeared :—

"In days gone by, one of the most ardent collectors of United States private proprietary stamps of the Civil War period was Mr. W. H. McDonald of Chicago. His collection of the stamps in question was a famous one and he devoted many a pleasant hour to his specimens. Recently Mr. McDonald had a business visitor whose face impressed him as being one with which he was familiar, but, bromidically speaking, he could not place. The caller, Mr. Underwood, was certain that he had never met Mr. McDonald before and so told him several times in answer to Mr. McDonald's puzzled inquiries. However, McDonald could not reconcile himself to the thought that he had not come in contact with Mr. Underwood in the past. An inspiration came to Mr. McDonald when the conversation developed a clue and he said: 'I remember where I have seen your face,—on the Underwood Match stamp of Chicago.' The gentleman was the Mr. Underwood whose portrait appears on the stamp in question; he was the Alex. Underwood of Alex. Underwood & Company, the match manufacturers of Chicago. * * * * *

"To pursue the subject: In explaining how his portrait came to appear on the stamp, Mr. Underwood says that he had arranged to have the engraving of a locomotive as the central design and he had the drawing ready to send to Washington, where the die was to be made at an expense of three hundred and fifty dollars. Unknown to Mr. Underwood his son substituted his father's picture for that of the 'steam engine;' and Mr. Underwood was surprised beyond measure to discover his portrait on the stamps and as a modest man, we take it that he was somewhat chagrined at the revelation. Mr. Underwood says that his company (in Kenosha—H. M. U.) sold out to the Park City Match Company of Kenosha, Wisconsin."

H. F. COLMAN

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Quite likely the frequent passage of trains on the New Jersey R. R. before the door of his factory suggested to Mr. Underwood the idea of using a locomotive for the principal feature of his stamp.

In a letter dated August 5, 1923, Mr. H. M. Underwood, who is now living in Waukegan, Illinois, and is in his 80th year, writes :—

"I am the 'bad boy' who disregarding paternal orders substituted the photo of 'the pater,' Alex. Underwood, in lieu of a locomotive in the order for the dies for stamps of Alexander Underwood & Co. If this enrolls Alexander Underwood in the 'hall of fame' of match manufacturers, the honor is well deserved, in consideration for the limited reward usually accruing to inventors. * * * *

The Electric Match Co. used the Underwood dies exclusively—at first by permission—later by purchase."

The Chicago Directories list the Electric Match Co. in the editions of 1870, 1871 and 1873. In 1870 and 1871 George N. Jackson was President and E. C. Long was Treasurer. In 1873 S. D. Perry was Vice-President, E. C. Long, Treasurer, and H. M. Underwood Superintendent. In 1870, the address was 43 So. Water Street, in 1871 at 11 and 13 Wabash Avenue and in 1873 at 10 Congress Street.

Mr. H. M. Underwood has kindly presented the writer with several bill and letter heads, which confirm the data given in the Directories. On one of these, dated Chicago, June 20, 1871, the officers are Geo. N. Jackson, President, S. D. Perry, Vice President, and E. C. Long, Treasurer. The heading is

"Office of The ELECTRIC MATCH COMPANY
11 & 13 Wabash Avenue"

and in small type at the left, enclosed in a diamond, is "H. M. Underwood,—Factory at Kenosha, Wis.—Superintendent" in three lines.

The most interesting of these letter heads is in different type from the former and the address is 97 West Madison Street. The date in manuscript is Oct. 18, 1871. Across the top of the sheet in small type is printed "Having shared the common fate at our old quarters 11 and 13 Wabash Ave., we are again settled, warranting our matches as usual, 'Sure Fire and Safe'."

The great Chicago fire occurred on the 8th and 9th of October, 1871. Americans can well be proud of the enterprise which, after experiencing such a terrific disaster, could, within ten days, find new quarters, have new stationery printed and be ready for business.

The Electric Match Co. of Chicago took over the property of the Park City Match Co. of Kenosha after the latter firm had bought the Kenosha business of Alexander Underwood. As the dies of the Park City Match Co. stamps had been sold to James L. Clark of Oshkosh in 1867, the Electric Match Co. did not obtain nor use either of the Park City dies.

The Underwood factory in Newark probably ceased operation in 1869 or 1870 and subsequently the Underwood die was sold to the Electric Match Co. The latter concern had the firm name in the central disk over the Underwood portrait changed to read "Electric Match Co." and this altered design exists in the form of die proofs. The Electric Match Co. had no stamps from the altered die—there is no evidence that a plate was ever made from the die—but they used stamps from the Underwood plate for a year or two previous to March, 1872. All the available evidence indicates that some of the Underwood stamps on old paper and all of those on silk paper were used by the Electric Match Co. of Chicago at their Kenosha factory.

For additional data regarding the earlier and later history of Alexander Underwood's connection with the match business the reader is referred to the articles on the Park City Match Co. stamps.

The Boston Book gives the following data :—

Die approved, Oct. 23, 1867.
First issued, Nov. 7, 1867.
Last issued, March, 1872.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
1,762,320 issued on old paper.
220,000 issued on silk paper.

"This die was sold to the Electric Match Co. of Kenosha, Wis., who had it altered, but never used stamps from it."

The Underwood stamp is an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size and the greater part of the design is taken up by a central disk extending the complete width of the stamp, which bears a full-face portrait of Mr. Alexander Underwood. In colored letters above and below the portrait, following the curve of the disk, is inscribed "Alex. Underwood & Co." above and "Matches" below. In each of the four triangular spaces outside the corners of the disk there is a colorless numeral 1, while slightly curved marginal labels at the top and bottom of the stamp are inscribed "One Cent.—U. S. Inter. Rev." Slight floral ornamentation at the four corners squares up the design which otherwise is almost devoid of ornamentation.

The single plate was made by Butler & Carpenter and all the stamps were printed in Philadelphia. The Boston Book lists the yellow green shade on old paper and experimental silk paper, and the blue green shade on old paper and full silk paper, which classification agrees with that of the present writer. The old paper variety has never been common and has a reputation of coming in unsatisfactory condition. The silk paper is very scarce and the condition is also apt to be unsatisfactory. No pair, strip or block of either variety has come the writer's attention.

The old paper was quoted at $1.50 $2.50 from 1886 to 1904, and has priced $3.50 since 1906. The silk pa was quoted at $3.00 by Sterling in 1 and at $3.50 to $4.00 by Scott until 1 when the price was raised to $5.00, a held there until 1906, when the pres quotation of $10.00 was established.

Cancellations

If you have reached a point in your collecting of United States stamps where you feel that a few pages of interesting cancellations might add to the attractiveness of your collection you have only to let us know what you have in mind and we will do the rest.

It doesn't matter if you want 5c 47s with colored "towns" or "Railroads", 3c 51s, 3c 57s, some odd designs, postmasters' names or oddities on the 3c 61s, or just a page of 3c Bank Notes with red, blue and purple cancellations. You can spend $5 or $500 as your ambitions dictate. We are glad to send you the things to look at, for unless you quit collecting, some day you will want these things. We prefer "dealer" references because some smart and unscrupulous people have discovered they do not need a motor truck to carry a small fortune in other people's stamps.

J. O. Moore, Inc., Hammondsport, N. Y.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES.
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

Here is a letter of appreciation for this department that we cannot help printing. Many such letters have come to the editor of this department, and all of them have been somewhat of a reward for the work entailed in the conduct of the work:—

"Enclosed you will find an addressed envelope and postage for registration and will you please enter my name on your list of the collectors who wish to see your duplicate all-over shift on the 1879 1 cent? I am sure you must have a waiting list, your kind offer is such an attractive one.

Please let me tell you how much I am enjoying your department of 'Early Low Values Specialized.' It satisfies a crying need of the collectors who have only small-boy-size purses, and eyes not strong to study out minor varieties for themselves, but who enjoy seeing them when described. Your stamp will be returned promptly."—MABEL MCCLENTHEN, Jefferson, N. Y.

Gilbert M. Burr, Meshoppen, Penn., writes:—

"I wish to express my appreciation of your department on the 'Low Values Specialized' as this is very interesting to me, as I have been working on some of these some time and appreciate the help.

I have a colorless L in a plain block and an X in a block with the extra line at top, as you mention having the 22 of, but 21 is my highest colorless numeral. The X is on the 3c re-engraved.

Can you give me any information on the ordinary numeral cancellations enclosed in circles with bars running horizontally? I have quite a variety but find identical numerals and surrounding design coming from several cities. Were they used without any system, and is there anything published that throws any light on the matter?"

So far as I know these numerals were run without system; New York, Chicago and many other cities used them. For instance, I have some identical with the New York numbers from Poughkeepsie. I believe they were a standard form of steel die stamp sold by a die-making company wherever they could sell them. I think in some cities they were used to designate branch post-offices and in other cities clerks in the post-offices. In the New York (common type of small numeral in a circle with horizontal bars above and below) there are two types, one with the figures seven millimeters high and the other with numerals eight millimeters high. Use of these began about 1879 and was continued for many years.

Mr. Bates E. Clark, of No. 122 South Burdick Street, Kalamazoo, Mich., writes:

"Wiley makes no mention of the orange cancellation on the three cent green. I have one on cover. Bright orange cancellation on stamp and orange town on the envelope (LeRoy, N. Y.)."

I have often heard it said that there never was an orange color used—that this was due to oxidation of the cancelling ink, etc., but I agree with Mr. Clark that there was an orange used. What do some of the other readers of this department think?—ED.

Here is some interesting comment from J. W. Andrews, 208 North Harvey Street, Urbana, Ill., regarding the two cent brown and green (Washington), Nos. 210 and 212:

"I am trying to gather a good bunch of cancellations on these two favorites of mine and have quite a large collection of cancellations in addition to my collection of minor varieties. I have a fair lot of flags, wheels, U. S. monograms, P. O. D. monograms, colored, etc., but there is one cancellation that I have been waiting for for years and that is a real honest to goodness red (an 1847 red) on this stamp. Evidently there "ain't no sech thing." However, I have two beautiful large lavender grids on the green, and a beautiful Green grid of the same size on a brown.

So far I have paid no attention to the paper varieties, except that I have five or six stitch watermarks on each. There is an experimental rib on the brown that I have been after but without success so far, although a copy was in a recent auction.

My latest good find was a three cent, 1851, with red Paid Three in circle.

I have a fair bunch of shifts on No. 206. One strong one is the stamp with a line through the O of ONE, through the U. S. and in the A of POSTAGE, along with other minor shifts.

Have about twenty copies of 208, one shift. There is a line in the white space immediately above the POST section of the upper label. This is the only shift that I have seen on this stamp."

OUR FIVE-YEAR HONOR CLUB.

We give the place of honor this week to Louis A. White of Detroit, who not only renews his subscription for five years, but adds to his check the amount necessary to purchase six back volumes of the WEEKLY. In this connection we may say that our stock of these back volumes is becoming limited and interested parties will do well to make their wants known. Mr. White is no doubt well known to Detroit collectors. To use the language of his letter-head he is "Importer and converter of shirtings." We thank him for this tangible support of the WEEKLY.

The managing editor visited Salt Lake City in August, but neglected to take with him a list of Salt Lake subscribers. We now wish it had been his privilege to lunch at the Utah Cafe and come in contact with the proprietor, J. Bogris, who is interested enough in the WEEKLY to send his check for $5.00 for membership in the Honor Club.

"I could say any number of nice things about the WEEKLY but I believe my action in re-enlisting for a five-year 'hitch' is the sincerest proof I could offer." With these words Ralph H. Nickerson, of Houghton, Mich., takes his place as a member of the Honor Club with a five-year renewal. Mr. Nickerson is connected with the Mining Gazette Co., at Houghton, which publishes no fewer than four newspapers for the nearby territory.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The cost of sending a letter from London to Rome in 1862 had to be ascertained by the Hepworth studios when Cecil Hepworth was making "Comin' Thro' the Rye." Stamp collectors could not give the information. Eventually an authority discovered that the letter had to have a sixpenny stamp—the red Victorian. The stamps were procured and they duly played their tiny part in the film.—New York Times.

—J. Schmerl of San Francisco sends us a colored cartoon feature entitled. "Toots and Casper," in which philately figures in a wonderful degree. A lusty infant is seated on the floor exercising his vocal chords in a very demonstrative fashion. Father and mother are both pictured as giving the babe everything under the sun to appease his wrath, until finally the disgusted father throws a letter upon the floor and the infant catching sight of the stamp is immediately pacified. It is some cartoon.

—We have been shown a new advertising cancellation by Frank A. Goldsmith:—"Constructing Riverton Irrigation Project 120,000 Acres." It comes from Riverton, Wyoming

—We are advised by P. J. Drossos that Crete, Yvert & Tellier No. 22 can now be considered official as the stamp has been furnished to most of the persons who received complete sets of the provisionals in June. There was no public sale of the stamp, the remaining stock having been bought up by speculating officials who have disposed of most of their stocks to dealers.

—We are much pleased to hear of the organization of stamp clubs at high schools and other educational institutions; and it is comforting to know that in some instances the students get the encouragement of the instructors in their stamp work. The Sentous Junior High School Stamp Club is still going at a good clip and evidently it has gathered a momentum that will carry it through the next five years, for has not a check for five dollars been received from Mr. Geo. H. Grinnell of Los Angeles, Calif., who has taken charge of this club, for a five-year renewal of subscription to the WEEKLY? It has. Mr. Grinnell says that the WEEKLY is absolutely necessary to any stamp club and that he wants to be sure that none of the members is lost because of "expired subscription." We know that Mr. Wylie will not object if we welcome this member of the five-year club.

—Mr. W. C. Michaels was unanimously elected president of the Kansas City Bar Association at the annual election held recently, taking the place occupied heretofore by Senator A. L. Cooper. Mr. Michaels is one of our ablest philatelists, who has been to the fore as a collector for many years; and we congratulate him on his accession to the honor shown him by his legal associates.

—In the Stamp Club Journal we read that in the library of the London Stamp Club there are two thousand monographs of all kinds, not to mention over 1,500 volumes of stamp journals that may be consulted by members, free of charge.

—Mr. N. S. Hufnell of Wilmington, Delaware, says: "I am in receipt of a letter from my correspondent in Germany. He states that there has been a law passed, whereby the German postal censor opens registered mail and confiscates U. S. A. money that might be enclosed. Do you know of this or is it a rumor growing out of the reported dishonesty of some of the German postal employees?" We take no stock in this report and nothing has appeared in the postal news that we have seen to give it the color of truth.

—We rejoice to know that illness in the home of Mr. Edward S. Knapp, the Confederate prize-winner, has been overcome; and we learn that Mr. Knapp is now installed in his home at 158 E. 64th Street, New York City.

—Our managing editor, Mr. Wylie, turned in his card for 73 net in the Wenham, Mass., golf tournament, and got the honors for the best net score, leading a field of eighteen players.

—We hope to publish a most valuable treatise on prices on Confederate states stamps by Mr. Charles J. Phillips, who has made a study of the subject, and who, in common with some other experts, maintain that the present prices do not truly indicate the real worth of the stamps.

—A 52 paged price list is at hand from Wendover Neefus, Hudson, N. Y. It is devoted to U. S. and colonies and to say the least is "some" price list.

at he would offer for the collection. e dealer contented himself by saying t if the seller wished to dispose of his g ds, he should put a price on them. ile it is customary for dealers to make o rs on collections, they would be on s nd ground if they would refuse to say at they will give for them. It is fair t say that the seller should appraise his o stamps and not await the offer of t dealer. We understand that some of t dealers do not make offers when the c ector asks for them. There is somet g to be said on both sides, but logically the dealer has the better of the argument.

—A new advertising cancellation comes from Portland, Oregon, as follows: "Pacific International Live Stock Exposition, Nov. 3-10."

—"I see in your No. 1707 an interesting print of the Canadian postage meter marking. These meter machines are in use in England, but not to any large extent. I, however, beg to enclose you copies of two that are—one is very similar to the one given of Canada and all one color, but the other is in two colors, i.e., the name of town in black ink and the 'value' in red ink. This is somewhat extraordinary, as, from the fact of the red part being slightly tinged with black it would appear that the whole franking is done at one operation, also the words 'Great Britain' appears on all our meter frankings, while it does not do so on any of our postage stamps."—GEO. W. SMITH.

—It begins to look as though the S. P. A. means business. Its Committee on Ways and Means, appointed to adjust matters on the irregularities of members who failed to settle promptly with the Sales Department, at the annual convention in Washington, reported it had accumulated several hundred dollars as the starter toward this Refund. Disbursements to those having had losses will start soon, we understand. The new president, Victor W. Rotnem, is the right man in the right place.

—The U. S. Government Philatelic Exhibit which was recently shown at the International Exhibition in London, will be on view at the club rooms of the Boston Philatelic Society, 322 Tremont Building, Boston, Tuesday, November 6, from 8 to 10 p. m. All collectors in Boston and vicinity are cordially invited.

—The volume of publicity that philately is receiving is great and we wish that it were possible to measure it accurately. We have never made any serious attempt to preserve the clippings from newspapers and other publications that we have received in the course of the past twenty-five years as editor of the WEEKLY, but we should be interested in seeing just how many inches of publicity philately has received during the past three years, for instance. We do not suppose that any person who has been in a position to secure the notices has made a scrap-book of them.

—The tendency to ignore the damaged stamp seems to be growing and the market value of the defective specimen is becoming weaker. It is a question whether we cannot become extremists on the subject of the damaged stamp and blind our eyes to certain qualities that it must be admitted that they have. One thing is certain and that is that the man who will buy defective copies may have them at prices that are unbelievably low, if he will keep his eyes open.

—A collector tells us in confidence that before he married, the young lady showed much enthusiasm over his stamps but that now she finds it hard to listen patiently while he extols the beauties of his pets. "What to do?" he asks.

ANENT THE NEW UNITED STATES.

By CEDRIC BONNELL.

Magic of Aladdin's lamp rarely fails to manifest weirdest of wizardry when a few stray specimens, catalogued "superb," of the "blue Mauritius," early "pence Ceylon," or "Cape Triangulars" are put up at Puttick's, or alternately, at Harmer Rooke's with clarion crow.

Rare old letter-franks are all of these, whose charms age cannot wither; for, though long ago relegated to the limbo of the obsolete as active forwarding agents of our inter-Empire correspondence, they'll assuredly continue to star with ever-increasing lustre in the world wide stampic firmament.

New issues of stamps are of far greater frequency in some of the British Colonies than with ourselves, and in the case of certain small island dependencies it is notorious that no inconsiderable portion of their revenue accrues from continual exploitation of philatelists and enthusiastic young collectors.

Most of the twenty-odd values of a freshly-designed complete series of United States stamps, running from one cent to five dollars, have now superseded the types which have been current for the last ten or a dozen years. On those Grover Cleveland may be seen wearing the purple of the 12c; bonnie Martha Washington again figures on the new 4c brown, pretty much as in 1902; while Roosevelt, on the 5c blue, is for the first time included in this great people's portrait gallery of famous past Presidents.

Franklin and Washington, who between them formed monopoly of the portraiture on the "1912-1923" series now for the most part superseded, are to figure only on the 1c and the 2c values respectively; and, until the "Harding 2c memorial" stamp has run its brief sixty days' course, the familiar "Washington 2c red" will remain in nearly total eclipse.

An impelling official reason for the wider-range of physiognomic diversity on the new stamps, says the Omaha (Neb.) World Herald, a daily owned by Senator Hitchcock, is that greater variation is essential in order to guard against so many clerical failures in the detection of short-paid matter, the colours, also, of several of the old values having been too closely akin. By the way, our first Edwardian halfpenny stamp had after a time to be altered to a lighter and yellower shade of green because of the number of 2½d blues that kept going agley at the stamp counters, especially under artificial light.

The Nebraskan journalist goes on to say: "In this connection may we suggest that what our stamps need is whiskers, than which nothing gives such variety to the human face. A good, snappy selection of all the standard types of whiskers ought to serve the purpose perfectly. The most hurried and overworked postal clerk couldn't fail to notice with half an eye the marked difference, for example, between Oom Paul's lace edging and a neatly trimmed Van Dyck. There would be variety to spare between a set of Dundrearys and the imperial of Napoleon III. General Burnside and James Hamilton Lewis would look well in any stamp collector's album. In the matter of moustaches alone, a whole series can be provided for, beginning with a tiny Charlie Chaplin and winding up with a fine engraving of the walrus type." Now, what price these Roosevelt-Cleveland examples by way of a quite modest start in that direction?—Nottinghamshire Guardian.

A lot of 33 new German stamps totaling 13,293,400 Marks. Values up to and including the new 5,000,000 Mark stamp. Altho the actual value of the lot is less than 2 cents U. S. money, we were obliged to pay very large advances on some of the items to get them in quantity. One item is charged to us at 100 times face value. Our correspondent says it is "necessary to go behind hand" to get the stamps in many cases. These are mostly surcharges on discontinued lower values and some of the items may turn out to be very good things.
The Entire Lot postpaid for Only $1.00 or in Blox of Four at $3.00. [14
Then if you don't think you have got your money's worth after receiving the stamps, return them at once and we will give your money back.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By Bertram W. H. Poole.

Chapter IV.

The Perforated "Liberty Head" Stamps.

In September, 1882, the Philatelic Record chronicled the 5c and 7c of the previous type perforated; in the following month Le Timbre Poste added the 3c; in March, 1883, the 2c was mentioned in the Philatelic Record; while the 1c and 20c were not recorded until February and August respectively of 1884.

The problems presented by these perforated stamps are much more complex and therefore more difficult of solution than those in connection with the imperforate issue. Mr. Hausburg writes as follows:—

"It has been stated that the perforated stamps, the first of which appeared towards the end of 1882, perforated by a single-line machine, 13½, were printed from the same plates as the imperforate series; I must say, however, that I entirely disagree with this theory."

There is no doubt whatsoever that different plates were made for, to again quote Mr. Hausburg, "while the plates of the imperforate series appear to be made up of fifty different electros, those of the perforated stamps seem to consist of two panes of twenty-five. That is to say there are a great many points of similarity between the corresponding stamps on the two panes, although the value plugs seem to have been inserted separately for every stamp in the sheet of fifty." This is an important point and one to which we shall refer again later as it has considerable bearing on the actual number of separate plates used in the production of the perforated "Liberty Head" stamps. In studying these perforated stamps Mr. Hausburg made a very important discovery which we cannot do better than describe in his own words:—

"From the reconstructed sheets it is evident that for the perforated series there were three distinct sets of plates. I say distinct, because in every plate belonging to a particular set there are flaws peculiar to that set.

This at first caused a good deal of trouble. Most of the plating of the pèrforated series was done from a complete pane of the 1 centime. I would find, for instance, the position on the pane of a specimen of the seven cents ultramarine, and then I would find that there was a seven centimes blue which was evidently the same variety, but the position of the '7' in the shield was different, and there were differences also in other parts of the stamp.

Fortunately there is no difficulty in deciding to which plate any specimen belongs. So far, I have always found that any one shade or color belongs to a particular plate. For instance, there are three distinct shades of the 5 centimes; a bluish green, which is always found to belong to what is called in these notes Plate I; a yellow green which is always Plate II; and a deep bright green, which is always Plate III. There are, of course, shades of each, but it is always quite easy to say to which plate any specimen belongs."

Mr. Hausburg describes the peculiarities of the three plates as follows:—

Plates I and II.

No. 25—There is a slanting stroke across the space between the outer lines of the frame above the "Q" of "REPUBLIQUE."

No. 28—There is a colored lump on the bottom of the "C" of "CENT" in the left lower label.

No. 40—There is a lump on the outer right-hand side of the shield opposite the upper part of the "C" of "CENT."

No. 43—(except the 3c.) There is a thin white mark across the lower part of the neck.

Plate II.

No. 32—The lower left-hand corner of the shield is incomplete.

Plate III.

No. 3—The upright part of the "L" of "REPUBLIQUE" is broken.

No. 17—The outer frame at the lower left corner is damaged.

No. 27—The outer frame at the upper left corner is badly damaged.

In addition to the three plates mentioned above, there is a variety of the first, found only in connection with th 2 centimes which Mr. Hausburg term Plate Ia. Now, while it is perfectly tru that these stamps fall naturally int three groups, as tabulated by Mr. Haus burg, a little close examination (bearin in mind the method employed in manufacturing the imperforate stamps) wi soon prove that three different sets o plates were certainly not used. To star with, how would it be possible, by an method of reproduction, to produce set of plates, at once so different and ye so alike, from one common source? Mı Hausburg has shown that twenty-fiv electrotypes of the chosen design wer arranged in five rows of five and fron this block of 25 two reproductions wer made which, placed side by side, forme the printing plate of fifty impression That the "original" plate, if we ma so term it, was made up in this manne is proved by little pecularities founc on corresponding stamps on each of th two vertical halves of the plate. Thu No. 4 resembles No. 9 in many respects No. 14 has many points in common witl No. 19; No. 34 is very like No. 39 anc so on. Now the small peculiarities or the particular stamps just cited as instances, are found on all three of Mr Hausburg's plates as well as on hi sub-plate for the 2c, thus proving tha if separate plates were made they al owe their origin to one common source

Perhaps it will make matters clearer if we reproduce our line of argument exactly as printed in the Postage Stamp for June, 1914, viz.:—

"If individual plates were needed for each denomination, why should the manufacturers have gone to the trouble of having them pierced for movable value plugs? It would have been much simpler to have engraved the numerals by hand or to have inserted them by means of punches on the blank shields. And why the necessity of three plates for the 5c when the so-called plate I shows no signs of wear and is, in fact, greatly superior to plate III? Apart from the improbability of there being separate series of plates how would it have been possible to reproduce plates, differing in so many particulars, from one common matrix? For instance, as Mr. Hausburg points out, No. 28 on the plate of all denominations from Plates I, Ia and II characterised by the presence of a olored lump on the bottom of the 'C' 'CENT' in the left lower label, though is variety does not occur on plate III. ow, if that lump of color was apparent ough on the original to be reproduced eleven plates (according to Mr. ausburg's theory) why should it sud- enly cease to show on the last three ates made? Then again, on all values om plates I, Ia and II (except the 1c d 3c on plate I), there is a prominent colored flaw above the pile of cannon lls at the right on No. 12 and a similar w across the neck on No. 43, yet these ws do not appear on the correspond- g stamps of plate III which owe their igin to the same common matrix.

I am afraid the theory of three sepa- te series of plates will not bear investi- tion. It is apparent that the same ethod was used as in producing the perforate stamps; i.e., the same plate as used for several values, the plugs r the numerals being changed as re- ired. We thus have states of a plate ther than a series of separate plates. t the same time a little study will ow that more than one plate was em- oyed, though it is difficult to say posi- ely exactly how many. To a certain tent, therefore, I must theorise re- rding the actual number of separate ates, and the proof or disproof must with someone having more material study than I have—more especially in e way of large blocks and uncut sheets.

My idea is that at first two plates of ty were made which were in con- rrent use. One of these, which I term ate A, was used only for the 1c. This is determined by the absence of flaws on Nos. 12 and 43 (as regards No. 43 this is surmise, for I have not been able to find a satisfactory specimen of that number on the plate), and the presence of two prominent flaws on No. 31 which are found on no other denomination. Other proof is provided by Nos. 45, 46 and 49, which have the right-hand frame lines of the value shields perfectly straight, whereas, on all other values of the so-called plate I these lines show more or less decided bulges. Why this plate was used only for the 1c is a point on which I can suggest no explanation. The other plate, which I term Plate B, and which I infer was made about the same period exists in four clearly defined states.

In the first state, used for the 3c only, there are no flaws on Nos. 12 and 43, though in other respects it is sufficiently unlike the 1c as to discount any probability of it being a later state of Plate A. There are no flaws on No. 31 for instance, while Nos. 45, 46 and 49 all show bulged shield lines.

The second state of this plate was used for the 2c, 5c and 7c and, I believe, in the order named. In changing the value plugs from '3' to '2' some of the lines of the shield were bent more and the flaws on Nos. 12 and 43 were made. At any rate these two stamps on the plate of the 2c are not known without the flaws, while the corresponding stamps on the 3c I have never found with flaws. That the 5c was printed later seems probably from the presence of little flaws not shown on the 2c and that the 7c was printed later still is proved by many of the flaws, begun on the 5c, having now become quite prominent. These flaws are, in many instances, caused by bits of dirt or dried ink adhering to the plate, and so printing on the stamps as dots or blotches of color.

After the printing of the 7c in blue more 2c stamps were needed, but before these were printed the dirty state of the plate seems to have been noted and it was cleaned. We thus have a third state of the plate (Mr. Hausburg's Plate Ia). This state of the plate is very similar to the last, except that most of the color smudges and blots have now disappeared. The large numerals '2' occupy entirely different positions from those in the previous state, thus serving as additional proof that movable plugs were used. That the plate was cleaned can, I believe, be traced on No. 30. On the 3c, first state, there is a tiny line of color between the base of the letters 'UE' of 'REPUBLIQUE.' This was evidently caused by a small piece of projecting metal which, by the time the 7c was printed, had accumulated sufficient dirt or dried ink as to print as a very plain color smudge. In this new printing of the 2c, third state, the line has been restored to its original clearness, showing the plate must have been cleaned. The 2c was the only value to be printed from this state of the plate for before it could be used for any other denomination it received a serious damage, resulting in a new variety, which we may reasonably term another state.

This fourth state is Mr. Hausburg's Plate II, and is characterised by a badly damaged shield on No. 32. The lower left portion of the frame of the shield has been entirely removed. That the plate is the same, however, is obvious from the manner in which the flaws and peculiarities match those of the earlier states. That it is a later state is proved by the additional signs of wear. No. 12 will serve as an example; if this is examined it will be found that the outline of the flaw, always clearly defined in earlier states, is now gradually losing its sharpness. From this fourth state of the plate 1c, 3c, 5c, 7c and 20c stamps were printed, but in exactly what order it is a little difficult to say. But taking notes of flaws and their progress and little peculiarities which only crop up in certain states, I fancy the order of printing was 1c, 20c, 3c, 5c and 7c. My reasons for so thinking are that colored smudges that appear between 'REPUBLIQUE' and 'D'HAITI' on some stamps are never very prominent on the 1c. That the 20c was printed next seems to be proved by the straight right-hand frame to the shield on No. 16. In the case of the 3c this line is bulged outwards; in the 5c the bulge is worse; and in the 7c it is worse still; hence I presume they were printed in that order. There are many other stamps that might equally well be cited as instances in proof of this theory.

Lastly, we have to consider Mr. Hausburg's Plate III. This I believe to have been an entirely new plate. It is not a later state of Plate A, nor is it Plate B, though it was evidently cast from the same matrix as those two plates, as is shown by the small imperfections common to all on Nos. 4, 9, 14, 19, 34 and 39. In most other respects, however, the similarity ends. Plate C, as I term this one, may have been in use concurrently with B for a time. It is characterised by numerous badly damaged value shields, in many instances large portions of the frame lines being entirely erased. No. 3 has the vertical stroke of the 'L' of 'REPUBLIQUE' badly broken; No. 17 has a very badly damaged lower left corner; and No. 27 has an equally badly damaged left upper corner. Only the 2c, 5c and 20c were printed from this plate and judging from a study of the flaws the 5c was printed first, then the 2c and finally the 20c.

EDITORIAL.

A collector who to our knowledge for over thirty years has been a close observer of the trend of philately says that it is evident that stamps are being bought for investment purposes by wealthy men who take stamps out of the market and put them, not in stamp collections, but in the safety vaults. While admitting that it is a compliment to stamps to place them in the class of gilt-edged securities, the collector is under a handicap, as a consequence of the rapid advance in price of many of the desirable stamps. While there is some basis for the remarks of our friend yet we think that he exaggerates the number of non-philatelic investors; and he admits that the collector, who, liking stamps, also looks upon them as having investment attractions, is well within his rights in buying whatever suits his fancy. In fact, we do know that there are a good number of collectors who are buying stamps that appeal to them beyond what may be called the purely collecting limits, but if collectors wish to invest in stamps, we say that they are doing a welcome, and in many cases, a wise act. These words are apropos of the receipt of "Postage Stamps as an Investment," by Charles J. Phillips of New York, who for almost forty years has been in the thick of professional philately, wherein he lists the countries whose stamps offer opportunities for price enhancement. Mr. Phillips comes out flat-footedly for stamps as an investment; and well he says that all those who invest considerably in stamps, according to our means, must attend to the financial aspect of stamps. Reduced to its briefest form, the most desirable investment is in the "old classic issues .... that tell in a collection." Mr. Phillips' little book of forty pages is all meat; and a perusal of it must fortify the faith of investors.

Mr. Phillips thinks that the U. S. department stamps are sadly neglected and without reason, and that as sure as fate they will again be taken to the philatelic bosom. Their cancellations alone give them a claim on collectors, not to say any thing about printings, papers and other varieties. To the Confederate States, both general and local issues, Mr. Phillips offers his profoundest regards, and he says that these stamps are the most historical and valuable that exist. Mr. Phillips shows an appreciation of Confederate patriotic envelopes, envelopes used twice, those made of wallpaper, prisoners' letters, official envelopes that is quite remarkable. He maintains, and justly, that the manner in which the Confederate stamps have been ignored, relatively speaking, maketh the philatelic heart sick; and that it follows that when they come into their own, the present prices of the stamps will seem ridiculous. From Argentine to Western Australian, Mr. Phillips tells in concise sentences what are the best fields to cultivate in his opinion for a harvest of dollars. The brevity of Mr. Phillips' findings loan the more point to them, it seems, and we shall tell of the foreign stamps spoken of in the next number.

A reader, Mr. L. M. McCarthy, San Francisco, has sent us a clipping from a magazine whose name does not appear, in which the editor speaks of "enthusiasms," among which stamp collecting is included, and we find that philatelists are set apart as examples of "blind boosters of their cult" whose intemperate statements of praise in behalf of their "field" arouses the antagonism of people who have some hold on themselves. The editor avers that it was always thus with collectors, as he remembers that when he was a boy he wildly shouted the praises of stamp collecting. He hints that it would be more seemly if philatelists would restrain themselves in their loud-voiced admiration for the hobby. This editor is in small business when he takes this means to show his prejudice against philately; and if there was anything in his charges, they would fall to earth, anyway, as the fault is not to be alleged against philately but against its followers. The truth is that as many of the collectors who make themselves heard are boy collectors who naturally speak of what is close to their hearts in unmeasured terms, the unyielding critic who would hold that fact up against collecting is unfair. Mr. McCarthy, in sending the clipping, says: "I am glad that there is some one who may be depended upon to sting these fellows who scoff and sneer at us, as they have an idea that they can get away with murder." At any rate, here is a refutation of the claim that philatelists have always been so partizan in their beliefs that stamp collecting is irresistible and unconquerable that irritation ensues on the part of the collector who does not join in the ballyhoos! From the Philatelist, London, Jan. 1, 1867, we take the following: "The future of philately, if we may judge from appearances, looks bright and promising. In the course of time it will doubtless cease to be the fashion and firms now flourishing by promoting its progress will have run with the stream and turned their attention into newer, and perhaps as yet undeveloped, channels. But even then, philately will have its quiet friends and adherents, still proud of, and deserving the name of, philatelists." Surely, this is modesty and good-manners.

The Junior Philatelic Society of London has been celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary, and at its meeting, held October 6th, the President, Fred. J. Melville, gave an interesting address, as has been his custom annually for the past quarter-century. As president of the J. P. S. he has a record of achievement that bids us pause and ponder. Always active in philatelic well-doing, the society has a string of achievements to its credit that establishes it as an important factor in philately for years to come, and its crowning triumph was the recent international exhibition at London. That Fred. J. Melville is an Admirable Crichton of philately need not be said to those who know the man, whose philatelic activities have been so varied in scope and so extensive in their application; and there is every indication that for many years to come Mr. Melville will work unceasingly in the philatelic vineyard. Speaking of himself, Mr. Melville said in his address: "Perchance if you put up with him for another twenty-five years, the new young members of the jubilee season 1948-49 will have a chance to acclaim him 'Beaver'."

Mr. Peter Schreiner of Springfield, Mo., writes us about a violation of ethics on the part of some of the dealers, as follows: "The agitation about repaired stamps brings to my mind another evil. As a specific instance I mention that I ordered Nos. 1 to 10, Liechtenstein, postally used, with these last two words underscored from a reputable dealer, advertising in your columns. I received the stamps with the original gum on the back, faintly cancelled. When a person unknown to the dealer orders postally used new Europe stamps, according to the advertisements, a percentage of the stamps returned will show original gum and a cancellation. My point is that no stamp should be sold as postally used unless the postal authorities did the cancelling and that any dealer found breaking the custom should be written up on the black-board." Our correspondent puts his case mildly and it may rightly be demanded that dealers do not palm off cancelled-to-order stamps as postally used. While now and then it is somewhat of a problem to say which stamps are postally used and which are not, there are many instances where it is impossible to make a mistake. The collector who wants postally used stamps and says so, certainly rebels when his instructions are not followed; and he may well insist that if the implied contract between him and the dealer cannot be filled, his money should be returned to him. We think that in some cases the terms of the customer's letter are violated unintentionally by the advertiser; but postally used means what it says.

W. C. MICHAELS, BAR HEAD.

We have received a clipping from the Midwest Stamp Co., taken from a local Kansas City paper, which gives the particulars of a distinguished honor that has come to a leading philatelist.

W. C. Michaels, A. P. S., 209, at the annual election of officers of the Kansa City Bar Association held recently wa unanimously elected president. A wi circle of philatelic friends will join wit us in a hearty word of congratulation.

S. STAMP EXHIBIT AT MARION, O.

(Clipping from W. H. Schaffner.)

A return to Marion of the official smp exhibit of the United States post-oce department—an exhibit that recved the special award at the internionial stamp display conducted last y in London—may be regarded as a dtinct honor to this city. The display wl be here for a sufficient length of tie to give all who are interested an oortunity to see it, and it is something wrth seeing.

The government exhibit is made all the nre interesting because of the collectn displayed along with it by local simp collectors, of whom Marion has a nnber who are well known in stampclecting circles throughout Ohio and oside the state.

n the government exhibit in Marion t week are perfect specimens from t original erroneously-printed sheet of aoplane stamps. The exhibit holds a hh degree of interest to stamp colleors everywhere. The government is nw engaged in fostering interest in it a "an educational factor of recognized inortance," according to Third Assista Postmaster-General W. Irving Gver.

Marion is the smallest city to which t exhibit has been taken. At first the gernment planned to show the collecti only in the larger centers of populati. The fact that it is brought to Mrion again is a tribute to local stamp cectors and a compliment to all the pple of the city.—Marion Daily Star.

XX. Sale of Colonial Stamps in London.

Early in 1920 at the suggestion of the Crown Agents arrangements were made for supplying British Colonial stamps in London, at face value, to stamp dealers. The procedure is to issue a communique from time to time (usually quarterly) to bonafide stamp dealers, containing news of impending changes, or new printings of Colonial stamps, and to ascertain their requirements. A fee of 10s is charged on every parcel of stamps supplied. The amount received for stamps so disposed of is credited to the account of the Colony.

As supplies of stamps are received from the printers, quantities are taken out sufficient to fill orders in hand, and delivery is made on receipt of advice that the stamps have been received and issued in the Colony. At first there was considerable confusion, and stamps were released before they had reached the Colony. The double medallion series of St. Kitts-Nevis was in the hands of London dealers, and being sold in May, 1920, while in the Colony they were not issued until June 15th.

During 1921 many complaints were received by the Colonial Office from the Colonial authorities, as the result of representations made by Colonial collectors against the practice of stamps being on sale in London before available in the Colony. Considerable inconvenience was also occasioned the local Post Offices and vendors who were in receipt of remittances running to hundreds of pounds, which had to be held, at times for months, before the stamps were available.

At the opening of 1922 the Crown Agents discontinued for a time supplying stamps to English dealers, until a scheme could be perfected which would insure the actual issue in the Colony before the stamps were released in London.

The system does not extend to dealers beyond the United Kingdom, and American dealers, and others, must as before, remit direct to the Colonies.

"4 Millbank, Westminster,
London, S. W. 1,
5th October, 1921.

Sir:—

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st September, enclosing a cutting from the . . . . on the subject of the supply of Colonial Postage Stamps to dealers. In reply I have to inform you that we have been authorised by several of the Governments for which we act, to retain, when shipping consignments of new stamps, those required by dealers in this country, in order to avoid the delay and inconvenience of sending them to the Colony, and then having them returned in response to orders sent out by those dealers to the Colonial postal authorities. These stamps are not issued by us until the supply has reached the Colony, and the arrangement does not affect stamp dealers in countries other than the United Kingdom, who should send their orders as hitherto to Colonial Postmasters.

2. —. . . . . . .

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
For Crown Agents."

The stamps of St. Kitts-Nevis were among the first to be supplied in this manner, and since then the practice has been extended to many of the Colonies. The scheme has its advantages and disadvantages, but it is doubtful if the Crown Agents considered so much the stamp dealers of the United Kingdom, in recommending its adoption, even though there have been many instances where dealers have been considerably inconvenienced in obtaining supplies from the Colonies. With conditions as they now are, English dealers have their stamps as soon as, if not sooner than, the stamps go on sale in the Colony, which is a distinct advantage over dealers in other countries, who must remit weeks ahead of anticipated issue date, and then wait from three to four weeks, and longer, while the stamps are in transit.

But much can be said in favor of the practice. So far as the smaller Colonies are concerned, it insures a sufficient supply of stamps being ordered from the printers to care for English dealers' requirements, as well as the local demand, and thus prevents a shortage which might easily occur should the local authorities underestimate the overseas' demand. Too, the local Post Offices are relieved of the work of filling and preparing these orders for dispatch.

XXI. Presidency Series, Script Watermark, 1921-22.

With the advent of the Georgian issues rumors began to circulate that a change was contemplated in the type of watermark used for British Colonial stamp papers, but official announcement that the change had been effected was not made until November, 1920, when a Bulletin issued by the Crown Agents, notified that:—

"Early this year it was found that the dandy roll used to manufacture the all-over watermarked papers used for the issues of Colonial Postage and Revenue stamps since the year 1903 was completely worn out. It was decided to manufacture a new dandy roll bearing an Imperial Crown and the letter CA (Crown Agents), shown in script capitals. This has now been done, and the old roll has been destroyed. Supplies of white and blue papers have already been made from the new roll, and as the existing stocks of green, yellow and red papers are used up, the new paper will be brought into general use."

The first stamps to be printed on white paper with the script watermark were the 1d and 2½d of Bermuda's first Legislative Tercentenary series, issued at Hamilton, on November 11, 1920; the new blue paper was first used for the 2s of Barbados small Arms type series, issued at Bridgetown, on November 14, 1921.

The letters CA are in script capitals, similar to those of the G v R watermark introduced in 1912, for the Georgian stamps of Great Britain, and the Edwardian Imperial Crown takes the place of the former Victorian Crown.

The ½d and 1d stamps of St. Kitts-Nevis, on script paper, were issued in the Presidency in July, 1921, but were supplied to London dealers by the Crown Agents some months before. In February, 1921, there was a shortage of 1d stamps of the Presidency series, and until the 1d script stamps arrived, the 1d of the Federation series was used exclusively. The ½d was similarly affected for several months in the same year, and the 2d likewise, early in 1922.

Three shipments of the 1½d stamp were sent out in 1921, but on paper with the old multiple Crown CA watermark. In May, 1922, the 2d and 2½d were issued on script paper. The latter had a very short life, as in less than 3 months stock had exhausted, and the new consignment was in brown. The 2s on the new blue script paper was issued in July, 1922.

1921-22, Presidency series, double medallion type, King George V and seal of St. Kitts (½d, 2½d, 2s), or of Nevis (1d, 2d). Watermarked multiple Crown and script CA sideways to the right. Perf. comb 14. Chalk surfaced paper for 2s.

Collectors and dealers are invited to submit singles, pairs and strips, on or off covers, for inspection. As a rule, single copies should have four margins, but this is not always necessary if the stamp shows one margin over 2mm wide or part of an adjoining specimen.
Items for sale or exchange should be priced—other items submitted merely out of the goodness of one's heart and a desire to help along a most difficult philatelic work need not be priced but will be equally welcome.

in April, 1922, and the 2d in June. The ½d and 1d were released by the Crown Agents to London dealers several months before issue in the Islands.

These stamps were printed from plate 10, introduced in June, 1921, in sheets of 120 stamps, 2 panes of 60, separated by a narrow gutter. The plate number appears twice in the lower margin, in the usual positions, upper margin being blank. A marginal line surrounding each pane is broken at each line of perforation, with but one or two exceptions.

The 1d carmine on script paper was never on sale in St. Kitts-Nevis, their stock on the old paper lasting until the summer of 1922, by which time a color change had been effected; the ¼d on script was not issued there until November, 1922. Up to the first of July, 1922, Antigua and the British Virgins were without the ¼d brown, ½d green and 1d carmine stamps of the Federation series with the script watermark. The 2½d ultramarine and 6d dull violet and red violet, on script paper, were issued July 13, 1922, overprinted "Barbuda," but in unoverprinted state they do not yet exist.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The 1c green, Franklin, design of 1923, perforated 10, a product of the rotary press, was issued some time back but precancelled only, the precancelling being done at the Bureau. From the first these stamps have been engraved, then precancelled by the same machine and as it looked as if months would elapse before the stamp appeared uncancelled we appealed to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General. Through the courtesy of Mr. Warren Irving Glover we are now able to purchase the stamp, unused, from the Philatelic Stamp Agent at Washington, where they were placed on sale on Wednesday, October 17th. Those that I have seen are from plate 14349 and I note that they come in two slight shade differences of yellow green.

I also learn that the department has had the Bureau of Engraving and Printing discontinue the engraving of the 2c Harding memorial stamp on the rotary press, that is the perforated 10 variety. It seems that the black ink does not produce a satisfactory product for they vary from a deep black to a grey black that borders almost on a white. This means that more of the flat plates are being made so that by the time our list is complete the number of Harding plates will possibly exceed one hundred. The discontinuing of this stamp does not mean that it will be rare, for millions have been produced.

While speaking of the Harding emission it will be recalled that in my notes some time back I mentioned that first-day covers had been mailed not only to important officials in this country but to the ruling heads abroad as well. Replies are now beginning to arrive from Europe. The King of England is pleased to receive the cover as is the Prince of Wales. It cost the President of Germany two hundred thousands marks to tell me that the cover was appreciated. The special secretary to the King of Spain was ordered by His Majesty as was the head of the Cabinet to the King of Belgium, to express thanks for my thoughtfulness. The head of the household of Her Majesty, the Queen of the Netherlands, took the time to write a long hand letter of appreciation.

I know of no stamp issued by any government that has created so much interest philatelically. Hundreds seem to be specializing in the emission and I have received dozens of letters calling attention to slight shifts, dots, lines, dashes and the like, showing that many are studying the variety. As yet, however, I have found no minor variety worthy of chronicle and if any of our readers have I trust they will let me hear from them. With such a large issue turned out so hurriedly surely something out of the general run should happen.

In a recent Chronicle mention was made of a perforated reprint of the Franklin carrier and notes upon the subject from Mr. B. K. Miller are of interest. Mr. Miller writes, "There are no official explanations of the perforated reprints of the Franklin and Eagle Carriers. Perhaps the explanation is simple. When the order for the reprints was being executed the officials printed both of these carriers on the well known reprint paper and perforated them, not knowing that they should not be perforated or that the Franklin should be on pink paper. The error was discovered and these particular printings were suppressed. Some got out. The Eagle is common and being on white paper caused little comment. The Franklin is little known. I believe there are about twenty copies known. There is no doubt it is from the Franklin plate on the 1875 reprint paper and most probably perforated for the government."

I recently made remarks concerning the finding of a set of Columbians in imperforated pairs, gummed, and said to be "neither proofs nor essays but stamps printed on the regular paper." These were located by one of our best known dealers who writes, "The old time dealer of twenty to twenty-five years ago may recall a story that there was a complete set of these stamps in imperforated pairs in existence, but at that time, although everyone was watching for them, the only denomination that came to light was the 2c. The set was given out as the property of Henry Hilton, who was collecting at that time and who was a personal friend of John Wanamaker and one of those interested in trying to corner the $1 value; he purchased large quantities of the issue and, so the story goes, in a box of stamps which Wanamaker gave him there was this set in pairs. We knew the story and ot the existence of this set for years, and only recently through a collector could we obtain it."

We wish to thank Messrs. H. W. Porter, J. E. Scott, C. L. Chalfant, F. S. Eaton and A. H. Robertson for notes of interest.

The monthly supplement to the Postal Guide for October gives a very interesting story entitled "When The Ship Comes In," dealing with the New York Harbor Boat Service and telling about millions of letters and parcels coming from and going to the far corners of the earth. There are several other stories of interest to the stamp collector and more particularly one entitled "Try Chemical To Prevent Mildew." We are told how mail sacks are chemically treated to prevent such mildew and it is barely possible that the many changelings in stamp colors that have recently been coming to life may be partially due to this fact. It is nothing unusual to find the 6c approaching the brown of the 4c, the 1c approaching the black of the 7c; the 2c coming in a very dark shade, no doubt due to chemical action of some kind.

BELGIAN CONGO.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us the following additional values of the new set: 5c orange, 50c blue, 75c orange and 1fr olive. Also 5c brown, 10c carmine, 15c violet, 30c green, 50c blue and 1fr grey in the new postage due set.

CHINA.—Mr. R. Roberts submits for chronicle the following Air Post stamps: 15c green and black, 30c vermilion and black, 45c violet and black, 60c blue and black, and 90c olive and black. The stamps are perforated 14.

COCHIN.—Our energetic colleague, Mr. Y. Rama Seshayya, B.A., Editor of the Indian Philatelist, informs us that a new value, viz., 10 pies blue, overprinted "On C.G.S.," has been issued with the head of the present Raja. The colour resembles that of the 3 pies with the head of the late Raja (Gibbons No. 27), but is somewhat deeper in shade. The watermark and perforation are as for the existing values of the present issue.—Stamp Collecting.

MARKET IN MODERN COLONIALS.

By PHILATELIA.

At the nadir of the season it is interesting to survey the prospects for the future and results of the past. It is as yet too early to tell the lasting effects of the great Stamp Exhibition.

Most dealers appear to have done big business and made new connections; but the real effect will be gauged by the number of new recruits to the hobby who develop into earnest collectors after the first spasm of interest aroused has died away.

A bull point for stamp investment often overlooked by the propagandist is its immunity from Income Tax, and as the rises are far more certain and profits greater than in any ordinary set of shares, the influx of the investing public would be enormous if the interest in, and financial possibilities of, our King of Hobbies were more generally known. It is useless for highbrows to deprecate the introduction of finance to their science; this is a utilitarian age which is best reached through the purse.

The popularity of the Philatelic Magazine overseas is illustrated by an interesting letter which has reached me from an American, apparently on visit to London, and who raised several interesting points on Market Notes, only some of which can be dealt with now. He thinks more attention might be given in these articles to the Colonial issues of the decade 1900-1910, which, it is argued, come into the category of Modern Colonials. Reference to these has frequently been made where the possibilities appear to have merited it, and will be again. The absence of a comprehensive text book of all these issues is much to be deplored and a wide field appears open to the zealous stamp scribe.

Modern Colonials, he opines, are the "best sitters" of any even in the States—after early U. S.

Next is raised the question of the prospects of Script Georgians, now that they are "sold off wholesale from the Colonial Agents." This later statement requires qualification. Anyone who visits the Millbank offices will find considerable difficulties and delay in the way, and will probably decide it is easier to obtain them from some correspondent or London dealer. There is no doubt there are a good many of the current scripts about; but they are popular, whilst certain issues that had a very short life are going to be good, as has already been pointed out—such as 2½d blue of St. Kitts or Trinidad. If 2s6d is a fair catalogue quotation for these, mint, used copies are worth at least double.

One of the last Crown Colonies to start using this new paper is Brunei, whose current issue is to appear thus. This country has troubled collectors very little of recent years and some of the stamps are much scarcer than generally realized. All the 1907, bi-coloured issues, are a sound investment at present prices, with the 5 cents and $1 the best of the lot, whilst of the 1908 issue the 8c (in two distinct colours) and 10c are both now obsolete, and will rise considerably in the next few years. The earliest set of 1906 seems somewhat over-catalogued.

It is curious how well the 2½d values of the West Indian Colonies turn out. Even Jamaica produced a useful little stamp in the 2½d Flag error. The 2½d Script of Trinidad and Turks Is. have been mentioned as examples, but it is noteworthy that the previous 2½d values of these countries also turned out gems. The 2½d figures and 2½d on blue paper Trinidad both showed enormous appreciation, and now are hard to get, especially in blocks of 4.

What Countries Do You Collect?
I May Be Able To Help You

I find myself loaded with foreign stamps that I have had to take in order to obtain collections that contained U. S. and B. N. A. stamps I needed. So if you collect foreign stamps, I have a good many of all early issues at attractive prices, and in U. S. and B. N. A. I have practically everything short of rarities.

The prominent example, however, was in the 1907 2½d Leeward Is., M.C.A., which was obsolete before its existence was generally known in this country. It is still a stamp worth watching, and one of which I shall probably have something further to say shortly.

THE CONTINENTAL MARKETS.

No financial notes are complete without reference to the pulse of the London Stamp Market. Pars. in certain contemporaries might lead the uninformed to suppose that the prices of the Belgian and Paris Stamp Marts are much below those ruling in London. In certain classes of stuff—Modern Europeans and speculative junk,—this may be true, but in the only field with which we are concerned—Modern British Colonials—this view cannot be held for one moment. In one or two isolated instances, lower prices may be quoted when the depreciated exchange is allowed for, but generally speaking there is no wholesale stock of better-class Modern Colonials. One may buy some of the commonest War stamps very reasonably there, but for wholesale lots of the good modern issues, so much in demand here, one may search in vain.

Even if one goes farther afield to Berlin with visions of stupendous bargains in that land of the billion-mark the disillusionment is still more pronounced. It is no exaggeration to say that it is 20 times easier to buy good Colonials in London than in Berlin. The natural corollary is that it is easier to sell Colonials there, even when priced in sterling or gold dollars, as the Germans, despairing of their own currency, are eager to buy something of more lasting value, whilst even they are beginning to tire of the avalanches of New European issues that have been launched from all quarters and whose prices have no stability.—Philatelic Magazine.

IRAQ; "FROM WOMEN'S EYES."

By F. J. Melville.

Women have played so small a part in the designing of postage stamps hitherto, that it is worthy of remark that some of our most interesting recent stamp issues are the work of artists of the gentler sex. At a time when the male artists have been making grotesque and even ludicrous stamp designs for Continental States, British ladies have been giving us little gems of miniature design which will add to the pictorial charm of our stamp collections.

In the past ladies have probably had more influence on stamp designs than we wot of, in suggestion and useful criticism. Indeed we have it on the authority of H. M. King George that Queen Alexandria, with admirable judgment, caused an important modification to be made in the wreath design for the King Edward stamps. But the fact remains that barely half-a-dozen stamp designs have been attributed to women hitherto. We recall that two ladies were successful in the open competition for the Centennial issue of New South Wales, Miss Devine designing the 2d and 8d values, and Mrs. F. W. Stoddard the 20s stamp. To Lady Carter is attributed the pleasing "Olive Blossom" stamp of Barbados, and in more recent times we have seen two ladies score in the competition for the new Irish stamp designs. Miss Lily Williams was the artist of the Celtic Cross design, and Miss Millicent Girling's heraldic design, also a prize-winner, has yet to make its postal and philatelic appearance. It seems not improbable that if open competition for stamp designs were the rule and not the rare exception, more ladies would share the honours of stamp designing—one of the best of the numerous essays sent in for the recent Aero stamp contest was from a talented lady artist's pen.

The new pictorial stamps for Iraq enjoy the unique distinction that they are all from designs by two ladies. They were placed on sale on June 1st, and the following is the official notice concerning them which appeared in the Times of Mesopotamia (8.5.23).

"NOTICE.

1. New issue of Postage and Revenue Stamps of the following denominations will be placed on sale with effect from 1st June, 1923:—

POSTAGE.	REVENUE.
½ anna.	½ anna.
1 anna.	1 anna.
1½ annas.	2 annas.
2 annas.	4 annas.
4 annas.	6 annas.
6 annas.	8 annas.
8 annas.	12 annas.
1 rupee.	1 rupee.
2 rupees.	5 rupees.
5 rupees.	10 rupees.
10 rupees.

2. Only Stamps surcharged Revenue are to be considered as Revenue Stamps for the purpose of the Iraq Stamp Law and only Stamps not so surcharged are to be considered as Postage Stamps.

3. The "British Occupation" Stamps now in use will continue to be current up to and including 31st May, 1923. Thereafter letters and parcels posted with these Stamps will be considered to be unstamped. Similarly Instruments and Documents to which the present Revenue Stamps are affixed after that date will be deemed to be unstamped within the meaning of the Iraq Stamp Laws in so far as such stamps are concerned.

4. (i) Postage Stamps remaining with the Public after the 31st May, 1923, may be exchanged for the new Issues at any Post Office up to and including the 30th June, 1923.

(ii) Revenue Stamps remaining with Stamp Vendors or the Public will be exchanged on application to the Accountant General up to and including the 30th June, 1923. At outstations applications should be submitted through the Mutasarrifs.

L. M. Swan,
(for Minister of Finance)."

From this notice it will be observed that ¼ anna, 2½, 3 and 12 annas are omitted from the postage set. The 3 annas appeared subsequently, the 12 annas was prepared for revenue purposes only, and, presumably, the ¼ anna and 2½ annas have been abandoned.

The designs and colours are:

½a olive, Sunni Mosque, Moadhdham.
1½a rose, Winged god Ilus.
1a brown, Native coracles on the Tigris.
2a yellow-brown, Winged Bull.
3a blue, Ruins, Arch of Ctesiphon.
4a violet, Standard Bearer.
6a blue-green, Shiah Mosque, Kadhimain.
8a bistre, Standard Bearer.
1r br. and gr., Serpents and Tree of Life.
2r slate, as on ½ anna.
5r orange, Standard Bearer.
10r carmine, as on 6 annas.

Four of the designs are by Mrs. Colin C. Garbett, an enthusiastic stamp collector, who, as wife of a former political secretary to the High Commissioner for Mesopotamia, has a familiar knowledge of the country. Major-General Sir Percy Cox himself is a philatelist, and has probably taken a keen interest in the preparation of the new Iraqs. Mrs. Garbett, now in India where her husband has returned to his Civil Service post, is the creator of the designs for the 1½, 2, 3 annas and 1 rupee.

The other four designs, used on the ½, 1, 4, 6, 8 annas, 2, 5 and 10 rupees (and the 12 annas "revenue," which is in the same design as the 1 anna), are by Miss Edith Cheesman, a talented artist who has made a special and adventurous visit to Iraq to make her pictures and designs.

Miss Cheesman made an extensive collection of pictures during her trip, and these have formed a remarkable exhibition during June and July this year in the North Gallery of the Imperial Institute, South Kensington. The collection includes portraits of prominent men, including King Feisul, landscapes and interiors, in oils, water-colours, and in black and white. Some of the subjects are of special interest, as Miss Cheesman had the opportunity of visiting many out-of-the-way spots in Iraq, which had been visited previously by only one or two English women, and also the holy cities of Kerbela, Nejef and Kufah, as well as the better-known places on the Tigris and Euphrates. The pictures usually had to be painted very quickly, she tells me, and often under great difficulties.

I am indebted to Miss Cheesman for descriptions of her stamp designs.

The predominant picture in the series, on the 4 and 8 annas and 5 rupees, depicts the Standard Bearer of the Dulaim Desert Camel Corps, a mobile police force, which is peculiarly adapted for desert warfare on account of its ability to move at a moment's notice to spots far removed from all ordinary sources of supply, and maintaining itself there with no other assistance than its own transport. The original standard is of brilliant green silk, with a passage from the Koran worked upon it in gold; the globe and pendants on the top of it are of silver. The rope running round the design is taken from the agal or short piece of rope with which camels are hobbled.

The picture, on which Miss Cheesman is seen at work, and from which she adapted the stamp design, is an oil painting 36" by 38", and was on view last month at her Mesopotamian exhibition.

The 1 anna (and also the 12 annas "revenue") shows the round coracles or native boats, which are extensively used on the Tigris and the Euphrates. They are constructed of reeds with wooden uprights, and covered outside with bitumen. The pattern round the design is taken from cowrie shells, which are stuck into the bitumen in various patterns as ornaments.

The ½ anna and 2 rupees picture, the Sunni Mosque at Moadhdham, and the design which surruonds it, includes the leaves of the date palm, which grows in great abundance round the Mosque at Moadhdham.

The Shiah Mosque at Kadhimain, on the 6 annas and 10 rupees, is a gorgeous structure with two domes and four minarets covered with pure gold. The pattern round the design represents the tiles, usually blue and white, which adorn many of the interiors of Mesopotamian mosques.

The stamps were produced by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., at their finely equipped new factory at New Malden, Surrey. All except the bicoloured 1 rupee are from steel plates engraved in recess. The 1 rupee is surfaced-printed.

The sheet sizes are:

½a, 1a, 6a, 2r, 10r printed in sheets of 150 (10x15).

1½a, 2a and 3a printed in sheets of 100 (10x10).

4a, 8a, 5r printed in sheets of 150 (15x10).

1r printed in sheets of 50 (10x5).

The sheets bear the marginal imprint "Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., New Malden, Surrey," except the 3 annas, which has no imprint.

All these pictorials are now issued also with the overprint "On State Service," as follows:

½a olive	black surch. in 1 line.
1a brown	black surch. in 1 line.
1½a rose	black surch. in 3 lines.
2a yellow-brn. ..	black surch. in 1 line.
3a blue	black surch. in 1 line.
4a violet	black surch. in 3 lines.
6a blue-grn.	black surch. in 1 line.
8a bistre	black surch. in 3 lines.
1r brn. and grn.	black surch. in 3 lines.
2r slate	red surch. in 1 line.
5r orange	black surch. in 3 lines.
10r carmine	black surch. in 1 line.

The stamps are on Multiple Script C. A. paper, and are perforated 14.—Stamp Lover.

GEORGIAN STAMPS OF NEW ZEALAND.

By Rev. F. G. Harvie.

A brief review of this interesting series of stamps will probably not be out of place; the bare check list in the Catalogue is rather obscure to the majority of young collectors, the reasons for the large number of varieties being far from clear without the help of explanatory notes, which are outside the scope of a catalogue.

The first Georgian stamps were issued in New Zealand, in July, 1915. With the exception of the ½d green (which is surface printed and perf. 14x15) the whole set was engraved on rather thick paper, and of the ten horizontal rows in each sheet, the four top rows were perforated 14x13½, and the six lower rows 14x14½. It should be noted in passing, however, that early printings of some of the values appeared perforated 14x13½ throughout, and that the 4½d and 7½d values were so perforated for several years, the last named, in particular, not being issued with the "duplex" perforation until a comparatively short time before its withdrawal in 1921. The entire series has the standard watermark of NZ over Star.

July, 1915.—

1. Surface printed, Wmk. NZ and Star. Perf. 14x15.
½d green (shades).

2. Line engraved, Wmk. NZ and Star. Perf. 14x13½ and 14x13½/14½.
1½d grey.
2d bright violet.
2½d deep blue.
3d chocolate.
4d orange-yellow.
4½d deep green.
6d rose-carmine.
7½d red-brown.
9d olive.
1sh vermilion.

The war broke out just a year before the appearance of the above stamps, and was directly responsible for nearly all the subsequent varieties.

To begin with, the duty on receipted bills was raised from 1d to 2d; but as the cancellation of stamps on tradesmen's and other bills is commonly made in violet with a rubber hand-stamp, it is obvious that in unscrupulous hands a violet stamp with a faint violet cancellation was liable to be removed and used again. Hence it became necessary to change the colour of the 2d stamp. The postal authorities simply exchanged the colours of the 2d and 4d denominations.

1916.—Same as last.
2d orange-yellow (January).
4d bright violet (April).

The next result of the war was a shortage of paper, and the Government printing office was obliged to exercise rigid economy. There was in hand a surplus supply of paper which had been made for the large stamps of the pictorial issue of 1902, but never used. In order to avoid waste, this was utilized for several of the Georgian stamps, until it was exhausted. This paper is much thinner than that employed for the Georgians of 1915; moreover, the watermarks had of course been spaced to fit the oblong pictorial stamps, and, consequently, a considerable number of the comparatively small Georgian stamps printed on it do not show any watermark at all, and only a few stamps on each sheet have it well centred. The 1½d was the first stamp to be printed on this paper, with the duplex perforation as before. Then follow the 2d (orange-yellow), the 3d and t 6d; these three values show two mark characteristics: (a) The plates we printed with the paper sideways, ar consequently, show the watermark sic ways, and (b) they are perforated, f some unknown reason, regular 14.

1916.—Engraved; on thin "pictori paper.

(1) Wmk. upright, duplex perf. before.
1½d grey (Mar., '16).
Do. no wmk.

(2) Wmk. sideways. Perf. 14.
2d orange-yellow (June, '16).
Do. no wmk.
3d chocolate (June, '16).
Do. no wmk.
6d rose-carmine (Aug., '16).
Do. no wmk.

The next series of varieties was due a rise in the postal rates. The ordina letter rate was first raised to 1½d, t result being that far more stamps of t denomination were required than befo and the engraving process proved to slow and costly. An order was con quently given for the manufacture plates similar to that used for the ½ stamp, i.e., for surface printing. Wh these plates were being made in Englar a provisional plate was made in N Zealand, from which the 1½d stamp w surface-printed in grey-black for a f months, pending the arrival of the n plates from England. When the lat arrived, the new stamps appeared slate-grey, and similar in all other spects to the ½d stamp. The stam surface-printed from the locally-ma plate, are slightly larger than the e graved ones, and are very roughly ex cuted; they also vary considerably depth of colour.

April, 1916. — Surface-printed fr locally-made plate. Wmk. NZ and St Perf. 14x15.
1½d grey-black (shades).

September, 1916.—Surface-printed fr English plate. Wmk. and perf. as la 1½d slate-grey.

It was soon found that the new star was too dark to show a black cancel tion with sufficient clearness, so t colour was changed to red-brown.

September, 1918.—The same.
1½d red-brown.

The postal rate had meanwhile risen 2d; this necessitated the surface-printi of the 2d stamp, and it appeared at t same time as the 1½d English pla Later it was followed by the surfac printed 3d.

September, 1916-19.—The same.
2d orange-yellow (Sept., '16).
3d chocolate (May, '19).

This completes the surface-print series; on the whole, they are not di creditable productions in view of the di ficult conditions under which they we issued. The 1½d slate-grey, and the Hark! Listen, All Readers of the WEEKLY!

Perhaps many do not know that I have written a very interesting book, specially interesting to Stamp Collectors and Dealers. A book covering a large field, and embracing interesting subjects, not only for lovers of the "Stamp Hobby", but for others, old or young, as well. Remember I have been a stamp dealer for a great many years, long before many of the readers of this paper were born. Yes, I have sold plenty of the 5 cent 1847 U. S. Stamps at 5c to 25c Each.

In my Life Story, called

"LOOKING BACKWARD"

or "Fragments from a Checkered Life" you will find interesting reading, telling of many of my purchases of stamps, some embracing very large deals. Going among the dealers abroad more than 30 years ago, when U. S. stamps were not appreciated by the Foreign dealers and collectors, I bought 90c 1870-2 at 1 penny each. I have had and they went begging for a purchaser. There are many pages devoted to stamp items that every "Stamp Lover" will be interested in, and I want you to own a copy of my book. Many testimonials have been received from readers, who speak very highly of "Looking Backward". E. B. Sterling, one of my customers of long ago, has written me a long letter in which he tells what he thinks of the book. I will just mention one more from the large number. Mr. M. H. Hover, member of the Albany Club, Albany, N. Y., writes:—"Dear Mr. Handshaw, I have read most of your book, and beg to express my appreciation of what you have written so delightfully. You have given to Philatelic literature a contribution that every stamp collector of discernment must enjoy. With best wishes, Sincerely yours".

"Looking Backward" is a volume of 330 large pages, 44 engravings, nicely printed, and bound in cloth, a fine book worthy of a place among your best books. Postpaid, $2.00.

SPECIAL to the readers of this paper for 30 days. If you will write, enclosing $1.80 cash, a copy of the book will be mailed, and a fine block of o. g. 1896 2s 6d Transvaal stamps will be given free. You must mention this paper. The book can also be bought on the installment plan, but no premium will be given. I want You to possess a copy of "Looking Backward" and will gladly give more information. Just send a 2c stamp for postage, and I will mail you my big illustrated circular and a free block of 4 old imperf. Salvador stamps. WRITE TODAY, WHY WAIT?

SAN FRANCISCO
Collectors will find a complete line of the new 20th Century albums and 1923 Catalogues on sale at our office, are both quite pleasing; the colour of the 2d, however,, is very thin and watery compared with its engraved predecessor. Like some other things, however, it has improved with age.
H. W. DOSCHER & CO. 217 Montgomery St. San Francisco, Cal.

For the sake of young collectors, it may be well to note here that the surface-printed Georgian stamps are distinguishable from the engraved ones (1) by the colour of each stamp; (2) by the perforation, which is uniformly 14x15 on all the surface prints; (3) by the lines of shading on the head and neck, and (4) by the dotted network in the background, which is quite different.

The 5d and 8d denominations had not, thus far, been issued with the head of King George; the Edwardian stamps of these values had been retained. The 8d was always in demand, particularly for telegrams, as for some time 8d was the minimum charge for them. In fact, so great was the demand for them that the 8d K. E. stamp was actually issued on the pictorial paper (wmk. sideways and perf. regular 14) for a short time. It was not, however, until 1921 that they were superseded by the issue of the Georgian 8d and 5d.

The 8d stamp in New Zealand, from the very first, had always been printed in deep blue, i.e., in the Queen Victoria issue of 1882, in the pictorial series of 1898, and in the King Edward series. The postal authorities in 1921 were so conservative, that, blind to the consequences, they retained this colour for the Georgian 8d; and so in the latter part of 1921 there were two different Georgian stamps of almost identically the same colour, the 8d and the 2½d—both in constant use.

Obviously this state of affairs could not last, and so the colour of the 8d was very soon changed to a dull, reddish brown (not unlike the 7½d stamp, which had just been withdrawn). The blue 8d has the duplex perforation; the red-brown 8d has at present only appeared perf. 14x13½ throughout.

The 5d King George appeared soon after, with duplex perforation in a handsome sky-blue. The earliest sheets were perforated 14x13½ throughout.

Engraved. Duplex perf.
8d deep blue (May, '21).
Ditto. Perf. 14x13½.
8d red-brown (Feb., '22).
Ditto. Perf. 14x13½ and duplex.
5d blue (May, '22).

In 1923, the ½d stamp has been issued on thick paper, for use in the coil machines. This brings the series down to the present day. The 7½d with the duplex perf. is an uncommon stamp, especially used; likewise the short-lived 8d blue. Of the others, the old 4d orange-yellow and the 2d violet are by far the scarcest. The remainder are for the most part easily obtainable, and the whole series, if well arranged, forms a most interesting and attractive item among the stamps of Oceania. It is obviously best, and not very expensive, to collect the engraved stamps in blocks of four, or in vertical pairs, showing both perforations se tenant, i.e., from the 4th and 5th rows of the sheet from the top.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

RIDGEWOOD N. J., STAMP EXHIBIT.

(We reprint this article from the "Ridgewood Herald" for the specific purpose of showing our readers how a stamp exhibit can profitably be conducted in local schools. This clipping comes from W. L. Kinkead, an old-time subscriber to the WEEKLY, and we take it for granted that he has been prominent in promoting the exhibit. Local clubs will find this a good way to arouse interest in philately. —W. O. W.)

The boys and girls of all our village grammar and high schools who are interested in the collection of stamps will be glad to have an opportunity to exhibit their treasures to their friends and others on November 3rd, at the Beech Street School. This is one week later than announced last summer, but that will give more time for preparation.

The mounted exhibits and all albums should be carefully marked with name and address and left with the committee in charge of the exhibits at the school for arranging between 9 A. M. and 12 noon, on November 3rd.

The exhibition will be open to the public at 2 P. M. The judges will review the exhibits between 2 and 9 P. M., at which time the prizes will be awarded, and exhibitors will then claim their exhibits, albums, frames, etc.

All collections offered in this competition must be owned (not borrowed) by a school boy or girl who is a student in the village grammar or high schools.

All special collections should be mounted in frames (any picture frame will answer) under glass, and name of exhibitor should be placed plainly on the back of each frame.

There must be at least three entrants in each class to have prizes awarded. Neatness, cleanliness, condition of stamps and evenness of mounting all will count in the judging of the collections.

Those entering more than one collection will find that each will be considered in judging the best general collection, or best collection of any country, if stamps are used in making up any other exhibits in the various competitions.

Prizes will be given to the best exhibitor in any of the following classes:

1. Best general collection.
2. Best collection of any country.
3. Best United States collection.
4. Best collection showing animals.
5. Best collection showing birds.
6. Best collection showing fauna.
7. Best collection showing flora.
8. Best collection showing scenery.
9. Best collection showing transportation.
10. Best historical collection.
11. Best original collection.
12. Best pre-cancelled collection.

The prizes offered are: Scott's Catalogue, MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, 100 Stamps, Stamp Tongs, 75 Stamps, Watermark Detector, Perforation Gauge, 1,000 Stamp Hinges, 50 All Different Precancels. For further information phone W. L. Kinkaid, 395-W.

PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE ON CORRESPONDENCE MAILED IN GERMANY.

The following announcement was printed in the Postal Bulletin of September 22, 1923:

"This department is in receipt of an announcement from the Berlin office reading as follows:

"'As a result of the lack of postage stamps the German office is temporarily forced to attest the prepayment of correspondence for abroad by means of notation showing the postage collected.

"Articles received at delivering post offices marked for the collection of postage by the New York or other exchange offices will be delivered after the affixing of postage-due stamps, as formerly.

"Articles, however, the envelopes or covers of which are without postage stamps but marked 'Taxe percue' or 'Gebuehr Bezahlt' (postage paid) or otherwise marked to indicate postage has been paid in money may be delivered without the collection of postage, pending the time when postage stamps will again be used in Germany."

It having been brought to the attention of the department that some postmasters are erroneously collecting postage due on mail matter originating in Germany bearing no postage stamps but marked as indicated in the foregoing, further attention is invited particularly to the last paragraph of the announcement reprinted above.

PAUL HENDERSON,
Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

AN INTERESTING STAMP EXHIBIT.

COLLECTION OF ARTHUR HIND OF UTICA DISPLAYED AT THE NEW YORK COLLECTORS CLUB.

Arthur Hind's collection of United States and Confederate postage stamps was exhibited for the first time in this city at the opening meeting of the Collectors' Club, 120 West Forty-ninth Street. President John N. Luff, Secretary J. Brace Chittenden, Julius C. Morgenthau and a few other officers accompanied Mr. Hind and his stamps to the club.

Mr. Morgenthau introduced Mr. Hind as the greatest stamp collector in the world, saying that his recent purchases of the rarities in the Ferrary collection at the Paris auction sales had placed America in the front rank in the philatelic world. The United States collection as shown was the one which won a grand championship prize in the international stamp exhibition in London last May.

Mr. Hind is a textile manufacturer and bank director of Utica, maintaining an office in New York. He made no speech at the exhibition the other night, but waved his hand toward a big black bag from which three bulky albums were being extracted, representing a fortune in stamps, and it was only a portion of his complete collection. One album contained the early issues of the United States, the second had the later issues, chiefly of the Twentieth Century with the early carriers, while the third album held the Confederates and a number of early envelopes with curious "postage paid" figures and designs used prior to adhesive stamps.

INTEREST IN EARLY ISSUES.

One of the albums was placed in the custody of Charles J. Phillips, the former London stamp dealer, who sold to Mr. Hind a few days before the London exhibition the United States collection of the late Henry J. Duveen. The entire Duveen collection, including all stamps of foreign countries, was offered for sale at $1,150,000. No collector was found who wanted to take the whole lot, and the most valuable portions have been sold this year by complete countries. The United States and Confederates were valued at about $200,000.

The greatest interest centered in the early United States issues, and that volume, which was shown by John A. Klemann, had a crowd of members around it until nearly midnight. The Hind volumes contain many unique specimens which can be seen nowhere else. One of the unique copies, which was locked up for years in the Paris home of the late Count Philip von Ferrary, was the postmaster's stamp issued at Boscawen, N. H., just before the first Government issue in 1847. It is on the original envelope bearing the Boscawen postmark. Its cost to Mr. Hind was about $12,000. Another unique specimen was the Lockport, N. Y., postmaster stamp, which also was acquired at the Ferrary sale and cost $8,500, and another rarity was the 5-cent envelope stamp issued by the Annapolis Post Office, which cost $3,000. Other choice postmasters' issues include the 5-cent Millbury, Mass., a fine 5-cent Brattleboro on the original envelope, both the 5 and 10 cent Baltimores, the latter being one of only two copies on the original envelope, the St. Louis 5, 10 and 20 cent values, including a complete sheet with three of the 5s and three of the 10s, the

I am breaking up a very fine collection of U. S. containing many early issues as well as the Department stamps nearly complete.

Remember I am Headquarters for Stamps of U. S. and Its Colonies. Want list, please.

H. F. COLEMAN
SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Alexandria 5-cent buff, the red and blue New Haven envelope stamps and many fine specimens of the New York 5-cent stamp with the beautifully engraved head of Washington.

Contains Rare Errors.

The collection of official and semi-official carriers' stamps is remarkable, containing the rare "errors" of the Charleston, S. C., issues, the rare Boston 2-cent black, unused, and the best of the Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore issues.

It was, however, in the completeness and perfection of the early issues of the United States, especially from 1847 through the 70's, that the veteran collectors displayed the keenest interest and found their greatest surprise. In the wealth of uncanceled specimens in blocks of four or more the collection is unsurpassed. One of the outstanding pieces is a block of twenty-one used copies of the ten-cent 1851 unperforated, which Mr. Hind purchased for $1,825 at an auction in Springfield, Mass., a year ago.

In the 1857 issue all the values are present in magnificent blocks, including all the shades of the five-cent value, and there are fine copies of the very rare first 1861 issue, of which single copies of the higher values are worth more than $1,000 apiece. These were in use only during August, the design being slightly changed in September. Best of all, however, are unused specimens of the inverted centres of the 15, 24 and 30 cents of the attractive 1869 issue, worth from $3,000 to $5,000 apiece. There was nothing lacking also in the various grilled stamps, of which some of the higher values are practically unobtainable.

More than one hundred members viewed the collection, among them being George Walcott, Joseph T. Lozier, J. Murray Bartels, Hugh M. Clark, Edward Stern, J. J. Klemann, Eugene Costales, Elliott Perry, Winthrop S. Boggs, Walter S. Scott, George B. Sloane, Sidney F. Barrett and M. Ohlman.—N. Y. Times.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—In the Weekly of October 22 appeared an advertisement of the W. W. Anderson Co., Princeton, Ill., in which certain covers were advertised under two different years, 1851 and 1857. The covers in question were really 3c 1851 and the firm will be glad to submit selections to interested parties at from ten to fifteen cents per cover.

—Morris Kershner of Chicago, renewing his subscription, writes us how he listened in to the talk on stamps given by Mr. Severn through radio station WMAQ, Chicago, Ill., the evening of October 25. Mr. Kershner stated that the talk lasted about twenty-five minutes and that Mr. Severn described in a very interesting manner the pleasures of stamp collecting and especially the collecting of United States stamps.

—We have received a brief word from Ernest R. Ackerman from Kyoto, Japan. He writes that he was at Nikko on Sept. 1, but all of his trunks were at the Imperial Hotel, Tokyo, and they had not been recovered as recently as October 9. Mr. Ackerman informs us that an entirely new set of postage and revenue stamps will soon be issued by Japan, and the design will be considerably more complicated than the present issue. The new stamps will be imperforate and without gum.

—A card of remembrance is at hand from Mexico City. It comes from A. W. Whitten of Chicago, who is sojourning for a short time in Mexico, where, as he expresses it, he is "trying to pick up a few Mexican stamps while here."

—The P. O. Department's exhibit of U. S. stamps was displayed in Buffalo, October 25. Will H. Fedder of LaSalle, N. Y., sends us this information with a warm commendation of the tastefully displayed exhibit.

—A. Leon Adutt, the well-known English philatelist, sailed on the Aquitania, Nov. 3, to attend a New York City conference. He will visit Chicago, Washington, Buffalo and Philadelphia during his stay here. Mr. Adutt was recently awarded a gold medal at an exhibition in Czecho-Slovakia for his Confederate States.

—No. 14 of the Bi-Monthly Journal, published by H. E. Harris & Co., is a hand. It is a large, 24-page magazine and is especially devoted to exploiting the trade activities of the Harris firm. There is, however, a great deal of interest to the collector in the publication, and our subscribers will do well to procure copies.

—Information is at hand that A. B. Slater of Slocum, R. I., is on a three or four years' trip about the world. He has no fixed itinerary and mail matter will not be forwarded.

—Price list No. 14 is the latest from E. E. Nyden, 356 E. 157 St., N. Y. City. It lists by sets a great number of offerings at prices that will prove very attractive. Copy free on request.

—The Union County Philatelic Society has been lately formed in Roselle Park, N. J. Any collector residing in Union County may write G. C. Jorgensen, 32 Clay Ave., E. Roselle Park, N. J.

—T. H. Ames, Montclair, N. J., would like the present address of M. A. Pierson, 935 Barry Ave., Chicago, Ill.

—Miss Amy L. Swift submits an Australian cover with advertising cancellation for our inspection. She also writes us concerning the enclosing of sufficient postage with orders, and we quote as follows:—"Not long since the postage I sent for some items ordered, fell short two cents because of extra circulars (advertising matter) which the dealer stuffed in. The letter informed me that my remittance for postage was insufficient, and requested that I remit the difference. I did! He evidently needed the two cents badly."

U. S. Plate Varieties

If there is one thing we like above others in specialized collecting of United States stamps, it is the shifts, recuts and other accidental varieties which are numerous (not common) in some issues.

For those who like them we can almost always supply the major shifts on the 5c '47 and the dotted "S" and "U", the double POST OFFICE and the side-line varieties and short transfers on the 10c same issue. Long since recognized by Dr. Chase but mentioned in no catalogs, are the "blurred or slightly double printed" stamps of both values.

There are many varieties of unusual recuts and shifts on both the 1c and 3c stamps of 1851; nearly a hundred varieties of shifted transfers on the 3c alone. Imprints, center-lines, sheet corners and all things out of the ordinary we buy whenever offered and occasionally sell. We think the Type varieties of the 10c '51's and '57's, not to mention the recuts, are interesting and worth-while from any standpoint.

If you care for such things, we shall be glad to send them to you. If you have any to dispose of—we enjoy buying.

THE GERMAN POSTAL SITUATION.

By CHAS. L. WIDMAN.

Upon my return from Europe, where I spent the 3 months from July to September, I am reading with much interest the various opinions as to the future of the German stamps.

Some people supposed that Germany had returned to the old "pay over the counter" plan; but I have had some interesting experiences which will show you that the German government is not contemplating this remedy. On my arrival in Germany the beginning of July, the foreign postage rate was 500 Mks. From then on there were continuous advances almost every week. The latest rate is indicated by the enclosed card, 10 Million Marks. The new provisionals were being issued first about the end of August, when the advances were so rapid that the Government printing shops could not keep up the pace.

On days before the increases went into effect, everybody who had to write a letter took advantage of the old rate and as a consequence, on such days there was always an immense crowd in all post offices. I myself had to stand in line sometimes for an hour to mail a letter. Finally conditions became so bad that the post offices ran out of stamps and then the "pay over the counter" plan was adopted, but only when there was no supply of stamps available.

I had the opportunity several times to speak to high officials, and learned that the postal authorities were contemplating adopting a plan similar to that one in use at the German railroad offices. There they are using a base price and a multiplicator, varying with the dollar exchange rate. They told me that they figured on issuing stamps based on this idea. Up to this time I have not seen any and the postcard I am enclosing shows that they are still issuing provisionals and also regular stamps.

PAID SUBSCRIPTIONS COUNT.

Under the caption "Circulation Counts" our friend Vallancey has something to say in Stamp Collecting and we quote his remarks as follows:

> "6,250 copies are being circulated of this number. As philatelic "net sales" go, it is a big total—exceeding by far that of any other stamp journal—but it represents a mere fraction of what should be the average weekly circulation of a newspaper such as this. Our Proprietor is not altogether a charitable institution, and the size—and largely the scope—of the paper necessarily depends on the measure of support accorded by subscribers and advertisers."

The challenge voiced by Mr. Vallancey is so bold that we must answer it. The total mentioned by our friend is indeed impressive, but the WEEKLY meets it with a paid subscription list mailing last week of 7,700. Note that this is not mere "circulation"—we can't tell how many "readers" our paper has. Our list represents actual paid subscribers and our books are always open.

Really Mr. Vallancey should print this in Stamp Collecting.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

13,293,400 Mark for $1.00

A lot of 33 new German stamps totaling 13,293,400 Marks. Values up to and including the new 5,000,000 Mark stamp. Altho the actual value of the lot is less than 2 cents U. S. money, we were obliged to pay very large advances on some of the items to get them in quantity. One item is charged to us at 100 times face value. Our correspondent says it is "necessary to go behind hand" to get the stamps in many cases. These are mostly surcharges on discontinued lower values and some of the items may turn out to be very good things.

The Entire Lot postpaid for Only $1.00 or in Blox of Four at $3.00. [14

Then if you don't think you have got your money's worth after receiving the stamps, return them at once and we will give your money back.

UNDESIRABLE PUBLICITY.

By F. L. Coes.

On October 2nd the Postmaster General, of Birmingham, England, Mr. John Scott, stated in his opening address, that he (Mr. Scott) "held that the joys of collecting anything must involve something more than mere possession; and in the case of stamps there was the design, material, reproduction, ink, adhesives, engraving, printing and cognate arts, all offering wide fields for study." He skipped history, and a few minor details, but he hit pretty much all the rest, except monetary value.

In the Sunday Times (N. Y. Oct. 28) is a column devoted to the showing before the Collectors Club of the collection of U. S. and Confederate States stamps, which, while including mention of the gems of world wide repute by name, and giving in some cases intimate details of rarity, as well as a little list of the first magnitude stars of philatelic fame who were present beside the owner, also is headed by a figure valuation which takes most of the joy out of it for the youthful collector.

The contrast between the tone of the opinion of Mr. Scott and the heading "$500,000 in Rare Stamps Exhibited" is exactly the item that causes the greater percentage of discontinued names on our club rolls and the gaps in your subscription list.

While I congratulate Mr. Hind, Utica and its people, New York and those present on their good luck at being able to own or view such an aggregation of wonders, I cannot help deprecating the lack of tact exhibited by the press and the committee in placing the cost first and the interest last.

It is axiomatic that the gems will land where there are funds to pay for them, and the intention to acquire, but in a case like this, where the experts gather to view, and comment, and compare, and pass judgment should not the publicity man of the club be willing to voice the collecting items and forget (for once) that line of ciphers following the dollar sign and the numeral.

Such an item, while glorifying one phase of Philately, is a very serious and dampening deterrent on the young amateur, whose collection is likely to catalog $499,500 less than Mr. Hind's wonderful aggregation, even though the youth may be more ardent a collector, proportionally, than the senior.

To those of us who have for years been fostering the items touched in Mr. Scott's address, this inappropriateness of position seems a handicap almost impossible to explain away. I question also its aid to the trade, except to a few exceptionally lucky dealers who make a specialty of chasing rarities for sale to those able, like Mr. Hind, to own them.

It is this tendency of the press to elevate the cost price to the top line and to subordinate the interesting facts to the end of the article which damages the technical points of collecting, no matter whether it be stamps, or paintings or something else. California has the "Blue Boy", and the artist who views it probably once in a thousand times would be able to tell its cost. The wonder in its colors, the figure, the unforgettable spell of a perfect painting, pales the cost into a mere detail. Bring in a reporter, and his first statement would be "This painting cost a million, and came from a gallery in England", &c. He would know the duty, the freight and the size of the screws in the case, but he would skip every essential item of the picture itself.

So here we get the slant of the reporter who thinks (being a New York reporter) in round figures, and who add the carefully prepared details, probabl proof read and checked by a philatelis of note, in the exact position that suc trivial details occupy in the minds o those who know nothing of the detail o acquisition, and history, and the othe collecting spurs.

Perhaps never before have the Lock port, the Boscawen, the Millbury, th Annapolis and the other oddities of th Postmasters' issues been gathered int one cover and displayed to eager eyes o this side of the pond. Possibly there ha never been shown an aggregation so completely perfect, even when the late Mr Worthington displayed his collection a the N. Y. Exhibition.

Beyond doubt Mr. Hind will improve even this seeming completeness by the addition of other wonders, which still exist here and abroad in these classifications; but with such additions it seems to me that the effective discussion of them is marred by the tendency of the journalistic section to overdo the price to the damage of the items that make the piece valuable as part of a collection which in itself is history, and all the other items of Mr. Scott's mention, to the Nth power.

Even if the figure mentioned is an estimate, as the article states further on, would not Mr. Hind himself prefer its omission in favor of the attractive historical headlines that could be written around such an aggregation of unique items?

THAT COLLECTOR-DEALER MATTER.

DEAR CHARLEY:—

Well, Charley, here I am again trying to bust into the colyums of your Weakly, which I notice, y'understand, aint so good since I quit writing for it. I been busy as a dog in a cactus bed since I took up this stamp business seriously, so haven't had much time to write anything except letters to them which owes me and them which I owe.

I have been trying to get up enough spunk and pep to come back at myself like Mr. Oakland wanted me to, and slap the stamp dealers on the wrist after the nasty cracks I gave the collectors in my last outburst of literary effort, but after mature deliberation, to cop off one of your own pet phrases, I have decided that since I am now a dealer it would be less majesty or something for me to do that to my confreres, as Champion would say.

But really, Charley, that was a bum head you gave my other letter. I wasn't all sour at the world, like Tuesday's milk on Saturday. I was just feeling foxy and wanted to tell the world how much fun us stamp dealers have in a day. And doggone, some of the boys thought I didn't like the game.

As a matter of facts, Charley, if it wasn't for the stamp collectors, us dealers would be S. O. L., for we would all have to go to work. As it is, the collectors brighten our days for us and it is the tinkle of their little shekels that makes the merry ring in our little tin till, and buys the baby a pair of shoes, y'know. Why, Charley, I love the collectors, for if it wasn't for their want lists and etcetera, I would probably be back in old Chi driving my little cart and histing up the heavy cans again.

And because I was a collector oncet myself, I can see the game from their way of looking at it. It is a fact that there are a lot of rules in the game that could never get by in the old corner grocery, and some of these rules look mighty funny to the collector until he gets on the other side of the fence, and then they are all very clear.

One of the most noticeable things that collectors can't understand is why most stamp dealers are as independent as George Washington was on July 4, 1776. That independence is the bull-works that keeps the old wolf from scratching the paint off the front porch. Most of these "high-powered notions" objected to by so many collectors are caused by the collectors themselves.

For instances, the big, one-man dealer is pressed for time, the most valuable asset of a stamp dealer, and he has learned that the fellow who writes him on a postcard is usually not apt to prove a heavy buyer, but a "shopper" who divides his dollar with a hundred dealers and uses cards to save postage. Hence he figures the postcard man is a waste of time. Here he is wrong in many cases, but he will take a chance and throw the card away. Had he a large force to handle the volume of small business, he would welcome the postcard inquiry, as many dealers do.

Also, Mr. Collector can't see why he is invited to stay away from certain dealers who only want large sales. That is also due to the fact that these certain dealers know that they are not equipt to profitably handle small sales, and they are not good enough sports to sacrifice the big customer to the interest of the smaller men when it hits their profits and brings them little. This is human nature, just as practiced by the other fellows themselves in some ways.

Nor can the collectors see why the dealer who has a deuce of a time getting a single copy of certain penny rarities which he must have to satisfy the cravings of the big buyer, fails to enthuse over the want list of the man who buys all of his cheap, ordinary and profitable stock from the small dealer near home and only comes to the big man for the hard-to-gets that the other fellow never can supply. If, as in most other lines of commerce, it were possible for the dealer to get one stamp as easily as another, this condition would not exist, and all business would be welcome.

Because the hard ones are hard, and collectors want them, the fellow who has them has found that he can be as independent as he pleases. Send him a want list for the unsaleable and slow-moving stock, and you will see him render quick, snappy service and bring out the customers' box of cigars from the safe when you come in the office. Dealers have found that it takes the cream to sell the milk, and the fellow who wants cream only has to pay for the skimming.

All in all, most collectors and dealers are human, in some respects, at least. If the fellow who is troubled with poor service on his lists will try confining his business to a few dealers who will get to know him as a buyer, he will find little reluctance on their part in catering to his wants. And until the millenium when one stamp can be had as easily as another, it will be natural for the dealer to favor the man who takes the bitter with the sweets.

Well, Charley, I gotta quit and make up a specialized lot of Hejaz for a man who specializes in them, and I gotta pick through the stock to find a certain Jammu that got mixed with Jammu and Kashmir, and I can't read Jammu or Kashmir either, so I am in a bit of a Jam -u might say.

BILL BLOSS.

The "MANN" Collection of NEW ZEALAND

We have much pleasure in announcing the purchase of the above world-famed collection of the stamps of New Zealand, which, in its extraordinary richness and profusion, no less than in the philatelic interest of its contents, is probably the finest collection of the stamps of a single country which has ever passed through our hands.

It is now being priced and we shall be glad to send selections to specialists known to us. We anticipate so shall be glad to have the names of collectors interested, so that these volumes may be sent out in rotation.

We shall also be glad to receive enquiries for special items, or general want lists of New Zealand, which shall be given careful attention.

This collection was purchased direct from the owner by STANLEY GIBBONS LTD. of London and, though it has been in our hands six months, not a single stamp has yet been sold or detached from the collection, and this is the first time it has been authoritatively advertised for sale.

EDITORIAL.

An old reader says that we "should take note of all the unjustified criticism of philately that appears in print" and refer the objectionable items to a "select list" of philatelists whose duty it would be to write in rebuttal. He suggests that we publish the names of those who are willing and competent to act on his proposal. This plan is a good one, but in view of the fact that numerous collectors throughout the country allow no opportunity to pass to correct unfair or ignorant statements, we feel that it is not necessary to call for volunteers. Further, it is our opinion that the committee that will be appointed by the American Philatelic Society will fill the bill more appropriately than private appointees.

Our European correspondent, Mr. Lowell J. Ragatz, now in London, rescues the following philatelic paragraphs: "That veteran stamp collector, Mr. L. Vernon Vaughan of Demerara, who as a boy in 1873, sold for six shillings, the unique one cent British Guiana stamp which recently changed hands, at 7,343 pounds, still cultivates the hobby and also retains his membership in the British Guiana Philatelic Society." This notice appeared in the West India Committee Circular, London, 13 Sept., 1923. In the same issue of the Circular there is an article: "The Island of Montserrat. Itself, Its People, and Its Postage Stamps."

The Treasury Department has replied to the letter that was sent to Washington in accordance with a resolution passed at the recent convention of the American Stamp Dealers' Association protesting against the ruling of the department that was rendered April 18, 1923, holding that cancelled United States postage stamps are dutiable as printed matter on their foreign market value at the rate of 25 per centum ad valorem under paragraph 1310 of the Tariff Act. After an explanation tending to uphold the decision, the Hon. McKenzie Moss, Assistant Secretary, concludes his letter by saying that the Department is unable to authorize the free entry of cancelled postage stamps of the United States unless imported by or for the account of the exporter. The letter in its entirety covers the ground from the view-point of the Treasury Department and it now becomes incumbent upon the stamp trade to confer with the intention of devising some plan for relief from this burdensome and really uncalled-for restriction.

When Mr. B. K. Miller of Milwaukee, that ardent student of the stamps of the United States, wrote us to say that the backs of the stamps of this country had been used for advertising purposes long before New Zealand had shown its enterprising spirit in 1893, Mr. Miller was asked to give us particulars of these certain U. S. varieties. He answered: "On the three cent green of 1870, ungrilled, National, number 147 in the catalogue, three advertisements have been known, printed on the backs of the stamps under the gum. This information is omitted from Luff's work and is one of the few omissions that I have found in that marvelously complete work. So far as I know, their history is unknown. Lately, I obtained a fourth variety, viz., 'Buy Radway's Ready Relief,' in four lines. Possibly some of the old-timers could throw some light upon their history." We had forgotten entirely the existence of the stamps to which Mr. Miller calls attention and while we have vague recollections of the history of the three cent green, advertising backs, definite details are not forthcoming. It is hoped that some reader who has the story of these stamps on his tongue's end will favor us, else we shall be compelled to begin to look through the files of stamp papers, 1870 to 1875, and other works.

We notice in the minutes of the South Wales Philatelic Society, a reference to the specialized collection of the stamps of the United States, made by Sir Nicholas Waterhouse, which was awarded a gold medal at the recent exhibition in London. It is told that "a block of six of the 10c green" was bought at auction in 1903 for 16 shillings and his refusal subsequently of 250 pounds from an American collector for the block shows that the buyer "plunged" to advantage. A block of four of the five cent of 1847 is on the cover and a used block of eight of the same stamp, off the envelope, we assume, rub shoulders in the Waterhouse collection. We wish to say that in no other class of stamps have prices advanced so rapidly as in the early United States in pairs, strips and blocks. We remember, for instance, a good many years ago when pairs of the five cent of 1851 were divided by the Canadian dealers who used to visit us and a single sold at half the price of a pair; and now we find the pair quoted at around two hundred dollars. It is likely that the most sensational advances are to be found in the prices of pairs and so on of our own stamps, during the past decade.

In consequence of our paragraph in the issue of October 22nd, speaking of the early stamp collectors in this country, we have received several questions based on "Who was the first stamp collector?" not alone in this country but in the world. We do not remember having looked up this information for a long time, but now, having recourse again to old files of English papers, we find that Moens claimed to have started his collection in 1855 and as Belgium from the beginning of philatelic time has been regarded as a sort of cradle of philately, the distinction of having been the first collector may properly fall to J. B. Moens of Brussells, who five years later was an acknowledged philatelic leader. English writers have said that it was not until about 1860 that collecting "became general" in England. Any collector who became identified with philately as early as 1865 is entitled to our profound consideration and it is safe to say that there are few collectors now present who started in fifty-eight years ago. However, it is known that boys of eight and nine are keen collectors, and so we want the old-timers among our readers who have many philatelic years to their credit to let us know when they began their careers.

We mentioned Dr. George F. Heath of Monroe, Michigan, as one of the veteran collectors with the idea of starting our experience meeting. It is a duty to preserve a roster of the collectors in this country who began to collect with the dawn of philately. In this connection, the following letter from Donald R. Heath of Plainfield, New Jersey, has been received: "I was very much pleased with the reference to my father as one of the old collectors. The date you mention, 1863, is correct and I might add that he told me of having a collection of over two thousand stamps which he lost in a fire at Warrensburg, Mo., where he was in the drug business and also was postmaster for some time. This was a good collection in those days of little knowledge of minor varieties. He wrote articles for magazines under the pseudonym of 'Linwood.' The first issue of his Numismatist came out in 1888 and contained as much stamp as coin material. He was an early member of the Pomeroy Stamp Club of Toledo and of the Chicago and Detroit Clubs. I am sure that he was one of the first readers of the WEEKLY, as in 1894 the paper had long been a visitor to our home."

A MIGHTY TRIBUTE.

In this issue the French-American Stamp Co. makes its initial bow to the American stamp trade. This firm has contracted for 5,000 lines to be used within a year but indicates that the space will be used within nine months. As we are intimately acquainted with both the Paris and Brooklyn factors in this advertising campaign, we have no hesitation in commending the new firm to the patronage of our readers. The contract is a splendid tribute to the power of the WEEKLY as an advertising medium.

THE TWO CENT BROWN.

After noticing my name in the column in connection with a certain block, that block is plate No. 590 and has very pronounced shading. Now let me tell you what I have found.

First I want to give Major C. H. Bonesteel credit for starting this particular train of thought. In a letter that I got from him he remarked that he was convinced that the shading above refrered to was due to some recutting of the plate, as he had made a study of some sixty, more or less, I have forgotten the exact number, of the stamps with dated cancellations, and without exception, all dates before '85, and most of the '85 dates showed no shading, while after '85 the shading was in the great majority. Working on this clue given me by Major Bonesteel, I looked over my own stamps, and although I have no dated copies set away except as come on certain town cancellations, I found some fifty or so, and found a large number in my bunch of duplicates, and without exception those before '85 showed no trace of the shading while the later dates showed a preponderance of shading, being practically universal for '87 and on.

This verified Major Bonesteel completely, but there was another phase of the situation which occurred to me. I have separated this stamp into some seventeen shades, and have twenty copies of each shade mounted. In doing this I have taken account of the condition of the impression. There are two very distinct types of impressions. In one the lines are not so sharp and distinct, but are fairly "fuzzy," so to speak, while in the other the impression is very sharp and the line of engraving is very sharp. As these two are quite different in appearance, I have listed them separately, and I also found that without exception the fuzzy impressions did not have the shading and the sharp impressions did have the shading.

Now what does this mean? Frankly, I can hardly guess. Possibly it is a wearing of the die from one impression to the next. The shading seems to come out as the impression becomes worn. Again I am apt to start an argument. Which is the new die and which is the worn one? I am inclined to think that the sharp impression is the worn die, and the rough impression the new die. The proofs that I have are another verification of the fact but help not at all in the solution. Five proofs that I have in unissued shades seem to be a sort of half and half and show the shading faintly. Two others that I have in issued shades are the "fuzzy" impression and show no trace of the shading. I would like to hear of some more proofs and their condition and shading. Will other collectors give us this information?

I am sure that all proofs are not printed before the stamps are issued. I am sure of this in the case of one proof of the Columbian issue, owned by Dr. L. L. Steimley of this city, undoubtedly the greatest authority on the Columbian issues. This particular proof could not have been printed from the first plates. For this reason I look upon the proofs not as conclusive evidence of the time factor at all.—J. W. ANDREWS, 208 North Harvey St., Urbana, Ill.

Major C. H. Bonesteel writes that he has found two copies showing the stitch watermark on the five cent certificate, U. S. revenue first issue. The stitch runs horizontally across the stamp about in the middle and not up and down as in the 1870 issues and thereafter. Also, he says he has two stitch watermarks on the six cent and twelve cent War Department, stitch running up and down. Among the many cancellations which Major Bonesteel has in his collection of 500 War Departments are some of the old Army Post and Fort cancellations, many of which have been discontinued for years.

Charles A. Nast, 827 Sixteenth Street, Denver, Colo., author of the well-known and popular essay on cancellations on the Three Cent Green in Wiley's Book, writes the department regarding certain cancellations which have been mentioned. He says in part:

"In respect to the colorless numerals on the low values, '22' is the highest numeral so far discovered. I have it on the two cent brown (he does not say which issue) and the three cent green.

I am interested in the one cent blue, two cent brown, two cent green and vermilion, three cent vermilion and green, four cent green, four cent carmine, five cent Taylor, issues of 1870 to 1887, and the two cent Black Jack. I have only one block of four used of the three cent green, this with a town cancellation. They are scarce.

There is only one die of each of the two cent brown (Washington) and the five cent Garfield, the difference in the cross hatching noted by correspondents being due to freak plates or worn plates.

Your shift is a genuine discovery. I had one on the five cent Playing Card, first issue, and sold it for $25, which I have regretted ever since.

Your cancellation 'X,' if it is type print, stands for ten—if colorless, it is part of XII (Roman numerals). I have it on the three cent green. There are several types of the colorless."

(The cancellation which Mr. Nast refers to and which was mentioned in a recent issue, is typeset and the X is small, compared with the Roman numeral types. About 10 millimeters high, as I remember.—ED.)

Mr. Nast illustrates six types of large colorless letters in blocks of solid color. These are not to be confused with the smaller colorless numerals in round or square blocks of color of the Boston, Mass., type, which run from one up to 22, at least. The numerals here referred to are about half an inch in height.

One type is the three within a square block of color, with small arcs of color top and bottom and both sides. A second type is square block of color with oblong blocks of color top and bottom and both sides and little squares of color at each corner. The third type is large "3" within a circular block of color surrounded by a narrow rim of color. The fourth type is the colorless figure within a large oblong of color with bars of color above and below. The fifth type is colorless figure within a large circular block of color. The sixth type is a large square block of color with colorless numeral contained. He says that the first four are found on the three cent re-engraved and the last two on the first issues, soft and hard paper.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Mr. Arthur E. Owen sends me the new 1c green, rotary print design of 1923, with the compound perforation 11x10. This stamp is made from the coil waste and was placed on sale in New York around October 19th. The 2c stamp in similar condition was issued some months back. These are distributed in sheets of one hundred and in sheets of seventy and are made from the side-wise coil waste which had previously been perforated 10 vertically at the time it was run through the rotary press. It is then passed through the regular machines and perforated 11 horizontally, resulting in the variety mentioned above. So far, stamps from plates 14563, 64, 73 and 74 have been seen.

1923, perf. 11x10, Rotary Print
1c green.

As mentioned before the Post Office Department has been sending from city to city the frame of stamps which was awarded a prize at the International Exhibition in London, last May. In addition, they have recently made up six more frames, consisting of the current series of postage stamps arranged in an artistic manner and these too are being distributed where they will do the most good to bring before the public this one side of the working of the Post Office Department.

The Post Office Exhibit consisting of proofs of all United States stamps from the earliest to date which was prepared for the Exposition at Rio de Janeiro has been returned to Washington and will be later placed as a permanent exhibit in the office of the Philatelic Stamp Agent. Unfortunately, when the exhibit was boxed up for return, the one packing it placed a fine red sawdust in the box and this has sifted through to each frame, so that the exhibit will have to be taken apart, remounted, and the frames put in shape. This shows not only proofs of all of the different series but contains one of the two die proofs made of the 24c aeroplane with the center inverted.

The Department has announced that after November 30th the stamps on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency bearing the "Shanghai" overprint will be withdrawn and destroyed. All orders up to that time will be filled in so far as the available supply will permit. These stamps were originally placed on sale in Washington, while current in Shanghai, to enable the American collector to obtain his supply without writing to China. Now that the necessity of such an issue has terminated the Department feels it wise to discontinue their sale. At pre ent they have fair supplies of most d nominations, but the 50c and $1.00 val are not as finely centered as required the particular collector.

The department is now distributi the Harding stamp in greater numb and their general use on business mail increasing. Mr. F. R. Demmerly w is connected with a large Insurance C has been watching the mail and out 2,000 letters received from all parts the country between Sept. 10th to 20 inclusive exactly 125 copies of the Har ing Stamp were found. Of these 13 we from the rotary press and 112 from t flat plate. This number included thr pairs as well as a strip of four and a str of three. In other words, during Septe ber and October about 6% of the busine mail carried this variety. The proporti of rotary stamps used has no dou greatly increased because the rotary plat were not put to press until a later da

I have learned something this we that is certainly news and that is that is evidently possible to communica with the next world, besides they see to be using United States postage stam in the lower regions. Mr. A. H. Rober son has just sent me a stamp which clearly postmarked with a town cancell tion "HELL"—further investigation ho ever, shows that the stamp evident came off of a cover cancelled F Mitchell.

We wish to thank Mr. J. H. Housto Mr. W. G. Windhurst, Mr. C. H. He mann and others for notes of interest.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.—Two new hig values in the San Martin portrait ty of the 1 peso chronicled in our issue f September 8th, are reported by Messr Whitfield King & Co., viz.:—

Wmk. Honeycomb. (? Perf. 13½x12½
5 pesos lilac and green.
10 pesos claret and blue.

UTCH INDIES.—Our Special Corre- ident, Mr. J. O. Cramer, reports that handsome Jubilee stamps, chronicled e weeks ago, were duly issued in the ch Indies on September 1st. The ents and 1 gulden are perf. 11x11, others 11½, as already indicated.—np Collecting.

ERMANY.—The continued slump in value of the mark has necessitated uent adjustment of the postal rates, h now takes place every fortnight it has been found impossible to keep with these changes except by sur- ging the existing stocks of low es which are now useless for post- At the time of going to press the est value issued is 250,000 marks, this must soon be far exceeded, as ig Free State has already issued amp of one million marks, sur- ged on 10,000 marks. Many of these harged stamps issued during the past weeks are already obsolete.—Whit- King & Co.'s Bulletin.

W ZEALAND.—Mr. J. W. William- a native of this country, sends the wing taken from a paper published ckland:—

he suggestion to issue a new stamp ark the re-introduction of penny ge has been approved by the Post- er-General, the Hon. J. G. Coates, he issue will come out on October design, which has been approved is at present being finally drawn to the die being made, is by Mr. Bock, engraver, of Wellington. design aims at being distinctive haracteristic rather than artistic. chief feature is a tiny map of New nd, including a dot for Stewart , the space occupying five-sixths whole stamp. Across the top of tamp appears: "1d New Zealand The side borders represent scroll- in the form of Maori carving, and , in small type, are the words "Uni- postage" (one word on each side oblique). Right across the bot- re the words "One penny." stamp will be printed in pink ink, ternational tint for the penny m"

MARINO.—In reference to the set mps noted a few weeks ago Mr. e Klein advises that they were only three days and the total is- nsisted of 60,000 complete sets.

DEN.—Mr. Fred A. Jekel advises has a pair of No. 152 perforated all four sides. The letter with tamps were mailed in Stockholm, ber 4th, last year.

RNS-JORDANIA.—The current issue rprinted Hedjaz stamps is only a provisional one, and our agent at Amman informs us that a permanent pictorial set is in preparation and will shortly be issued. It is understood that the design will be a picture of Meshatta Castle, which lies to the east of Amman. —Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

OUR FIVE-YEAR HONOR CLUB

R. H. Peck, Atlanta, Ga.
F. J. Corey, M. D., Havana, Ill.
Herman Storch, Cincinnati, O.
Sentous Jr. H. S. Club, Los. Ang., Cal.
G. H. Miller, Martinsville, Ill.

In our mail for Monday, October 29, we received three five-year renewals of subscription, which carried with them memberships in our Honor Club. One was Frederick J. Corey, M. D., of Havana, Ill., and in connection with his remittance Dr. Corey sends us this appreciative word:—"If in this small way I may be able to help you in producing the same excellent publication as we now enjoy, you may know that I do so with pleasure and trust you will have many years of profitable experiences in carrying on your work."

In the Post Office service at Cincinnati, O., may be found one of our subscribers, Herman Storch. Mr. Storch is an old friend of the WEEKLY and his membership in the Honor Club is only an advanced step in the appreciation that he has always had for the WEEKLY.

The third application for membership came from Col. R. H. Peck of Atlanta, Ga. Col. Peck wasted no time in unnecessary correspondence but the letter did include a check for $5, which is gratefully placed to his credit.

Mr. Severn makes reference in Gleanings to the subscription sent in by Mr. Grinnell in behalf of the Sentous Junior High School Stamp Club, located on West Pico St., Los Angeles, Cal. Many school organizations are using the WEEKLY with profit and Mr. Grinnell's example is a worthy one for others to follow.

Just as we go to press a letter is received from G. H. Miller, Martinsville, Ill., with remittance of $5 for membership in our Honor Club. We give Mr. Miller a cordial welcome to the charmed circle.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

BUFFALO ORGANIZES.

Ten collectors of the Buffalo district met Friday evening, October 26, at No. 73 West Eagle Street, Buffalo, N. Y., and organized a collector's club. Three other collectors, who were unable to be present because of unavoidable engagements, telephoned in to declare their desire to be counted as charter members. The club was organized, officers elected and arrangements made to meet the following Friday and every first and third Friday of the month thereafter.

Officers elected were Warner Bates, president; L. H. Gardner, vice-president; H. C. Flierl, secretary-treasurer; and Fred L. Koepf, auctioneer. Others who joined as charter members were: Matthew W. Bennett, Dr. R. C. Fisher, J. W. Schaefer, Fred P. James, J. H. Bell, John Aldred, A. Creed, George B. Graham, T. J. Gundlach. A membership campaign will be conducted at once and members will be solicited not only in the city of Buffalo but throughout the western New York district of which Buffalo is the center.

The meeting opened with an auction at which a large number of lots of United States and foreign were disposed of. Some of the finer pieces, especially covers, brought very good prices. Following the auction the business meeting was held and the evening concluded with a showing of selections from dealers. One of the features of the evening was an exhibit of five and ten cent forty-sevens furnished by Messrs. Flierl and Koepf.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS.

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the WEEKLY are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it.

THE LATER STAMP ISSUES OF THE LEVANT P. O.

By Douglas B. Armstrong.

Under the terms of the Treaty of Lausanne the European post-offices in Constantinople will be closed as soon as Turkey appends her signature to the Madrid Convention of the Universal Postal Union. Thus terminates the last phase of one of the most fascinating groups of stamp issues known to philatelists.

Prior to October, 1914, when the foreign "Capitulations" were formally abrogated by the Sublime Porte, six nations exercised their right to maintain their own postal establishments in the Ottoman dominions, viz., Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Russia and Austria. Of these the first three named above re-established national post-offices in Constantinople and Smyrna in pursuance of treaty rights, subsequent to the Armistice of Oct., 1918. The British, French, and Italian post-offices at Smyrna were destroyed in the great fire of Nov., 1922, and by agreement with the Turkish Nationalist Government, were not re-opened.

An attempt was made to revive the Russian Post in Constantinople by the Wrangel administration in Nov., 1920, but this was suppressed in the following May in consequence of strong representations by the Turkish Government on the grounds that Russia was not a member of the League of Nations and that the Treaty of Sévres was still unratified.

I.—Great Britain.

A branch of the British Army Post-Office at Constantinople, for the use of civilians, was opened in January, 1919, and on July 17th, 1919, was transferred to complete civil control. On March 1st, 1919, the British civil post-office at Smyrna was likewise re-opened for the convenience of the mercantile community. Until July, 1921, these offices made use of contemporary postage stamps of Great Britain, recognizable only by means of the local postmark. On or about August 1st of that year, however, they were supplied with a distinctive stamp issue comprising ten denominations of current British adhesives (from ½d to 10s) surcharged with equivalent values in Turkish currency. These were shortly followed by a separate series for use in the Parcels Post service in the form of seven stamps overprinted "LEVANT" in sans-serif capitals.

The overprints were applied by the Stamping Dept. of the Board of Inland Revenue at Somerset House, London, apparently to half-sheets of 120 in the case of the lower values, and whole sheets of the 1s, 2s6d, 5s and 10s. The 18¾pi surcharged on 1s was from a setting of twenty-four subjects in two rows of twelve, repeated twenty times to cover the entire sheet.

No outstanding varieties of these surcharges are believed to exist, but there are innumerable minor varieties of interest to extreme specialists, by means of which it is claimed that the settings can be reconstructed.

II.—France.

Concurrently with the British post-office, the French Agency also put on sale a set of surcharged stamps in place of those of the Mother Country, which call, however, for no special comment, until March 27th, 1923, when, in consequence of delay in the fulfilling of a requisition for fresh supplies of stamps surcharged 1.20, 3.30 and 7.20 piastres respectively, a temporary dearth of these denominations occurred at the French P. O., Constantinople, and was met by the creation of local and provisional surcharges applied by means of handstamps in the following quantities:—1.20pi on 10 centimes (3000), 3.30pi. on 15 centimes (7500), 7.20pi on 35 centimes (7500). On receipt of the overdue consignment of the normal issue from Paris a few days later, these provisionals were withdrawn from circulation and the handstamps used for their production destroyed. Throughout the period of their currency they were not sold to the public, but were affixed to letters handed over the counter by the postal officials themselves.

THEODORE CHAMPION
PARIS 13 rue Drouot 13 PARIS

III.—ITALY.

Italian military post-offices established in Constantinople and Smyrna in March, 1919, were finally transferred to civil control on July 1st, 1921, but it was not until four months later that the postage stamps employed then received a distinguishing surcharge in paras and piastres.

The first series made its debut on Nov. 7th, 1921, and consisted of five values of current Italian postage stamps locally surcharged in Turkish currency as follows:—

1 piastre on 5c green (3400).
2 piastres on 15c slate (25,200).
4 piastres on 20c orange (8000).
5 piastres on 25c blue (14,200).
10 piastres on 60c carmine (100,000).

Between Dec. 27th, 1921, and March, 1922, the foregoing provisionals were replaced by a more definitive series surcharged at the State Printing Works, Turin, and composed as under:—

10 para on 1c brown—Feb. '22 (21,400).
20 para on 2c red-brown—Feb. '22 (20,800).
30 para on 5c green—Dec. '21 (7400).
1pi 20pa on 15c grey—Dec. '21 (50,000).
3 piastre on 20c orange—Dec. '21 (22,400).
3pi 30pa on 25c blue—Feb. '22 (29,970).
7pi 20pa on 60c carmine—Dec. '21 (87,000).
15 piastre on 1l brown and green—Mar. '22 (13,200).

During May and June, 1922, a set of four values overprinted with the names of the two offices in Italian, i.e., "COSTANTINOPOLI" and "SMIRNE" respectively, were supplied by the Italian State Printing Office, the stamps thus overprinted being:—

20 para on 5c green.
1pi 20pa on 15c grey.
3pi 30pa on 40c brown.
7pi 20pa on 1l brown and green.

The introduction of a new postage rate of 3¾ piastres found the Italian post-office unsupplied with a stamp of that denomination. As a temporary expedient, therefore, a small stock of unsurcharged 25 centesimi stamps remaining on hand was locally surcharged "Piastre 3.75" in two lines, and placed on sale on August 5th, 1922. The surcharge was set up to cover a half sheet of 50 stamps at each impression, the 3rd and 8th stamps in the setting presenting a variety with large figure "7."

3.75 Piastre on 25c blue (70,000).

The consignment of stamps received from Turin in May and June, consisting of only 5000 sets, proved totally inadequate to meet the public demand, with the result that a fourth local issue was created to supply the deficiency, pending receipt of further stocks of the permanent issue. These provisionals were placed on sale on August 12th-17th, 1922, the surcharging having been carried out at the Imprimerie Andriea in Constantinople.

30 para on 5c green (8000).
1pi 50pa on 25c blue (7090).
3pi 75pa on 40c brown (33,790).
4pi 50pa on 50c violet (24,074).
15 piastre on 85c red-brown (12,000).
18pi 75pa on 1l brown and green (19,900).
45 piastre on 5l blue and rose (1600).
90 piastre on 10l olive and rose (1400).

The two lowest values were completely sold out within a few days of issue, and as the expected supply of the Turin overprinted series had not turned up by the latest steamer, a further local printing of these values was necessitated. On August 18th, 1922, therefore, the following made their appearance:—

30 para on 2c red-brown (50,000).
1pi 50pa on 20c orange (45,000).

On October 15th, 1922, the 10c and 40c stamps appeared with fractional surcharges, also locally, overprinted viz.:—

1½ piastre on 10c rose-carmine.
3¾ piastre on 40c deep brown.

Presumably these local printings were made from time to time during the political crisis of 1922 in just sufficient quantities to enable the Italian post-office to carry on until the situation was more settled, as it was then uncertain whether the agency might not have to be closed down at short notice. At any rate another series of local surcharges was brought into use in December of that year:—

30 paras on 5c green (——).
3 piastre on 25c blue (6000).
4½ piastre on 50c violet (——).
7½ piastre on 85c red-brown (8000).
7½ piastre on 1l green and brown (40,000).

XXIII. Postal Rates Modified, 1922.

The seventh congress of the Universal Postal Union, which should have been held in Madrid in September, 1914, and postponed in consequence of the war, was formally opened on the 1st of October, 1920, in the Senate House, Madrid, by the King and Queen in person. Subsequent meetings were held in a suite of rooms in the Madrid Post Office.

At this congress many radical changes were approved, relating to the interchange of mails between the members of the Union. Maximum rates for postage on international mail were fixed, and the international payment for transit of mails was established on the basis of the gold dollar rather than the franc.

In letter rates, a scheme had to be found which would satisfy those members who desired increased postage rates, as well as those who desired no change. With such conditions, the long cherished uniformity of postage rates had to be abandoned, and the final decision was to fix the maximum rates on a gold basis, with the proviso that members might retain the rates previously in force, or fix others according to their own ideas, so long as the maximum rates approved by the Congress were not exceeded.

Letters: First rate, 50 centimes, subsequent, 25 centimes.
Post Cards: 30 centimes.
Printed matter, commercial papers and samples: 10 centimes for 50 gr.
Registration fee: 50 centimes.
Literature for the blind: 5 centimes for 500 gr.

The revised conditions and arrangements were approved November 30, 1920.

In the past the Universal Post Union has made the rates and insisted that they be adhered to, except where special agreements were made between governments, as between the United States and the Leeward Islands Colony, etc. But now each country may set its rates, providing the maximum amounts set by Congress are not exceeded. With the new transit charges on a gold basis, it has been impossible for many countries, suffering from depreciated currency, to continue the previous charges.

Britain's penny postage with the Colonies, inaugurated on Christmas Day, 1898, was abandoned on June 1st, 1918, for a 1½d rate. Two years later, on June 1, 1920, this gave way to a 2d rate for the first ounce, and 1d for subsequent ounces, only to suffer another change, on June 13, 1921, when the rate for "subsequent ounces" was made 1½d. These changes also affected mail matter for the United States. Post cards, inland, Empire and foreign, were raised to 1½d, and at the same time, the foreign letter rate was increased from 2½d to 3d for the first ounce, and 1½d for each succeeding ounce. Registration fee was made 3d instead of 2d.

By an Order-in-Council of 29th November, 1921, and published in The Leeward Islands Gazette, of 1st December, new parcel rates were made effective from 3rd January, 1922.

"RULES

Made by the Governor-in-Council under the authority of The Post Office Act, 1909.

1. From and after the coming into operation of these Rules, the following rates of postage chargeable on parcels addressed as hereunder mentioned shall be substituted for the rates of postage hitherto in force on parcels similarly addressed.

a. On a parcel in any Presidency of the Colony not exceeding 3 lbs. in weight, addressed:
(1) To any place in the United Kingdom, or to any British Possession outside the Colony, 2s (1s)
(2) To any place in the United Kingdom via Canada, 2s 3d (1/3)

b. On a parcel not exceeding 7 lbs. in weight, addressed:
(1) To any place in the United Kingdom, or to any British Possession ouside the Colony, 3s 9d (2s)
(2) To any place in the United Kingdom via Canada, 4s 3d (2/6)

c. On a parcel not exceeding 11 lbs. in weight, addressed:
(1) To any place in the United Kingdom, or to any British Possession outside the Colony, 5s (3s)
(2) To any place in the United Kingdom via Canada, 5s 9d (3/9)

2. So much of any former Rule, whether made for the Colony generally or for any Presidency thereof, which fixes the rates of postage to be charged on parcels addressed to any of the places mentioned in Rule 1 hereof is hereby rescinded.

3. This Rule shall come into operation on the 3rd day of January, 1922.

Made by the Governor-in-Council this 29th day November, 1921.

E. D'A. TIBBITS,
Clerk of the Council."

The figures in brackets at the right do not form a part of the Order-in-Council, but are the rates previously in force, and are added merely for sake of comparison.

This was followed by another Order-in-Council, of January 9, 1922, in which the rates on other postal matter destined for outside the Colony were increased as from 1st Februray, 1922.

On January 3, 1922, increased rates were made effective on "parcels posted in any Presidency of the Colony, addressed to any place in the United Kingdom or British possessions," as follows:

	Increased from	to
Not exceeding 3 pounds,	1/–	2/–
via Canada,	1/3	2/3
Not exceeding 7 pounds,	2/–	3/9
via Canada,	2/6	4/3
Not exceeding 11 pounds,	3/–	5/–
via Canada,	3/9	5/9

This was followed by an Order-in-Council made January 9, 1922, increasing postal rates on other matter destined for outside the Colony, effective February 1, 1922.

"RULE

Made by the Governor in Council under Section 6 of the Post Office Act, 1909.

On and from the first day of February, 1922, the prepaid rate of postage on postal articles, other than parcels, originating in the Colony of the Leeward Islands, shall be as follows:—

The United Kingdom, other parts of the British Empire, Tangier, and the United States of America (including the United States Virgin Islands, Porto Rico, Alaska, Hawaii and the Canal Zone)—

Letters.
For the first ounce or fraction thereof, 2d
For each additional ounce or fraction thereof, 1½d
Post Cards.
For each post card, single, 1½d
For each post card, reply, 3d
Printed Papers.
For every 2 ounces or fraction thereof, ½d
Commercial Papers.
For the first 6 ounces or fraction thereof, 3d
For each additional 2 ounces or fraction thereof, ½d
Samples.
For the first 4 ounces or fraction thereof, 2d
For each additional 2 ounces or fraction thereof, ½d
Blind Literature.
For the first pound or fraction thereof, ½d
Each subsequent pound or part, up to a maximum of 6½ pounds, ½d Registration.
Registration fee for all articles, 3d
For an advice of delivery of a registered article, 3d
Fee for application respecting registered and unregistered articles, 3d

For all other foreign countries the rates of postage shall be as follows:—

Letters.
For the first ounce or fraction of an ounce, 3d
For each additional ounce or fraction thereof, 1½d

Post Cards, Printed Papers, Commercial Papers, Samples, Blind Literature, Registration, Application respecting registered and unregistered articles,	The same rate as that for the United Kingdom.

All former Rules relating to rates of postage on postal articles other than parcels, and mentioned in this Rule, originating in this Colony, and addressed to places mentioned in this Rule, are hereby rescinded.

Made by the Governor-in-Council this 9th day of January, 1922.

E. D'A. TIBBITS,
Clerk of the Council."

On May 29, 1922, letter rates in Great Britain were reduced:

Inland letters—1½d for the first ounce. Over 1 ounce and not exceeding 3 oz., 2d. Each subsequent ounce, ½d.

Empire letters and to U. S. A.—1½d for the first ounce. Each subsequent ounce, 1½d.

XXIV. Federation Series, Additional Values, 1922.

With the increased postal rates, stamps of other denominations than contained in the series became desirable, and an Order-in-Council, made January 9, 1922, authorised the issue of 4d, 5d, 2s, 3s and 4s stamps.

"ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

Whereas by an Order-in-Council dated the 3rd day of September, 1901, and published in the Leeward Islands Gazette No. 46 of the 5th September, 1901, the several values of stamps for use throughout the Colony were fixed at ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s 6d and 5s.

And whereas, by an Order-in-Council dated the 20th day of February, 1909, and published in the Leeward Islands Gazette No. 11 of the 11th March, 1909, a stamp of the value of ¼d was added to the values of stamps before mentioned.

And whereas, it is expedient to add to these values stamps of the following values, namely, 4d, 5d, 2s, 3s and 4s.

Now, it is hereby ordered by the Governor-in-Council under the authority of the Leeward Islands General Stamp Act, 1890, as follows:—

C. M. YOUNG, 5872 Julian Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

On and after the 1st day of April, 1922, there shall be in addition to the several values of stamps fixed by the hereinbefore recited orders, stamps of the value of 4d, 5d, 2s, 3s and 4s.

And it is hereby furthur ordered that the proper dies and other implements to be used in connection with the said new stamps be provided accordingly.

Made in the Executive Council of the Leeward Islands, this 9th day of January, 1922.

E. D'A. TIBBITS,
Clerk of the Council."

These stamps were printed from plate 10, in sheets of 120 stamps, 2 panes of 60. They were received in St. Kitts late in April, and issued on May 12, 1922. The figures and letters of the value tablets are in color on a plain ground, within a hexagonal frame. The duty plates for these five values are provided with a broken marginal line, so that completed sheets have a double marginal line, that on the inside belonging to the keyplate, and that on the outside, to the duty plate, and printed in the colors of their respective impressions.

The 4d is on pale yellow paper, creamy in appearance, with the multiple Crown CA watermark; the 5d, 3s and 4s are on white paper, script watermarked. In the first printing of the 2s both types of blue paper were used, Antigua receiving the stamps with the watermark multiple Crown CA, while to St. Kitts were sent those with the script watermark.

The shilling values are required for use on parcels, and the 4d and 5d for combined letter and registration charges on inter-island and Empire letters, respectively.

May 12, 1922. Federation series, King George V, Postage & Revenue, watermarked multiple Crown CA (4d, 2s) multiple Crown and script CA (5d, 2s, 3s, 4s.) Perf. comb 14. Plate 10. Chalk surfaced paper for all values.

4d black and red on yellow (C).
5d dull violet and olive green (C).
2s violet and ultramarine on blue (C) 2 types of watermark.
3s green and violet (C).
4s black and carmine (C).

(To be continued.)

THE DAMAGED STAMP CONTROVERSY.

By F. L. COES.

I. note in a contemporary journal a letter from a collector who feels that there is a place for a damaged specimen, as well as a value to it, and while he does not make mention of the marking of counterfeits in his plea for damaged items, I feel he is bringing out a side of the damaged stamp controvesy that is worthy of more than passing consideration.

For years we have been urging our young collectors to "specialize" and to study; well knowing that there is not a single country that does not have somewhere in its list of items, some one stamp that will be unattainable. Now, some of us are counseling the destruction of the damaged items, even though we know that they would be space fillers most acceptable to the striver after completeness of items, even if not immaculate.

Take for example War items, of which there were printed less than ten thousand. Some were sent to this country on letters, and usually arrived damaged. Is not one of these better for the student than a blank space? If I give away the damaged cover received thus to a beginner in the country, when I get my own immaculate copy, am I not doing the cult a favor? Who is damaged by the gift? No one except a seller of the item in mint condition, who is hoping that the covers will disappear soon so he can boost the price to a point commensurate with rarity.

The Rev. Myers, in living up to the tenets of his calling, is distinctly doing well in aiding the youthful collector in this commendable way. And right here, let me add that there are plenty more of us who take advantage of the damaged condition to fill spaces even if we talk differently.

But about the marking of counterfeits as such. A legal member of our club, a collector of years standing, looks at it from a new angle. It is this:—

"It depends wholly on who the stamp belongs to." "Suppose I have a counterfeit unknowingly in a lot of my stamps, and send it to a society sales department for sale." "It is pulled out of the book, and I suffer the fine, if any, or am debited with its marked price." "I send it to an auction seller, and he does the same, but mark you he does not stamp it "Cft" because it is not his property and he does not want trouble." "He may write reams about it, and on the mount, but not on the stamp, because he knows better." "In fact he has known counterfeits to turn out to be genuine, as we all have, and he has a living to make."

"If I endeavor to sell it, knowing it counterfeit, I am party to a fraudulent transaction and that is actionable; but even that gives no one a legal right to mark my property good or bad without my consent."

"From the other end, there is nothing to prevent the owner if he is a dealer, stamping anything from the word counterfeit to the 18th Amendment on his property." "And after he has thus stamped it, he can sell or not as he is able."

The bug in the ointment, and the hole in the skillet is the little fact stated above that "counterfeits are not all as expertized" and customers are hard to make in these days of strenuous competition. Why talk about the millennium and its wonders while we have a fifty-fifty condition here with no one wanting to do the "commencing." We do not like to harbor any counterfeit venders, or their wares, but popular opinion, publicity and concerted effort will do more, and easier, than any such drastic cure applied to someone else's property.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS.

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the WEEKLY are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—From Mr. R. A. Kremers we have received Permit No. 1 of Madison, Wisconsin, in red, which indicates the payment of 12c or charges on the registered envelopes containing tickets for a football game, sent out by the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Kremers adds that a cover is on display at the U. of W. Historical Museum that was used on a scientific book, registered, bearing 25 copies of the surcharged 250 Tausend of Germany. Total 6¼ million marks.

—Correspondents have been showing us letters from Germany with high stamp ratings and the highest postage on a single envelope thus far is 80 million marks. At some future time collectors will ponder over those wild days when stamps had their denominations in the millions and a good many of us are keeping a few examples of them on the envelopes as philatelic signposts.

—The Santa Ana, Cal., Daily Register for October 30th gives the front page to the likeness of James E. Alexander, assistant postmaster of Santa Ana, poring over his well-stocked albums. Mr. Alexander and his collection are given a great send-off and Messrs. Porter, Phinney and Kubitz are named by the newspaper as being high in the philatelic order. Here is the box-note that accompanies the column article: "Here's James E. Alexander, assistant Santa Ana postmaster, hobnobbing with his collection of United States postage stamps, considered one of the most beautiful and complete in the West. The ten stamps on the page directly in front of Alexander are valued at more than $1,000. The one in the upper right hand corner is the inverted locomotive adhesive of 1901 and alone is listed as being worth $750."

—Money-order exchange between the offices in this country and Bulgaria have been resumed according to an order of the third assistant postmaster-general. Our money will have a convertibility into Bulgarian currency at the rate of exchange prevailing upon its arrival in Bulgaria.

—Now that old kill-joy who has paid a few left-handed compliments to stamp collecting must show his antipathy further. He says that Mussolini's idea is a sickly one as the person who uses the stamp will not look at, much less read the words under the gum. This editor is an old fuss-budget.

—Some time ago the clever conductor of the Line o' Type or Two column of the Chicago Tribune, began a paragraph with the words: "If you collect stamps or if you're all right," etc., in calling attention to a slogan of the Philatelic West and Collectors' World. We ignored this little barb as we have reason to think that Mr. Donaghey (it would serve him right if we spelled his name wrong) is somewhat of a collector himself. However, he was halted by Mr. A. Hippchen of Chicago, who indited the following come-back to the Tribune, whose editor had the nerve to turn his back on it:

"We know that all men either collect stamps or they do not collect stamps. There are two great divisions of mankind:—The stamp collector and the non-collector. The Non-Collector has usually a sneaking idea, sometimes expressed, that there is something wrong with the collector, that he must be just a bit off. But—The collector has no uncertainties; he knows, mind you, He Knows, that the non-collector is mentally deficient, or he would never neglect one of the most pleasurable and educational pursuits of life—The Royal Hobby of Stamp Collecting."

Mr. Hippchen also enclosed his card that tells of the joys of collecting and says that the editor would afford himself great pleasure by starting a collection and experiencing the happiness that one derives from stamp collecting.

—The Fidelity & Deposit Co., Baltimore, Md., offers to insure stamp and coin collections but places a limit on $50 valuation. A booklet issued by the firm says, "The reason the policy is limited to $50 is because the true value is too difficult to ascertain. The value in stamp and coin collections is more sentimental than intrinsic." However, the company adds that the limit mentioned may be increased upon payment of an additional premium. Information by courtesy of R. B. Martin.

—J. C. Wilson, 13 Oak St., Clarendon, Va., would like the address of Duncan Mellier, Jr., formerly 4903 Pershing Av., St. Louis, Mo.

—We have received word from Karl Koslowski that Latvia is about to issue some new stamps for relief of the crip pled soldiers of the late world war, a well as the Latvian independence strug gle. The series will consist of thre values and two hundred thousand set have been ordered printed. The frankin value (retained by the P. O. Depart ment) will be 7s per set of three stamp while the remainder, 30s, will revert t the charitable organization. Denomina tions, designs or size of stamps are no known. The P. O. Department will dis tribute among its branches one-third o the issue only, while the beneficial or ganization will receive two-thirds of th entire issue for its disposal. The publi will fare poorly in connection with thi issue, as it is a known fact that a cer tain dealer has obtained the control o the allotment made to the society interested. The face value of the set will b about eight cents U. S. currency.

—At the meeting of the Chicago Phil- elic Society held several weeks ago, r. C. S. Watson, of Boston, gave the cond lecture in his course, "Philatelic xperiences in Europe." Mr. Watson d Mr. N. B. Paulson of Chicago, were Europe together recently and both turned ladened with philatelic spoils, hough the pickings abroad are not as y were some time ago. Mr. Watson ys that the inclination of collectors road is now to hold what they have the way of good stamps unless a eral quid pro quo is given.

—It is reported from Japan that the ent earthquake destroyed its bureau engraving and printing. Overtures ve been made to this country for the nting of Japan's currency and stamps a Washington and it is understood that esident Coolidge wishes that all con- eration be shown to Japan in this ergency.

—A recent departmental order pro- ves for greater care in the cancellation o our postage stamps:

The department continues to receive ny reports of parcel post and other tter sent in the mails on which the mps are not cancelled, although at- tion has several times been called to s matter. Uncancelled stamps can be moved from parcels and used a second ie and a large loss of revenue un- btedly occurs through such reuse. Postmasters and employees are again requested to take particular pains to see that all stamps on parcels and letters sent in the mails are properly cancelled. Stamps must be cancelled only with black cancelling ink furnished by the department and the cancellation marks must be distinct in order that the stamps may not be used again.

W. Irving Glover,
Third Assistant Postmaster-General."

—We want to thank the several readers who wrote to us concerning Samuel Dawson of Salvador; and elsewhere we publish a letter received from Mr. Paul C. Standley of the Smithsonian Institute on the subject.

—We have been informed of the death of Mr. S. W. Scott of Dubuque, Iowa, recently in Chicago. Mr. Scott was known to a number of Chicago collectors to whom he disposed of a number of covers, including a St. Louis provisional, the results of finds among the correspondence of a relative.

—The following is taken from the chronicle of news issues as it appeared in a stamp magazine in February, 1867: "Grenada. The paucity of this island's productions receives a slight alleviation by the changed colour of its six penny, which at present is orange-red."

—A recent visitor to Chicago was S. Valentine Saxby, once well known as a stamp dealer who now has his habitat in Duluth, Minnesota, where he is secretary of the Association of Commerce.

—A dealer reports to us that he has received an order for an attractive lot of stamps suitable for framing as a window display from a non-philatelic druggist who takes pride in his window dressing.

—F. W. G.—The thin white lines shown in the cuts used in the 1924 Scott's catalog are in keeping with government regulations requiring illustrations of stamps to be thus defaced. The Weekly is compelled to take the same course.

—Elmer F. Smith, Carthage, Ill., would like to communicate with parties who have had dealings with a collector in Baltimore by the name of Kassell.

—E. O. Barnes sends us a picture from the Times-Picayune rotogravure section of Oct. 28, showing Mlle. Juliette Depressle as "a living replica of a French postage stamp." In the lower corner of the picture is a representation of the 25c La Semeuse French stamp. The portrayal is excellent and secured first prize at a recent Parisian charity festival.

—We have received from the S. Grossman Co., 245 E. 59 St., N. Y. City, Bargain List No. 6. It is a very large and comprehensive pricelist giving many bargain offers from the stock formerly belonging to Max Beck. Interested parties should apply for a copy.

—J. Schneider, giving address as General Delivery, Cleveland, Ohio, is seeking approval selections. Dealers will do well to secure satisfactory commercial references before sending an approval selection in care of "General Delivery."

—L. F. D.—We regret that we are unable to give you a list of our subscribers in your state. It is the policy of the Weekly not to divulge the addresses of stamp collectors unless it can be done with their consent. The year books of the A. P. S. and S. P. A., give the best information as to the location of stamp collectors but these books are only available to members of these societies.

OUR NEW SUBSCRIPTION CONTEST.

It is with great pleasure that we record the result of the first month's work. It shows that much interest is being taken in securing new subscribers for the Weekly and we desire to express our hearty appreciation of the cooperation extended. The W. J. Zink firm of Cleveland leads with 45 new subscriptions, with the Fennell Stamp Co. second with 36. We call attention to a new aspirant for honors in the Pikes Peak Stamp Co. of Colorado Springs. Their 35 new subscriptions look good to us.

A half page of advertising will be given the dealer who sends in the largest number of subscriptions during the twelve months beginning Oct. 1, and quarter pages will be awarded for second and third prizes. The standing for the month of October is as follows:—

These are offerings chosen almost at random from a stock that is really devoted to issues of U. S. stamps prior to 1890. Most of the Bureau printings we can supply in mint condition only in singles or blocks of four at more or less discount from Standard quotations. We shall be glad to have want lists from responsible collectors.

Our specialty is fine copies of U. S. postage from 1847 to 1890, particularly the shifts and minor varieties of the 5 and 10c 1847, the 1c, 3c and 10c stamps of 1851-1857, and cancellations on all values through the bank note issues. We are glad to send approval selections to those who let us know just what they want, but respectfully decline requests for "anything in fine early U. S." because in catering to some three hundred customers too much materal would be in the hands of those not interested in it.

Foreign stamps of the 19th century we do make up in approval books by countries, paying particular attention to imperforate issues of Canada, Great Britain, Cape of Good Hope, France, Holland, Austria, Italian States, Baden, Bavaria, etc. For the general collector who wishes to fill 19th century spaces, we can supply most stamps listing under $5 at about 50% of catalog.

AN INTRODUCTORY BARGAIN to Collectors of British Colonials
Western Australia Type I, a set of 12 varieties of the issues from 1864 to 1889, including Nos. 26, 52, 54, 61, all in very fine condition, cataloging more than $8.00 for only $3.25

Always the same "money back on request" guarantee.

LOSS OF THE WEBER COLLECTION.

By Forrest Shreve.

Two brief notices have appeared in the Weekly regarding the loss of Mr. A. H. Weber's collection in the disastrous fire which visited Berkeley, California, on Sept. 17th. As this was one of the most noteworthy and valuable general collections in the country, and was lost under unusual and dramatic conditions, it seems appropriate to give a somewhat fuller account of both the collection and the fire.

Berkeley occupies a narrow strip of land between the eastern shore of San Francisco Bay and a wall of hills whose slopes are too steep for habitation. On the hills are pastures and planted forests of eucalyptus. A fire on the northern slope of the hills on the morning of the 17th seemed to threaten no danger to Berkeley until a very high wind set in about mid-day and soon brought the flames to the crest of the ridge. Mr. Weber's home was in one of the uppermost streets, commanding a magnificent view of San Francisco Bay and Mt. Tamalpais. It was therefore in the first section of the city to be attacked by the onrushing flames. Mr. Weber states that after the danger was realised he had "less than ten minutes to get out." Alone in the house, in a room filled with the treasured philatelic acquisitions of a lifetime, the unfortunate man used the few minutes at his disposal to rescue two circuits and some approval selections, with only time enough left to pick up two of his albums that were handy.

Mr. Weber had one of the few general collections of such extent and detailed completeness that any one of his volumes might be mistaken for the collection of an acute specialist in that particular country. He not only began to collect 40 years ago, when the collecting was good, but he kept up to the minute in all countries, and studied the new issues as keenly as the rest of us study the old ones. This habit had filled his albums with unlisted varieties, shades and printings.

The destruction of this collection is not only a great loss to philately in the sense that many gems are gone forever, but also in the fact that it embodied the results of an immense amount of unpublished original investigation. In this day and generation a goodly percentage of collectors think of their stamps as an investment and don't think of them as being anything else. Mr. Weber's holdings were superb as regards condition, and magnificent as an investment, but his interest in their cost or increase of value was so slight that it was completely masked by his interest in the stamps as objects of study. Only a few weeks prior to the fire he had mounted Latwija in a very elaborate way, with sheets, blocks, shades and varieties, after making a prolonged examination of his accumulation of material. Why should a real collector wait for someone else to discover a country and point out its features of interest? In similar fashion he could show elaborate volumes of Liberia, Guatemala, Persia, Iceland, Paraguay and other countries that are seldom regarded as worthy of the attention of an investor, although still full of interest for the investigator.

Mr. Weber had only a few of the great rarities of the first water, but he came very near having everything else, and could show a very large number of completed countries, in many cases including both used and unused copies. It would merely be a digest of the catalog to attempt to enumerate even the most impressive pages of his collection, whether it be in old United States, blocks of Cape triangulars, fine old German and Italian States, beautiful Brazilian bulls-eyes, the consular stamps of Madagascar, or countless full sheets of surcharges in Siam. With the wide interest that is displayed only by the beginner and the old-timer, Mr. Weber also collected the entires of all countries, letter-cards, post-cards, and older issues on cover, as well as United States and Canadian revenues. In cancellations on the older issues of nearly all countries he had made a fine beginning before the rest of us started. He could show nearly complete series of numeral cancellations, in all of the s cessive types, for all of the smal British Colonies, not to mention ea European cancellations. In this field, in every other, extensive notes and li were lost, together with all of his ph atelic library.

Such an unfortunate occurrence ag brings to attention the necessity of ha ing some workable means of insuring c lections and stocks of stamps. The thi of chief importance for the owner stamps, and for the good of the hob is not to be compensated for stamps th are destroyed but to keep them fr being destroyed. Adequate fire prot tion in the form of a first-class safe a relatively cheap insurance for the m who has invested over $5,000 to $10, in stamps. Mr. Weber's location seem so secure from fire hazard that he h not taken this precaution, and the o possible good that can come from lamentable misfortune is to have it ser as a warning to others that we "nev know what is going to happen."

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By Warner Bates.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers ho send in specimens for examination will iclose postage (and registration when dered) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

Gilbert M. Burr, Meshoppen, Penn., rites:

"I have one copy of the 3c '69 showg an arrow in the lower left corner inting horizontally to right, and a copy the 10c with an arrow in the lower ght corner pointing horizontally to the ft. I also have copy of 3c with arrow inting down that is a cut, but these hers are both perforated all around.

Luff on the '69 issue says, "On the lues from one to twelve cents incluve, these marks were placed at the iddle of the top and bottom, and incated the line on which the sheets were be cut in half. The half sheets of e hundred and fifty stamps, fifteen rizontal rows of ten stamps each, were rther marked for division into fifties desired. These marks were placed on e sides of the plates between the fifth d sixth and tenth and eleventh rows. the one and two cents the marks were ort straight lines. On the three to elve cents they were composed of three es forming an arrow head.

On reading this the thought occurred t me, were not these horizontal arrows ones for dividing the sheets in fifties, ad were they not perforated instead of ct?

I believe that somewhere I have one the 3c greens the same way, showing a arrow, yet perforated all around, but a I have a number of thousand of these i will take me some time to go over and s for sure if I do.

I appreciate your work in Mekeel's y much and hope you will continue i' would be very much interested to s Mr. Burr's 3c green perforated all aund and showing arrow.

t is a pleasure to give the readers of ts department this real gem from the n of H. P. Atherton, Springfield, ass.:

Arrows.

When Were Arrows First Used?

his title may sound a bit ab-original; the intention of the query is purely platelic. You've probably looked thro "ousans 'n thousans" of 3c '61s and 's and found nary an arrow. Me too! Ten on the other hand, you have probaly looked thro a smaller number of 3c 9's, and found some with arrows. Tey come with arrows at the sides, as well as at tops and bottoms. The arrow can come at the top side, or bottom side of stamps printed from the same plate, depending on whether they are "off centered" upward, or downward.

These 3c 69s are funny little things—what? If you ever find a perfectly centered copy, it is cancelled, ten to one, as black as last year's coal supply (now soot), and the reason for this is undoubtedly (?) owing to the fact that such a volume of black smoke could come out of that big bell-shaped smoke stack those poor little engines had to push along in front of themselves. It got all over everything, including the stamps.

Well, are these 69s the first stamps of the U. S. A. to wear arrows?

After collecting a large number of 2c Black Jacksons, one day the prettiest little copy (off center of course) wandered in, and at the bottom left was the neatest little flat arrow, low pitched, like the roof of a summer pavilion, where the wind jokingly blows rain back up under the shingles, to drizzle down your neck; not a mean little sharp pointed arrow, such as comes on some of the '69s, and Bank Note issues. Many hundred Black Jacks have arrived since; but never another with an arrow.

The 2c black is listed in that hit or miss aggregation following the regular 1861 issue, and dated 1862-66, whatever that means.

Haven't yet seen the date of issue of this 2c black stamp authenticated. My earliest year dated covers show Aug., 1863. They are in the gray-black tone common to the first four plates—Nos. 28, 29, 30 and 31. This stamp with arrow comes in this first group probably, as the three later plates—Nos. 50, 51 and 53 are printed in intense black generally, the margins often showing insufficient wiping of the plates before printing the sheets of stamps.

Dated postmarks are not always correct. One Black Jack has been seen on a piece of cover cancelled with the true Phila. postmark, the small octagon, and clearly dated May, 1862; this hardly seems possible, yet there it is in print!

Sumter, S. C., post-office used the year date 1861 on all its outgoing mail during its entire existence in the Confederacy. So we should verify dates carefully before accepting a single example as the correct solution.

This arrow on the Black Jack is perhaps the first employed by the U. S., in making its plates, the arrow being an interesting forerunner of what is now a popular side line with our collectors.

Everett Van Voohis of Cold Springs, N. Y., writes:

"I have enjoyed reading your 'Early Low Values Specialized' column but so far have seen nothing in regard to the 1851, 3 cent or the same value of 1856 and 1861 issues. I have tried very hard to get the booklet on the 3 cent 1851, by Dr. Chase, but so far with poor success. I would buy this if I knew one for sale. Have you one you care to part with or do you know of one I could get?

"I have a 3 cent, 1851, with the C of CENTS having a curlycule crossbar.

"It is clear and distinct and not blurry. I am wondering if this is the variety mentioned in the Specialized U. S. catalogue GENTS instead of CENTS or is it a sub-variety of this?.

(I believe it is the one mentioned.—Ed.)

"I also have another 3 cent, 1851, that has distinctly two outer lines at right. This to my mind is not from Plate 3 where this variety occurs, but from a later plate as it has no inner lines. Another 3 cent 1851 I have shows double transfer in Three Cents and also has three lines recut in upper left triangle. This is two varieties on one.

"In the U. S. Specialized catalogue mention is made of a 5 cent 1847 with dot in U. Can someone enlighten me where this dot is located in the U? Is it in the wide or narrow uprights of the letter? I have one that shows a strong dot in the narrow upright about half way up. I am wondering if this is the variety catalogued."

(Won't some collector of these stamps please get in touch with Mr. Van Voorhis?—Ed.)

EDITORIAL.

The good work of properly presenting philately to the public mind goes on and if we do nothing more than hold what we have, stamp collecting may be said to have become a fact and not merely a fancy, in the estimation of the more intelligent part of the outside world. Yet with the showing that has been made, it would seem to be a misfortune if we were to relax our efforts to sell philately to all the outsiders, as a Babbitt would say. With the encouragement that is evident on all sides, we must continue our efforts to make philately a definite factor in the minds of the non-philatelists. Our end is not to make collectors of all the members of the uninterested public but to have the uninitiated know that stamp collectors are a class numerically strong that is engaged in a pursuit that is reasonable and logical and as such, entitled to consideration.

In continuing our comments on Mr. Phillips' little book, "Postage Stamps as an Investment." we submit the following observations, which were crowded out of the preceding issue. In Argentine, the "Rivadavia" stamps of 1864-72 are given the call and in Brazil, the first issue is given preference. British Columbia is cited as a country replete with possibilities and the covers with combinations of these stamps with those of the U. S. are particularly lauded. Canada is endorsed unqualifiedly and the cancellations are called a neglected field. Early Colombian Republics with its states is listed as preferred stock and early France especially with unordinary cancellations are approved. India from 1854 to 1859 are placed high in the list as likewise are the Jamaican pineapples with the subsequent issues down to 1880. Japan and Mexico are recommended for those who will give serious attention to the stamps and Newfoundland is said to be an investment almost equalling Canada. Sierra Leone, Virgin Islands and particularly the provisionals of Turks Islands are given special mention and a score of other countries are placed among the eligible list. Naturally, a number of the European countries, Australian divisions and South American and West Indian countries other than those named here call for comment. Mr. Phillips' list is a model of brevity and is such as to give point to the investment inclinations of collectors. The fact that only the older issues are named is a factor that makes the conclusions conservative and well founded.

The following letter from Mr. Paul C. Standley, United States National Museum, Washington, is welcome: "Enclosed are two envelopes that show that some of the Latin American countries are beginning to employ postal advertising. Recently I have received several Mexican letters bearing a dated cancellation which reads: 'Visite Usted gran feria Guadalajara, Jal., diciembre proximo (visit the big fair at Guadalajara, Jalisco, next December). Recently many letters from Guatemala have been handstamped 'Guatemalan coffee is the best all over the world,' in both English and French; and occasionally a letter from Salvador arrives with a similar handstamp, which, however, does not form a part of the cancellation. Letters from Panama of late often bear a similar caption, 'Panama, Ideal Tourist Resort,' in both English and Spanish. As in the case of the Guatemalan inscription, this has been applied with a handstamp. I do not remember to have seen any of these cancellations mentioned noticed in the WEEKLY, although many of your readers must already be familiar with them." Looking over our advertising cancellations, we find that Chile used in 1913 a five line cancellation calling attention to the importance of indicating the house number and street on mail matter and a number of years ago, Mexico began to use its famous weather prediction cancellations.

On mail matter coming from Belgium, we find interesting cancellations, in box form, as follows, both in English and Spanish, and the postmarks too, are, for instance "Bruxelles" and "Brussel:" "Spa (Belgium) Waters-Baths Rheumatisme Heart-Anaemia," English, and Spanish: "Spa (Belgica) Aquas-Banos Reumatismo Corazon-Anemia." Notice the "e" tacked on "rheumatism" in the English version. These bi-lingual notices are particularly interesting; and in the present instance we are somewhat surprised to find the Spanish language employed in Belgium although on second thought why should not the baths be especially recommended to those rich South Americans?

Our cry for help has been heard and Mr. G. C. Rheinfrank of Chicago has consented to fill dates occasionally for philatelic lectures before boys' and other clubs, thereby sharing with the editor the privilege of proclaiming the merits of philately before groups of receptive auditors. Mr. Rheinfrank is a collector and dealer whose experience has covered many years in stamps, and moreover, he is no stranger to the lecture platform, he having achieved a reputation of having been one of the best that ever graced the Chautauqua circuit. The editor has had the following letter from the director WMAQ, the Chicago Daily News radio station: "Your talk was exceedingly interesting last night. I was sorry that you had to cut it and hope you can talk again." Mr. H. R. Arnold who was instrumental in starting the philatelic radio idea in Chicago promises to secure a date at one of our other radio studios for some other philatelic speaker.

We have mentioned the author, Hugh Lofting, whose Doctor Doolittle books for children are received with great applause, as having a philatelic inclination that is given free rein in the course of his writings, every now and then. Now we have the 359 paged book, "Doctor Doolittle's Post Office," illustrated, in which the winner of the Newberry Medal for the most distinguished contribution to our literature for children in 1922 disports himself with engaging abandon that suggests, as a critic has said, the antic Tom Sawyer and the "imaginative topsy-turviness of the English Alice." Doctor Doolittle established the swallow mail in his houseboat off the coast of Africa and soon had it running so successfully that he ran out of adhesive material for the stamps but he invented an original gum made out of licorice that so swelled the sales of stamps that another contingency had to be met. The natives bought the stamps in order that they might show their liking for the original gum by licking it off and then exchanging the stamps for others. This would not do and so then the good Doc hit upon this scheme; and on behalf of philately and sanitary statistics, we quote:

"So the Doctor saw that he would have to change his kind of gum if he wanted to keep stamps that would stick. And one day the King's brother came to the post-office with a terrible cough and asked him in the same breath (or gasp) to give him five half-penny stamps and a cure for a cough. This gave the Doctor an idea. And the next gum which he invented for his stamps he called whooping-cough gum. He made it out of a special kind of sweet, sticky cough-mixture. He also invented a bronchitis gum, a mumps gum and several others. And whenever there was a catching disease in the town the Doctor would see that the proper kind of gum to cure it was issued on the stamps. It saved him a lot of trouble, because the people were always bothering him to cure colds and sore throats and things. And he was the first Postmaster-General to use this way of getting rid of sickness—by serving round pleasant medicine on the backs of stamps. He called it stamping out an epidemic."

Who will answer this one? "I bought a two cent, 1869, U. S., that was cut from the page of an album and when I soaked it, I found that I had two of the two cent of 1869, as one had been so evenly pasted over the one underneath, that only the upper stamp showed. What to do?"

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 WEST 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

Written for MEKEEL'S.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

To recapitulate, therefore, there were three plates for these perforated stamps, one of which was used quite extensively and the others but slightly, viz.:—

Plate A. 1c carmine or deep vermilion on buff (Mr. Hausburg's Plate I).

Plate B1. 3c yellow or grey bistre on buff (Plate I).

Plate B2. 2c violet on mauve (Plate I).

Plate B2. 5c blue green on pale green (Plate I).

Plate B2. 7c deep or dull blue on greyish (Plate I).

Plate B3. 2c purple on very pale mauve (Plate Ia).

Plate B4. 1c pale vermilion on buff (Plate II).

Plate B4. 3c olive bistre on buff (Plate II).

Plate B4. 5c yellow green on green (Plate II).

Plate B4. 7c ultramarine on greyish (Plate II).

Plate B4. 20c deep or red brown on buff (Plate II).

Plate C. 2c aniline mauve (Plate III).

Plate C. 5c deep green on green (Plate III).

Plate C. 20c pale brown on buff (Plate III).

If further proof that movable plugs were used is desired it can be found in the numerals; especially in the 2c. Many of these have flaws by means of which they can be readily distinguished and the same figure can be identified as having been used on different plates. Thus the figure on No. 15 of Plate B2 corresponds exactly with No. 10 on Plate B3; No. 42 on Plate B2 is No. 27 on Plate B3; and No. 16 on Plate B3 is obviously the same as No. 38 on Plate C."

The paper for this issue was surface tinted like that employed for the imperforate stamps, and this tinting varies considerably in depth of tone. The tinting is sometimes exceedingly faint and all values with the exception of the 7c have been recorded at sometime or other as printed on quite white paper. We have examined a large number of these stamps, but we have never met with any specimens regarding which it could be definitely stated that they had absolutely no tinted impression.

Pronounced shades are known of all denominations and, fortunately, as Mr. Hausburg soon discovered, one shade or color always goes with one particular plate or state of a plate.

The perforation gauges 13½ and is the work of a single line machine. Partly perforated stamps are sometimes met with. M. Moens says: "The stamps may sometimes be found without the vertical perforation at the right-hand side; this arises from the fact that the outside line of perforation was sometimes omitted at that side of the sheet." All values are known imperforate vertically and the 1c, 2c and 20c are also known imperforate horizontally. The 1c, 2c, 5c and 20c denominations in horizontal pairs, imperforate between the stamps, are known; while all seven values are known in vertical pairs imperforate between.

It is assumed that several impressions from the plate were taken on one large sheet but we certainly have no satisfactory evidence on this point for no tête-bêche pairs are known of any of the perforated stamps nor have we ever heard of the existence of any sheets containing two or more panes.

The quantities of perforated stamps issued are not known, for the records do not distinguish between postage stamps and those for revenue purposes. Sometime in 1883 M. Richard despatched a consignment consisting of the following:—

3c,	70,000	20c,	33,000

This was probably the last consignment of this particular issue and it is interesting to note that the 20c was in such little demand that it continued in use until 1893 before it was replaced by a corresponding value of another design.

While these perforated stamps were in use a number of forgeries were made to defraud the Government. They are fairly close imitations of the genuine stamps and they seem to have been used over a period of about four years—1886 to 1890. At first it was considered that they were perfectly legitimate stamps produced locally, but in an article in the Monthly Journal for November, 1899, M. Moens succeeded in proving conclusively that they were forgeries. These fraudulent labels were produced by lithography, the design being transferred in its entirety to the stone, so that there are no varieties in the numerals or shields such as are found in the genuine stamps. The perforations are also different, some having gauge of 14 and others of 15½. They all seem to have been used at Cap Haytien and at the present time the counterfeits are rarer than the genuine stamps.

Sometime in 1884 the 70c fiscal stamp was occasionally used for postage. This fact was referred to in the Philatelic Record for October, 1884, as follows: "We have seen a large upright rectangular fiscal stamp, with Arms of Hayti in a circle, and inscribed "TIMBRE—CONNAISSEMENTS—EXPORTATION," which has apparently done postal duty." That this variety was ever officially authorized is exceedingly doubtful though a number of specimens are known to exist.

HARDING MEMORIAL IMPERFORATE

A sprinkling of first day covers always adds to the attractiveness as well as value of any collection and what could be of more interest than a memorial cover of our late President used on the first day? The 2c Harding, Imperforate, was placed on sale in Washington on November 15th, and I offer a beautiful cover showing a pair clearly canceled at $1.00. As an incentive to order, a mint block of the imperforate stamp will be sent with each cover.

of the 10c 1847 belonging to members of the Philatelic Chapter of the Noble Order of Good Scouts have been submitted for examination to help in the work of reconstructing the plate of this most interesting U. S. stamp.

If sufficient material can be examined, it is probable that 80% to 90% of all the varieties can be identified and their positions on the plate definitely located. If you haven't yet submitted the black tens you are proud to own, won't you do so, or at least write me about them. Copies submitted for sale or exchange should be priced. See previous ads.

Do you know "I do" and "I don't"? They are every-day stamp collectors.

Each had his own pet ideas on where to buy stamps, but "I do's" proved the better. Why? Watch this space and find out.

GENERAL COLLECTORS, ATTENTION! If your collection is less than 15,000, here's your opportunity. Our big approval books contain 500 varieties for you to select from and they are mailed to your door. You can look them over at your leisure. Hardly a chance in this way for you to purchase a duplicate of what you already have. Many collectors have found this the most satisfactory way to buy stamps. Reference is of course necessary. Try one of these books, then ask for another. If you have any good U. S. for sale, give us a chance. [15

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—We are officially informed under date of October 31, 1923, that on the previous day, Mr. Warren Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster-General, authorized the issue of the Harding Memorial Stamp in imperforate form. They will be placed on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency, for the first time, on the morning of Thursday, November 15th. The Department has receded from its former stand not to issue these stamps in imperforate form, by reason of the fact that hundreds of stamp collectors, as well as many others not stamp collectors, desired to obtain the stamps in imperforate form in order to frame them and retain as a memorial to our late President.

As the Philatelic Stamp Agency is still rushed with its numerous orders it is to be hoped that the general public and surely the collector or dealer will order this stamp in sheets of four hundred or multiples thereof. The imperforate stamp will be the product of the flat plate, issued in sheets of four hundred, margins all around with the usual plate numbers, arrows, guide lines and the like. The variety from the rotary press will not be issued imperforated.

Mrs. A. C. Workman kindly sends a clipping from the Washington Star telling the general public of the Department's intention.

In a recent chronicle I mentioned the fact that the 1c of the new design, from the rotary press, perforated 11x10, had been issued in New York. There was only one supply so I am informed and these were quickly used up. I understand, however, that the variety will shortly be obtainable through the Philatelic Stamp Agent.

Up until October 28th the Department had made 153 Harding plates and they were still hard at it. Possibly we will pass the 200 mark before we are through. I have not had the opportunity of checking these plates to see which never went to press but I have been endeavoring to obtain plate number blocks of six from all positions of all plates and I note 14876, 14895 and 14896 missing which leads me to believe that these plates have not as yet gone to press. Up to November 7th I have not seen a plate number higher than 14908 on sale but by the time these notes reach our readers no doubt the higher numbers will have appeared.

On November 6th the largest requisition for high denomination stamps ever received from any post-office in this country reached the Post Office Department from Chicago.

Exclusive of ones and twos the order totaled 60,000,000 stamps with a value of $5,589,000.00 and included one million 50c, one hundred thousand $1, four million 20c, twice as many 10c, three million of the 15c and two million of each of the 11c and 30c denomination. Other stamps of lower denomination were ordered in lots of five and six million each.

Since Chicago already has on hand stamps to the approximate value of those ordered and the requisition is designed only to cover the Christmas mailing period, indications point to an anticipated heavy parcel post mailing.

Air mail pilots flying across the continent in the future will be accessible at all times to the instructions from the ground, Post Office Department experts having worked out a one-man sending and receiving radio set which will be installed in the coast-to-coast service.

The set, in which the receiver is under the pilot's helmet and the transmitter on his breast, will make it unnecessary for a radio operator to accompany the plane. Air mail service stations are placed on the route at 200 mile intervals, and the pilot with a 18-280 meter wave length would never be out of touch with a station.

Under date of October 30th the Third Assistant Postmaster-General sent a communication to all postmasters that will be of interest to the precancel collectors. It reads as follows:—

"In order to facilitate the handling of mail at first, second and third class post-offices during the Christmas holidays, postmasters are authorized at their option to precancel and affix stamps for the payment of postage on matter of the second, third and fourth classes offered for mailing at their offices, during the month of December, the stamps not to be delivered to the persons presenting the parcels for mailing, but to be affixed to the parcels by the postmaster or an employee of the post-office after the proper postage has been paid. Stamps used in this manner shall be precancelled in accordance with the conditions governing the precancellation of postag stamps.

"Postmasters are strictly enjoined t observe the greatest possible precaution to prevent the misuse of such stamp and shall exercise careful supervisio over their use and the employees handling them in order that the postal revenues may be properly safeguarded. T this end postmasters should cause parcel to which stamps are affixed by receivin clerks to be examined and weighed a variant intervals after the receivin clerks turn them over to the dispatchin clerks, in order to make certain that th proper amount of postage stamps hav been affixed to the parcels.

"In case any persons or concerns desire to purchase precancelled stamps fo affixing by themselves on mailing of matter of the second, third and fourt classes, postmasters shall require ther to submit an application for such privilege as prescribed in article 67, page 1 of the July, 1923, Postal Guide."

AUSTRIA.—The Economist Stamp C submit for chronicle the 600kr an 1,200kr in plum shade in the type o D10. Also the 3,000kr brown red an 5,000kr grey green in the type of A51.

Offices in Turkey.—The C. E. Huss man Stamp Co. have shown us a pair o the ¼pia postage due stamp, with no per foration between. They inform us tha in a lot of stamps just received the found five pairs of these stamps.

AUSTRALIA.—The P.M.G., states th Australian Philatelist, considers the present 1½d stamp unattractive, nor doe he like the colour, and considers tha the time is opportune for a change i style that will more adequately reflect th vigour and youth of the nation. He is therefore, contemplating a change in design that will embody Australia scenery.—Philatelic Magazine.

BELGIUM.—Owing to the similarit of colours of the current 15 and 25 values, it has been decided to issue th latter in deep violet.—Stamp Collecting ORFU.—Two complete series of pro- ionals were issued by the Italians t month. Eight values in all of the rent Italian stamps were overprinted ORFU, and another series received an litional overprint in Greek currency.—ilatelic Magazine.

YPRUS.—The Economist Stamp Co. vise of the appearance of the 45 stres on script watermarked paper.

ANZIG.—The mark currency having e into liquidation, a new coinage sys- is impending for this Free City; the t will be an alleged gulden of 100 ller."—Stamp Collecting.

ERMANY.—Mr. Albert W. Claflin es the appearance of the 400mk green, e of A35, surcharged "100 Tausend" dark green.

REAT BRITAIN.—The Philatelic Maga- understands that Messrs. Harrison's tract for printing British stamps, ich expired some time ago, will not renewed, and that it is probable that ssrs. Waterlow & Sons will take over tish stamp printing as soon as they e installed the necessary plant. This ses the question as to whether the portunity will be taken to introduce designs. Those now in use have been free from criticism, and if the stmaster-General were to throw the ter open to public competition he uld not lack precedents.—Philatelic gazine.

RELAND.—The Economist Stamp Co. ort the 4d, shield type, in dark blue.

AMAICA.—We are informed by the . C. S. Morton that the Child Wel- Stamps, forecast in these columns e time ago, will be issued on Novem- 1st, to prepay postage both in the nd and for overseas correspondence, will be on sale at the post-offices ing November, December and Jan- y. We understand they will be ted to the values of 1d, 1½d and 1.

new stamp of the value of 8d is e added to the pictorial series, and probably be issued on Armistice , the design being that of a War norial Cross which was unveiled and cated in Jamaica last year.—Stamp ecting.

THUANIA.—The Economist Stamp report a set of thirteen values of diamond shaped stamps of different designs and shades. These were issued to commemorate the reunion with Memel.

NETHERLANDS.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 10c red of the new set with the profile portrait of Queen Wilhelmina. The 20c deep ultramarine and the 50c grey black of the same series are reported by the current issue of Stamp Collecting..

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.—According to The Times, a likeness of Admiral George Dewey—of Manila fame—after a portrait of Gleindenct, is to replace the head of Admiral Sampson upon a new 16 cent stamp of the Philippines, which has been engraved by Mr. F. Pauling of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and will be issued shortly.—Stamp Collecting.

SYRIA.—Mr. E. Stanjer shows us a mysterious provisional in the shape of the 25c blue of France overprinted "G.L. HEDJAZ P.S. 1" (in four lines) in black, used on piece with a 2 piastres on 40c carmine "O.M.F Syrie." We understand from Messrs. Bright & Son that it was issued for "Grand Liban" (the Lebanon) about two months ago, but the purport of the incorporation of "HEDJAZ" in the overprint is beyond us. The 10c on 2c provisional for the Lebanon was chronicled in September 29th.—Stamp Collecting.

VIOLET CANCELLATIONS.

The recent letter of a correspondent raises the interesting question as to the value of stamps obliterated with a violet parcel post cancellation. Stamps so treated are certainly of philatelic value, and of the country instanced (Nigeria) and also of Kenya, are frequently priced separately in dealers' lists, usually at about half the quotation of those with black postmarks. The reason they are not worth so much is because the parcel cancellations are frequently heavy or blurred in contradistinction to the clear and usually neat black postmarks, and also there is some confusion in the popular mind between the violet rubber stamp cancellation of the parcel service and the fiscal cancellations in the same colour. Every philatelist knows that the high values of our own country are worth considerably more with the registered postmark than with the frequently heavy and blurred parcel post cancellation.

Only a few colonies use the violet parcel cancellation, chiefly the larger ones; the smaller frequently use the same stamp for letters and parcels, and others, such as Gambia, have a neat circular parcel postmark in black.

Any individual collector may, of course, refuse the violet postmarked copies, but this is merely a personal whim, and has no relation to their general value as discussed above.

The question of the value of stamps cancelled by favour, or to order, is quite a distinct one. It is usually found in countries where very few are required for legitimate use, and used become worth more than mint. No one would have Nigeria or Nyasaland stamps so treated, as fine copies of the current issue are obtainable under face value. If it is seriously urged that the stamps in question were cancelled by persons in wrongful possession of a cancelling machine, it should be investigated. Sometimes a number of high values are placed on an envelope to get postmarked, and although officially this is frowned at, and sometimes only the necessary stamps marked, it is difficult to prevent it. On the other hand it is not permitted for stamps to be cancelled on sheets and not passing through the post. This applies to the Crown Colonies, and if irregularities occur they should be investigated. There are of course certain exceptions, such as N. Borneo. Stamps treated in the manner described by being gummed down and cancelled to order, should only be sold as postmarked to order, and most reliable dealers would only sell them as such.—Philatelic Magazine.

THE PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT

Edited by F. W. ALLEN,
312 Walnut St., Minneapolis, Minn.

Foremost in interest are the Harding precancels which are being eagerly sought after by enthusiasts. The handsomest I have picked up is Tacoma, Wash., precancelled in a new fancy type (Universal Type 18). Others coming to my attention are as follows: Casper, Wyo. (new handstamp), Des Moines, Iowa, Flint, Mich., Hyannis, Mass. (inverted), Indiana, Pa. (up and down), Iowa City, Iowa (normal and inverted), Kansas City, Mo. (roller type), La Junta, Colo., Louisville, Ky. (normal and inverted), New York City (normal and inverted), Oxford, Ohio (handstamp), Pewaukee, Wis., Portland, Me., Portland, Ore., and Stockton, Calif. (normal and inverted).

It is possible to list this week Chicago, Ill., on 20 cent Golden Gate, reading both up and down. This stamp is a beauty and will make bright the pages of the precancel collection.

The 2, 4, 5, 10 and 25 cents have gained such a wide circulation that from now on they shall not be specially noted by me. Their multitudinity makes it impossible to keep abreast. The 14 centers are not at all plentiful as yet. Des Moines and Cedar Rapids are the two latest from Iowa. It is odd that Chicago has not appeared as yet upon this value. New York came out last week. Perhaps the stock of thirteen cents are to be exhausted before the fourteen will be used. The 7 and 15 cents slowly come forth. Portsmouth, Ohio, is precancelling both values but few other cities outside of New York and Chicago are doing so. Boston 7 cent and Fergus Falls 15 cent are two new ones. San Francisco is the latest addition to the group furnished with government printed one cent precancels. Cincinnati, St. Louis and Boston likewise join the group.

Anamosa, Iowa—Type set precancels usually are as varied as each printing and Anamosa's are no exception. They come spaced 13, 14, and 16mm between lines.

Baltimore, Md.—An error in spelling comes on the type used to precancel the dues. Baltimore reads BALTIMOER once out of a hundred. It is interesting to note that this type is so arranged that Baltimore and Maryland are very widely spaced in order to allow the denomination of the due stamp to stand out clearly. I am not sure whether this is type set or an electrotype plate and wish some knowing reader would clear up the question in my mind.

Batesville, Ark.—A handstamped impression in small letters between bars represents this town in the precancel field. The 20 cent reading up is the only item it has been my fortune to find.

Concordia, Kansas—The U-3 handstamp and electrotype plate U-type 18, are both being employed in the current series. Neither type is plentiful. You'll have to scratch to get any.

Dover, Del.—Ashley C. LeDuc reports a visit with the postmaster of this city in which he learned that for several years Dover has used precancels from 1 cent to 1 dollar during the holiday season. A one at a time handstamp is employed to do the work and while it seems to be a rather primitive method the postmaster states it saves lots of time. The possibility is that he will soon adopt a regular apparatus so this first type is a good one to be on the watch for.

Newcastle, Ind.—At the right margin the electrotype plate must be damaged, for Newcastle precancels from the tenth vertical row of the sheet read: NEWCASTL, NEWCASTLI, NEWCASTLE with only half of E, and NEWCASTLE all of E. A strip of ten would be just the thing to have of this plate variation.

North Portland, Ore.—In three lines of small letters between lines, North Portland makes its bow to the precancel fraternity. The 50 cent carried to me this information, and as yet no more of the family have arrived.

Oregon City, Ore.—Another Oregon city to swell the ranks. It has a handstamp similar to U-3. This handstan is medium sized thick capitals betwe bars. It has lately been furnished to large number of the smaller towns. N perville, Ill., Jackson, Miss., Bradl Beach, N. J., Bloomfield, N. J., Ea Orange, N. J., Auburn, N. Y., Nev burgh, N. Y., Mamaroneck, N. Y., Pa huska, Okla., Greensburg, Pa., a Alderson, W. Va., are some that I sele at random.

Oneonta, N. Y.—Quite a name! Ha the 10 and 11 cent in a handstamp type of caps and lowers.

Oddities—Mr. Chas. Metz sends in few odd ones. Cedar Rapids, Iowa, wi no vertical stroke in "D" of Cedar ma ing it appear like an inverted "C;" Poug keepsie has two spacings; viz., N N. Y. under "G" and also under "Y Brooklyn with a dot over the comm (This is the current type, U-18 electro

Mr. Joseph Peter submits a Young town, Ohio (new handstamped typ reading "YOUUGSTOWN."

Louisville, Ky., was one of the fi cities receiving the new basket coil p cancelling devices. When it was used came to the attention of a clerk that t first "L" of Louisville was missing some stamps which read "OUISVILL Of course this would never do, so t machine was returned and a new one h now been secured. Coil specialists w prize this error and seek it for th collections with a great deal of gus It occurs on both the 1 and 2 ce values of the 1917 series. Mr. W. Greenway of Louisville passes on to the above information and as he hol the position of post-office inspector secures it first hand.

Richmond, Ind., comes with no botto bar on the stamps of the bottom ro Richmond, has printed precancels of t U-1 type.

Pueblo, Colo.—Collectors wanti variation are invited to specialize Pueb This city has to date used ten distin types of precancels. Types VII a VIII are printed from a multigra Type IX is type set in fancy caps b tween double lines (this is scarce as was only used about a month), and th lastly we have for Type X the new han stamp spoken of several weeks ago having been furnished Casper, Wy Paonia and Pueblo, Colo. I wish speak especially of the multigraph p cancels. Type VII is type writer ca tals and Type VIII type writer caps a lowers. They both come in four min varieties: between single lines, dou lines, single line at top and double bottom, and vice versa. All values fro 1 to 50 cents engraved and 3 cent su face printing both normal and invert overprints. So there are over 250 vari ties in just these two types to hunt for.

St. Joseph, Mich.—"St. Joe" can ev go Pueblo a few better. Type XII, t latest of this city, will be a permane affair. It is the U-1 electro, which tur out about the finest lookers I know o Already I have in my collection the 5, 15, 20, 30, 50 and $1.00 values a am looking for the rest.

St. Louis, Mo.—Important news, "S Lu" has a new plate. The type is t same but there is now proportiona spacing between the words. On the o plate MISSOURI was 2mm belo LOUIS, which was 1mm below SAIN Now MISSOURI is 1mm below. T appearance is much neater as can easi be seen.

Miscellaneous—Taylorville, Ill., 8, 2 50; Van Nuys, Calif., 50 inv.; Ypsilant Mich., 13, are some recent pickup Notes of interest have been receive from E. Kastrup, Lawrence Mohr, A. I Kubitz and others. They are alway welcome, so come along with information, criticism, or interrogation.

LOCAL POSTAGE STAMPS.

By Fred. J. Melville.

When a postage stamp is restricted in ranking power to a particular district town it is described as a "local."
local stamps form a very interesting p, although the less official origin of y of them has admitted of a certain unt of philatelic philandering on the of their projectors. Strangely ugh, collectors have allowed this facto overweight the historic and the ous in local stamps; and the fashion, of some years' duration, has been to local stamps with that unwise con-pt which is a negation of one of the purposes of Philately.

here fashion is rife the serious stu-has already done his work, or at the greater part of it. The man of y is little moved by reckless runs on cular groups; he prefers to seek information in less furrowed fields. is glad when he can have a little d to himself for a while, until he has a chance to develop his researches ttered by the rivalry of a crowd of lctors à la mode, who would dis-te broadcast the material which it is ntial for his study should be kept her, until all the knowledge it has eld has been extracted.

among the students local stamps are no means despised. They are in cases the progenitors of ordinary ge stamps in the countries of issue, ey represent the influences which ually develop world-postage, by pracy forcing the hands of a procrasti-g Government. In some cases they date for us the possibilities for fur-postal progress, and it is worthy of that private enterprise has through-he history of Postage forestalled or lated the operations of Government poly.

nsistency is a phantom, but it is raised by those who would have us t stamps according to rule, or, to rarer the mark, according to fashion.
ly speaking, the majority of the earliest issues of the postage stamps of home and foreign countries were of limited postal validity, and by that token there is nothing to differentiate them from local postage stamps issued with Government authority. It has, however, been deemed sufficient for most collectors that the Catalogue, which is the Biblia philatelica, has crowded the less-known locals into one of the Apocryphal volumes which has not been re-issued for some years. So this great group of historic stamps is the peaceful hunting-ground of a comparatively limited section of advanced students in Great Britain, though the collectors on the Continent have never wavered in their interest; and it is to be regretted from the British student's point of view that most of the rarer local stamps have been picked up here by our Continental confrères during a period when our own people were blinded to these claims of the historic by the glamour of fashion which has more to do with speculation than study.

The stamps of the Steamship Companies are to my mind of the greatest interest among "local" postage stamps. In most cases they were used for services which forestalled Government mail routes; but unfortunately history is not very precise as to many of them. The Asia Minor Steamship Company of Smyrna used stamps somewhere about 1868 (according to the "Tapling" collection), but they do not appear to have been known to the collectors of that time, the earliest chronicle of them not appearing until 1879. The stamps are little known even now, and although of great rarity I recently acquired the only specimens I have seen outside of the British Museum for a very moderate sum, including one upon the original letter. They are plain-looking labels with simple type-inscriptions enclosed in a pearled and a shaded serrated border. They are printed in black on green surfaced paper, in two denominations, 1 piastre and 2 piastres.

There are two denominations, with colour and perforation varieties, of an Austrian company trading on the Danube (the Danube Steam Navigation Co.), and the moderation shown on the part of the promoters of these stamps is a prima facie evidence of the bona fide character of the originals, and the stamps are not uncommonly found on the original letters. The stamps were, however, reprinted in 1877, and they have in addition had a good deal of attention from the forger, who has printed his creations in a wider range of colours than the originals warranted.

In connection with the Danube and Black Sea services of steamers there were several issues of stamps between 1867 and 1872. In the first-mentioned year, the Local Post stamps inscribed "Kustendjie and Czernawoda" appeared bearing the initials of the Danube and Black Sea Steamship Company, which carried letters between the two ports under a permit from the Sultan. The view on the stamps is of the harbour of Kustendjie with one of the Company's steamers in the foreground, and the Turkish emblems of the crescent and star above. The stamps issued by T. B. Morton and Co., for their Letter Post carried on in connection with the firm's Constantinople and Danube Line of Steamers, in 1867 and 1869, are well authenticated; but the character of the Company's emissions of 1870 for the "D. & B. S. L. S." (Danube and Black Sea Line of Steamers) and the "journal stamp" of 1872, was open to much criticism, which was not withheld by the philatelic journals of the time. The journal stamp had a very short period of use, and genuinely-used copies are scarce. Reprints of all these locals exist, and in most cases the stamps have also been forged.

The Russian Company of Navigation and Trade, or, as it is generally styled, the Russian Steam Navigation Company, had a large square surface-printed stamp provided for it by the Government Printing Office at St. Petersburg. This was used for the Company's mail services between ports on the coasts of the Black Sea, and some of the Mediterranean ports.

The stamp shows the Imperial Arms, and its character and use are different from those of the other Black Sea Steamship Companies' stamps, and, having appeared in 1864, may have led the spirit of emulation in the other companies. The large square stamp is rare, as also are its immediate successors, which were lithographed at Odessa in 1865.

Finland, the land of lakes, provides us with some local stamps issued by two steamship lines. The Tavastehaus and Helsingfors Steam Packet Co. (Wanajavesi Angbätsbolag) issued the unusual-shaped (oval) stamps, all printed in vermilion, in 1867. There are three denominations—10, 20 and 25 penni. The "Helsingfors Bobaco" issued several rather curious labels for its "skärgärds trafik," its steamers carrying correspondence to the dwellers on the islets with which the coast of Finland is fringed. The stamps are coloured in a peculiar manner, two of them having the designs bisected diagonally, one half being printed in one colour, and the other half in a strongly-contrasted colour. This diagonal division of the colour arrangement is peculiar to stamps hailing from Northern Europe, similar instances occurring in the city-post locals for Helsingfors, and in the "official" postage stamps issued by the Government of Sweden.

For quite a short period, 1876-1877, the Hamburg-American Packet Company used a private postage stamp for mail matter which its steamers conveyed between ports in the West Indies. But little is known of its single stamp, which is rarely found in collections either used or unused. It was said in Le Timbre Post in 1877 that it was used on correspondence to Europe, but this, I think, has not been established. There can, however, be no doubt of the bona fide issue and use of this stamp, which was only withdrawn in 1877 owing to the entry of the Dutch West Indies into the Postal Union, which took place on September 1st of that year. The design shows the Arms of the company in plain embossing in the centre. The border is broken up into four colour-divisions, alternately blue and yellow, and the inscriptions are in black.

The West Indies, with their constant inter-communication by means of important lines of steamers, provided other steamship stamps of a not less interesting character than that of the Hamburg-American Company. In the later 'forties there was a steamer, the Lady M'Leod, trading between the two chief towns of Trinidad, viz., Fernando and Port of Spain. This steamer was used by the public for the conveyance of letters, on which there was a charge of ten cents (five pence). Owing chiefly to the inconvenience of collecting this small charge in cash, and partly through the habit of the people sending large pieces of money, with the consequent difficulty of the captain in providing change, a stamp was issued by the owner of the vessel, one David Bryce, on April 16, 1847. From the 24th of that month no letters were accepted unless they bore the ship's stamp, which is an undenominated engraving in taille douce, showing the ship steaming to the right, over the monogram L Mc L (Lady M'Leod). Although no denomination was expressed on the stamp (a peculiarity which it shared with the later Government postage stamps of Trinidad) it was sold at the rate of four dollars a hundred, or singly at five cents apiece. The stamp is much sought after, being fairly well produced, but neither the artist nor the printer has been traced, and whilst there are some enthusiasts who consider that its production must have been due to the eminent firm of line-engravers, Perkins, Bacon and Co., it is by no means equal to their known work, and there is every likelihood that, had this been truly the case, the fact would have been substantiated long ago by the firm's records.

The recent amalgamation of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company with the Royal Steam Packet Company, when the latter concern drew a cheque for £1,347,825 for the purchase of the Pacific Company's shares, recalled to collectors of the old school the fact that both lines had issued stamps in the early days before postal reform had developed in foreign parts. The Company which has now been absorbed had, in 1858, issued stamps of a very handsome, line-engraved kind. The stamps are of two denominations, inscribed "½ oz. 1 Rl" (real), "1 oz. 2 Rls" (reales), the former showing the ship in the central oval sailing to the left, the higher one showing the vessel sailing to the right. The initials of the company, "P.S.N.C.," figure in the four angles. The stamps are remarkable in several ways; for the extremely minute and technical detail in the delineation of the ship, and not less for the fact that one or possibly two of the known varieties were issued by the Government of Peru, having been handed over to that Government by the Company before the first regular Peruvian stamps had been prepared. I believe this instance of the Government adoption of a privately-issued stamp is unique; it remains still for the student to establish beyond all doubt which of the varieties were used under the Company's auspices and which under the direction of the Peruvian Post Office.

As I have said, the design is full of technical detail, and a seafaring man, if once confronted with a genuine specimen, probably would have a ready sense of discrimination between genuine copies and the forgeries, which latter have been plentiful. Although the vessel is depicted within an oval of under 7mm in width, one can detect the presence of three men on board, one near the bowsprit, one near the foremast, and the third near the stern. There is a pennant at the top of the fore-royal mast, which has proved a particular stumbling block to the forger, though in some of the crudest of the spurious stamps the ship is sailing in the wrong direction.

The steamers of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company were in a measure connected with the use of a stamp known as that of Tierra del Fuego. Appropriately enough this stamp was printed in a "flame"-red, to use a colour-name not in the standard catalogues. It was issued by an American named Popper, and presumably it is his distinguished initial that is emblazoned upon the radiant sun which forms the central device. Other emblems figuring in the design are a star and an envelope, and the plebeian pickaxe and mallet. Mr. Popper is said to have organised a post between the hamlet of Ushuaia in Tierra del Fuego and Puntas Arenas, to enable the white settlers in the "land of fire" to send letters by the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamers which called at Puntas Arenas once a month. He is said to have sent a considerable number of mails before the Argentine authorities suppressed his service and confiscated his stamps and dies. The career of the stamp began and ended in 1891, its value being 10 centavos, gold currency, "oro."

The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company hoisted its flag on a single postage stamp issued in 1875 for letters conveyed between ports in the West Indies and America, probably Curacao, Surinam, St. Domingo, Porto Plata, and Puerto Cabello. The stamp was printed by Messrs. De la Rue & Co., and is characteristic of the typography of this firm. Its denomination was ten cents, and its colour rose. It was printed in sheets of thirty stamps. The stamp was issued before the Postal Union had spread postal reform to the West Indies, but it was apparently objected to by the British Post Office and by some of the local governments, so it was withdrawn in 1880.

The issues which pass under the general title of La Guiara stamps were variously issued at the three places named in their inscriptions, La Guiara, Puerto Cabello, and San Thomas, the first two being ports in Venezuela, and the last being the former Danish West Indian colony. The first postal arrangements were made between a Scot, Captain Robert Todd, and the Government of Venezuela in November, 1863. His first stamps present the appearance of crude wood cuts printed in black on coloured paper, but these were followed by an issue engraved by the British firm of Waterlow and Sons. Later issues indicate a chance of proprietorship in the service, Todd having sold his rights to Messrs. Jesurum & Sons of Curacao, whose initials, J. A. J. & Z. appear on the final series. The stamps, which present a good range of philatelic variety, are of the highest degree of interest, and the comparative facility with which they can be procured is, I fancy, due to the importance of the traffic to and from St. Thomas, which was the very centre of all the mail routes communicating with the West Indies. There are both forgeries and reprints to guard against, but the genuine issues were well known to the early collectors (Philatelic Journal, Vol. i, p. 11), and their minute descriptions of them, and of the forgeries, have made the way clear for the student in modern times.

The stamps of the Central American Steamship Company have a less creditable record from the collector's point of view. They appear to have been bona fide in their original use, but a large remainder of the copies was sold by the company about 1891, with the result that in the unused state they are of little consideration. The stamps before me are in five denominations: viz., 1 cent green, 2 cents carmine, 10 cents blue, 50 cents brown. The fifth denomination has been created by surcharging the lowest denomination in English and Spanish "Good for five cents." The stamps were lithographed in Boston (U. S. A.) and show a steamer sailing to right. Writing on March 30, 1892, Mr. C. H. Thomas, a former secretary to the shipping company, gave May or June of 1886 as the approximate date of issue. He also wrote: "No 1 cent stamp was ordered, the intention being to issue a 5 cent, there being no 1 cent rate. To remedy this we stamped all the 1 ce stamps then on hand (in red) with a cent value, the 1's never being sold the public, although I believe a few we used by some of the Company officers The lithographic stone was delivered the Company with the first printin (quantity unknown), and on the Con pany going out of business the desig were cleaned off and the stone sold to private printer in the City of Mexic

"We took the precaution to clean it," says Mr. Thomas, "as we had to redeem all the stamps that were out at that time. The stamps franked letters only on our steamers, and if the letters were intended for interior cities they had to have the Government stamp on them as well." The Central American Steamship Company was incorporated on June 3, 1886, and was engaged in freight and passenger services to all the chief Central American ports.

The stamps of the Canal Maritime de Suez have always been stumbling blocks with collectors. They are mostly forgeries that abound in collections, not reprints as is generally supposed. As to their original authenticity there is considerable doubt. They were first reported in 1868, before the opening of the Canal for traffic, which did not take place until November, 1869. It was originally stated that the stamps were for the use of persons in the employ of the Suez Canal Company, and they were vouched for in the early 'seventies by a writer under the pseudonym of "A Parisian Collector," who was no other than the late Mr. W. A. S. Westoby. He wrote that "our own copies came directly from the Company, by order of M. de Lesseps. We know that they were used by the Company for a short time, but the authority to continue them was withdrawn by the Khedive. Obliterated copies are as rare as obliterated specimens of the stamps of the Ionian Islands." Having quoted this last remark I would add that the forgeries exist with soi-disant postmarks.

There were four denominations — 1 centime black, 5 centimes green, 20 centimes blue, and 40 centimes pink—but Mr. Earée, one of the early collectors, happily still with us, says in Album Weeds: "A friend in Berlin, a great collector, told me that M. Lesseps informed him that only the 20c had ever been issued." The 20c is known used on original letters, but not the other values, though Mr. T. K. Tapling is reported to have paid about £70 for the set of the four values, obliterated, which set figures in the collection at the British Museum.

I am one of those who prefer the curious and interesting in our hobby to the pedantry of the modern specialist, and the majority of collectors of stamps are, I believe, with me in that respect; at least they would be in the majority if the purely commercial spirit were eliminated. In this respect we do not differ vastly from the collector of the first period of Philately, and there is good evidence that in the early days the stamps of the steamship companies had considerable vogue, and were much sought after. Had not this been so, the fictitious stamps of the steamship class would not have been launched upon the philatelic sea. In the 'sixties there were issued the Clara Rothe steamer's stamps, which certainly caught most of the collectors of the time napping. This was not to be wondered at, for they were accompanied by a pretty substantial account of the Clara Rothe steamer, depicted upon the stamp beneath the Danish emblems of a crown, sword and sceptre, and precedence was given to St. Thomas (the Danish West Indian colony) in the inscription, which also indicated Porto Rico as another of the terminal points of the steamer's route. Further, the design was stated to have been engraved by a reputed Parisian engraver, M. Stern, who had also engraved the Prince Couza stamps of Roumania. The story was that the stamps had been made under a contract with the Danish Government and the Steamer Company. There were eight values: ½, 1, 2 and 4 centavos, all printed in black, and ½ real in blue, 1 real orange, 2 reales mauve, and 4 reales green. The stamps were first mentioned by the usually incredulous M. Mahé (lately deceased) in Le Timbrophile of January, 1869; but by April he was ready to consign them to the Mythologie timbro-postale which he suggested might some day come from his pen, and which would have been a rare delight to philatelists had he lived to carry out so interesting a work.

But the Clara Rothe inventions had some foundation in fact, though the facts did not tally with the issue of the stamps. The steamer did exist, and is in a sense an historic vessel. It carried mails between the Danish Islands of St. Thomas and St. Croix, and even carried the European mail to Porto Rico. At that time, and for a considerable period, as I have said, St. Thomas was the "Singapore"—the junction—of the West Indies. But before the stamps were issued its owner had sold it to the Republic of Hayti, and it served as a "navy" for that troubled and troublous republic.

Even earlier than the Clara Rothe fraud, a bogus steamship stamp had been emitted purporting to be used for franking letters between Acapulco in Mexico and San Francisco, California. The label bears the suggestive name "M'Robish and Co.," and was chronicled in blue and in pink; it also exists in brown. Inquiries failed to elicit any knowledge of such a firm in San Francisco, or of any vessels which could have utilised the stamps. The stamps therefore were classed among the impostures within a few months of their appearance. Such frauds have from time to time been put forth by the misguided ingenious, but they do not present any great obstacle in the pursuit of philately. Probably, as Carlyle puts it, imposture is of a sanative, anodyne nature, and man's gullibility not his worst blessing. — Postage Stamp.

IMMORTALIZATION OF WM. TELL.

By William Gardner.

In 1907 Switzerland produced the first of the now well-known stamps in the William Tell's son design. The central portion of the design shows young Tell holding in his right hand a huge crossbow, and in his left an enormous apple pierced by an arrow. These stamps were to have been most beautiful stamps, and, as one writer said in 1901, "the type of the ideal postage stamp of the future."

In "L'Art Suisse" of November 16, 1900, a competition was announced in which "all artists living in Switzerland or abroad could compete for new designs for Swiss postage stamps. Entire liberty was given to the artists as to the design they should use, but the name Helvetia was to be incorporated in it. The prizes were of a total of 3,000 francs for the authors of the best three or four designs.

Three hundred and thirty-six competitors presented five hundred and forty-one designs, but no design was considered good enough for the first prize. One second prize, one third, two fourth, and two fifth prizes were given, and these designs were exhibited in the Museum of Arts and Trades at Berne. None of the designs was decided upon, but a restricted competition was authorised, and the Federal Council, in the session of January 23, 1906, chose the one representing the son of Tell, with crossbow, submitted by Albert Welti, painter, of Munich and Berne.

The Design.—The picture of young Tell appears to have been adapted from an etching by Welti entitled "Ruckkehr in die liebe Hiemat" (the return to the dear homeland).

The Tell design was not much thought of—all the proportions of the picture are grossly unreal—the crossbow in relation to the boy, the apple he holds in his hand, the massive frame around it, and so on.

Adverse criticism greeted the stamps, not only from the pen of the journalist, but also from the pencil of the cartoonist. One of the wittiest cartoons was an imitation of the stamp. In the place of Tell's son was drawn a street arab sheltering beneath an enormous umbrella, and armed with a large basket of apples which he was trying to sell.

The L'Echo de la Timbrologie said of them: "The Swiss Federal Council has just adopted two types of stamps which have been welcomed by a severity that is deserved. The uglier type of the two is that chosen for the low values; it is the work of M. Welti, of Munich, and depicts Tell junior, to whom Tell senior has handed his crossbow, while the boy holds in his left hand the apple pierced by the arrow. Nothing uglier or more unequal can be seen."

The Story of William Tell.—William Tell, who lived in Burglen, was said to have been the finest crossbowman in Switzerland. Austria had over-run the land, become its master, and set one Gessler to be one of the Governors.

Gessler was a tyrant who had murdered or imprisoned those who stood against him. As a last barbarity, a pole was erected in the market square at Altdorf, and all Swiss were commanded to bow to the cap placed on the top of it, the punishment for disobedience being death.

Tell one day had taken a pack of deerskins to sell at Altdorf, and, having performed the task, was about to return home when he was arrested by Austrian soldiers for not respecting the Governor's orders. At that moment Tell's son came out of the crowd and approached his father.

Gessler said to Tell: "I am told that you are called the crossbowman of Burglen, and I should like you to give me an exhibition of your skill. If, at this distance, you can shoot an arrow so as to split the apple on the curls of your firstborn, I will let you go free. If not—if you miss the apple and kill your child—I will execute you here and now."

A way was cleared between father and son. The boy, with his face to the tree, bound by ropes to its trunk, felt the apple placed upon his head. William Tell chose two arrows; one he thrust in his girdle, the other he fitted to his bowstring. Tell raised his head; his eyes were steady; his face was like iron. Twang! went the bow. The arrow shot forward, pierced the apple, and buried itself deep in the tree.

Gessler turned to Tell.

"Tell me," he said, "for what reason did you take two arrows."

"If the first arrow had hurt my child," said the gallant bowman, "this one now would be through your heart."

Later on William Tell did shoot Gessler, and after that inspired the rising of the Swiss people which led to the overthrow of the Austrians and made Switzerland a free country.

Alterations in the Design.—The dies for these stamps were ordered from Berlin, and delivered to the Post Office authorities on October 27, 1906, and proved to be excellently executed. The stamps were printed at the Mint at Berne, but the next year it was decided to remove from the design the frame arrangement, and leave the boy standing upon the steps.

These stamps were in use till 1909, when it was found that the cord of the crossbow was on the wrong side. This was remedied, and in 1910 the stamps appeared with the cord behind the crossbow. The next year a minor alteration was made in the inscription, and serifs were added to the letters.

At the time of issue it was fully thought that the stamps would be withdrawn, but the design is still in use after sixteen years. The stamps are interesting. They are quite common, and varieties of paper, perforation and overprints can easily be found. In 1914 these stamps were perforated by a comb machine similar to those in use in Great Britain. Hitherto a complete sheet of a hundred was perforated by means of a harrow machine.—Postage Stamp.

A WAR SPY AND HIS STAMPS

By Carl F. Berger.

In Sir Basil Thompson's book, "My Experiences At Scotland Yard," there is a part which should be of some interest to philatelists. Mr. Thompson was Head of Scotland Yard during the World War and he had many adventures with enemy spies. I will quote from his book the story about the "stamp" spy whose guilty conscience was his great weakness:—

"The most absurd person employed as a spy was Joseph Marks. He attended a spy school, where they furnished him with an album of postage stamps—a method of conveying information that was new to us. He was to send to Switzerland stamps indicating particular classes of warships. Thus, ten Uruguay stamps taken in conjunction with an Edinburgh postmark would mean that ten battleships were lying in the Firth of Forth, and so on. Whether he ever intended to carry out his instructions is uncertain: usually so well-fed a person has no stomach for adventure, but he was put on trial for having come to this country after being in communication with an enemy agent, and was sentenced to five years' penal servitude. In a convict prison he was safe for the duration of the War, and when he was repatriated in 1919 he was profuse in his gratitude. Probably no one has ever gone to prison with a lighter heart. I imagine that an philatelist who may in future produc his album for the inspection of M Joseph Marks will be startled by th effect he will produce."

PARK CITY MATCH CO.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

1c, 3c

This factory was located at Kenosha, Wisconsin, which is now a city of over 40,000 people in the extreme southeastern corner of the state, on Lake Michigan, about fifty miles north of Chicago.

In the fall of 1919, a collector of Kenosha, while seeking information about the Park City Match Co., interviewed Mr. Henry M. Underwood, the elder son of Alexander Underwood of Newark, New Jersey. Mr. H. M. Underwood was connected with the Park City factory in the 1860's as an employee. The information obtained was that Alexander Underwood brought the match machinery from the East to Kenosha in 1857 and located the first factory there on the southeast corner of Exchange and Park Streets.

Attempts to interest additional capital were not successful until later when T. T. Bent and Cyrus Briggs became interested and moved the factory to the west end of Wisconsin street across the tracks of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway. Later on Cyrus Briggs became sole owner and sold the property to the Electric Match Co., of Chicago. H. M. Underwood was secretary and superintendent of the Electric Match Co. of Chicago. Conflicting views developed in regard to conducting the business and after about three and a half years Mr. Underwood resigned, sold his stock and quit the match business. The property became "trading property." Finally the then owners are said to have got into difficulties with the government and took up residence in Canada. The extent of the deficit is stated to have been $32,000.

Mr. Alexander Underwood returned to Newark in 1867. Ilion, New York, his earlier home, is in the Mohawk Valley, about ten miles southeast of Utica, and very near to Frankfort, N. Y., where the Gates factory was located. It is well within reason to assume that he was acquainted with the Eaton factory at Utica and the Gates factory in Frankfort, or with both of those factories, and realizing that the match business would expand enormously within a few years, his inventive talent was attracted to the possibilities of obtaining financial success through the improvement of match making machinery.

Regarding the 1c Park City Match Co. stamp the Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Feb. 28, 1865.
First issued, April, 1865.
Last issued, June, 1873.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
5,054,440 issued on old paper.
17,803,440 issued on silk paper.

"This company was succeeded by the Kenosha Match Co., T. T. Bent, Secretary, who made no change in the dies. Stamps were also delivered to one G. N. Jones from these dies, and they were finally sold to James L. Clark in 1867."

The number of the 1c stamps issued indicates that there were two or three plates for this denomination. These plates were made by the Carpenter firm in Philadelphia and all the stamps were printed there. Probably not less than 80% of the stamps on old paper and all the stamps on silk paper were used by Jas. L. Clark.

The design is indeed a handsome production and is one of the most attractive of the many beautiful designs used for match stamps. It forms an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size, having a border of Greek ornamentation which encloses a rectangular panel bordered by a line of pearls and with the following inscriptions on a solid background, "Park City—Match Co.—Kenosha, Wis." above in three lines and below "U. S. Inter. Rev.—One—Cent." Below "one" and "cent" is a small numeral 1, and just under U and V of U. S. Inter. Rev. is a small colorless five-pointed star. The central portion of the stamp is occupied by an irregular transverse oval, bordered by a line of colorless pearls. In the center of the oval is an eagle with outstretched wings facing to the right and grasping in its talons an olive branch and a sheaf of five arrows, all upon a lightly shaded background. The design was evidently adapted from the H. & M. Bentz die, which was engraved the previous year. The eagle is the same on both dies but the shading in the background is different. This eagle in the same position is also found on the match stamps of the Aetna series of St. Louis.

A more appropriate design than was obtained by using the likeness of a full grown eagle for these Wisconsin stamps

"SPECIALISTS' SELECTIONS

"Specialists' selections" contain late purchases and unusual items of interest to the specialist in United States stamps. New books are made up frequently and circulated on approval among those who strictly observe the rule of reporting within ten days after receipt. The first books will be ready on December 1st.

These selections are for the advanced collector — hardly any of them will contain items under $2.00. They are for the man who spends from $5.00 up at a time. Reference is required — your bank and two stamp dealers preferred.

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

could hardly be imagined. At the very time when the Kenosha stamps were first printed "Old Abe," the live eagle which was carried through a three years' campaign, and many battles of the War of Secession, by the 8th Wisconsin Regiment, was becoming famous throughout the whole Northwest.

In "The Sanitary Fairs and Their Issues" by Charles E. Severn is told the story of the genesis and fruition of a plan to raise funds for the United States Sanitary Commission in connection with the second great fair or bazaar held under its auspices in Chicago. Boys and girls earned "commissions" in the Army of the American Eagle by selling portraits of "Old Abe," and during three months the substantial sum of $16,000 was raised. It would not be at all surprising to find that the eagle on the Kenosha stamps is none other than "Old Abe" himself.

Both the old paper and the silk paper are found in the rather bright yellowish green and in a much darker green.

The old paper was quoted at a $1.00 from 1886 to 1896; $1.25 in 1898; 75c in 1900, and $1.50 since 1901. The silk paper was quoted at 50c in 1894 to 1896 and in 1900, but since 1901, and much of the time back to 1886 it has been quoted at $1.00. The 1922 quotation of $1.50 places it on a par with the old paper and although theoretically the silk paper should be more than three times as common as the old paper, as a matter of fact, the two varieties are equally scarce and the catalog prices are quite reasonable for fine copies.

The stamp is also listed on the experimental silk paper of 1871 and a few copies of this printing have been noted.

Regarding the 3c stamp the Boston Book states:—

Die approved, April 13, 1865.
First issued, May, 1865.
Last issued, Sept. 23, 1869.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
2,294,708 issued on old paper.

This stamp was also a Carpenter production and exists only as a Philadelphia printing. There was only one plate.

The design forms an upright rectangle of the usual 1c size. The border is formed of a heavy line of color enclosing a much finer line, and this in turn encloses a broad colorless line, leaving the body of the stamp a background of solid color. The central part of this background contains a circular disk on which is engraved an eagle with outstretched wings facing right, standing on a rock against a lightly shaded background. The eagle is identical with that on the die first used by B. & H. D. Howard about six months before the Park City 3c was issued. It seems probable that the 3c Park City eagle was a transfer from the Howard die. The inscriptions are all in colorless letters on a solid background. A curved line across the top of the stamp reads "Park City" and following the curve of the central disk is, at the top "Match Co.," at the left "Kenosha," and at the right "Wisconsin." Below the central disk in two curved lines we read "U. S. Inter. Rev.—Three Cents." In each lower corner is a large numeral 3 and in each upper corner a small five-pointed star. A small star is found beside each numeral at the bottom. Excepting a small leaf-like triangular ornament beneath the ends of Park City the design has no ornamentation.

This is indeed a beautiful stamp and well deserves the popularity which has always been its share. Unfortunately the orange color is often oxidized and gives the stamp a brownish or blackish blotched appearance, but a few minutes' bath in peroxide of hydrogen will restore the original color without harming the stamp at all.

From the record in the Boston Book it would appear that fully half of these stamps were used by Jas. L. Clark, but no method is known by which those used by him can be distinguished from those used by the Park City Match Co.

The scarcity of this stamp has either been over-rated in the past or a supply which was not available in the 1880's and 1890's has since come into the market. Sterling quoted the stamp at $3.00 in 1888, while the Scott quotations were $2.50 between 1886 and 1898, and $2.00 from 1900 to 1920. As good copies have been obtainable for many years around $1.00 each, the 1922 price of $1.50 for fine copies places the stamp in line with others of similar relative scarcity.

The stamp is not known to have been used in multiple, and no pairs, strips or blocks have come to the writer's attention.

After many changes in ownership, about 1870 the business of the Park City Match Co. was finally taken over by the Electric Match Co., of Chicago.—The reader will find additional data regarding the Electric Match Co. and Alexander Underwood in the article on Alexander Underwood & Co.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE "WEEKLY".

We have on hand a few bound volumes of the WEEKLY, and offer them for sale at very reasonable prices. The years in question are 1902, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909. The price of these books is $2 each and this price is extremely reasonable in view of the high cost of binding in these days. Just to show you what we can do in the way of a handsome, substantial sample volume of the WEEKLY we will send you the year 1907 for $1.50 plus the zone parcel post charges on three pounds. This offer is for immediate acceptance.

CONCERNING MR. DAWSON.

I noticed your editorial reference to Samuel Dawson, formerly postmaster-general of the Republic of Salvador. I can not give you any information about him myself, but I feel certain that you can learn something definite by writing to Mr. Federico Klein, Compañia de Luz Eléctrica, San Salvador, El Salvador, C. A.

When I was in Salvador in 1921-22, engaged in botanical work, I was entertained by Mr. Klein, who is devoted to horticultural work, besides being also manager of the electric company. While looking over his library I happened upon a stamp album, and drew his attention to it, with the result that most of the remainder of that day's visit was spent in talking about stamps. Mr. Klein is registered as a French citizen, although he was born in Guatemala. When a boy in Guatemala City (he is now probably about 50 years old), he accumulated a sizable collection of stamps, chiefly by direct correspondence with business correspondents of his father, scattered all over the world. When he was eighteen, wishing to come to the United States to attend a technical school, he sold his collection for five hundred dollars, using the money so obtained for part of his expenses.

The collection which he showed me was a general one of the nineteenth century, accumulated later, and nothing had been added to it for many years. He also took from his safe to show me large quantities of Salvadorean stamps of the nineties, unused, which he had purchased at the post-office in San Salvador when they were current.

I feel sure that if you will write to Mr. Klein he will be able to give you any information you wish concerning Mr. Dawson, since he has lived there for many years, and although San Salvador is a city of about eighty thousand people, the important people, or those who count, are not very numerous, and they are all acquainted with each other.

SQUBAKS FROM A STAMP HINGE.

A philatelist named Philip
Had filled at his list for fair.
For fourteen years he frantically
Sought for a fair rare pair
Of old U. S., but, being of
A philosophic mind,
He said, "All comes to him who waits."
"I feel that I will find"
"Just what I want eventually,"
"Well-centered, gummed as well."
Just yesterday he found it.
When he asked the price, "O **** !"(*)
"I could have bought a pair that looked"
"Almost as good,—and cheap!"
"A tenth the price,—five years ago."
"What you ask makes me weep!"
The dealer, smiling, said to him,
"The trouble with you cranks"
"Is that they must be superfine."
"Your album's full of blanks,"
"Which had you filled with good sound stuff,"
"—And later had the chance"
"To pick up finer copies at"
"Of course a big advance,—"
"The net to you would not be large."
"The stamp you had you'd sell"
"For lots more than you paid for it,"
"And wouldn't squawk and yell."
That dealer's right, or so I think,
Unless I miss my guess,
Both stamps would rise in value.
Do you do this? (Answer) "Yes!"

(*) Substitute "Dew Tell!!" for public recitation and the like.)

AUSTRIA SPECIAL

A nice collection of railroad cancellations on early Austria, not a large lot, just a neat little accumulation of rare things in this line. First check for $40.00 takes it.

SPECIALTIES

We are anxious to obtain the name and address of every collector, stating at the same time just what their specialty may be. By keeping your name on file, you are assured of receiving at least occasional selections of stamps you want, and not a lot of miscellany. Will you not co-operate with us this season for our mutual benefit?

We are prepared to fill want lists at all times, keeping a large stock of both centuries on hand, and specializing in 19th. Booklets by countries may be had for the asking.

May we not hear from you by early mail?

C. S. WATSON CO., INC. 120 Boylston St. Boston, Mass.

Want Lists. A Specialised Service

For years I have made a specialty of the execution of Want Lists. Few firms in this country have developed this side of the business to the same extent.

Owing to the great increase in my American business, I have now established a WANTS REGISTER on the basis of Scott's catalogue. Collectors may therefore send me their full want lists and be confident that they will not be side tracked and that they will receive constant attention. Selections will be sent on approval at regular intervals.

I sell stamps in Fine Condition only. My prices average half catalogue, and will bear comparison with any market in the world. I have, at the moment, nothing to offer in old U. S., but have an immense stock of British and French Colonials, Europeans, Asiatics, Africans and South Americans. I stock no common stamps and New European rubbish.

Approval selections of any country against references. [tf

THE CLASSICS OF PHILATELY—WHAT ARE THEY?

By Montgomery Mulford.

A person is not considered educated unless he has a knowledge of the books which are referred to as Classics; works of printed art which deserve immortality. There are classics of history, H. G. Well's "Outlines," Gibbons Decline and Fall, Macaulay's England, Bruce's Holy Roman Empire, Prescott's Mexico, Plutarch's Lives, et al. Then there are classics of comedy,—Cervantes Don Quixote, Baron Munchausen, Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer.

It makes too long a list to record the classics of every division of knowledge, but there is one branch which has been neglected. That is Philately. What are the classics of this pursuit? Or is there none? Do the stamps themselves serve as classics? If so, of the approximate 67,000, which are thus conceded a place in the immortal mind?

An entire history might be assembled from these colorful adhesives, mythology, literature, and the events in the story of mankind. Each philatelist will accord the honor to a different stamp, or series thereof. The precancel collector will vie with the United States specialist, and the biographical student with the economic assembler of the stamp. The ecclesiastic might put forward the new series of Italian church stamps, while the cartographer will rival him with a Venezuelan and Turkish map stamp.

However, hear me out. I am somewhat partial to these various sideroads of collecting, and being a historian as well as philatelist, my views cannot be biased, though I do not attempt to name these classics. Age alone can, and will prove them.

Charles G. Wilson is recording history from postage stamps. The articles form an unique tribute to the hobby, which the student of philately cannot be without. To me, they are the greatest piece of work yet supplied to the stamp collecting world. Of course there are innumerable data and booklets pertaining to the history of the issues of postage stamps, but these, while they are valuable, cannot live as literature.

Of the stamps which will live, are those which have aroused no antagonistic political opinion. Of these, one must choose as near as possible, a set or single stamp from each separate group. This I illustrate as follows:—

In literature, there is no more interesting a tale than Cervantes' Don Quixote. In Socialism the stamp of Hungary bearing the portrait of Karl Marx will be ever remembered. In music, the half dozen Austrian stamps with Mozart and the others, will live. Paderewski, upon the 1919 Polish stamp commemorates, not the musician, but the statesman, yet we shall remember this stamp, more for the pianist than for the president of a republic.

Each nation must choose its own hero or heroine to appear upon stamps but is there a more deserving character than that portrait upon the stamp, a picture of the founder of the Boy Scout movement which has spread to the uttermost parts of the world, Sir Baden-Powell? In the line of female pictures, the Magyar Posta or Hungary illustrating the "Patron Hungariae" should stand foremost. Mothers and humanity will praise the new stamp of France bearing the likeness of that scientist, Pasteur, who did much for hygiene and cleanliness.

And so it goes. Washington, Kossuth, Lincoln, and their like will be treasured by the patriot and rebel. Monarchists will gloat over the life of Francis Joseph, Alphonso of Spain and George of the British Commonwealth of Nations, as great examples of emperors and kings. Naval commanders and sailors will form vessel collections, and military men will put together those stamps which portray the fortunes of war, even the various cannon and many variety of troops. All these will not live, of course, except in their class, and it thus becomes extremely difficult, if not utterly impossible, to name those stamps which are thems classic.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER V.

The Re-engraved Stamps of 1886.

In 1886, new plates were constructed for the 1c, 2c and 5c denominations, but these were made from new dies and on a different principle from that previously employed. In each case the numeral formed part of the die so that there are no differences of position or shape other than those very trivial ones which one generally associates with the electrotype method of reproduction. They, therefore, present no problems regarding their manufacture and though they can be plated (Mr. Hausburg succeeded in plating the 1c and 5c and had made good progress with the 2c) the task is a much more difficult one than is the case with any of the other "Liberty-head" stamps.

The 1c and 2c appeared first and were, apparently, issued in March, 1886, though the change of type was not noted by any of the philatelic journals of the period until six months later. The change of type was not ordered by the Haytian authorities but M. Richard, finding that the old plates had become so worn that they no longer gave good impressions, or that the constant interchanging of plugs when new printings were required had become an unmitigated nuisance, decided to make new plates on a slightly different plan. He therefore engraved a new die, and from this two subsidiary dies were struck on which the numerals of value "1" and "2" respectively—were engraved.

The plates were the same size as before and consisted of fifty impressions arranged in five horizontal rows of ten stamps each. Presumably the plates were composed of separate electrotypes as before, but as the cliches were quite complete in themselves there are no variations in the value tablet as shown in the preceding issues. The most noticeable points of difference between the redrawn 1c and 2c and the corresponding values they replaced are as follows:—

1.—The lines of shading on the face are vertical, and those on the chin and neck are horizontal. In the old type the lines on the face were horizontal while those on the neck were oblique.

2.—The letter "Q" in "REPUBLIQUE" has the tail turned more to the right, and the last "E" of that word is more closed.

3.—There is an apostrophe instead of a dot after the "D" in "D'HAITI," and the letter "T" has longer serifs at the top.

4.—The words "CENT." are in thicker letters.

There are also differences in the numerals, the "1" being shorter, with a very sloping serif terminating in a dot, while the "2" is taller and altogether larger. A peculiarity of the 2c lies in the fact that there is always a short line after the last "I" of "HAITI," a dot in front of the "D," and a dot or line after the word "REPUBLIQUE."

M. Moens expressed the opinion that though these plates consisted of fifty stamps only, the sheets contained three hundred stamps in six panes, that is, six impressions from the plate. No double panes, etc., seem to be known which would give confirmation to this theory.

The stamps were printed on surface-tinted paper like that employed for the earlier issues and the approximate numbers printed are said to have been as follows:—

1 centime	310,000
2 centimes	180,000

A new plate for the 5c denomination was brought into use early in 1887, the earliest specimen known is postmarked April 15th, and it is very evident that an entirely new die was engraved. This value not only differs from the type of 1881, but it has few features in common with the redrawn 1c and 2c described above. The lettering is taller and heavier throughout. The "Q" of "REPUBLIQUE" has its tail turned to the right, the "B" is very narrow, and the serifs of the final "E" touch each other. There is a long apostrophe after the "D" of "D'HAITI," and the ornaments on each side of the shield have been altered. The shading on the face and neck is similar to that of the first type, but the head is larger, the nose rounder, and there is no shading on nose or lips. There are plenty of other differences, but those enumerated should be sufficient to prove that a new die was engraved. The numeral was engraved on the die, as in the case of the other redrawn values, and this is much larger that any of the numerals on the preceding 5c stamps and is a simple and certain means of identification.

The plate was evidently constructed in the same manner as those for the other two values of this series and the stamps were likewise printed on surface-tinted paper. The number printed is stated to be "not more than 75,000." All three values of this set were perforated 13½ by a single-line machine.

To recapitulate the simplest tests for distinguishing these three redrawn stamps are the shading on the face and neck for the 1c and 2c and the size of the numeral for the 5c.

CHAPTER VI.

The 1887 Issue.

Late in 1887 a set of four stamps in an entirely new design made its appearance. The 1c and 2c were recorded in the Philatelic Record for December, 1887, while the 3c and 5c were not listed until a month later. The design is the same for all four values and shows a full face portrait of President Salomon in a central oval; above is "HAITI" in white letters with a shield on each side containing the numerals of value in color on a white ground. At the base is a curved scroll containing the value in words in colored letters. On the centre of this scroll is another shield showing the value in white numerals within an oval of solid color. The 1c differs slightly from the other denominations in having "UN CENT" on the scroll on each side of the numeral at the base.

Salomon was averse to having his portrait on the 1881 stamp of Hayti, as we have already pointed out, and the story accounting for the fact that he allowed his features to be shown on this issue is worth repeating. According to the Revue Philatelique we are told that "when the question of endowing Hayti with postage stamps was mooted President Salomon desired to have an allegory of the Arms of the country appear on them. However, public opinion demanded the portrait of the President. He objected, with good reason, on the ground that he would not always be President, and that he did not wish to create a precedent which in the future would cause continual changes in the postage stamps. To conciliate the public spirit he abandoned his idea, and successfully proposed the adoption of the head of Liberty. However, little by little it was bruited that the 'Liberty' of the stamps of 1881 bore a striking resemblance to Mrs. Salomon. The President was then informed that they had asked for his portrait and not for that of his wife. The fact is that the resemblance was undeniable; the President was forced to admit it, and consented to have his portrait appear on the stamps. The issue of 1887 was the result. After the death of Salomon the justice of his view and the modesty of the former President was realised and it was decided to adopt the allegory which he originally proposed."

Although the stamps of the preceding issues were all printed in Paris, the Mecca of all Haitians, for some reason or other the order for this issue was placed with Messrs. Charles Skipper & East, of 49 Great Tower Street, London. The stamps were engraved in taille-douce, the portrait being the work of Mr. Herbert Bourne, the well-known die engraver.

The work is excellently done and represents a great advance on the previous issues. The stamps were printed in sheets of 100 arranged in ten rows of ten, on thick white wove paper. The gum is rather thick and yellowish in color and the perforation, which gauges exactly 14, is the work of a single-line machine. There are no marks or inscriptions of any sort in the margins of the sheets.

The 3 centimes denomination is known entirely imperforate and slight differences of shade may be found in connection with all four values.

Some interesting essays are known with either the Arms of the Republic or a large uncolored numeral on a horizontally lined ground in place of the President's effigy. The former are all of the facial value of 3 centimes and, according to Mr. Crouch, they are known in yellow-green, violet, blue, rose, orange and lake-brown as well as light and dark shades of these colors. The numeral type are of the facial value of 5 centimes and these are only known in blue or red. Plate proofs of all four values are known and Mr. Fred J. Melville records die proofs of the 1c, 2c and 5c, in black all on the same piece of card.

In 1889 one of Hayti's many revolutions broke out and the then well-detested Salomon was forced to flee to Cuba, never to return. In the ensuing sanguinary struggle Legitime forced his way to the front and eventually seized the Presidential chair. Internal matters kept the authorities so busy that they had no time (or money?) to devote to bringing out a new series of stamps. Besides, there was a huge supply of the 1887 stamps on hand which it seemed a pity to destroy much as the new regime were opposed to using labels bearing the portrait of the deposed Salomon. Finally one of the officials was struck with a bright and original idea, and orders were given that the Salomon stamps might be used but must be affixed to the letters upside down. Letters on which the stamps were stuck the right way up were treated as though they were unstamped and were taxed for postage due. Thus all parties were conciliated, waste was prevented, and general harmony prevailed.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—A recent visitor to Chicago was Wilson D. Wood, one of the vice-presidents of the Peoples Trust Company of Kansas City, Mo., who while strong in his attachment for United States and British North America, yet finds time to consider old philatelic literature.

—"Why do you collect stamps?" a young collector was asked. "Why shouldn't I collect them?" he countered, shifting the battle to the questioner's territory.

—A correspondent asks if one has to get a license to sell stamps and if so, how old the applicant has to be. We are glad to say that it is not necessary to obtain a license in order to become a stamp dealer which may be an argument in favor of stamp salesmanship. Another reason for the attractions of the stamp business is that there is no age limit imposed on its followers. However, the stamp game is becoming more and more one in which the fittest survive and notwithstanding its go-as-you-please qualities, stamp knowledge and business ability are two requirements for the success of the new dealer.

—T. A. L., Tampa—Your wrapper indicates that your subscription expires with Whole Number, 1721. The present Whole Number, see first page, is 1716. This information given publicly will no doubt help others.

—A question asked of the post-office department at a recent conference of postal employees and the answer as given are appended:

Question. Would it not be feasible for the department to use special dies on cancelling machines as a medium to bring the attention of the patrons of the Postal Service to certain services that they could render which will benefit both them and the Postal Service? Some apt slogans could be carried on the dies that would bring home the importance of "Early mailing" or "Facing mail properly," "Full postage prepayment."

Answer. The suggestion is a good one and has previously been acted upon by the department, a number of dies now being in use in the larger offices. The imited appropriation makes it impossible to extend the use of these special dies materially, and as the mail passing hrough the cancelling machines in the arger offices goes to every section of he country, the department feels that ufficient publicity is now secured to render unnecessary the expenditure of any additional funds.

—A. Atlas Leve, Syracuse, N. Y., has opened his new stamp shop at 333 South Warren Street. He says he has more lbow room than in a post-office box.

—Clarendon Bangs, of Brunswick, Ga., as a large number of American Philatelists, about twenty-five pounds, that he will give to any stamp society that cares o pay for transportation.

—We are pleased to say that our riend W. F. Fratcher of the Michigan tamp & Coin Co., has left the hospital which he entered for an operation, and rapidly recovering. He expects to e able to attend to his stamp business ithin a few weeks.

—From Mr. Theodore Siddall, Shanghai, China, we have received a copy of he new $2 stamp, of China, with both e center and border newly engraved.

—In announcing a new philatelic onthly from Athens, the editor of Philelia, Dr. St. J. Macrymichalos, says at one of the objects of his paper will e to replace "the erroneous term 'Philtely' with the correct one, which is hilotely." We suppose that the philolost will be interested in this descriptive it we think that "philately" is so firmly trenched through years of usage that will be almost impossible to supplant

—A reader asks a question based on e presence of a double line "T" on s one penny black of St. Vincent and is inquiry is typical of those that were ked so frequently years ago but which w are seldom received. The circulaon of books, such as our Stamp Collectors' Guide, has done much to inform llectors on some of the old-time stamp zzles and falling back on one work, e read: "There are also inscriptions atermarked in the margins of the sheet d in the wide space across the centre; the sheets with the 'CC' watermark, ese inscriptions are 'Crown Colonies' large, open capital letters, twice along ch side, and once across the centre; e sheets watermarked 'CA' have rown Agents for the Colonies' on each se and 'Crown Agents' across the cen-." Irregularities in the registering of ese watermarks account for the exence of stamps showing lines and ters.

—One of our subscribers is of the inion that the use of postage meter d "permit" devices has had a tendency reduce the use of stamped envelopes ich would no doubt have been mailed the printed forms had not been ought before the public. All that we n say is that we remember having d some time ago an article saying t the sales of stamped paper for the t half of the year 1922 had been unalled and that the increase over the me period for the year preceding was er 18%. The effect that our reader aks of may come later but at present its not noticed.

—In announcing the change of his dress from Buffalo to 21 Moeller eet, Binghamton, New York, Mr. A. Pike, who for so many years has en an enthusiast on the subject of philatic literature and that of postal markins, says that his Collectors Digest has been published this year, but that t year it will appear in enlarged m. We read that Mr. Pike has at et one copy of every paper that he ld get hold of and he intends to keep m and "to provide for their care after I am gone." Publishers owe a debt to posterity that they may discharge in some degree by placing Mr. Pike on their mailing lists because of his index service, alone.

—Teachers who may wish to test the value of the use of postage stamps as study-aids in the classroom, will be given, free of charge, a sample card prepared for this purpose, by addressing C. Lat. Wilhelm, Chairman, Philatelic Section, Maryland Academy of Sciences, 105 West Franklin St., Baltimore, Md.

—Two pricelists are at hand from the Hiawatha Stamp Shop, Syracuse, N. Y. They will doubtless be sent to any interested party.

—Frank A. Goldsmith has shown us a new advertising cancellation from Klamath Falls, Ore., reading:—"Crater Lake National Park, Klamath County, Oregon."

—We have received from Fred Krueger, Fargo, N. D., a list of German provisionals. We are not able to publish the information very readily, as it would require column rules. The chronicle of these issues will doubtless be made in the WEEKLY in due season. We thank Mr. Krueger for his courtesy. He states that the rate on a registered letter just now is twenty-seven and one-half million marks.

—Mr. Franklin S. Smith, who specializes in the precancelled stamps of the 1898 Proprietary issue sends the following note in regard to the provisional stamps issued by a number of firms in St. Louis, Mo., who could not obtain the regular issue in time to use. "I have recently added to my collection a copy of a St. Louis provisional which I have not seen listed before. It is printed in black on white paper, the denomination being ¼c, and worded the same as those issued by The Antikamnia Co.; Lambert Pharmacal Co.; Meyer Brothers Drug Co.; Jno. T. Milliken & Co.; Phenique Chemical Co.; and Van Dyke Bitters Co. It was issued by T. M. Sayman, and was cancelled with a hand-stamp, 'T. M. S.—JUL 12 1898' in two lines. A similar cancellation is found with later dates on the regular ¼c brown."

—"Permit me to bring to your attention the word 'Grills.' In your new edition of the 'Philatelic Dictionary,' should you intend getting out one, could this not be expanded upon? For instance: Scott in their specialized catalogue of U. S. stamps indicate various grills, as split grills, end roller grills, quadruple split grills, etc. Of course for the old stamp collector and one who has gone into it very carefully, these terms might be perfectly clear, but to an amateur like myself and probably many others, a lot of these terms are quite vague."—A. A. WASSERSCHEID.

EDITORIAL.

That the Third Assistant Postmaster-General is alive to the interests of collectors and is desirous of increasing the usefulness of the Philatelic Agency at Washington is manifest to many of us and as an example of the department's disposition to serve philatelists, we append the following order issued to postmasters under date of November 8, 1923, with the heading, "Discontinued Issues of Postage Stamps." While we are doubtful whether any really desirable old issues will be turned in, yet one can never tell where the lightning may strike. It was different when Postmaster-General Wanamaker in 1890, sent out his circular asking postmasters to send in their old stamps for the Postal Museum that was to be started:

"In order that any discontinued varieties of postage stamps that may still be in post-office stock may be made available to stamp collectors, postmasters having supplies of 1-cent, 2-cent, and 5-cent Pilgrim Tercentenary stamps; 6-cent, 16-cent, and 24-cent airplane stamps; 1-cent, 2-cent, and 3-cent imperforate stamps of the 1912 issue, also any additional varieties of postage stamps that remain in stock that are no longer issued by the department, are requested to submit an itemized list of the quantities held to the department.

The department will authorize the transfer of such items as are reported that are desired for placing on sale in the Philatelic Agency. Postmasters who report items to the department will hold such stock a reasonable length of time pending transfer, after which the items may again be placed on sale unless instructions to the contrary are received.

W. IRVING GLOVER,
Third Assistant Postmaster-General."

In the course of a conversation at the Collectors Club, New York, the other afternoon, a visitor said that he did not give the details of the design of a stamp intensive study because it was his wish to protect his eyes against the strain attending the searching scrutiny of stamps. Thereupon, Mr. Charles J. Phillips said that in his opinion, a reasonable degree of work of this kind acted as good exercise for the eyes and far from being detrimental was on the contrary, beneficial. The training strengthened the sight and Mr. Phillips said that he knew of instances where stamp study improved the eyes much in the way that judicious exercise of other muscles gave them greater power. Mr. Phillips' contention is a comforting one and while it may not be in conformity with ordinary opinion, it is worth consideration. We are not equipped with the necessary learning to discuss the subject from the oculist's view-point but we hope that we shall hear more on this interesting topic. We do know that a good many philatelists are prone to blame stamp work as a contributing cause of eye trouble when if the truth were known, the changes that are remarked have no connection whatever with continuous stamp inspection and would come under any other conditions.

From Mr. Theodore Siddall, Shanghai, we have received an interesting letter on minor varieties inspired by the notes in the WEEKLY of September 25th, on the locally printed Shanghai surcharges. In his letter, Mr. Siddall says that he is "pretty near fed up on minor varieties, especially when they are not varieties at all." That Mr. Siddall is no advocate of the minor variety is well known and in printing his words elsewhere, we are aware that a good many readers will applaud the hauling over the coals that the small differences in stamps receive. The minor variety has never been left alone to enjoy its few brief seasons of triumph and just as it settles down to enjoy its laurels, someone snatches them away. While a more or less cultivated minority has long been acclaiming the merits of the minor variety yet they do not pretend that collectors generally should give it serious attention. With the increasing wealth of stamp material at hand, the average collector should give his thoughts to different stamps and not stamp differences, leaving to the student the investigation that brings forth the minor varieties. Then, the collector may learn all about them in his stamp paper or find them placed in the catalogue. Say what one will, the minor variety is not popular, except as a specialist's proposition and only when it means something, rather than when it signifies an accidental variation, it has few friends. For one thing the minor variety adherents are apt to be a canny crowd and not inclined as a rule to back up their interest by paying fancy prices for the off varieties; and other enthusiasts have an unpleasant awakening when they try to market their minor varieties. Dotty collectors, who, by-the-way, got their name from the V. R. I. surcharges on the Orange River Colony of 1900, spend more conversation than coin on their minor varieties.

All philatelists get a little thrill when they see the word Postage in print but here we have a "Postage" that is the name of monthly magazine devoted to the interests of mail users. Naturally Postage is interested in all that concerns the direct-mail field and in the October issue we find the prediction made that in the next twelve-month, precancelled stamps will be available in rolls. It is said that the post-office department has been working on a plan to issue precancelled stamps in rolls for months, as the demand for this form of convenience is unmistakable. It is pointed out that any practice must allow for the printing of the name of the city between the parallel lines across the face of each stamp. We read that the department is "working to provide for the over-printing of rolled stamps at the office where issued." Another plan "is to arrange for precancellation at the U. S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing, at Washington, where the stamps are manufactured and where, incident to printing, a quota of stamps of the popular denominations are mechanically coiled or rolled for use in machines." We notice that direct-mail patrons are represented as favoring the use of precancelled stamps over "permit" and other stampless methods by reason of the impression made on the recipient by the stamp, the psychology of the case being that the stamp makes a definite appeal to the beholder while the envelope without a stamp seems flat and unauthoritative.

A reader has the following to say: "I was much interested in the statistics compiled by Mr. Clarence J. West in the issue of October 29th, and I think his work has been to a good purpose. I started to keep an account of the money I spent on my U. S. but long ago I lost track of it. It might interest you to hear of my plan in collecting early U. S., where condition has such a bearing on market price. I completed my sets by buying at relatively low prices specimens that were not in the pink of conditions by any means, and scarcely rated fair. Then, I bought better specimens here and there, replacing in time all the original stamps. These in turn gave way to better copies and this process has been repeated a good many times and I suppose that some of my 1869 set have been renewed a dozen times. While this method of collecting may be considered erratic, it appeals to me; and it has been surprising to me to see how with the thought of stamp perfection in mind you will attain it, if you are patient. I have little difficulty in disposing of the stamps that are supplanted through sale and exchange with my society fellows and in this particular I have an advantage over the collector who is alone." This is progressive philately that may be pursued profitably in view of the continued advance in the prices of U. S., especially when one is in a position to market his stamps, as our correspondent is. It is our belief that with better marketing conditions for the isolated collector, he would find it a satisfaction to follow the lines indicated.

PAUL WIESZ, STAMP DEALER.

V. R. James, care of the G. P. O., Adelaide, So. Australia, sends out a warning concerning Paul Wiesz, who until recently was a stamp dealer in Melbourne. He has in his possession unlawfully a valuable collection of N. W. P. Island stamps and will doubtless soon be heard from in the United States even if he has not already arrived.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 WEST 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By Warner Bates.
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

Here is an interesting letter from E. F. Weed, Rowayton, Conn., regarding Dr. Evans' Alaskan cancellations on Early U. S.:

"Your items in Mekeel's interest me very much and I have a number of items to give you at some future date. The first paragraph in Sept. 24 copy I may throw some light on.

"My first wife's first husband was one of the Indian Commissioners and in 1867 was sent out west to Alaska and all his home letters were sent via San Francisco (from Alaska) and always written in ink name of the place in Alaska. Now I do not remember selling any covers but I may have included them in lots at sales in N. Y.

"I still have some of the covers from Alaska, but none are postmarked. Would like to know the source of Mr. Evans' covers."

Hubert Lyman Clark, 9 Ashton Place, Cambridge 38, Mass., writes:

"I am much interested in your recent calculation (in Mekeel's) of the value of a vertical pair of 3c greens with a red cancellation. I am not interested in U. S. stamps, nor in vertical pairs, but I am constantly having to estimate the value of used blocks, and I believe the same principles should govern in estimating the value of pairs and blocks, recognizing, of course, the greater scarcity of, and lesser demand for, blocks. Your bit of calculating is the best thing I have ever seen in print on the subject of valuing multiple pieces."

Chester A. Moore of Albany, N. Y., who recently paid the editor of this department the honor of a visit, writes:

"I guess you must have imparted to me a bit of the germ of specialization for the two cent brown Jackson—at least your enthusiasm has made me an easy victim for this attractive stamp.

My friend, I am not writing to make you feel bad at the loss of the good things that may never come your way, but rather personally to again thank you for that wonderful afternoon so filled with stamp lore, opening a vista of possibilities that I, as a general collector, little appreciated. It has opened a door that I barely looked at and I begin the research with a delight and instruction that has been yours and many other specialists.

I am a specialist from now to evermore, it puts the general collector out for the count. I thank you and offer this as a part apology for not keeping my word and sending the two cent brown Jacksons. Last week I looked up the two cent brown Jacksons and obtained about 500, the first of a lot of 2,000.

For the fun of the thing at first I looked over the field, to see if I could detect anything unusual. This is what I found: No. 146, several pairs in shades, one with National Imprint.

Cancellations—Stars, targets in black and blue; Maltese cross, solid cross, white cross, and various designs. The most interesting of these were, a flying bat, perfect pine tree, cavalry boot, a cat and pigeon.

Of No. 157, which were by far the most numerous, I found as follows: Pairs in shades, stitch watermark, double paper, ribbed paper, one stamp of the ribbed paper is very yellowish or perhaps a deep ochre describes it best.

Cancellations—Stars, targets, in black, blue, ultramarine and green. Maltese crosses, black and blue, solid cross, and white crosses, various designs, most striking of which is what I term it, 'Braying Jackass.'

After this discovery I found a flying duck, a butterfly and a bell in blue.

Really I have had great fun doping out possible curious cancellations and if the remaining 1,500 stand up in proportion, things will be going up with me in the collecting of the two cent brown Jackson.

As soon as Dr. Bruns has published that book on cancellations I want one. What I have previously missed must be written down as profit and loss. My friend, I am deeply grateful for that pleasant and instructive afternoon. It will long be remembered as the beginning of a pleasant departure from the beaten paths of the general collector."

J. W. Andrews, who is now at Urbana, Ill., writes:

"I ran into a little luck a few days ago. I got a selection of stamps to look over and managed to get a superb PAID on the two cent green and an O. K. and two or three of my life, a 'Held for Postage' sitting beautifully on the stamp. And on top of that on another stamp a red orange target cancellation that made the three other reds I now have pale into insignificance and blush for shame for their color. And I also managed to find a ten in circle and another small plain ten, besides an indigo target on the green not to mention three stitch watermarks and innumerable letters, Maltese Crosses, colored stars, etc., etc.

I have been very much interested in your latest articles in your column. My, how I envy a man like Dr. Bruns with a bunch of cancellations such as described. And to think that I am somewhat proud of my collection!

I have been examining more of my favorites 2c brown and green and 'Day by day in every way' I am verifying the fact that the shading underneath the shield is absolutely dependent upon the condition of the plate. And on top of this, the identical situation holds on the two cent green, but due to the general inability of the green ink to really stand up and hold its own, the variety does not show up so strongly."

HARDING MEMORIAL IMPERFORATE

A sprinkling of first day covers always adds to the attractiveness as well as value of any collection and what could be of more interest than a memorial cover of our late President used on the first day? The 2c Harding, Imperforate, was placed on sale in Washington on November 15th, and I offer a beautiful cover showing a pair clearly canceled at $1.00. As an incentive to order, a mint block of the imperforate stamp will be sent with each cover.

Over 500 Copies
of the 10c 1847 belonging to members of the Philatelic Chapter of the Noble Order of Good Scouts have been submitted for examination to help in the work of reconstructing the plate of this most interesting U. S. stamp.

If sufficient material can be examined, it is probable that 80% to 90% of all the varieties can be identified and their positions on the plate definitely located. If you haven't yet submitted the black tens you are proud to own, won't you do so, or at least write me about them. Copies submitted for sale or exchange should be priced. See previous ads.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—Mr. E. P. Stover calls my attention to a variety which he has found on the $5.00 red and blue series of 1923, wherein the "R" in "AMERICA" is without its tail, making it appear as a "P." I have not seen the variety and hope to check the sheet very shortly and endeavor to locate its whereabouts. If the variety shows up clearly, such a stamp will be quite interesting.

The Philatelic Stamp Agent has just distributed a further circular calling attention to the stamps on hand which are now available at face value plus return postage and registration. The list includes all of the current series, including the 1c and 2c imperf, all of the previous series together with the 1c and 2c imperf., all six aeroplane stamps, the Pilgrim, the Victory together with 75c Parcel Post which they recently found in one of the outlying post-offices. Quite a few other items are enumerated, including coils, envelopes and the like.

The Agency confirms the information which we gave in our recent Chronicle about the Shanghai stamps being discontinued on December 1st, and further requests that the general public in ordering the Harding imperforate stamps should buy them in blocks of twenty-four or multiples of twenty-four unless entire sheets are taken. They call attention to the fact that at this time they cannot furnish plate blocks, arrow blocks, center line blocks and the like, but that those desiring these should order complete sheets. They have their hands full in taking care of regular orders, and one can appreciate the unusual amount of waste stock that will accummulate if they fill orders for plate positions only and have the balance of the loose stamps on hand.

The Postmaster-General is taking a personal interest in this branch of his Department and as a result under date of Nov. 12th, issued an order requesting all Postmasters to submit itemized lists of the quantities of all stamps that they might have on hand of varieties that are not at present being issued by the Department. He requests that such stamps be temporarily withdrawn from sale at these offices, for it is possible that they are varieties required by the Philatelic Stamp Agent for general distribution. Up until the time when the parcel post law went into effect many of the post-offices had on hand stocks of issues dated somewhat back, but when this service was started most of this older stock was used up. It is to be hoped that through the efforts of the Postmaster-General that old varieties of some of the previous issues will be found.

Mr. A. H. Robertson sends for inspection a registered cover showing a postal marking of unusual interest. Instead of using the regular type of registration mark, such as used by most offices, the Postmaster of Phoenix, Va., has had a special mark made for himself reading in three lines—"Office No. 85024—Registry No." After the last word, he fills in the registration number by means of a pen.

Mr. Frank L. Applegate sends for inspection two very interesting series of State Revenue stamps issued for the purpose of collecting a cigarette tax. One series is issued by the State of South Dakota and consists of 5 varieties perforated 11½ on unwatermarked paper of denominations as follows:—

½c orange, 1c green, 1⅕c carmine, 1½c dark violet, and 2c red lilac.

The stamps are printed in sheets of 100—perforated on one side and straight edge on the other three sides. All stamps are supposed to have the word "Canceled" printed upon them before being sent to dealers, but it seems that some of them slip out without this overprint. The tax on cigarettes are one mill each. The stamps are surface printed and show in the center a coyote howling at the moon, with a prairie scene as a background. Across the entire top of the stamp we find "State of South Dakota," immediately underneath within a semi-circle "Cigarette Tax" with figures of value in the lower corners.

The State of Utah has issued a series for the same purpose consisting of the about five values in addition to a 2⅖c stamp. These stamps are somewhat smaller, have exactly the same reading with the word "Utah" substituted for South Dakota and as a central design we have a very attractive portrait of an Indian facing the right. These stamps are perforated 12 and in addition each stamp is perforated through the center "Utah." The denominations are in the following colors so far as information at present is available, ½c color unknown; 1c orange; 1⅕c color unknown; 1½c green; 2c blue violet and 2⅖c brown. It will be recalled that we described a similar series for Iowa some time back.

Antigua.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the 1d purple and 2½d orange on script watermarked paper.

Belgium.—The attention of the postal authorities has been drawn to the similarity between the 15c and 25c of the current series, and it has been decided to print the latter value in deeper colour in future.—Philatelic Magazine.

Ceylon.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us the 1R brown on new yellow paper with the script watermark.

Corfu.—The Economist Stamp Co. submits the following values of Italian stamps with the overprint "Corfu" in black at the base: 5c green, 10c red, 15c grey, 20c brown orange, 30c brown orange, 50c violet and 60c blue. Also the 1 lira brown and green.

Costa Rica.—The Metropolitan Stamp Co. forward for chronicle two new values of the new series. They are 2c yellow and 5c ultramarine. The former pictures a native woman with a basket in her hand while the 5c value shows a large building with the words "Correos y Telegrafos" beneath.

Esthonia.—The Economist Stamp Co have shown us the Air post stamp o 1920, with several different surcharges Single copies have been overprinted wit "1923" in red and also "15 Marka 1923" in two lines in red: Pairs of this stamp have the overprint "10 Marka 1923" ir black and "20 Marka 1923" and "4 Marka 1923" in red.

Germany.—We have received from the Economist Stamp Co. a 10,000 mark stamp of olive green color with a likeness of a cathedral in the centre. At the base are the words "Deutsches Reich."

Greece.,—Our Athens correspondent Mr. P. J. Drossos, states that the Government Gazette, No. 192, dated September 14th, contains a call for a tender by the Greek Government for the preparing of a new issue, which is to replace the current lithographed set. Some of the clauses mentioned in the Gazette are: Stamps are to be engraved, and printed on paper of special good quality; the stamps are to be properly perforated (not like those in use now). Size and colours of the stamps are to be fixed later. The values are: 1, 2, 3, 5, 10, 20, 25, 40, 50, 80 lepta, and 1, 2, 3, 5, 10,

NEW ZEALAND PENNY POSTAGE.

(The following article appeared in the Auckland, N. J., "Star." It was sent to Mr. Smith, the editor of our foreign new issues department, but we think it of sufficient importance to reprint in displayed form. Mr. Markham, to whom reference is made, is secretary of the Post and Telegraph Department of New Zealand.—W. O. W.)

It was pointed out by Mr. Markman that no mention has been made as yet of the fact that the penny postage which has been reintroduced in practically all the countries in the Postal Union is really the cheapest postage the world has ever experienced. This is due to the fact that the purchasing power of the pound sterling, and therefore of the humble penny, is very much less today than it was before the war. Practically every commodity that is purchased today costs more than the same article cost previously. In the Post Office salaries are higher, material is more expensive, and the whole administration costs more. Yet the public are to have the same value for their penny stamp as they got before the war. Similarly the even humbler half-penny stamp will carry a newspaper or an account almost to the ends of the earth—certainly to any country within the Postal Union (except Australia), just as the pre-war half-penny stamp did.

The Victory stamps which appeared in New Zealand for a couple of years are now out of issue. In regard to the new penny stamp showing the map of New Zealand, Mr. Markman states that it was produced rather hurriedly, and that a more accurate map will be prepared for another issue. It is understood that difficulty has been experienced in New Zealand in getting a sufficiently hard metal plate from which to print the stamps. It appears there is no firm in the Dominion capable of producing a satisfactory plate, with the result that the Department will require to send to London for one. When one is procured it will contain a diminutive but mathematically correct map of our islands. Meanwhile the new issue will be used, and when it is exhausted the postal authorities will revert to the old universal stamp of 1901, as it is understood there is a large stock of these stamps of one penny denomination still in hand.

Philatelists strongly criticise the new stamp, not only for several glaring inaccuracies, but also for the lack of characteristics in design in the borders, which some say ought to have contained reproductions of Maori carvings. Whether the authorities will pay attention to this important detail in the later issues remains to be seen.

THE NEW GERMAN PROVISIONALS.

By J. L. RIEDEL.

Consequently upon the enormous fall of the mark in August, postal rates were raised by 500s at the end of that month and as no higher values than the 10,000m pictorial stamp, showing the Cologne Cathedral, were available, surcharged provisionals had to be created. The following is a complete check list of all the values issued. All have the wire netting wmk., except the 8,000m on 30pf, which is wmk. lozenge.

Notwithstanding the great varieties of overprints and the haste with which the work had to be done, only one error has been found so far: On the sheets 8,000m on 30pf the 56th stamp has the 8 inverted.

After November 1st, all the values below 1 million mark are obsolete and some of the provisionals will become very scarce, as only a limited number has been issued.

OLD BRITISH POSTAL AGENCIES.

By S. B. C. Ross.

(Clipping from "Hong Kong Press.")

In 1842 Hongkong was ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Nanking and at the same time Canton, Amoy, Foochow, Shanghai and Ningpo were declared open to trade.

Soon after the cession a Post Office was established at Hongkong under the jurisdiction of the London Post Office. The Colonial Government had no interest either in the management or finance of the Hongkong Posts.

During the first year of the Colony's existence there were no less than three Postmasters. In 1843 Mr. F. Spring, our 4th Postmaster, was appointed and held the office for 17 years.

There were at this time no postal facilities of any description for foreigners in China. When the five ports mentioned above were opened to trade and Consular Officers had been appointed Postal Agencies grew up in the Consulates.

The records are very imperfect during this early period and it is difficult to find out exactly how the Consular Agencies were established. I imagine that like Topsy they simply "growed," the Consular Assistant when he had nothing better to do, consented to send off certain letters for friends. The postal business during this period was in any event very small.

At any rate, however the Postal Agencies may have come into being, before 1860 the following places were recognised as Agencies of the Hongkong Posts, which were then under London control. This is:—Canton, Amoy, Foochow, Shanghai, Ningpo, Yokohama, and Nagasaki.

There were also unrecognised Agencies—that is Agencies to which no payments were made—at Hyogo (better known to us as Kobe), at Bangkok and at Macao.

The year 1860 is an important date. In this year the Hongkong Post Office was handed over by the Imperial Authorities to the Colonial Government. It is a curious fact that this change was in opposition to the wishes of the local Government. It is difficult to imagine that today the local Government would wish any of its utility branches to be controlled by persons in London.

When the Post Office was handed over to the Colonial Authorities no one seems to have considered the question of making provision for the Agencies.

In 1861 the Colonial Secretary, writing to Mr. Meadows, the Consul at Shanghai, says: "Upon the transfer of the Hongkong Post Office to the Colony in opposition to the wishes of the local Government the question as to the Agencies at the Ports was referred to the Home Government with an intimation that at all events the management and expense of these could not be forced upon the Colony." (Letter of 1st October, 1861.)

A curious sort of conflict took place in 1861. Agencies had so far been housed in Consulates and managed by Consular Officials. Of all these Agencies there can be little doubt that Shanghai had the most business and was by far the most important. In July, 1861, the Consul at Shanghai, Mr. Meadows, ordered his Assistant to desist from all postal labours. This decision was not communicated to Hongkong in time for any one to make arrangements for the reception of mail at Shanghai. Mails were sent up in the usual way and no one in Shanghai could open the "boxes" in which they were contained. After a haggle of two days the senior British Naval Officer and the Consul met together and authorised the Peninsular and Oriental Agent to open the box. A protest was sent to Hongkong by the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce and the answer was that Hongkong did not wish to have anything to do with these matters and that the Governor was of opinion that Shanghai people did not really mind if they had a post-officer or not.

After a considerable amount of correspondence in which it was pointed out that Shanghai people did want a post-office, for if they had none, those who had no Agents in Hongkong could neither receive nor send any letters, the Hongkong Government appointed a Corporal in the 44th Regiment to go to Shanghai as Postal Agent. In this way the Shanghai Agency was severed from the Consulate. In all other of the old Agencies a Consular Officer has always remained in charge.

In 1862 postage stamps were introduced into Hongkong and these stamps were used at the Agencies.

In 1858 Chefoo, Hankow, Hoihow and Swatow were opened to trade and Tientsin was declared open to trade in 1860.

A Postal Agency was established at Swatow. I have been unable to discover the exact date but it was recognised as an Agency before 1866. Agencies were not at once established in the other ports mentioned above which had been opened to trade.

After 1860 the conditions at the Agencies must have been very unsatisfactory. It was decided that the London Post Office would pay all salaries and the Hongkong Post Office all incidental and other expenses and that the Hongkong Postmaster would be in charge. It is always difficult for a man to be in charge if he does not pay the men who are under his charge and if it is doubtful to what extent he may reward, reprimand or punish.

A sort of interregnum took place and in 1866 the London Post Office proposed to hand over complete control of the Agencies to Hongkong. In the same year Mr. E. P. Rae was sent out by the London Post Office as a special surveyor and a joint inspection of all recognised Agencies was made by Mr. Rae and by Mr. Mitchell, the Colonial Postmaster-General.

These two officials drew up a report, which, inter alia, contained the following recommendations:—

"That no other agencies should be opened in China or Japan, because the only advantage afforded to the British Community would be the small one of being able to buy postage stamps. Whilst on the other hand the expenses of the Agency would doubtless exceed the receipts, as, no compulsion to send letters by mail being possible, the bulk of letters would be sent by preference, for various reasons, through the steamer offices.

"That, as the receipts from the agencies showed a constant diminution a fixed annual sum of £1,370 should be paid by the General Post Office to the Hongkong Office, and not a share of the postage."

The report was approved and the co trol of the agencies passed to th Colonial Government on the 1st Januar 1868.

The total annual contribution made b the Imperial Government was £1,37 which was allocated as follows:—

Salary of Agent at	Canton,	£ 6
"	Swatow,	4
"	Amoy,	10
"	Foochow,	10
"	Ningpo,	6
"	Nagasaki,	6
"	Yokohama,	50
"	Shanghai,	25
Postmaster-General, Hongkong, for supervision,		10
Postmaster-General, Hongkong, for travelling expenses for inspection,		10
		£1,37

It would therefore seem from this re port which was approved by both th Colonial Government and the Imperia Posts that the question of the Posta Agencies in China had been settled fo all time.

But this was far from being the case In 1872 Hankow, which had been opene to trade in 1858 by the Treaty of Tientsin was created a postal agency. No one i particular appears to have been consulte when this took place though it was a obvious variance with the Rae-Mitchel report. On the 1st January, 1880, th Agencies at Nagasaki and Yokoham were withdrawn, owing to the fact tha Japan had joined the Universal Posta Union in 1877. The Imperial grant t the agencies was thereupon reduced b the sum of £560 and after 1880 the Imperial Posts paid the sum of £810 a yea in support of the Agencies in China this amount was never varied until London took back full control in 1911.

ANDREW SLEDD, Decatur, Ga.

In 1882, again it would appear contrary the Rae-Mitchell report, an Agency as opened at Tientsin. This port had en opened to trade in 1860 and owing representations made by the Consul Postal Agency was opened in his Con- late. A subsidy of $12 a month was anted by the Colonial Government wards the upkeep and expenses of this gency. It would be interesting to know w this peculiar sum, granted by a ritish Colony to a British Consul as a bvention for a Colonial Postal Agency, as actually allocated. Today it would course hardly pay the wages of one olie but in the spacious days of 1882 it may have been sufficient to pay the whole postal staff. The records, however, are dumb, and I have been unable to discover who actually received this sum of money. Representations were made to the London Post Office for a contribution towards the cost of the Agency. A reply was received, and it appears to me that no other reply was possible, that the reasons against opening more agencies laid down in the Rae-Mitchell report seemed to be just as valid if not more so in 1882 than they had been when the report was written.

The Tientsin Agency, however, did not work well. The port was closed during the winter owing to ice and the courier route from Chinkiang to Tientsin was unsatisfactory.

The Tientsin Agency was closed in 1890 and the Colonial Government was relieved of paying its subvention of $12.00 a month.

On the 1st March, 1884, the Post Office at Macao assumed its proper position as a Portuguese Post Office under the Postal Union and the previous irregular arrangement by which it was worked as a kind of honorary agency of the Hongkong Post Office (but an agency under no control) was discontinued.

In 1885 Siam entered the Postal Union and a properly organised Post Office was opened at Bangkok under the direction of H. R. H. Somdet Phra Chow Nong Ya Tho Chow Fa Bhanurangse Swangwongse Krom Hluang Bhanuphanduwongse Woradej, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. A kind of unrecognised Agency of the Hongkong Post Office had been maintained in the Consulate-General at Bangkok where Hongkong stamps were sold and where a letter could be registered. This Agency ceased to exist.

Mr. A. Lister was Postmaster-General from 1875 until his death in 1890. He had very great knowledge of the working of the Posts at the Agencies and was strongly in favour of handing them back to China to be administered by the Customs Posts.

In his annual report on the working of the Post Office for the year 1886, Mr. Lister says "The state of several of our Postal Agencies, specially those of Amoy and Foochow, was taken into serious consideration. It was felt that the existing condition of affairs could not be allowed to go on, and that unsatisfactory as it might be for Hongkong to be saddled with the whole expenses of improving these Agencies, improved they must be or abolished. These remarks must not be taken as implying any reflection on the officers in charge of the agencies in question, whose only fault is their inability to do impossibilities or be in two places at once." During the year 1886 there was considerable correspondence between Mr. Lister and Mr. Kopsch, the Chinese Postal Secretary. At this time our recognised Agencies were:—

Canton, Swatow, Amoy, Foochow, Shanghai, Ningpo, Hankow and Tientsin.

There was also a sort of unrecognised Agency at Hoihow.

It was proposed by Mr. Kopsch that in place of these eight agencies, post-offices should be opened by the Customs at 23 ports.

Mr. Lister, in reporting this proposal to the Government, states that "Hongkong maintains under very great disadvantages eight Post Offices in China. They are worked except Shanghai by Consular officers, whose Consular duties naturally have to take precedence. Able and diligent as most of these gentlemen are, their frequent removals and the pressure of their other duties inevitably stand in the way of the attainment of any very high degree of efficiency. By the time a Postal Agent has learned his duties he is due for transfer to another port. Mr. Lister and Mr. Kopsch, however, both went on leave, and as nobody else understood the matter or took any interest in the fate of the postal agencies the whole question was dropped.

In the course of the year 1890 the honorary agency at Hoihow was converted into a salaried agency, whilst the agency at Tientsin was continued.

The reason given for the withdrawal of the Tientsin Agency is that the amount of postal matter was inconsiderable. But it seems curious that Tientsin should have been withdrawn and Hoihow opened as a recognised agency in the same year. For Hoihow has always been the smallest of the agencies with the exception of Ningpo, and at least three times the amount of mail matter was handled at Tientsin as compared with Hoihow.

On the 1st September, 1899, a postal agency was opened at Weihaiwei. This agency has of course never been a British Agency in China; it is and always has been a British Post Office in British leased territory. It has, however, as far as accounting and discipline is concerned always been run by the Hongkong Postmaster, exactly as though it were an agency in China.

In 1903 an agency was opened at Chefoo, and unlike our other agencies, Chefoo was not run by a Consular Officer but by Messrs. Curtis Brothers, well known merchants in that port.

In 1906, the Tientsin Agency which had been withdrawn in 1890 was reopened and placed under the charge of the Kailan Mining Corporation. It is a curious fact, that although France, Japan, Germany and Russia, all had agencies in Peking, we never had a British Postal Agency in the Capital of the country.

In 1902 the four cent Empire rate which had been adopted by Hongkong in 1898, was extended to the Agencies. There can, I think, be no doubt that this was a very great mistake, and was the direct cause of the transfer of the Agencies to the control of the London Post Office in 1911. Up to the year 1902 the agencies had paid their way. Shortly after the four cent rate had been extended to the agencies the Siberian Route was used for the transport of agency letters to Europe. All four cent letters were carried by this route at a loss. This loss had to be made good by Hongkong and it could not be argued with any show of reason that Hongkong should pay money in order that people at Shanghai and other places in China, many of whom were not even British subjects, should be able to send letters at a cheap rate to England and other parts of the Empire.

Not only were the Agencies carried on at a loss, but 20 per cent. of all the revenue collected had to be paid over as military contribution. It appears a little grotesque that the postal revenue of places like Hankow and Ningpo where there was no military protection of any sort whatever, should have to pay military contribution, but such was the ruling. Sir Frederick Lugard took up the question vigorously and after a long struggle all the agencies were handed over to the London Post Office on January 1st, 1911.

London being many thousand miles away, it was quite impossible for anyone in that office to attend to the countless little questions of discipline and office routine. The Hongkong Postmaster was therefore placed in charge as manager for London. After fifty years the same objectionable system of dual control was re-established, which had been found unworkable in 1860. The chief feature of the new system was of course the immense delay in the settlement of all questions which the Postmaster could not settle here out of hand.

From the year 1892 until 1917 the stamps used in the Agencies were Hongkong stamps without any distinguishing mark. In 1917 Hongkong Stamps overprinted "China" were introduced.

In accordance with stipulations entered into at Washington, all British Agencies in China were closed on November 30, 1922. The withdrawal of the agencies was much regretted by the British Communities in China. This feeling of regret will it is hoped be some small recompense to the Agents for the work they performed in cramped surroundings with inadequate staffs but in such a manner that complaints were almost unknown.

"THE RAREST GEORGES."

It is curious to see the claims that are made from time to time for various stamps as being the rarest of the Georgians — this, of course, excluding varieties or War Stamps. The first was for the 10 peseta Morocco Agencies, De La Rue print, of which it was stated only 800 were issued, but it transpired afterwards the figure was nearer 1800, so that with these suddenly coming on the market, the price dropped from its high watermark of £5 until today it is obtainable for about £1, at which it is good value, as the next catalogue will doubtless show a sharp increase.

Then we had the 10sh Malta, wmk. Mult. CA, hailed as the rarity, only 1,200 being issued. The figure here was correct, and a sudden demand enabled the holders to force up the price until it has been changing hands lately at about £10, but this figure is bringing out some of the invisible supplies, so that it will be interesting to see if the price holds. It should be noted that although the Malta 2sh CA Self-Government was issued in only double the quantity, it is obtainable at about one-twelfth the price, so that there are possibilities here, and one of the big dealers has been predicting it as a £5 stamp.

The next claimant for premier honours was the 5sh British Bechuanaland, De La Rue print, of which, on reliable authority, only 320 exist, and prices recently asked run up to £5. In this case Gibbons quotation is no guide, just as the figure for the rare 10sh Malta at 12s6d, current to the end of 1922, was no guide for that stamp.

Finally we have the 50 rupee of East Africa and Uganda on Script paper hailed as the rarity, only about 100 stated to be issued. In this case, however, another factor occurs which did not trouble us in the previous cases. These new printings were sold in London as well as in the Colony, and in some cases hardly had the new set appeared than the old were withdrawn. The total number existing must be greater than this, as a copy recently sold in a London auction for just about face value. It must be remembered there is only a very small demand for these extremely high values, such as £5 and over, which are only used in the ordinary course for fiscal purposes, and so may be omitted, as some cataloguers do. Collectors now prefer to invest in the lower values, which almost invariably show a very much bigger percentage increase value after they have become obsolete. Some of the lower values of this same series on the new paper and old type, will probably rise to many times face, such as the 12, 15 and 50c, as their life was very short, whilst all the old type on emerald paper are worth picking up on the basis of current catalogue prices.

Another country, where printings on the new paper of an issue about to disappear created some excitement, was the Hong Kong series overprinted for China Agencies. The 4c in particular had a very short life, and it is stated copies have been selling locally for a dollar or more, so that recent prices quoted by London dealers appear very cheap.

The vogue for Air stamps continues and fancy prices have been paid even for some of the local and early unofficial issues. Collectors cannot go far wrong as regards Colonial Air emissions, however. The best known of these, of course, are those of Newfoundland, and all these have been appreciating recently, especially on covers.

Very little information has come through yet about the recent Sarawak provisionals. These appear to have been cornered by local speculators who are asking stiff prices. The motto that the early bird catches the worm is not always true, in Philately sometimes he only gets bitten, so that it is often best to consult someone in the know before paying a high price for a new provisional.

It is very difficult for the collector to tell the future financial prospects of such items, and as to whether they are likely to increase. It may be instructive to note that the first prices asked for the following sets have all proved too high:—

Batoum, last Occupation issue, 1-50 roubles, £2 at first; now selling at 3s6d.
G.E.A., 1 and 10c local provisional, 5sh at first, now 1sh per pair.

On the other hand the first prices asked for the following have all gone up:—

Newfoundland, 1920 set of 3 provisionals, first 5sh, now 12s6d.
New Hebrides, 1921 set of 5 provisionals, 6sh, now 12s6d.
Bahamas. Local War, ½d to 1sh, 10sh, now 25sh.

If authoritative figures as to quantities issued can be obtained, these form a useful criterion for judging whether the prices asked are reasonable.

The new Iraq stamps, with their striking designs, should do much to popularise this country still further. The postal business has increased considerably during the last three years, and used copies of the new set will soon be much cheaper than mint. With regard to the old issue, no sudden increase is to be expected as large quantities of mint sets were bought up. The used should steadily improve, however, after a few months, from the low prices at present ruling, especially the rupee values, whilst the old Service set is also worth watching.

There has been some talk of the stamps of India being printed in that country, but this does not appear at the moment a likely contingency. Meanwhile the current set are getting steadily cheaper. Some large parcels of the high values, 1 to 25 rupees, have recently been coming on the market and further reductions in price are to be expected in both the ordinary and Service series. Many of these stamps, of course, have been used telegraphically, but appear to fetch nearly as much as postally-used copies owing to the cancellations being similar. The two highest values of the Edward set, 15 and 25 rupees, both ordinary and Service stamps, are now on the up-grade again after a period of little demand and are well worth acquiring at recent quotations.—Philatelic Magazine.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Milwaukee, Wis.,
Nov. 1st, 1923.

Mr. Scott,
New York City, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Scott,

I have just purchased one of your 1924 catalogues of stamps and want to tell you that I am both for and against it, and why.

First I am for it for I find that most of the stamps that I own have increased in value,—but I am just about as much against it for the reason that you are now asking a whole lot more for the very stamps I have planned on buying for almost the past year.

Just before your next catalogue is to be published I am going to write you and find out which ones will advance and which ones will be cheaper. Then I will buy those that are going up and save my money on those that are going down.

You would answer my letter as a friend, wouldn't you, Mr. Scott? Or maybe I'd better take this up direct with Mr. Babson who sets all the stock-market prices for Wall Street, I hear. Maybe he'd help me, too.

One thing more. I see that you have put a white line through all the stamp-pictures as Congress asked you to, and even the Confederate States, which I guess are defunct, deceased, and have quit business by now. But I know why you did it, anyway! Now they can't sue you! And I bet the Confederate States would, anyhow for enough to settle that bill that the government holds against some of those Confederate post-offices that lost some stamps and money for the government not over sixty-three or sixty-four years ago.

But they'll have to catch someone else now for that money, won't they, Mr. Scott?

Well, so long, Mr. Scott. I'll write you again as per above about those prices.

Yours truly,
"M. T." Dome.

MILWAUKEE BANQUET.

The Milwaukee Philatelic Society opened its stamp season and bourse formally at a banquet at the Hotel Blatz, Nov. 6, 1923. Sixty of Wisconsin's foremost philatelists attended the banquet, and listened with interest to the address of Dr. F. A. Kraft, the president of the Society, who spoke of the experiences he has had in philately during the past fifty years. Junior collectors have leaned on Dr. Kraft's advice for many years, and his talk filled the newer members with zealous interest in putting philately where it belongs. Many new members were added to the Society's growing list of members and efforts were made to have all join the A. P. S. Mr. Louis A. Burmeister showed his wonderful collections, together with a specialized volume, which has gained him the title of "The Duke of Bosnia." A lively sales programme followed the banquet.

NEW JERSEY'S 13c PRECANCELS.

By G. Ward Disbrow, M. D.

Whether because of its color, or its peculiar numerical value, suggesting unpleasant happenings to the superstitious mind, the thirteen cent precancel has become a prime favorite among many collectors.

If one wishes to specialize in a stamp which is not common and one which will not be found in every waste basket, I can cordially recommend this item, and I can speak from considerable experience as to the difficulties which may beset the path of any one desiring to make even a fair showing. Incidently I might add that as your collection increases the difficulty of finding new specimens increases and likewise the cost to yourself.

In Bushnell's Perforated 11 section of the Precancel Catalog are listed about one hundred ninety varieties of the apple green, including normals and sub-types. In the perf. 12 section we find possibly one hundred in 1902 and 1908 issue, making a total of about two hundred ninety listed varieties. In my collection I have possibly a hundred unlisted varieties and I have seen or heard of possibly fifty more. This makes as far as I know about four hundred fifty varieties of the thirteen cent precancel and there are very probably many more.

At any rate, compared with general collecting it would seem a comparatively easy task to obtain a copy of each, But—"Try and get them!" You will get a hundred or so without much difficulty but then your trouble begins. However, a nice lot of thirteens certainly does make a nice showing and there is not the slightest doubt that as an investment they beat everything in the precancel line, Aeros and Pilgrims not excluded.

Take for instance Orange, N. J. In 1902, or thereabouts, was issued a thirteen cent precancel. I know of four copies, one in my collection, one in East Orange, one in Newark, and one "somewheres in America." My copy travelled north to New England, then west and finally came back to roost with me. Incidently I paid more than a dollar for it and more than several dollars could not buy it today.

Summit, N. J., is another thirteen that will bear watching. About Christmas of 1921, some packages were sent to the Pacific Coast bearing thirteen cent stamps. Someone was persuaded to precancel them with the result that the cancelling stamp was locked up and by the time it came out of its enforced retirement all the thirteens in the office were gone and there have been none since. Bushnell catalogs this item at a quarter either in the up or the down position. Will someone kindly send me one or more at that price or quadruple it? I do not possess even a single copy and I live in Summit!

Arlington, N. J., is another scarce item. Come up and down but I have seen only the down type. Only a few issued and only once so that they should be worth at least seventy-five cents to a dollar, and if one compares their scarcity with some of the recent western emanations they should be worth even more than that.

Then take Hackensack and Jersey City. Both are fairly large cities especially the latter, and do a large mail business. Why have I never seen a thirteen from either place when Bushnell lists a Hackensack normal, type U11 and Jersey City normal and inverted in U16 and U1? Again I offer full catalog or more for any or all of them. Perhaps they are common in the west or north but they are certainly far from common around here.

How many Montclair, Type III, double normal have you seen, and what value would you place on such an item? The five cent Perf. 10 double catalogs $2.00. I have one copy of the thirteen and know of possibly two others. I would really like to know how many are in the hands of collectors.

Newark, the largest city of the state, and a great manufacturing center, would be expected to have a thirteen inasmuch as they have precancelled all the other denominations. A friend was informed however, by a high official of the Post Office, that no Newark thirteen was ever made and that none would be.

East Orange has issued two types. Type I, U13, which should catalog about a dollar, and Type III, U-3, which is a recent affair and comes both normal and inverted. Should be worth about forty-five cents for a normal and fifty for an invert.

Orange, N. J., has issued beside the 1902 item before mentioned an apple green 1917 in U-4. I would catalog this at fifty cents as they are not common by any means.

Morristown comes both normal and inverted in a type similar to U-22 but the bars at top and bottom are replaced by half spirals. This is another scarce item and should catalog around fifty cents either way.

New Brunswick comes in Type I only as far as I am aware and I have only seen the normal. Should catalog about twenty-five cents as quite a number were issued.

Rahway, N. J., came out in U-13 and I have only seen it inverted. Would consider it worth fifty cents in this position and would willingly contribute another fifty for a normal. Should be more common as Merck and Co. has its main plant at Rahway and does a considerable mail business.

Passaic came out recently in a type similar to U-22. They are presumably not so scarce but should bring about twenty-five cents. Have only seen it normal so far.

Little Silver, N. J., comes both normal and inverted in U-17 and is a very attractive stamp. I would catalog it at thirty cents for the normal and thirty-five for the invert.

Elizabeth has come out recently in the current seriffed type similar to U-18. Presumably they come both normal and inverted, as judging from the other values the plates were badly scrambled when the precancelling was done. Have only seen a normal and would catalog it at twenty-five cents. Most copies come punched initials.

Madison, N. J., is out in a type similar to U-22 though having bars at the top and bottom instead of lines. Have heard of a normal but have not seen it so far. It probably will not be very common.

This sums up the precancel history of New Jersey as far as I know it. I would appreciate greatly hearing from collectors having items other than those mentioned, because I would like to have the list as complete as possible.—Precancel Gazette.

JAMAICAN CHILD WELFARE, 1923.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

The Child Saving League of Jamaica was organized on November 16, 1916, its object being to seek child welfare and to take all steps necessary for securing the attainment of this end. There are four centers of the work in Kingston, besides the creche (in the old Court House building on West Parade), where mothers can receive advice about the care of their children. Children are there cared for and fed by a trained nurse, from 6 a. m. to 8 p. m., at a fee of 2d per day. The League is supported by voluntary contributions. In 1918 and 1919 the Mayor and Council of Kingston granted £50 towards the support of the League's work, and a further £100 in 1920. The Government provides two nurses for the work, permits the purchase of drugs from the medical stores, and grants the use of the rooms for the creche. His Excellency the Governor, Sir Leslie Probyn, K. C. M. G., is Patron; Lady Probyn, Patroness; His Worship the Mayor of Kingston, President, and Mrs. E. F. Latreille, Secretary.

A committee appointed by the Governor to consider and make recommendations for the solution of the child welfare problem, reported in May, 1922, that the problem called urgently for a solution, and that it should "receive the immediate and careful attention of the Government and Legislature."

For some years past the postal authorities of Switzerland have in each December issued a special series of Pro Juventute ("literally, for the children") stamps, which are used to prepay postage on both inland and international matter—each stamp being sold at 5 centimes over face value, and the extra charge devoted to the funds of the various Children's Welfare Societies in that country. These Pro Juventute stamps are issued in each year on 1st December, and remain on sale until the 30th of April of the following year.

Inspired by an article in the London Morning Post, relating to and describing the designs of the 1921 series of Pro Juventute stamps (which consisted of three values, 10c, 20c and 40c) H. E., the Governor of Jamaica, wrote to the Secretary of State for the Colonies (Mr. Winston S. Churchill), in February, 1922, asking if he would approve of such an issue being made by the Jamaican government in aid of the Child Welfare work in that island, not so much that the financial assistance would be large, but having regard to the educative value with respect to the importance of the reform.

Although the Postmasters General of Great Britain have alway deprecated the issue of special varieties of postage stamps not demanded by the requirements of the postal service, there is no specific objection to the issue of special stamps for Child Welfare, commemorative, or other purposes. In April, 1922, Mr. Churchill replied that having regard to the object in view, he did not wish to withhold his approval if the Governor thought it desirable to proceed with the proposal.

Immediately, action was taken by the island authorities, and Mr. Frank Cundall, F. S. A., Secretary and Librarian of the Institute of Jamaica, Kingston (responsible for the designs of the majority of the current Jamaican pictorials) was asked to prepare designs for these special stamps, which were to be in three denominations, ½d, 1½d (inland and Empire letter rate), and 2½d (foreign letter rate). They were to be sold during the months of November, December and January of each year, at a premium of ½d over face, and the overage handed over to the Child Saving League.

In July, 1922, the Jamaica Philatelic Society, of which Lady Probyn is Honorary President, was requested through its Secretary (Mr. H. Cooke) to collaborate with Mr. Cundall in selecting the designs.

The essays which Mr. Cundall completed in July, called for stamps in two colors, the centers (representing types of native children) being in sepia. The frame design was identical for all three values—"JAMAICA" at the top, with the value in the upper corners, and "Child Welfare" at the foot; at either side a staff with entwined serpents, symbolical of health—resembling the Caduceus of Hermes, but lacking the wings at the top. These essays were sent to the Crown Agents in August.

Subsequently, several designs were prepared by the Jamaica Philatelic Society, and submitted to the Colonial Secretary, Col. H. Bryan. One of these (½d) pictured a child's head, with the sun rising in the background, and coconut palms at the side; another (1d) depicted a Life Belt, lettered "Child Welfare," enclosing a child's head; and a third (1½d) an angel ministering to two children.

H. F. COLMAN
SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

As it was found impossible to have the dies and plates made, and the stamps printed in readiness for issue on November 1, 1922, it was suggested that three values of the current pictorial series be overprinted "For Child Welfare—½d—1922", but this was not viewed with favor by the authorities, and in October the Crown Agents were cabled to suspend work, and the issue was deferred for a year.

The first printed word of the intention to issue these stamps appeared in the Philatelic Magazine of September 9, 1922, and of the scheme, Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular, October number, had the following to say:—

"We are very surprised to learn from the Philatelic Magazine that the Jamaica Philatelic Society is collaborating in the choice of designs, etc. We had occasion to compliment this go-ahead society in a recent issue on the good work which it has accomplished during the past year, but such action as is now hinted at is the opposite of what we should expect of a society which had the best interests of our hobby at heart.

We have every sympathy for schemes for child welfare, but not philatelically camouflaged in this fashion, and, if our contemporary's information is correct, we think it is a pity that Jamaican collectors are allowing their local patriotism to outweigh their duty to philately as a worldwide pursuit. If we had our way we would ban every charity stamp from the catalogue, and we think our Jamaican friends would agree with us concerning every charity stamp but their own. It's the way of the world."

This brought forth a letter from the Secretary of the Jamaica Philatelic Society, defending the Society's position in the matter, and the gist of his remarks was printed in the December issue of the Monthly Circular.

"We are glad to learn from Mr. H. Cooke that we were misinformed when we stated that the Jamaica Philatelic Society was regarding the new Child Welfare issue favorably. On the contrary, the Society was not consulted as regards the original scheme, and both the President (Mr. Geoffrey C. Gunter), and our informant (the Hon. Secretary) share our dislike of unnecessary issues. The extent of the Society's participation had been to submit suggestions for designs after the issue had been definitely decided on, and this was done to avoid crudity of design being added to the other objections with which such an issue will be met in philatelic circles.

We are very glad to be able to rectify our previous statement, and to do justice to the Society which has done so much for the hobby."

The Crown Agents in their advice of new issues and printings for the quarter ending June 30th, 1923, notified that special stamps were being prepared in support of the Child Welfare scheme; in three values, ½d green and black, 1½d orange and black, and 2½d blue and black, from steel engraved plates, the vignettes, in black, picturing types of native children. Further, that the stamps "will not be obtainable direct from the Crown Agents' office."

The stamps were received in Kingston about the middle of July, and on the 26th of that month the Secretary of the Child Saving League was officially informed that "it has been decided to issue a special series of Postage Stamps of the lower denominations, to be sold locally during the months of November, December and January of each year, for the benefit of the Child Welfare Scheme, and that it has also been decided that the net profits derived from the sale of these stamps shall be handed over to the Child Saving League. And further that "you will be informed when the stamps will be put on sale."

On August 2, 1923, the inland letter rate (raised from 1d to 1½d on April 1, 1916) was reduced to 1d, and post cards (from 1d) to ½d. Instructions accordingly were given to the Crown Agents to prepare 1d Child Welfare stamps to replace those of the 1½d value.

In December, 1915, Red Cross labels, sold at ½d each, were issued in Jamaica, typeset and produced locally, and while without postal value, they were requisitioned from the G. P. O., Kingston, sold by the postal clerks (who received a small commission) in all post-offices, and accounting rendered the same as for postage stamps.

The design, contained within a plain rule border, consisted of a Geneva Cross, in the lower part of the label, and the representation of an aeroplane at the top, above some clouds, all printed in red. It is also known in brown. In January, 1916, "JAMAICA" was added in black across the center (through error some few sheets were overprinted in red, and in March surcharged "Half-penny" in black at the bottom. These labels were sold in booklets of 12 (2 small sheets of 6 labels, 6d) and 24 (1s), and sheets of 100.

The amount realized from the sale of these labels was divided among the British Red Cross Society, the Jamaica Aeroplane Fund, and the fund for the Relief of the Polish Jews.

During the war many petitions were made to the Government that special postage stamps be issued, in aid of the funds being raised for various war charities, one (in October, 1918) was that the 1½d George stamp be overprinted with the Geneva Cross and 2½d the extra 1d to be handed over to the Red Cross Society.

In October and November of the same

XMAS PACKETS
Of Old United States Postage

From the large accumulations we hold of 19th Century U. S. stamps, we have made up the following packets. They appeal particularly to those whose albums show many blank spaces in the issues before 1890.

50 Varieties Old U. S. for $3.50

Every U. S. issue from 1851 to 1887 is represented in this packet. It is not only the common varieties, but many hard ones such as the 1c and 10c stamps of 1857 and the 7c stamps of 1871 and 1873. All stamps are in good condition, many of them really fine. If you wish the Bank Note issues classified and mounted on slips, please add 50c. Registration 10c extra.

25 Varieties Before 1880 for $1.00

Similar in character to the above, but without the higher priced varieties mentioned above, as none of the stamps catalog higher than 35c each. A very good buy for those who need the commoner stamps of the early issues. Postage and registration extra.

Sets of Cancellations

For those newly interested in the collecting of cancellations on 19th Century issues, the following lots make good starters:

20 varieties on the 3c 1861	Price $1.00
15 varieties on the 3c 1870-79	.75
15 varieties on the 2c No. 210	.50
5 varieties on 2c Vermilion	.25

"2.—I am to add that the Secretary of State for the Colonies has pointed out that without special authority under the Geneva Convention Act 1911, the Red Cross emblem cannot be employed for imprinting stamps, and has brought to the attention of Colonial Governments that the concession under which certain cases where this imprinting had already occurred, were subsequently authorised, should not be regarded as a precedent should proposals similar to that now made be put forward.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,

No better success attended the proposal put forth in the reply to this letter, that the remaining stock of the 2s Queen Victoria, be reduced by surcharge to 1½d, and additionally overprinted "WAR CHARITY."

"November 27th, 1918.

HON. ROBT. JOHNSTONE, I.S.O., C.M.G.,
Acting Colonial Secretary,
Jamaica.

Sir,—

I have the honour to acknowledge with thanks, receipt of your letter of the 14th inst., replying to my suggestion with reference to a special issue of Jamaica stamps for the purpose of increasing the funds on behalf of the Red Cross.

I regret to note that His Excellency for the reason given cannot see his way to adopt the proposal I made in this connection, but as the different War Charities for which special appeals are now being made to His Excellency are very much in need of funds, I must take this as my excuse for making a further suggestion in connection with the raising of funds by a special issue of postage stamps.

I therefore beg to suggest that, as a large supply of the 2s King George postage stamp is now in the vaults of the Colony, that they be issued at once and the existing balance of the 2s Queen Victoria stamp be overprinted, as per sample enclosed, and sold at 3d each, and made available for the 1½d postage rate, the extra 1½d to be divided among the various War Charities.

If the stock of 2s Queen's head stamps is insufficient for the raising of a substantal sum under this proposal, it may be possible for the Post Office Department to similarly overprint a fixed quantity of the 4d, 6d and 1s stamps, according to the stocks now on hand.

I have the honour to be, Sir, etc., etc."

"Colonial Secretary's Office,
JAMAICA, 6th December, 1918.

Sir,—

I am directed by the Governor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 27th ulto., suggesting that the two shillings King George postage stamp now in the Island be issued at once, and the balance of the two shillings Queen Victoria stamp be overprinted with the words WAR CHARITY, and sold at 3d each, and made available for the 1½d postage rate, the extra 1½d to be divided among the various War Charities.

"2.—In reply I am to inform you that His Excellency is not prepared to consider your suggestion and that it is not proposed to raise funds for the several War Charities by means of a special issue of Postage Stamps.

"I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
Sgd. H. L. LATREILLE, for Acting Colonial Secretary."

While it may be said that stamps in aid of charity are not necessary from the point of postal requirements, this work is dependent more or less on the generosity of the public, and every effort to assist these funds is deserving of support. Large amounts are given in cash, etc., but the issue of special postage stamps opens up another source of revenue which is not touched in the ordinary way, and in addition, there is the great advertising value of such issues which cannot be over-estimated.

EARLY BRITISH COLONIALS

I am dispersing two large collections, strong in the early types and all stamps in fine condition. Prices average MORE THAN HALF CATALOGUE.

Also in stock a choice lot of EDWARDIAN & GEORGIAN, both MINT and SUPERB USED. These are mostly priced at half catalogue.

Selections on approval.

Want Lists. A Specialised Service

For years I have made a specialty of the execution of Want Lists. Few firms in this country have developed this side of the business to the same extent.

Owing to the great increase in my American business, I have now established a WANTS REGISTER on the basis of Scott's catalogue. Collectors may therefore send me their full want lists and be confident that they will not be side tracked and that they will receive constant attention. Selections will be sent on approval at regular intervals.

I sell stamps in Fine Condition only. My prices average half catalogue, and will bear comparison with any market in the world. I have, at the moment, nothing to offer in old U. S., but have an immense stock of British and French Colonials, Europeans, Asiatics, Africans and South Americans. I stock no common stamps and New European rubbish. [tf

JAS. L. CLARK.

By Cristopher West.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Apr. 17, 1873.
First issued, June, 1873.
Last issued, Apr. 2, 1883.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
56,218,758 issued on silk paper.
216,084,241 issued on pink and watermarked paper.

This stamp was made by altering the 1c denomination of the Park City Match Co., by changing the firm name and address in the upper part of the stamp to read "Jas. L. Clark,—Oshkosh, Wis." and adding the words "Star" at the left and "Matches" at the right in small capital letters in the ends of the oval containing the eagle.

The enormous output of this factory represented a tax of about two and a half million dollars in ten years, or an average of nearly a quarter of a million dollars a year and the number of stamps issued was exceeded only by the Barber Match Company; by the Swift-Courtney-Beecher factories and by the Star of Portland.

But little is known of the early history of this factory. From and after 1876, if not before that date, it was located at the northeast corner of Pearl and Osceola Streets in Oshkosh, which is now a city of about 35,000 people, on the west shore of Lake Winnebago. For many years Oshkosh was a large lumber center. About 1881 the factory was acquired by the Diamond Match Company and was operated by that concern as late as 1889. The Wisconsin State Gazetteer for 1882 lists the Diamond Match Co. at the address formerly occupied by the Clark factory and the manager is given as Mr. George W. Gates, who is one of the three sons of William Gates, of Frankfort, New York. In the same Gazetteer Jas. L. Clark & Son (Herbert M. Clark) are listed as carriage manufacturers at 155 to 167 High Street. The reference also states that the firm had factories at Chicago, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and at 22 Lincoln Square, Worcester, Mass., the main office being at Oshkosh.

The Gazetteers for 1886 and 1888-89 list Jas. L. Clark as a wagon-maker, or carriage manufacturer, at 521 High Street, Oshkosh.

The total of over 272,000,000 stamps used by the Clark factory would have required twenty-five plates, provided each plate lasted until 50,000 impressions had been taken. But as there is no record of the number of plates, and 50,000 impressions seems a rather high estimate for each plate, the number of plates probably exceeded twenty-five.

The first plates were made by Jos. R. Carpenter in Philadelphia and the early printings on silk paper were made in that city. Later it is probable there were additional plates made by the National Bank Note Company and possibly by the American Bank Note Company in New York and by the Bureau in Washington. Some of the copies on silk paper and all of those on pink paper are National prints, but it is very seldom that the National, American or Bureau prints on watermarked paper can be distinguished from each other. Despite the enormous quantity issued very few specimens have been found which bear imprints. The writer has noted the first National Bank Note imprint on watermarked paper and a few copies showing the Bureau pane line, and what appears to be the second Bureau imprint. These latter, of course, are also on watermarked paper and the green is a dark blackish shade, quite unlike most of the Philadelphia and New York printings. However, a similar shade does exist on silk paper, but the specimens on silk paper are usually a medium green, or else a decided yellowish green. When there are such large quantities of a stamp printed over a period of ten years, it is natural to expect considerable variation in shade.

The stamp is not known to have been used in multiple and pairs and larger multiples are very scarce. The w marked variety is one of the commo match stamps and yet one might s years trying to find a block.

The rouletted variety was made a Bureau and is a rare stamp. Faked lettes are too frequently seen, but genuine can nearly always be tol careful study.

The variety on silk paper was q at 2c to 5c until 1922, when it was r to 10c, because so few of the ava copies were really fine. The pink gradually increased from 20c in 18 50c in 1898 and has been unchanged 40c since 1900. Many of the copies in collections are in very good cond The watermarked paper was quot 2c up to 1901 when it was changed and so remained until 1906. In year there was an error in makin the catalog and a "7" was placed in of the 5 making the price on this common stamp 75c. This was not rected until 1922, when the price reduced to 10c. In the present m a dime is ample to pay for a good The rouletted stamp has always scarce. Sterling quoted it at $5. 1888, while the Scott quotations 1894 to 1896, $8.00; 1898 to 1907, $1 1909 to 1922, $17.50. The latter q tion is quite nominal because a which is not wholly satisfactory v probably fetch far less, while ar ceptionally attractive specimen bring even more.

—E. T. Nelson, 5956 S. Sangamon St., Chicago, Ill., has favored us with a copy of his October 20 pricelist. Many low priced stamps are listed.

—The annual dinner of the Collectors Club, New York City, will be held on the evening of December 8th, at the Great Northern Hotel, 118 West 57th Street, New York City. It is planned by Emil M. Sperling, chairman of the Dinner Committee to make the dinner one of the most enjoyable ever held by the club and when it is remembered that this is the 27th annual dinner, the ambition becomes no mean one. Tickets are five dollars each and members may bring guests.

—In sending in a clipping telling of the acquisition by the British museum of the "champion flea collection" as a bequest from the late Nathaniel Rothschild, Mr. C. F. Adams asks if it is not better to hunt stamps than fleas.

—A visit recently to Henry N. Mudge, ex-president of the American Philatelic Society, disclosed the fact that Mr. Mudge is still confined to his home as a result of the serious accident sustained by him when he was struck by an automobile about six months ago. Mr. Mudge is able to make some progress about his room and is hopeful that the use of his fractured leg will soon return, Philatelic friends are welcome to call on Mr. Mudge at his residence, 7620 Lowe Avenue, Chicago.

—Mr. C. J. Rose says that he is entitled to the prize of a fur-lined bath-tub by reporting that a registered letter from Germany received by him had stamps amounting to 3,992,000,000 marks on it. We have heard of postal cards with 3,000,000,000 marks in postage; and we are waiting for the trillions.

—Our shut-in friend, Mr. Geo. Kump of Xenia, Ohio, sends us a batch of interesting clippings, one of which says that "the boom in stamp collecting continues and today the number of people who collect the little revenue raisers is believed to exceed that of all other collectors together." That is all right with us.

—According to the Associated Press, Capt. Roald Amundsen, Christiania, Norway, is hopeful of raising funds to defray the expense of his airplane expedition to the north pole next July by the issue of a special set of Norwegian stamps. With the co-operation of the postal authorities he thinks that a good part of the funds could be raised in this way, with hardship on no one. We suppose that the good-natured stamp collectors will not object to the plan even though they will have to pay some of the freight.

—While we took a chemical course, we fight shy of making recommendations as to the use of watermark detectors, preferring to let others speak. Consequently, the following letter from Mr. H. G. Rogers of St. John, New Brunswick, is passed on to the chemical profs. "On page 328 in the issue of June 23rd, there was an article on Carbon Tetrachloride. Do you know if this is the same as the liquid put up in little four ounce bottles and known as Carbona? I note that the material referred to in the article sells for 40c a pint and am inclined to think that Carbona and Carbon Tetrachloride are the same thing. I regret to say that the ink has run in some of my red Bermuda stamps. One of my friends suggested gasoline but it was far too greasy. I tried benzine but it, too, was greasy, as probably it was mixed with gasoline before I got it; and the odor compelled others to leave the room. There is little or no odor to Carbona but it is very volatile and evaporates quickly. I would appreciate it if you would furnish me with some information as to what is best to use as it is impossible without using some liquid in the black detector plates to determine in many cases the watermarks that appear, principally on British and Colonial stamps."

—The new Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal has been coming to us for several months and we are much pleased with it. To those of us who revered the old Monthly Journal, its revival is especially welcome and we are sure that as time goes on it will well take the place of the departed leader.

—Mr. E. C. Bailey, Decorah, Iowa, sends the following from the WEEKLY as a prelude to his story:

"An old-time collector says that when he was a boy before the Civil War, one of the stock jokes that circulated through the press was that which told of a farmer (out in Iowa) who asked a postmaster if he could not sell the stamps at a reduction if he bought three or four. The postmaster said that he could not because the government now punched holes around the stamps for the convenience of the people and that the cost of stamps had gone up in consequence. The explanation satisfied the bargainer. While there may have been many jokes having a stamp suggestion that went the rounds in the early days, we think that the palm in this connection must be given to that classic, written by the cautious sender of the letter, under the stamp: 'Paid if the damned thing sticks'."

Quoting Mr. Bailey: "Here is a real story that happened at Freeport, Iowa, C. B. Christian was an early-day storekeeper and 'Nasby' at Freeport, and when the postal card first came out he secured a stock. Shortly thereafter one of the patrons of the store came in to buy a card and asked how much it would be. 'Well,' said Mr. Christian, 'I s'pose I have got to have a little profit on it so it will be five cents.' About that time the prospective purchaser woke up. The incident resulted in a conversation with the postmaster at Decorah, the county seat, and Mr. Christian was informed that he could not make a profit on Uncle Sam's goods."

OCEAN - TO - OCEAN COVERS

An Announcement of Unusual Importance.

The airplane four days (Aug. 21-24) transcontinental flights between New York and San Francisco marked a new era in the history of aviation and philately, for, in whizzing across the continent through 2680 miles of space between the Atlantic and Pacific in a little over 26 hours, a postage stamp has been shot from ocean to ocean at a speed beyond the dreams of a generation ago. Of these first day covers there are but comparatively few in existence, and naturally they will be much sought after and prized as time goes by.

At the moment have from one to several of each of the following (Scott 551-571), either from S. F. to N. Y. or N. Y. to S. F., at following prices:—

1 or 2 (both imperf. or perf. in blks.), 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 14, 15, 20, 25 or 50c on cover, your choice, each $7.50

One, two and five dollar on cover, each, face plus $7.50

Complete set (23 covers) going one way, $160; both ways (46 covers) $300.00

AIRMAIL STAMP COVERS—N. Y. to S. F. or S. F. to N. Y. 8c blks., 16c pairs, each $10. 24c, each $15. Three covers going one way, $30; both ways $55.00

All covers have both sending and receiving postmarks. The 24c has N. Y. Aug. 22, or S. F. Aug. 24. All others have sending postmarks of Aug. 21 for both N. Y. and S. F. Have also blocks and larger pieces of some of above denomination first day ocean-to-ocean covers. Serious correspondence invited. [17-21-25&c GOSSIP OF THE MONTH.

By Cornelius Wrinkle.

The J. P. S. continues to grow apace. I see Mrs. H. P. Terry gives the number of new recruits, this season, as 333 up to the issue of the October Stamp Lover. And the meetings are as popular as ever and as crowded. The meeting this Saturday (November 3rd) is to have the opportunity of seeing how a well-known business magnate, with little leisure to spare, uses that little to good advantage in the quiet pursuit of "King's heads." Mr. W. E. Catesby, J. P., is the exhibitor for this occasion Later in the month the Rev. Basil Reed is due to lecture to the J. P. S. with lantern slides on "Politics and Philately." This will be an open meeting, and if you have a friend whom you would like to impress with the interest there is in stamps, bring him—or her—along to the Caxton Hall, Westminster, on Friday, November 16th, at 8 p. m.

Malaya Borneo Exhibition.—Mr. Herbert C. Sells, Postmaster-General of the Straits Settlements, in his annual report for 1922, states that: "During the period of the Malaya-Borneo Exhibition, a supply of Straits Settlements postage stamps (1c, 2c, 4c, 5c, 8c, 10c, 25c, 45c, 1 dol, 2 dols and 5 dols) were overprinted 'Malaya Borneo Exhibition,' and placed on sale for postal purposes at all post-offices in the Colony. The sum realised by the sale of these stamps was 45,899.22 dollars, of which the Post Office received three-fifths and the Exhibition Funds two-fifths."

History in Postage Stamps.—Among the interesting novelties which should be arriving during the present month are the Fascisti stamps from Italy and the new "Penny Universal Postage" stamp of New Zealand. Thus history, political and social, is writ upon the pages of our albums. There comes an issue from Turkey, too, showing General Harrington shaking hands with Kemal Pasha to mark our Peace with Turkey.

President Masaryk.—A philatelic celebrity has come to town in Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, and his visit has almost coincided with the anniversary of the Czechoslovak State of which he is the first President. He returns to London the head of a great country, whose independence he strove for from our hospitable metropolis, where Professor Masaryk was a King's College lecturer during the war. His portrait figures on a few of the stamps of Czechoslovakia, and it is interesting to recall that he is something of a stamp collector, his private collection being displayed at the recent philatelic exhibition at Brunn, to which the Professor gave his high patronage.

Passing of a Great Collection.—It was with very great regret that I learned a few weeks ago of the impending break-up of one of the most thoroughly specialized collections known. Baron Erik Leijonhufvud confided the news to me some little time back, but now it may be communicated to my readers, for very soon the catalogue—it is his celebrated Swedish collection that is concerned—will be in our hands. I can sympathise with the Baron when he says it is very painful to sell a collection which has been a labour of love during a great part of one's life-time.

Wheels of Trade.—The pathetic side is, however, not the only one. It would be an ill wind that did no one good, and although, if auctioned, the Swedish rarities in the Leijonhufvud collection may get widely scattered, so that no one shall bring such a wonderful lot together again, the dispersal of such collections keeps the wheels of trade in motion and gives opportunities to many other collectors to delve deeper into specialism.

Chance for Sweden's National Collection.—Let it not be thought, however, that the Baron is tired of stamps. He will continue in the less exacting pleasures of the general collector, and will spread his interests over the whole of Europe and the British Colonies. Meanwhile, I hope the Swedish Government may be stirred up to secure the pick of the Swedish collection to round off the very fine collection that has been got together in the Postal Museum at Stockholm. The authorities in Sweden are by no means negligent of this collection, and were Baron Leijonhufvud's competitors in the short sharp struggle at the Ferrary sale for the unique Swedish error 3 skilling-banco orange instead of green, which was knocked down to my friend for £705.

Auction Hazards.—Baron Leijonhufvud went himself to Paris to bid for that in June last year. Although unable to go personally to the sixth sale in April this year, he gave unlimited bids for certain items, but failed to secure them, as his agent misinterpreted the extent to which he was prepared to go for them. Thus he missed the extremely rare pair of the 20 óre vermilion, the "Tretio" error se tenant with the normal, which went for £411; only three such pairs are known. Another thing he missed in the same sale was the vertical pair of the 6 skilling-banco from the corner of a sheet—the only corner piece known—which was knocked down to a Swedish buyer for £96.

Eighth Ferrary Sale.—By the way, the Ferrary collection will pass another stage of its disintegration early this month. This will be the eighth sale, and covers three days—November 7th, 8th and 9th. The seven sales up to date have totalled 13,880,619 francs (including tax) to the French Government, or about £256,458 in English currency. The coming sale, although as extensive as the preceding ones, is not likely to produce such big figures. There is but little of the "big stuff," nothing quite in the same street with the British Guianas, Mauritius, Hawaiian and American rarities that have swelled the previous totals. But there are nevertheless some items of great interest. A fancy price is sure to be scored for the 9 kreuzer Baden, black on green, an error of which but three authentic copies are known.

Then there is the Westoby copy of the 2 reales blue error of Spain; a pair 6 reales + 2 reales blue se tenant was the big sensation of the fifth sale, fetching £2,400. Although not so strong in the heavy goods, there are nearly two hundred lots of Victoria, including some wonderful pieces which will bring some brisk competition from eminent collectors in England and America.

Billie Burke Stamps.—If Mr. Florenz Ziegfeld's offer is accepted by the Washington Postmaster-General (writes one of the newspaper gossipers), admirers of Miss Billie Burke who are not philatelists will be keen to get hold of the new United States 2 cent stamp. Mr. Ziegfeld, having heard from the United States Government has under consideration the question of advertising on stamps, telegraphed an offer to pay the cost of a thousand million 2 cent stamps provided his wife's photograph formed the main portion of the design. If Mr. Ziegfeld could persuade some of the new-born countries to accept such an offer, it would result in stamp collections becoming galleries of beauties

An Actress' Stamp—I can assure the writer of the foregoing paragraph that there is little likelihood of the United States giving pride of place to any living actress, however gifted or charming. But it would be no new thing for an actress to be pictured on a stamp, and no member of the theatrical profession ever got so fine and free an advertisement as Fraulein Anna Führing, whose stage representation of Germania so impressed the ex-Kaiser that he had her picture on all the pfennig stamps ot Germany from 1900 to 1921. No film actress of Hollywood has had such vast numbers of her pictures sold as Miss Führing's little stamp portraits.—Postage Stamp.

. O. Selianoff of San Francisco has ked up for the department a splendid rence list of postal workings. The part of his list follows:—

PART I.

LIMINARY CANCELLATIONS BEFORE GROUPING.

ostmarks.—On stampless covers. P. M and date. Cancelled in blue, red, magenta, orange, black, violet, ultramarine, green and pink. The scarcity of the different inks used runs as named in order, from blue the most common, to pink, the last named. The greatest varieties are to be found amongst the mail coming from the New England States. Fall River, Mass., used magenta, Falmouth, Mass., the green, Keene, N. H., the pink, etc.

rom the 74 towns which used P. M. Provisionals. As a sideline, collections of entire covers from the 74 United and Confederate States, Postmasters Provisional Towns, can be collected at a very small expense.

With Postmaster's name. Another interesting group. The same way may be said about Postmarks with the postmaster's name, county, etc.

Town and Year Dated Cancellations.—This branch is in much demand by the collector, and some are found to be very rare. Some very interesting collections can be made in odd Post Office names, as Barnstable, M. Central House, Cal. Freedom, Pa. Sugar Loaf, Pa. Suckasunny, N. J. Shaw, Ore. Half Day, Ill. Lone Tree, Iowa, Miss McNutt, Miss. Skookum Chuck, Wash. Terr. Bird-In-Hand, Pa. Homitos, Pulga, Piochos (Spanish for Bread-flea-lice). Gin, Pa. Whiskey, N. Y. Brandywine, Calif. Champagne, Ill. Rye, N. D. Rockbottom, Mass. A complete list of ladies and gentlemen's names, names of all U. S. Presidents, etc.

Manuscripts—or pen and ink canc. I consider a very instructive branch, although many look down upon pen cancellations as not having any value. To the contrary there are many valuable cancellations, showing the P. M. name, name of the P. O., etc. As reference for historical data and research they are most valuable. For instance, I once found about 30 covers from West Providence, R. I., all pen marked by the P. M. during a period of four years and not the slightest change in markings during all this time, the cancellation being the well-known $ mark. On the 3c, 1861, all the years from 1861-69 can be found pen cancelled as strokes from 1-9, the first and last being very hard to obtain. There are also crosses and other curious markings.

Paid.—Used on stampless covers and all issues of stamps as late as 1890. In many different types and numerals, 3, 5, 6, 10 being the most common. It also comes in circles of different dimensions. Paid, in circles between six horizontal lines, Boston, Mass. Paid in postmark, paid, in one line only, in circles, in squares, in round block, surrounded with small holes, rare. Paid in colorless block rare. Dedham, Mass., etc.

Paid All.—This was used at stations receiving foreign mail as, San Francisco, Boston, New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, etc.

U. S. Paid 6—This cancellation in red straight line. Mailed from Masonville, N. Y. Paid 6 to Stewartown, in black. Oakville on the reverse side in red.

U. S. on 5c N. Y., 1845.—Presumably a foreign canc. on U. S. mail sent abroad.

Stamps.—On 3c 1857.

Old Stamps not Accepted.—On 3c 1861.

Dont U. S. M.—On 3c 1871.

Supplementary Mail.—On 3c 1861, 2c 1862, 3c 1871, etc.

Used Up.—On covers 1866, 3c 1861.

Stamp Office, Boston.—In square frame, dark, violet cancellation. Postmarked Boston, 1896, in reddish violet.

To be Continued.—Our next installment will be on regular cancellations used by the Post Office Department.

J. L. RIEDEL COMMENDED.

Some weeks ago we published an article in the WEEKLY derogatory to the business integrity of J. L. Riedel, Nurnburg, Bavaria. Since that time we have come to the conclusion that we were unjust in the extreme criticism that we made of him. It is true that he used a testimonial that was unauthorized, and the WEEKLY in the future will not accept testimonials for use in advertising unless consent has been secured from the parties giving the same.

We have, however, received numerous letters from subscribers testifying to the quality of Mr. Riedel's goods and expressing satisfaction with their business relations. Under the circumstances we deem it proper to grant Mr. Riedel the use of our columns, believing that this action is in accord with our desire to do justice to him and his business dealings.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE "WEEKLY".

We have on hand a few bound volumes of the WEEKLY, and offer them for sale at very reasonable prices. The years in question are 1902, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909. The price of these books is $2 each and this price is extremely reasonable in view of the high cost of binding in these days. Just to show you what we can do in the way of a handsome, substantial sample volume of the WEEKLY we will send you the year 1907 for $1.50 plus the zone parcel post charges on three pounds. This offer is for immediate acceptance.

EDITORIAL.

No doubt many of our readers have received the latest circular sent out by the Philatelic Agency at Washington, but it will do no harm to copy the following paragraphs from it: "Note.—Due to the large number of requests for 2c Harding black imperforate stamps, the Department has receded from its former position not to issue the Harding stamps in imperforate form. In view of the fact that the number of these stamps offered for sale will be limited, the Philatelic Agency can not undertake to furnish collectors with all plate numbers, arrow blocks, or guide lines desired. However, to patrons who desire a full sheet of 400 stamps to enable them to obtain the blocks desired, full sheets will be furnished. In order to facilitate the work of the Agency, no orders for less than a block of 24 stamps or multiples thereof can be accepted for this variety." It is announced that as the Shanghai Agency has been abolished, the U. S. stamps surcharged Shanghai will not be furnished after December 1, 1923, when any remaining stock will be destroyed by the department.

A reader says that he sent in the following question as one suitable for the Inquiring Reporter to ask passers-by at a street-corner for the benefit of the Chicago Tribune. "Do you know that the government issues a two-dollar and a five-dollar postage stamp?" A prize is offered for each question accepted but our philatelic friend got nothing; and we agree with him that only a dunderhead would pass up a meaty query such as this one.

* * *

We have found an interesting statement in the press of 1868, saying that the use of postage stamps was to be discontinued and that stamped envelopes "of all sizes and rates of postage" were to be used in their place. It was said that the "old-fashioned postage stamp, once considered so great a convenience" had been voted a nuisance and that the department had determined to discourage its use. The stamps were often lost and sometimes were not placed on the letters. Evidently the plan for the radical departure mentioned did not mature and while it may have been discussed seriously, it was not adopted. However, it is known that for manifest reasons the post-office department always encouraged the use of stamped envelopes and that at different times it advised the public to use them in preference to postage stamps.

Another excellent number of the Collectors Club Philatelist, published quarterly by the Collectors Club, New York City, has reached us, and it is with a glow of satisfaction that we find that the splendid tone of the previous numbers published during the past two years by H. L. Lindquist has been maintained in it. Indeed, the diversity of interest carried by the contents of the present number makes it one of singular value, but it is not the intention to dwell upon Charles J. Phillips' exhaustive study of the first type of Chile or certain other articles. We do want, however, to direct attention to Prof. Chittenden's biography of John Walter Scott, which occupies sixteen pages of the number. Moreover, this contribution is the first of a series of five articles telling of the long and honorable career of the dean of American philatelists, that in effect will record the history of philately in America. We feel that a debt of gratitude is owed to John Brace Chittenden for acting upon the suggestion that has been so often made that a real biography of Mr. Scott should be prepared. Mr. Chittenden begins with the birth of J. W. Scott in 1845 and follows him through his early and domestic life and consequently the very beginnings of philately are described, Scott having sailed for America in July, 1863. The description of the early days of stamp collecting is of unusual interest for its readable qualities; and of its historical value there is no doubt. Suffice it to say here that Prof. Chittenden is a competent biographer who brings ability and experience to his task. The instalment is illustrated by fac-similes of old Scott publications, including the first page of number one of the American Journal of Philately, established in 1868. The editor of the Collectors Club Philatelist speaks of retiring from his position and if Mr. Lindquist insists upon being relieved of editorial honors, he may know that he has achieved an enviable place in American philatelic letters; and if he should be induced to change his mind, so much the better for all of us.

It may not be generally remembered that J. W. Scott issued a weekly edition of the American Journal of Philately beginning September 3, 1870, and in the issue the "brilliant parent" of the newcomer was described: "The Journal was originally published by the New York Philatelic Society, the first number being issued by that body, on the first of March, 1868. It then consisted of eight pages of reading matter, printed on fine-toned paper. The second number, issued 1st April, was printed on ordinary paper as well as the better quality, the better being only for the use of the society. There were four pages of advertisements added to help pay the expenses, which in time were increased to eight, but this, however, was not continued. At the end of the year the Journal was sold to the present publishers, who increased the reading matter to twelve pages and had it printed on the most expensive paper made, the type was also renewed, making it a first-class paper in every respect." The 1870 volume of the monthly American Journal of Philately, or Volume III, is a desirable one, as in the latter part of that year the magazine made a specialty of printing cuts of new issues in their original colors. There is an insert in the bound volume showing the 1870 set, one cent to ninety cents, inclusive, crossed with "speceimen" in very small letters and in the various numbers, other examples of U. S. adhesives and envelope stamps as well as foreign are to be found in the colors of issue. The 1870 volume particularly is in demand by collectors of literature.

A reader says: "I am glad that you give attention to practical problems concerning collecting and that you have pointed out the importance of getting a better market." Then he proceeds to say that he curbs his inclination to spend a large amount of money because he fears that when he sells his loss will be severe. At the same time he says that he has no intention of ever selling his stamps. Our correspondent has gone to an extreme and even if he did collect with the thought of selling, the more money that he spent for stamps, intelligently, the better the market prospects. The collection worth real money can readily be sold at auction, if in no other way, and it is only the lot of stamps that has no great value that is not to be marketed advantageously. Yet the stamp collector is favored in comparison with others. Recently we sold a lot of books some of which cost a pretty penny; and the dealer said that the price we insisted upon, fifty dollars, was a stiff one, though he finally gave it. Other "objects of collection" suffer a decided decline when it comes to selling them; and we should much rather take our chance with stamps than with almost anything else of the kind. Naturally, we want conditions to improve in order that even the ordinary lot of stamps will have something of a fixed value but that is not saying that the position of the small collector, so far as the value of his stamps is judged, is better than it would be if he collected something else.

EPITAPH OF A PHILATELIST.

By CHARLES G. WILSON.

Beneath this Stone
There lies the Body of
A. PHILATELIST
Who loved his Stamps more
Than aught else in life
And so loving Forgot himself
And thus
He won that elusive Substance
Termed Happiness
Which is beyond Price.

FIVE-YEAR RENEWAL CLUB.

Henry Monsel, Canby, Minn.
Dr. Louis C. LeRoy, 37 W. 53 St., w York City.

Not a week has passed during the last ree months but that we have received e or more new members into our nor club. The interest taken in the EEKLY and the loyalty shown by our bscribers have been most remarkable. is week we have two names to add our list of members and we shall be ry glad to receive further additions. the near future we shall publish a mplete roster of those who have taken mbership in the five-year renewal club.

In this connection we feel that due ntion should be made of the splendid -operation extended by W. Schwede, Seattle, Wash., who is responsible for teen subscriptions to the WEEKLY, the pers being sent him each week and tribution made to the parties interested.

Henry Monsel of Canby, Minn., mak- his remittance, informs us that he ds it impossible to be without the EEKLY.

Dr. LeRoy of New York City writes chatty letter in joining the club. We e the liberty of quoting:—

'I would be keen to enroll even though price of admission was $10, instead $5. You have two subscribers of the ne name as my own upon your mail- list. My father, who has been a der of the WEEKLY almost since its eption, is at eighty an ardent collector. began collecting around 1860, and interest has never flagged. Indeed, has many of the specimens that he quired at that time. Basing my exptations on my father's performance five years' subscription to MEKEEL'S, ich has served us so well, is but a all tribute of my appreciation."

Who will be the next applicant?

THE MILLION CONFUSION 350 VARIETIES BETTER THAN BEFORE $1.02
If we could take each one of our readers and show them, personally, the wonderful value we put into our famous "M. C.'s". If we could show YOU, and YOU, and YOU, and the rest of the Boys, how we get the new issues from the BANK MAIL and PUT THEM INTO THE "M. C." before they are even listed in the New Issue Dept. If we could make you believe that the "M. C." doesn't mean a "Money Coiner" for us, and a "Mighty Caution" to you. You may believe us or not, but it is the truth when we say that we consider the MILLION CONFUSION to be mighty good advertising. We have made hundreds of friends, and dozens of steady customers, by means of the former "M. C.'s" and for the sake of these friends and customers, we are almost forced to make THE MILLION CONFUSION better than any former "M. C.". There never has been such a bargain since the Year ONE!
New Issues, highest values, PROVISIONALS and lots of them. 350 Vars. of fine stamps, mostly current and recent issues postally used. There are some unused stamps, but not too many. Treat yourself to some real fun and add a lot of nice stamps to your collection. Order NOW, for we are going to change the "specifications" soon—you will want another THEN. Get in line, and join our happy company! JUST $1.02.

THE PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT

Edited by F. W. ALLEN,
312 Walnut St., Minneapolis, Minn.

Something very startling has happened in the precancel hobby. A careful survey of existing supplies of the Airplane, Victory and Pilgrim precancels, shows conclusively that there is a decided paucity of these items. Except for a few of the commoner varieties, duplicate holdings of any single varieties do not run on an average of over 5 copies. It is a true statement for me to make to say that there are a number of Victory and Airplane and Pilgrim precancels which are very, very scarce.

Mr. Howard S. Wheeler of Boston has amassed the choicest collection of these items in existence. He has nearly 1000 of the Victory, over 600 Airplanes, and nearly 1200 of the Pilgrim stamps. Each is a distinct variety. He is not attempting to collect pairs or blocks of the pieces, as yet. An interesting purchase of Mr. Wheeler's was the Nogales, Ariz., set. This set is, as far as is known, unique. Mr. Wheeler's purchase price of $25 has recently been termed by specialists on market values of precancels, as a very attractive investment.

Mr. W. Irving Glover, 3rd Assistant Postmaster General, who inspected Mr. Wheeler's collection during the convention at Washington, D. C., was much impressed with the beauty of his superb collection. He was especially impressed with the Nogales set and their scarcity, and considered $25 rather a low price for the only known set in existence. The prices of these three special series of stamps are bound to advance in rapid ratio during the next few years. It is not too late for collectors to build important sections in their collections of these stamps. Although it is questioned whether Mr. Wheeler's collection can ever be duplicated, it is very possible to make respectable showing of these stamps, if activities are commenced at once. A few years hence this opportunity will be a thing of the past.

Precancels have been termed a branch of U. S. collecting. It is a concise and accurate way of describing the hobby. Precancels after all are U. S. postage stamps; they are collected as U. S. postage except that they have an added attraction in the uniform way that cancellation of city and state is printed on the stamp.

The precancel issues are rather numerous. Activity, therefore, is often limited to a collector's own State, or group of States in the near vicinity, Some very important collections of States are being built up; some examples are: Michigan, which is being specialized by Brigadier General C. A. Coolidge; Colorado, by Dr. H. A. Davis; New York, by D. D. Berolzheimer; Nebraska. by J. L. Parker and John C. Kringel; Minnesota, by J. A. Nordquist; Arkansas, by Gratis Comstock; Ohio, by Paul Matthias and Indiana, by B. Gordon Bushnell.

Another interesting development is the collecting of pairs and blocks of precancels. It was not so many years ago that collectors of ordinary U. S. postage stamps were wont to sever their pairs and blocks into singles, and dispose of their extra copies as duplicates. Precancel collectors have profited by this destructive habit and are carefully saving today all pairs, strips and blocks of precancels as they acquire them.

Pairs, strips and blocks have a special value in certain precancellations, since very often two distinct types, a normal copy and an oddity, or spacing varieties, will exist in the same sheet of stamps. Chicago, Ill., and Philadelphia, Pa., are examples of spacing variety, Waterloo, Iowa and Dallas, Texas, are examples of cities having two distinct types on a sheet. Also Federalsburg, Md., should be mentioned; Utica, N. Y., has an interesting half-moon oddity; Gaston, Ind., has an error "Caston" which occurs once in every 25; Baltimore, a spelling BALTIMOER; Chicago, an error on the Sears-Roebuck roller, CHIACGO. There are quite a few others which space does not permit me to mention. However I can make no safer prophecy than to say, that as the hobby develops, more and more attention will be given to pairs and blocks. Pairs and strips of coil precancels are already commanding a premium.

Precancelled plate numbers that can now be picked up for a song will in a few years bring good prices. Several collectors are even getting down to watermarks. It remains to be seen whether or not there will be much activity along this line. Early bar precancelled issues have been thoughtfully studied for several years by Mr. Roy C. Frank, Sales Mgr. of Rotnem Stamp Co.'s Precancel Department, and he states that he has them well in hand. These will be correctly listed and priced in the next catalogue.

A printed album for precancels is out of the question at present, but a good blank album will suit one satisfactorily if a little thought is given to arrangement.

The precancel hobby is booming as never before and the effects will be permanent, on account of the room for specialization, the opportunity for investment and the source for pleasure. It is educating and interesting. Begin a collection of your city, state or country today. Any reader who desires information is invited to write and I shall take pleasure in sending free of charge all available material dealing with the hobby.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

To the Editor:

Score another for the American Standard Catalogue, which many pseudo-specialists delight to knock! In the first number of their new Monthly Journal, the famous English house of Stanley Gibbons Ltd. announce their complete surrender to those who want to include all sorts of junk in the catalogue and their abandonment of all the principles they have set up since 1914, to keep junk out as far as possible. Hereafter "everything goes," if it can get any kind of an official O. K. and the next "Gibbons" will contain the notorious "Malay-Borneo" junk, et al.

Contrast this humiliating surrender of their prerogative as makers of a reliable catalogue with the dignified position of the Scott Co. as indicated by such footnotes as those after Costa Rica No. 111, New Zealand No. 120, North Borneo No. 156, Straits Settlements No. 199, et. al. If the Gibbons firm would only continue to back up the Scott position, much good might be accomplished, but all we can hope for now is that the Scott Co. will not feel that they too must recede from their advanced and admirable position. May they have grace and strength to stick to it.

The 2c rotary design of 1923, perforated 11, from the coil waste, was found in small quantities in New York some weeks back and for a while it looked as if the stamp would be rare. I am now able to offer the variety at 25c a block in fine mint condition. The same issue 1c and 2c, rotary, perf. 11x10, at 25c for the two blocks. Also the 1c rotary 10x10, from the sheet at 10c per block.

UNITED STATES.—On Thursday, November 15th, the 2c black Harding Memorial Stamp in an imperforate condition, in sheets of four hundred was placed on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency in Washington. Printings from four plates were to be had, namely 15019, 15025, 15027 and 15028. The Washington papers carried press notices regarding the stamp which they designated as a "Solid" variety.

Mr. Paul E. Bryant sends me a block of the 2c Harding stamp perf. 11, folded previous to being printed from sheet 14994.

Mr. F. R. Demmerly kindly sends a cover from Indianapolis posted with a 2c Harding, imperforate, mailed from his city on November 16th, the first day possible. These imperfs., by the way, are from the flat bed presses and the variety from the rotary press will not be issued in this condition. The Department will not issue a Harding coil so there will be no compound perforations. It is thought that the Bureau will shortly complete their orders totalling 1,600,000,000 of this stamp, and that when these are ready no more will be printed.

Mr. R. H. Mower sends for inspection a very fine horizontal pair of the 4c Omaha showing a distinct vertical stitch watermark.

The Post Office has received a considerable number of complaints regarding the sheets from the rotary press, the complaint being mainly on account of the perforations, resulting in the stamps not separating readily. The Bureau has been experimenting, endeavoring to overcome this stiffness by slight changes in the paper and gum and it is thought that they will soon be in a position to perforate these stamps 11 instead of 10 as heretofore. When the hydraulic presses were used it was necessary to have the larger perforation to prevent the stamps tearing apart at the Bureau. Now that these are no longer used, it is thought that it will be possible to perforate these stamps the same gauge as the regular flat plate varieties. At the present time the only sheets being turned out by the rotary press are the 1c denomination, which is being precancelled at the same time. So far, 1c stamps have been precancelled for fifty-five cities and about ten more cities will follow. When a sufficient supply of the 1c is on hand. it is quite possible other denominations will follow.

Philadelphia has at last presented to the public a definite program to fittingly celebrate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence in 1926. At that time without extravagant cost or a burden, the city will present through its exhibition the progress of the nation for review, spread the inspiration of the Declaration, assemble the peoples of the world in friendly intercourse, strengthen the bonds of brotherhood and peace, and re-dedicate all to higher aspirations. It will endeavor to ring the Liberty Bell again in every human heart.

I understand that the proper committee is having a bill prepared to present to the next Congress for approval, covering the issuing of a series of postage stamps to advertise the Sesqui-Centennial Exhibition. At present it is thought that there will be three denominations, namely, a 1c green, 2c red and 5c blue with a bare possibility of a 10c orange. The designs which seem to appeal are, foremost the Liberty Bell; second, Independence Hall, and third, if it is possible to show it upon a stamp, the famous picture showing the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It will be recalled that this picture is illustrated on the 24c denomination of the series of 1869, but at that time the demands of the nation only ran to thousands, whereas the demand today runs into the millions. As a result they could do finer press work and much more could be shown on a stamp than is possible today.

Philippines.—On November 15th there was issued in Washington the 16c olive, showing portrait of Admiral Dewey, perforated 11 on unwatermarked paper. These stamps are printed in sheets of 200 and distributed in Post Office panes of 100. The stamps take the place of the former variety showing a portrait of Admiral Sampson. The Bureau of Insular Affairs arranged with the Philatelic Stamp Agent for the disposal of 10,000 of this variety. No other denominations are obtainable, nor will more be sold when these are distributed, unless of course further arrangements are made between the two interested parties.

BERMUDA.—The line-engraved ½d green, small "Ship" type, is on order on Script paper.—Stamp Collecting.

THE ARMY FRANK.

The U. S. "Army Frank" labels, rather attractively designed and printed after the model of the 30c stamp of 1869, are entirely bogus, the invention of a philatelist, Major Brewster Cox Kenyon, alias Kenyon Brewster Cox, whose philatelic record as disclosed in Filatelic Facts and Fallacies (Sept., 1898, Vol. VI, p. 140), should not be allowed to be forgotten. He was at the time Major and Paymaster United States Volunteers. The "Army Franks," printed in rose, brown and blue, appeared in 1898, and Mr. W. Sellschopp in a paper read before the Pacific Philatelic Society, printed in the journal mentioned, quotes replies repudiating the stamps from the Army Headquarters and the Post Office. The latter is sufficient to quote here.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.
Office of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.
Washington, D. C. September 15, 1898.

Sellschopp & Co., 108 Stockton St.,
San Francisco, Cal.

Sirs,—Yours of the 9th inst., submitting an "Army Frank" label, has been received. In reply, I have to say that this label is not official, nor has it received the sanction of this Department. It is not good for securing the free transmission of official matter.

The law requires that the free penalty envelopes, to be provided by the several Departments of the Government, and not after devices selected by individual officers, shall bear the name of the Department on whose business the envelopes are used, the office or bureau from which they emanate, together with the words "Official Business," and a statement of the penalty for their mis-use.

The label submitted by you, which was designed by Major Brewster C. Kenyon, does not conform to these requirements, and even if it did, the use of it would be objectionable, as army officers should use only such penalty envelopes or labels as the War Department authorizes or provides.—Respectfully yours,

JOHN A. MERRITT,
Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

The Weekly Philatelic Era, Dec. 26, 1903, states that an attempt was made to sell the "remainders" as "stamps" that had been sanctioned by the War and Post Office Department, though not an official issue.—Stamp Lover.

SQUEAKS FROM A STAMP HINGE.

By "M. T." DOME.

NEXT!

An all-year sport is old "Al" Bumm.
From Spring to Fall he blithely tramps
The links. When winter evenings come,
He spends 'em with his rare old stamps.

IS THAT SO?

Do you remember Doctor Bills?
Complained all day of aches and ills?
Last week Bills started to save stamps.
Now Bills forgets his chills and cramps.

SHAKE!

I'd like you to meet Mr. Ricker,
Phil Ricker—a regular guy.
No one can be slicker
Than Phil with a sticker,
Nor quicker to pick a fine "buy".

DIDJE EVER SELL 'IM?

There goes a man we all know well,
Who even hates to spend his time.
He's always "skinned", to hear him tell.
He wants a dollar for his dime!

CHRISTMAS BARGAIN SALE!

THE NEW YORKERS OF 1845.

We have a few nice copies of this interesting stamp at really fine prices. Don't miss out!

THE 1847 ISSUE!

No collection is complete without a copy of the 5 and 10 cent 1847 issue. They have no equal for investment purposes. The fives are $4.75 and up, and the 10 cent are $17.75 and up. Some of the prettiest copies you ever saw are waiting for you. Don't disappoint them!

ANOTHER RARE SET FOR YOU!

U. S. Surface print Die No. 1, imperforate, Scott's No. 436a, Type 4.

We have just three complete sets of the above, consisting of center block of four, the four arrow blocks of four and the four plate number blocks of four. This set brought $97.00 at the Springfield convention sale and we have never seen it advertised at less than $60.00. The price will go up soon, so hurry and get one of these superb sets at only $54.50

Only one to a customer, please.

Order Now and avoid disappointment.

A REAL BARGAIN for SOMEONE!

Good B. C.'s at One Sixth Catalog!

We offer a small collection of 300 stamps—mostly B. C.'s—which catalogs at $1550. The general condition is good. It contains such stamps as Br. Guiana No. 18, Cape Good Hope No. 5, Grenada No. 15, St. Vincent No. 25, Trinidad No. 37, Seychelles No. 9a, Mauritius No. 19, New Zealand No. 6, St. Lucia No. 14 and other equally scarce stamps. All nicely mounted. We are offering this at a wonderful price and the first certified check, draft or M. O. gets it for only $264.50

THREE NEW JAMAICA STAMPS.

We have just received from Herman Focke, a set of three Jamaica stamps, consisting of ½, 1 and 2½d values. The ½d and 1d values have pictures of a girl and boy respectively, while the 2½d value shows a boy and girl. The stamps are bi-colored in green and black, red and black, and blue and black, respectively. At the top of the stamp is the inscription "Jamaica" with value, while at the bottom is a tablet with the words "Child Welfare." We thank Mr. Focke for his courtesy and take the liberty of quoting from his letter:—

"As you will observe at the foot of the stamps, the issue is one for the children's welfare, in other words a charity set, each stamp being sold at the post-office at ½d over face value, and as the subjects on all three values are coloured kiddies, I presume that the funds thus derived will be used for the poor children of the Colony."

UNNECESSARY ISSUES.

The "Gibbons" Decision.

Our article on "The Function of the Catalogue Editor" (S.G.M.C., December, 1922), brought forth a mass of correspondence from collectors, and evoked considerable comment in the philatelic press. From these it is evident that there is considerable divergence of opinion as to the effect to be gained by the initiation of a catalogue boycott of "unnecessary" postage stamps.

While most of us are agreed that the unrestricted output of stamps, for which no postal necessity can be alleged, is likely to be detrimental to our hobby, there is evidently serious doubt in the minds of many as to whether any policy of boycott, however carefully it might be carried out by catalogue editors, would be of assistance towards the end in view, unless collectors were first unanimous that "unnecessary" issues should be suppressed.

The anti-boycott party very rightly maintain that the collector has a perfect right to collect what he chooses, and that the present well-understood basis of stamp catalogues is that any stamp issued for postal purposes by a recognised authority should be included. They argue that any change from this basis, in the direction of giving catalogue editors the right to include or exclude certain stamps or issues at their discretion, would give rise to much confusion and uncertainty in the minds of catalogue users, who, buying a catalogue with the object of gaining information concerning stamps which they know to have been legitimately (though perhaps unnecessarily) issued, might find that such stamps were omitted altogether.

Those who are in favour of a catalogue boycott welcome it on the ground that something ought to be done to make the issue of unnecessary stamps unprofitable to the governments concerned, and that a boycott would be a step in the right direction.

It is true that "he who pays the piper calls the tune" and it may be assumed that many collectors would resent the institution of a system of boycott, unless it could be established on such a logical basis as could be clearly defined and secure universal acceptance. If such a basis could be found, it would only mean that the field open to the stamp collector had once again been reduced in area, as it has been from time to time in the past by the gradual dropping of postal stationery, telegraph stamps, etc., from most catalogues. Unfortunately no such well-defined basis can be established in respect of the great majority of the issues known to be unnecessary for postal purposes, so that universal agreement on the part of collectors is impossible.

A boycott by one catalogue alone would only have the effect of turning the collector to other works which he would consider as more complete, while any agreement between the publishers of the leading catalogues is not likely to be effected.

We have, therefore, decided that, with the inclusion of ex-enemy war issues in the next edition of the Gibbons catalogue, the basis on which stamps are listed shall be that in force before the war, viz., the acceptance of any stamps issued by recognised authority and available for postal purposes. This will, of course, imply the admission of the "MALAYA-BORNEO" Commemoratives, which were boycotted in the current Part I Catalogue.

At the same time we are convinced that the issue of large numbers of unnecessary stamps year by year is not in the best interests of collectors, and we shall do all that lies in our power to combat them, both by warning collectors against them in the columns of this journal and by taking our part in such representations as may be made from time to time to the authorities concerned.

JUST A MATTER OF ETHICS.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 8, 1923.

To the Editor:—

I am writing you to tell you how several dealers tried to get a $500 collectio from me for only $40 and I want t show them up. Some weeks ago I hear of a woman in our city whose husban had just died and left her almost dest tute. Knowing she had a collection went to see it.

I found an old 1880 album with abo one thousand stamps, 1861-9 U. S. complete, 90c Justice, etc., and some goo Nova Scotias. I told her most deale sold 1,000 stamps all different for thr or four dollars, but as I was a collect I would give her $7 for the lot. Sh said her father who made the collectio had always declared that it was wort a good deal and $7 seemed very littl However, I knew she needed the mone so I held off and she finally sold it to m

When I got home I found I had ove $700 catalog value, a good bargain, wasn it? The next day I tried to sell the colle tion to a dealer for $400, but he told m so many of the stamps were damaged th he could use only thirty of them an for these he would give me one-ha catalog. He bought $170 list and ga me $85. Upon checking up his figures saw he had paid me $10 too much, b that, of course, was his lookout. Eve then he probably cheated me, as I notic that dealers pay full list for stamps the want.

Last Friday I showed the rest of th book to several dealers but the best offe I could get was $40, the excuse bein given that many of the stamps wer damaged and the perforations clippe Of course I told this dealer just what thought of him, trying to bunco me o of $500 catalog value on a $40 offer. have decided to keep this collection unt I can get an honest price. I know a bo near me who wants it and his father i rich, and so long as neither one of the knows much about stamps I guess can get them to buy it for Christmas.

I hope you will publish this letter an let the public know just how grasping th dealers are. Of course this doesn't appl to all dealers, but just those I happene to come in contact with.

Honest Collector.

Christmas

Yuletide! For ages immortal the time of unrestrained happiness and joy, when petty animosities are forgiven and forgotten, trials and tribulations cast aside; when all the world unites in that feeling of warm fellowship and understanding which makes life worth while.

The true Christmas spirit is a spirit of giving; of making our comrades happy with thoughtful remembrances, whether they be costly or intrinsical in actual value.

Those who are followers of the Great Hobby can spread happiness among their philatelic friends by making appropriate gifts of postage stamps. To the true stamp collector, there can be no greater thrill than the opening of a "stamp package" on Christmas morn. And the gift, by its very unusual, albeit appropriate, nature, is expressive of the thought and care of the giver.

With a desire to encourage and have a part in this worthy purpose, we announce special Christmas prices on attractive merchandise for the occasion. By reducing prices, we are naturally sacrificing a large part of our profits. We do this cheerfully, with the opinion that dollars and cents cannot be considered too seriously at such a time; and with the confident feeling that we will benefit ultimately.

When requested, we will send the gifts direct to the recipients with your card inside, attractively wrapped with Yuletide trimmings, a "Do Not Open 'Till Christmas" label on the outside, and mailed so it will arrive the day before Christmas.

Join with us in making someone happy with a "Stamp Christmas"!

3,000 ALL DIFFERENT STAMPS.—Covering a wide range of countries; many stamps cataloguing up to 10 cents each. A really fine collection worth double the price	$11.50	10.00
4,000 ALL DIFFERENT STAMPS. — Mounted alphabetically in four green books. Hundreds of nice British and French Colonies, excellent sets, etc. An unusually attractive assembling	22.50	19.50
5,000 ALL DIFFERENT STAMPS. — Mounted in five green books by countries. One of our best sellers, and as different from an ordinary "packet" as day from night. Hundreds of South and Central America, British, French and Portuguese Colonies, Africa, No. Borneo, Bosnia, Labuan, etc., including stamps cataloguing up to 50 cents each. Our low price can be doubly appreciated when we state that the catalogue value is about $200.00	35.50	29.50
6,000 VARIETIES.—Mounted same as above, similar composition, but the extra thousand stamps being all of much higher value, are well worth the additional price	43.59	37.50
8,000 VARIETIES. — A splendid representation from the entire world and an offering of which we are quite proud	90.00	75.00
10,000 VARIETIES.—"Chief of them all—it's Quality-Bilt". Without doubt the finest collection of its size ever offered by any concern, and should not be confused with an ordinary, every-day "packet". Of such unusual value that most of them are sold to dealers. Pikes Peak Stamp Co., of Colorado Springs, writes: "Greatly pleased with this collection and don't see how you can do it. Please book our order for one each month!" Every single stamp a distinct listed variety with revenues, telegraphs, unofficial issues and other worthless material eliminated. Contains stamps from the entire world, from South Africa to Siberia, some of which catalogue $1.00 each and over. Total catalogue value about $750.00. Quality considered, our price is the lowest ever quoted!	155.00	123.50
12,000 VARIETIES.—Mounted in twelve books. World wide in scope, "Quality-Bilt" in character. Stuart Horn, treasurer of a large Wilmington (Del.) bank, says: "Looked over the collection last night and want to thank you for the best lot of stamps I have ever seen for the money. The varieties are splendidly selected. I am indeed pleased!" It is unnecessary for us to say more, as the testimony of pleased buyers is the best proof of quality	235.00	195.00
15,000 VARIETIES.—The same high standard is maintained in this collection, and it is guaranteed to please in every respect	467.50	395.00
20,000 VARIETIES.—The Collection Supreme! Words cannot do justice to its aristocratic and thoroughbred appearance. It's easy enough to get together 20,000 stamps of a kind, including a lot of minor varieties and worthless material, but it is a different matter to obtain a collection of the same number of standard, recognized varieties, all in the pink of condition, and containing a number of the scarcer stamps cataloging up to $10.00 each. The collection is mounted in twenty books. All countries of the world are represented. 20th century and new issues are quite strong, but the older ones have by no means been neglected. Sold with the understanding that the purchaser may return the collection for a full refund, after making a rigid ten-day examination, if not more than pleased!	895.00	745.00
30,000 VARIETIES.—We really do not know how to describe on paper a collection of such magnificent proportions and extraordinary value. There are few collectors, indeed, who are ever able to boast of possessing 30,000 different stamps, and those who do will tell that it was the work of years, and the last eight or ten thousand stamps so hard to find that they were often tempted to give up in despair. The assembling of this collection was the work of months, and although we advertise them regularly, we are in reality able to supply only one or two each year. First order received will take the one now on hand. Our usual money-back guarantee protects you in every way	2,550.00	2,250.00

REMEMBER! All of the collections listed above contain standard varieties only—no duplicates, no damaged, no revenues, telegraphs, cut-squares; nothing but good clean postage stamps.

Mounted Collections

French Colonials only—no Memel, Saar or other wrongly classified stamps. One quality—the best. Prices special for two months only.

$4.50 500 French Colonies Formerly $5.50 $4.50

It's unnecessary for us to say much about the value of this collection, as hundreds of repeat orders from dealers and exchangers will bear striking testimony that the regular "Quality-Bilt" standard is maintained. Practically all of the colonies are represented, including a few early issues, provisionals, occupation stamps, etc. Mostly unused copies of fine, showy appearance and all in good condition.

Each Collection (reg. pr. $5.50), $4.50; 3 for $12.00

$17.50 1,000 French Colonies Formerly $20.50 $17.50

This is the same packet which is advertised by many other concerns at prices ranging from $27.50 to $40.00 net, and only the fortunate cash purchase of a large number enables us to pass on to our customers the advantage of such an extraordinarily low price. Nearly all of the stamps are in mint sets and every colony is represented, among them being such isolated countries as Cameroons, Canton, Diego Suarez, Grande Comore, Upper Volta, Tanger, Niger Territory, New Hebrides, Ubangui, Rouad, Sudan, Tchad, etc., etc. Without exception, one of the most attractive and popular collections we have ever had the privilege of offering.

Each Collection (reg. pr. $20.50),$17.50; 3 for $45.00

Was $235.00 Net	3,000 DIFFERENT FRANCE OCCUPATION ISSUES AND COLONIES NOW ONLY $201.50	Now $201.50 Net

This is probably the largest collection of its kind which has ever been carried by any concern, either here or abroad, and they are so difficult to assemble that we are unable to offer more than two or three each year. The mere number, "three thousand," does not appear very startling, but when it precedes the words, "France and Colonies"—scarce, much under-catalogued and everywhere in great demand—then will incredulous exclamations be forthcoming from every collector. For how many members of the Great Hobby are able to point with pride to well-filled pages of these hard-to-get Colonials? How many more have glanced ruefully at the many empty and unfilled spaces and very near despaired of ever filling them? We feel not only happy, but also very proud, to be able to present such an effective and altogether satisfactory solution to the great difficulty. We are positive that the future patronage of every pleased buyer, will more than repay us for our efforts and inconsequential monetary profit, in offering such a truly magnificent collection at an unusually low price which is well within the reach of any collector of moderate means.

We cannot undertake a detailed description of a collection of this size. It would take pages to do so. We can state, however, that everything is in fine condition and that the collection will fill, at one fell swoop, practically all of those annoying blank spaces with the medium-priced French Colonies you have been unable to obtain. Early issues, new issues, red cross and charity stamps; occupation and provisional issues; hundreds of stamps in complete sets; thousands of superb, handsome and hard-to-get stamps, most of them in mint condition.

That's the story in a few words, and any purchaser who is not more than pleased after a thorough examination may return the collection for a full refund, plus postal expenses!

ALBUMS

We probably handle the largest variety of albums in the country, not only our own superb specialty, which we alone carry, but a complete line of the noted Elbe books, Scott's regular line of spaced books and several lines of foreign made albums at lowest prices. First and foremost:—

The "Boston" Album

We take pleasure in offering the distinctive collector what we firmly believe to be the finest blank page, loose-leaf album obtainable, at a medium price, today.

The following description speaks for itself:

Two post peg binder of heavy maroon imitation leather back and corners, green cloth sides, containing fifty best quality Bristol sheets, linen hinged, size 9¾x10⅜, lightly lithographed in grey; so arranged as to make sheets lay flat at all times.

This is our own book, produced solely for us, and sold only by us. Weight complete, 4 lbs.

Price complete, $7.50 Sheets per 50, $3.75

OTHER HIGH GRADE ALBUMS

Elbe Juniorette—
Loose leaf blank album, spring back binder, green cloth covering, with 50 fine quality leaves, quadrilled in soft gray. Sheet size 9½x7½".
Album complete (shipping wgt. 3 lbs.) $1.50

Elbe Daisy—
A slightly larger book, of similar construction, covering red instead of green, and containing 100 leaves. Size 11x8½".
Album complete (shipping wgt. 4 lbs.) $2.50

We are breaking up at present, a nice collection of Denmark, Danish West Indies and a choice 20th Century United States. This, in addition to our beautiful 19th recently advertised, unused South America and our superb lot of pairs, strips, blocks, covers and U. S., makes our recent purchases something to think about. There is truly a stock here worth looking up.

SPECIALTIES

We are anxious to obtain the name and address of every collector, stating at the same time just what their specialty may be. By keeping your name on file, you are assured of receiving at least occasional selections of stamps you want, and not a lot of miscellany. Will you not co-operate with us this season for our mutual benefit?

We are prepared to fill want lists at all times, keeping a large stock of both centuries on hand, and specializing in 19th. Booklets by countries may be had for the asking.

THE GOD OF GOOD LUCK.

By W. Gardner.

Duttia is one of those Native Indian States about which, until postage stamps began to be issued, there was little known. It is in Central India, north of Jhansi, and has an area of nearly 1,000 square miles. The present Maharaja is Sir Bahwani Singh who succeeded in 1907. Only about two per cent. of the population, which numbers about 190,000, can write, so the quantity of stamps used must be small. The stamps are printed at a private press and they are not available for postage until they have received the impression of the Maharajah's seal. The seal, which is circular in shape, and is impressed in blue and sometimes in brown, has in the centre a rough representation of the God Ganesa. The seal control is used as a prevention against forgery. Despite the crude appearance of these stamps they form a very interesting series, for they all show in the centre a representation of the God Ganesa, the God of Good Luck. Besides the Hindu inscription at the base of the stamp we find DUTTIA STATE POSTAGE or DATIA STATE POSTAGE on the other three sides.

The means of separating the stamps is also interesting for we find imperforate stamps, stamps rouletted in colour and some (1911) perforated 13½.

The earliest date of which the first postage stamps appear to have been issued was 1893, although it was not till some four years later that philatelists became acquainted with their nature.

A great deal of useful information about these stamps was written by the late Major Evans for the Monthly Journal.

Ganesa, Ganapati or Ganesh, is the Hindu god found upon all the stamps of Duttia. He is the son of Siva and Parvati and is considered the god of prudence and good luck. He is invoked at the beginning of all enterprises. No public festivals are held in his honour, but his image stands in almost every house. He is always represented as a corpulent, four-armed man with the head of an elephant, this curious headpiece being accounted for in various ways. Parvati, his mother, going to the bath left her son, Ganesa, to guard the door, which duty he did so conscientiously that he endeavoured to prevent even the God Siva, his father, from coming in. Siva was so angry that he cut off Ganesa's head, on which the bereaved mother rushed out of the bath and insisted that Siva should replace the severed head immediately. Siva picked up an elephant's head which happened to be lying handy and placed it on the shoulders of Ganesa, to whose body it became permanently attached. This head had a fine pair of tusks, but (according to another legend) one was lost in the following way:—Ganesa, acting as Siva's doorkeeper, was told to keep visitors away during his master's siesta. Parasu-Rama, that is Rama with the axe, paid an inopportune call and was denied admittance by the faithful Ganesa. The affair ended in a scuffle during which Ganesa got hold of Parasu with his trunk. Rama released himself by hurling his axe which cut off one of Ganesa's tusks. Ganesa is usually represented with one tusk only. The objects in his four hands are a shell, a discus, a club or goad and a lotus. His tusk is on the right side. His head denotes sagacity and cunning and without his permission no undertaking or marriage is even thought of for fear of obstacles he might place in the way.—Postage Stamp.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS.

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the Weekly are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it.

THE NEW "MONTHLY JOURNAL."

The initial number of the new series of Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal is at hand and we compliment the publishers upon the fine magazine issued. It is edited by L. W. Fulcher and Stanley Phillips, a literary and business team that must produce a fine publication. With the recollection of what the old Monthly Journal was to philately our publication is profoundly thankful that the Gibbons firm has launched the new venture. A sample copy may be obtained from the firm, 391 Strand, London, England.

SEEBOHM IN NEW QUARTERS.

San Francisco has just experienced a severe fire which gutted the building at 660 Market St., in which was located the office of E. P. Seebohm, a long time advertiser in the WEEKLY. A local paper giving an account of the disaster has this paragraph in regard to our dealer friend:

Rechecking the events of yesterday the fire imperilled more lives than was at first reported. Edwin P. Seebohm, widely known stamp collector, was seated in his office on the third floor, when a rush of smoke came in the windows, almost suffocating him. He gathered up the most valuable sets of his stamp collection, which he values at $25,000, and packing them in a suitcase, hurried out to the hall. He struggled through the smoke to the stairs between the first and second floors, where he was met by impassable flames. Never losing hold of the precious suitcase, which represented his life's work, Seebohm climbed back to the top floor and was fainting when firemen lifted him out through a skylight. When a physician in the building resuscitated him on the roof, Seebohm was still clinging to the suitcase of stamps. About $200 worth of stamps remaining in the office were destroyed.

Temporarily Mr. Seebohm will be found at the following new address: Room 406, Chronicle Bdg. Mr. Seebohm says that the damage to his stock was very small, but the building being condemned he has been compelled to seek the new quarters. He has postponed his 20th auction sale until January. He has been able to retain his old telephone number, Douglas, 3931.

FIRST STAMPING GROUND.

"Boston's new commission for marking historical sites has located the spot on which was the first post-office in America. It is now occupied by the Boston Globe. Nov. 5 was the 284th anniversary of the establishment of the office by the general court of Massachusetts in 1639. The master of the house and of the office was Richard Fairbanks, who kept a bar in his inn, at which he was permitted to sell "wine & strong water."

The first post-office in America happened because ship owners were annoyed on arrival at the port of Boston by throngs of people flocking to their ships for letters from abroad. They complained, and thereupon the Fairbanks barroom was selected as a place to send foreign mail matter for distribution. There was no domestic public post until thirty-four years later, in 1673. The American post-office establishment came into existence in 1710, under colonial authority provided by parliament.

After the Revolutionary War and the adoption of the Constitution, the United States, through Congress, took exclusive control of postal affairs in all the states, and has held it, as the Constitution provides, ever since. It is now a business of enormous proportions.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

1 Castle and 2 Cathedrals Free!

This is not a fairy tale from "Thousand and One Night," it simply means that if you send me a Dollar bill for one of my superb Collections of 1000 different stamps from all parts of the world, I'll give you as a free premium 1 copy of the 5000M stamp of Germany showing the Wartburg Castle and 2 copies of the 10,000M denomination with the Cologne Cathedral.

These are two extremely fine stamps, large size, and have had franking value only a few weeks, postage on inland letters now being 2,000,000 Marks. As will be noted from several ads in MEKEEL'S, the 5000M stamp alone is retailed at 19 cents. The collection of 1000 different stamps is absolutely the best ever made. It contains no duplicates, cut squares or fiscal stamps.

10 Collections, 10 Castles and 20 Cathedrals will cost only $8.00

500 different stamps, a bright little collection, 35c; 10 packets $2.25

2000 different stamps, in good condition, mounted in approval books, a real bargain for the beginner, only $4.00, same not mounted $3.25.

3000 different stamps from all parts of the world, arranged by countries and mounted very attractively in one large approval book, ready to be priced up for the counter sale or to be transferred to the album. Contains many good stamps and a fine lot of German, British and French Colonials. Special price only $10.00. The same collection not mounted, but containing absolutely the same fine class of stamps, only $8.50.

5000 different stamps. A "general" collection in the truest sense of the word. Contains stamps from nearly all stamp issuing countries; very strong in such fine stamps as Austrian Fieldposts, Bosnia, Portuguese Colonies, etc. There are some stamps cataloguing up to $3 each. This collection will delight the heart of every collector fond of beautiful stamps. Net price only $30.00.

10,000 different stamps. I just got two more ready in first class quality. Very cheap at $125.00 or only 1¼ cents per stamp.

15,000 varieties $350.00. 20,000 varieties $800.00 Full particulars of these 2 large collections will be given in one of the next issues of MEKEEL'S. But if you are interested, do not wait. Write me at once.

All orders will be filled the same day they are received. Everything will be sent postfree and registered. For amounts up to $30 only Dollar bills should be sent, per registered letter. THEY ARE A BOTHER.

Why does not the Post Office Department issue an order prohibiting the use of envelopes of very small size? I refer specifically to the Jewish New Year cards, which at this time, by reason of their small size, are again causing the postal employees such trouble. They are hard to handle, hard to distribute, hard to tie up, and in every way, due to their small size, are a general nuisance. Can this not be remedied by a departmental order?

Answer. With respect to odd-sized envelopes, attention is invited to Article 97, page 18, of the July, 1923, Postal Guide. This article should be brought to the attention of all mailers using envelopes of other than standard sizes. In view of the approaching holiday season, attention is also invited to the circulars issued by this office in previous years regarding the use of small-sized cards and envelopes, in which postmasters were requested to make every proper endeavor to secure the co-operation of manufacturers, dealers, and the public generally in the elimination of small-sized cards and envelopes, to the end that the Postal Service might be relieved of the burden of handling them.—P. O. Bulletin.

LONG TRAIL.

Canada claims the longest and loneliest mail route in the world. It is 3,500 miles long and extends from Fort Murray to the settlement of Aklavik, in the far north. Five relays of dog teams are used by the "musher" on the trip to Aklavik and back—Post Office News.

THE CHRONICLES OF FERRARY.

SEVENTH SALE JUNE 13, 14, 15.

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

SOME OF THE ITEMS AND PRICES REALIZED.

So. Australia, 4d blue unused, no surch., to Arthur Hind, $1,380.00.
Buenos Aires, 1p blue, ship, tete-beche, to A. F. Lichtenstein, $2,300.00.
Confed. States, strip of seven 10c blue, frame, to A. H. Caspary, $1,050.00.
Brattleboro on letter, to Arthur Hind, $1,650.00.
Unionville pair 5c on letter, Mr. Caspary, $1,150.00.
(There must be added to these prices a sales tax of about 20%.)

There was neither the crowded attendance nor the general air of excitement in the salesroom on this occasion and the absence of American buyers tended to make competition for the big things weak. American bids were there, but having been absent from their home affairs for the London Exhibition, some of those who would have been at the sale personally could not spare the time and left their bids in charge of the auctioneer or other agents. In contests between the philatelic giants the agent can rarely have complete freedom of action in unlimited bidding. If Nabob and Crœsus each gave an agent instructions to buy the same lot, without limit, we should see some sensational bidding if each agent held his ground—and the auctioneer would have to introduce the guillotine.

This sale started with a dozen lots of Alsatians, in which there is a very strong element of specialisation on the Continent, and some of the varieties little appreciated here fetched substantial amounts. The 20c blue with the figures "20" close up to the word "Postes" (mint) fetched £91, a similar one used on letter £40, and another 20c variety POSTE S £52. A misplaced background 2c went in a mixed lot of eleven; and a 4c grey, burelage inverted with displaced figure, brought £48.

Argentine early issues sold high, but the rare inverts of 1899-1900 1 peso and 5 pesos went moderately at £23 and £42 respectively.

The Germans were not particularly interesting, but a set of eleven modern atrocities, all but unknown to collectors here, being provisionals issued at Tientsin (S. G. C10-18, etc.), fetched the surprising figure of £171, at which figure they were knocked down to M. Gilbert, acting no doubt for some correspondent.

South Australia provided some fine lots, the principal single items being the 4d blue without surcharge unused and used. The stamp used is of a very high degree of rarity, and unused it might compare for numbers with the 1d "Post Office." But the unused was bought very cheaply for Mr. Hind at £314, no one feeling it worth while to compete with him, and M. Burrus was equally lucky to get the used one for £67.

The unused stamp was acquired by Ferrary about 1900, and was the left-hand stamp of a pair purchased by Mr. W. Seebo at the time of the currency of the 3d on 4d deep ultramarine, at a little store (kept by H. Muick), which was also the local post-office at Greenock, South Australia. Mr. Seebo sold the pair to Messrs. Gibbons in 1900; they let Ferrary have one, taking a used one (now in Mr. E. S. Collins' collection) in part payment. The unused pair is illustrated (enlarged) in the Australian Stamp Journal, XII, p. 167.

Fifty-seven ships and heads of Buenos Aires sold well, the unique tête-bêche pair of the 1 peso blue ship, lightly postmarked, was bought for Mr. A. F. Lichtenstein for £522. The existence of a tête-bêche variety in the 1 peso plate was discovered by the late Senor Marco del Pont, who had a copy of the 1 peso with sufficient margin on one side to show that the neighbouring stamp had been inverted; but this is the first and only actual pair known. M. Burrus paid £163 for a fine unused copy of the 5 pesos ship in bright orange.

Among the Chili stamps were three watermark errors of the 10c, concerning which there was considerable diversity of opinion. One with the watermark "20" instead of "10" fetched £65, and another (lot 161) was no doubt a fake and was withdrawn. The 10c watermarked "5" instead of "10," which fetched £32, was a somewhat doubtful variety.

I confess to a fancy for inverted centres (in stamps), and although there were many other fine Chileans in the

M. & M. APPROVALS

A new line of approval books of Match and Medicine stamps is now ready for distribution. This side line of United States stamps, consisting of hundreds of varieties between Scott's Nos. 5100 and 5628, cannot be equalled by any stamps in variety of colors, shapes and sizes and in real beauty.

My large stock has been greatly increased by heavy purchases from the duplicates of the late Clarence H. Eagle, formerly the owner of the most extensive Match and Medicine collection ever formed.

My approval books contain varieties cataloguing under $2.00 only. I invite want-lists covering varieties from $2.00 up.

Reference is essential—the names of two stamp dealers preferred. A statement of the size of your Match and Medicine collection will be helpful.

other lots, I am only showing two inverts of the 1911 series which together brought only a trifle over £12.

The collection of Colombia was of very great interest, and it is rarely that one can see a really good showing of the old stamps now that the days of the great general collection have passed. Ferrary appears to have had every known tête-bêche and every known error. The 20+5 blue se tenant (S.G. 22) brought £80, and the 50c red error of 1863, which was in the centre of a vertical strip of seven stamps, unused, £155.

A superb collection of Egypt, 1866 issue, comprising 177 stamps, brought £163, and the balance, 1867 onwards, 626 stamps, £112.

An unused strip of seven of that elusive stamp, the 10c blue Confederate States with frame line (S.G. 31) went to Mr. Caspary at £236. United States inverted centres brought:—1869, 15c, unused, £301; 1869, 24c, used, £53; 1869, 30c, unused, £505; 1901, 1c, unused, £13 13s; 1901, 2c, unused, £87; 1901, 4c, unused, £20; and the 4c blue Columbus error, £19. A Brattleboro on letter was bought for Mr. Hind at £275. There were a few more "Postmasters" and a hitherto unrecorded stamp (in pair on letter) of Unionville, South Carolina. This was a crude thing of the Civil War period handstamped with a heavy "5" and again handstamped with PAID in an oblong rule with rounded ends. The letter was addressed to "Col. William M. Gist, care of Col. Greggs, Centreville, Virginia," and M. Gilbert showed me another letter addressed in the same handwriting to the same party and address, from his reference collection, bearing a government Confederate stamp, as some support of its authenticity. The Unionville pair went to Mr. Caspary for £261.

A tête-bêche pair of Athens used on letter brought £66.

The United States collection at this sale yielded 247,100 frs. or with tax 290,342 frs. or £4,032, which, with the previous lots (Sales 3 and 4) brings the U. S. total up to 1,564,311 frs. or £30,700.

Four more Hawaiian "Missionaries," each defective, were the 2c Type II, £1,778; 5c Type I, £310; 13c Type I, £244; and 13c H.I. and U.S., Type II, £220. Our register of the Missionaries from this collection now numbers 21, as follows:—

2c Type I, £2,115, £1,880.
2c Type II, £3,900, £1,778.
5c Type I, £212, £177, £235, £122, £103, £310.
5c Type II, £102.
13c Type I, £177, £164, £181, £244.
13c Type II, £97, £125, £97.
13c H.I. and U.S. Type I, £178, £129.
13c H.I. and U.S. Type II, £220.

The Hawaiians in the seventh sale added 187,095 francs, or with tax 219,835 frs. (£3,053) to the previous total, making 811,875 frs. or £15,469 for this country to date.

The Hanover section contained some interesting bisects, one item, a strip of three and a half of the 3pf rose on letter fetching £69. A collection of 411 Heligoland, with reprints (225) brought £84, and a small collection of used (29) fetched £12 12s.

A sheet of Matabeleland "Reuter's Telegraph Service" (18 stamps) sold for 65s. There were a few Dutch items, notably the 15c chestnut, Die I, perf. 10x10½ unused, which brought £46.

Philippines, of which there was such a wonderful lot in the fourth sale, again figured in the seventh to the extent of 30 lots, ranging from single items to collections of 81, 110, 166 and 221. A superb used block of the 10c rose of 1854 with the speckled circle postmark brought £126, an unused block of four 5c red, Type I, from the corner of sheet, £184.

A set of six Prussian telegraph stamps of 1864, unused (Yvert 4600f) fetched 4200 frs. (£68).

St. Christopher was represented by an array of surcharge errors, inverted and double, and one curious item of which I find no other record, an error "PENEY" corrected in the large type of the ONE PENNY on 2½d of 1888. Nothing seems to have been known of a PENEY error in this setting, but this one had been corrected with writing ink. It sold for £42. An unused copy of the rare small type surcharge on the 2½d (S.G. No. 33) brought £75 from M. Champion. Only a single sheet of 20 is believed to have been surcharged with this small type.

A collection of 97 San Marino surcharges brought £18, and a small lot of 23 St. Thomas and La Guaira £31.

A 2 schilling rose Schleswig-Holstein used on letter brought £58.

13 Swazieland, including the 10s, and the "Swazielan" error in the ½d, 2d and 5s, the latter in pair with normal, brought £13.

A hitherto unknown tête-b'êche pair of the 1 para yellow, 1872, Serbia, brought £81 (unused), and a collection of 1089 (1869 to end) of the same country brought £106.

Even German Locals, represented by a collection of 2129, brought close on £27, and went to swell M. Burrus' growing collection.

Tasmania made its first appearance (56 lots) with some choice items in the first issues, and the sale concluded with 60 lots forming a wonderful collection of Wurtemberg. Two entire sheets of six of the 70 kreuzer fetched about £147 each.—Stamp Lover.

JAMAICAN CHILD WELFARE, 1923.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

The special stamps prepared by Jamaica in aid of Child Welfare, were issued Thursday, November 1, 1923, and officially notified in the Gazette of that date. They are to be on sale for three months (until January 21, 1924), and sold at an advance of ½d over face, the overage to be given to the Child Saving League of Jamaica, for use in their work among the native children of the island.

"STAMP OFFICE, KINGSTON,
29th October, 1923.

The following is a description of a half-penny adhesive stamp to be used for Postage and Revenue purposes.

The design of the stamp, which is in black, represents a native girl in a sitting posture.

The Eastern symbol of hygiene, 'the snake', is shown in the side panels.

The denomination ½d is shown at the top in the left and right corners, and between is the word 'Jamaica.'

At the bottom, on the left, is the word 'Postage', and on the right the word 'Revenue', and between

WELFARE.

The colour of the border of the stamp is green.

This stamp will be put into circulation on 1st November, 1923, and will be sold for 1d, the extra ½d being for the promotion of Child Welfare in Jamaica.

The following is a description of a penny adhesive stamp to be used for Postage and Revenue purposes.

The design of the stamp, which is in black, represents a native boy, in a sitting posture.

The Eastern symbol of hygiene, 'the snake,' is shown in the side panels.

The denomination 1d is shown at the top in the left and right corners, and between is the word 'Jamaica.'

At the bottom, on the left, is the word 'Postage', and on the right, the word 'Revenue', and between

CHILD WELFARE.

The colour of the border of the stamp is red.

This stamp will be put into circulation on 1st November, 1923, and will be sold for 1½d, the extra ½d being for the promotion of Child Welfare in Jamaica.

The following is a description of a 2½d adhesive stamp to be used for Postage and Revenue purposes.

The design of the stamp, which is in black, represents a native boy and girl standing.

The Eastern symbol of hygiene, 'the snake', is shown in the side panels.

SPECIALTIES

We are anxious to obtain the name and address of every collector, stating at the same time just what their specialty may be. By keeping your name on file, you are assured of receiving at least occasional selections of stamps you want, and not a lot of miscellany. Will you not co-operate with us this season for our mutual benefit?

We are prepared to fill want lists at all times, keeping a large stock of both centuries on hand, and specializing in 19th. Booklets by countries may be had by the general collector for the asking.

Want Lists. A Specialised Service

For years I have made a specialty of the execution of Want Lists. Few firms in this country have developed this side of the business to the same extent.

Owing to the great increase in my American business, I have now established a WANTS REGISTER on the basis of Scott's catalogue. Collectors may therefore send me their full want lists and be confident that they will not be side tracked and that they will receive constant attention. Selections will be sent on approval at regular intervals.

I sell stamps in Fine Condition only. My prices average half catalogue, and will bear comparison with any market in the world. I have, at the moment, nothing to offer in old U. S., but have an immense stock of British and French Colonials, Europeans, Asiatics, Africans and South Americans. I stock no common stamps and New European rubbish.

Approval selections of any country against references. [tf

161A STRAND LONDON, W. C. 2

This stamp will be put into circulation on 1st November, 1923, and will be sold for 3d, the extra ½d being for the promotion of Child Welfare in Jamaica.

The five shilling adhesive stamp with the script watermark will be available to the public on the 8th November, 1923.

The stamp is described in notice published in Gazette of 14th April, 1921, page 299.

Signed, C. C. Manton, Deputy Stamp Commissioner."

In The Gleaner of November 1st appeared the following notice issued by the Post Office Department, relating to the stamps:

"Notice.
Child Welfare.

A special issue of Postage and Revenue stamps bearing the words 'Child Welfare' of the following denominations: ½d, 1d, 2½d, will be sold for 1d, 1½d, 3d each, respectively, at the General Post Office and certain District Post Offices during November, December, 1923, and January, 1924.

The extra half-penny charged over and above the face value of each stamp will be for the benefit of 'Child Welfare' —the value for postal purpose is what is printed on each stamp.

Signed, R. H. Fletcher,
Acting Postmaster for Jamaica.
30th October, 1923."

The stamps were engraved and printed from line engraved plates, by Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., in two colors, the centers being in black, and the borders in color—green, red and blue, for the ½d, 1d and 2½d respectively.

The sheets are of 120 subjects, 12 horizontal by 10 vertical, 25½x29½ mm., single line perforated 12, and watermarked multiple Crown and script CA. upright. There are no marginal lines or plate numbering, but in the lower margin under the 6th and 7th stamps, a long narrow label, enclosed by a line of color, bears the imprint "Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ld., New Malden, Surrey," in small colorless letters, upper and lower case.

The frame design is common to all three values, except for the change in denomination, which is expressed in numerals in the upper corners, in color, on a horizontally lined ground. "Jamaica" on a straight label between, is in colored sans serif caps, outlined in colorless, on a horizontally lined ground. In the lower corners, "Postage" and "Revenue", at the left and right, respectively, appear in color on plain colorless labels, between which in two lines of caps, colorless on a ground of horizontal lines, is "Child—Welfare". In panels at the sides is a wand or staff, with two serpents entwined (the Eastern symbol of hygiene), resembling the Caduceus of Hermes (messenger of the Greek gods) with the wings at the top omitted.

The vignettes are different for each value, that on the ½d being a representation of a little native girl, seated; on the 1d a native boy, seated, and on the 2½d, a native boy and girl, standing.

The use of these stamps is not limited to the island or Empire, as the prohibition against the use in international mails of postage stamps of temporary validity, formerly appearing in the Postal Union Convention, no longer exists. Copies of these Child Welfare stamps, overprinted "Specimen," were sent to Berne, and distributed among the countries of the Postal Union.

The entire printing of these stamps, except those overprinted "Specimen," was placed in the hands of the Postmaster for Jamaica, and went on sale to the public at Kingston, at 8 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, November 1st. The following quantites were available:

		Face value.	For Child Welfare.
½d	10,080	£ 21. 0. 0	£21. 0. 0
1d,	30,000	125. 0. 0	62.10. 0
2½d,	20,040	208.15. 0	41.15. 0
	60,120	£434.15. 0	£125. 5. 0

With such small quantites available, it is not surprising that the ½d exhausted before noon on the day of issue. None of these stamps were retained by the Crown Agents in London to care for the wants of the English dealers, but orders were booked in London, sent out to Kingston, and the stamps supplied from there.

For a charity issue intended to remain on sale for 3 months, the quantities should have been at least ten times as great, especially in view of the very small face value. Of the first Trinidad & Tobago Red Cross stamp (10.21.1915), 100,000 were printed, and disposed of in 2 or 3 hours; and the 250,000 made in the following year (10.19.16), exhausted within a very few days of issue. The Swiss Pro Juventute stamps are issued in the millions. Probably further printings of the Jamaican Child Welfare stamps will be made, now that the authorities have had occasion to determine the demand. It would be a matter of much regret if there were none of these Child Welfare stamps available for use during December, at a time when they would be used in greater numbers than ordinarily, due to the heavy Christmas mails.

Whether the designs will be changed yearly, as with the Pro Juventute stamps of Switzerland remains to be seen, but some change seems necessary, else in subsequent years there will be little or no demand for the stamps outside of the island, and even there the sale will be small if there is no deviation.

These Child Welfare stamps are the first of Jamaica's postage stamps to be printed by other than Thos. De La Rue & Co., Ltd., who have supplied the requirements of the Colony ever since distinctive postage stamps were introduced there on November 23, 1860. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd. (for some ten years or more controlled by the American Bank Note Co. of New York) have not printed postage stamps for any of the British Crown Colonies in recent years. From 1878 to 1904 they did supply the stamps of the Falkland Islands, and more recently have printed the high value stamps (2s 6d, 5s and 10s) of Great Britain, in the King George, Britannia and Sea Horses type.

The perforation (12, single line) used by Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., is new to Jamaica's stamp issues, as these have been uniformly perforated 12, with but two exceptions,—the 2s and 5s Queen Victoria stamps, issued in August, 1875, and perforated 12½.

De La Rue's practice with stamps of this "receipt" size is to limit the sheets to 60 stamps (generally 12 horizontal by 5 vertical),—witness the Legislative Tercentenary stamps of Bermuda (House of Assembly design); Queen's Staircase type stamps of Bahamas, and the pence values of Barbados Victories. But Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., have supplied these Charity Welfare stamps in sheets of 120, undivided.

Stamps of the small, or conventional size, printed from line engraved plates, such as Cayman Islands second King George series (a la New Zealand), Turks & Caicos Islands Crown type series, and the small Arms type series of Barbados. —De La Rue supply in sheets of 120, undivided. The lower values of St. Vincent, King George series, line engraved, are also furnished in sheets of this size.

The current ½d and 1d Jamaican pictorials, typographically printed, are in sheets of 120, 2 panes of 80 each, as are also the King George and Arms type stamps of Trinidad & Tobago.

Nov. 1, 1923.—Child Welfare series. Postage & Revenue. Types of native children shown in vignette. Engraved and printed from steel plates, by Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., New Malden, Surrey. Sold at ½d over face in aid of Child Welfare. Watermarked multiple Crown and script CA, upright. Perf. 12, single line.

BOOK REVIEW.

We have received from S. A. Pappadopoulo a booklet "The Stamps of Russia in Asia." It is written in both French and English. The author was travelling in Siberia during the revolution and had the opportunity of securing most of these issues, which will in time according to his opinion prove very valuable. Mr. Pappadopoulo has made exhaustive inquiries about the issues and holds documents from postal authorities giving actual numbers issued. He is now located in Shanghai, Box 843, having moved there from Vladivostok, Siberia. The price of the book is 50c.

We have received a very neat little booklet written and published by Simpson Yeomans, 101 Morningside Drive, Kansas City, Mo. It is entitled "The Booklet Issues of the United States." It gives a detailed description of the United States stamps that have been issued in booklet form from 1900 to 1923. Mr. Yeomans has made a special study of this sideline in U. S. stamps and his work is painstaking and thorough. The book is freely illustrated and the price is 75c. We quote the following from the introductory chapter:—

"The sale of postage stamps in leaves of six stamps each in Booklet form was conceived by Edwin C. Madden in 1900. This practice has met with such universal public approval that it is safe to assume that Stamp Booklets are now a permanent feature of the Post Office Department, and for that reason there will be no lack of future material for the United States Specialists who collect this interesting sideline.

To date there have appeared in Booklet form eight issues of one cent stamps, ten issues of two cent stamps, and two issues of three cent stamps. The early issues include nine distinct collectible Plate Varieties and the later ones twelve Plate Varieties, so that the total number of distinct collectible varieties is 237, comprising differences in design, watermark and guide lines. In recent years the collecting of Booklet Leaves showing Plate Numbers has become as popular as collecting the plate varieties, and, as practically all the Plate Numbers are available with the exception of the earlier issues, their collecting is quite interesting. Plate Number Leaves of the first three issues are rare and command a good price, so their collecting is confined to the more patient and more advanced Specialists. Plate Number Leaves of the issues from 1908 to date are more easily obtained and more reasonable in price; therefore, the majority of Specialists confine themselves to these later varieties. Approximately 424 different plates have been used since 1908, from practically all of which Plate Number Leaves are obtainable.

With the exception of the first four plates of the First Issue, all the Booklet Issues have been printed during the Twentieth Century, so we may look upon Booklets as a Twentieth Century innovation."

A Rare Stamp

The Cape of Good Hope, No. 8, 1861

1P BLUE ERROR. In 1909 Catalog, not priced. 1919 Catalog, $500. 1922, $600. 1923, 1924, $900. Is so rare that it will finally go to $2000, perhaps higher. This copy still has some of the old yellow envelope clinging to it. Scott says, "There are no reprints of the errors."

The first Certified Check received for One Thousand Dollars ($1000) gets it. Other rare items from my collection for sale.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have a circular advertising "Postage Stamp Marshmallow Bar" in the shape of a leaflet showing a host of foreign stamps, old and new issues, in their approximate colors. Additional text is: "Premium of Foreign Stamps Enclosed." The sheet is evidently the covering of the marshmallow bar which is sold for 5c and is the product of "McCormicks—London." The name, "Postage Stamp Marshmallow Bar" is registered as a trade mark. The agent who called on us says that he anticipates that millions of foreign stamps will be given away by the company.

—Glancing though the table of countries to which parcel post packages will be accepted for delivery together with postal rates, we find few instances where the postage rate is well up in the dollars. The maximum seems to be attained by Katanga Province in Belgian Congo, to which the transit charge on a package weighing up to one pound is $1.32, when sent via Capetown.

—Some of the Permits are so crudely lettered that they appear to be caricatures on the well-drawn designs. In fact a reader sent one of the Chicago Permits in to the postmaster of that city thinking that by doing so he was heeding the injunction of the postal authorities that the public keep its eyes open for postal fraud in order to report it. He was thanked for his interest but the Permit was all right.

—The Evening Review, published at East Liverpool, Ohio, contained in its issue of Saturday, Nov. 17, a readable stamp story with Bradie Buchanan a local stamp collector as the subject. Mr. Buchanan is in the Y. & O. ticket office at East Liverpool and has been a stamp collector for some twenty years.

—The Anderson Stamp Co. has a new address. The firm is now located at 4519 N. Albany Av., Chicago, Ill.

—O. J. Richardson, manager of the Eclipse Stamp Co., Eden, N. Y., writes us that he will spend the winter in the south and due notice of his address will later appear in the Weekly. Mail addressed temporarily to Eden, N. Y., will be forwarded. Will the subscriber in Chicago who sent the Eclipse Co. $2.30 for stamps under date of Nov. 8 send his name and street address to the firm?

—We have received from Dresden, Germany a post card upon which were stamps to the value of 2,400,000,000 marks. There was one 1 billion mark stamp, two 500 million marks and two 200 million marks to make up the required rate. The card was one of greetings from Alfred Toron of Owego, N. Y., who is now staying for a while in Dresden. He writes that stamp collectors in Germany are leading hectic lives with the many issues of postage stamps coming along week by week.

—How do those editors inoculate themselves with "truth serum?" Here is what one of the old boys says who gets something like a President's salary for rattling around in the editorial chair: "Twenty-five years ago a young engraver under federal sentence for making his own revenue stamps, having nothing to work with but the white of an egg, a piece of copper and a single tool, produced in his cell a plate of such perfection that the bare eyes could not detect a difference between the Treasury note original and the counterfeit."

—We quote a newspaper headline: "Searchers for Postal Uniques, Once Under Spell of Philately, Spare Nothing to Gain Curios." "Postal Uniques" is a new one and we tage some of the text of the New York Sun's article: "If there is any hobby that transforms an ordinarily sane person into something else it is philately, says a veteran post-office clerk. He asserts that the study of postage stamps and the collection of them possesses a viselike grip from which even well-balanced, intelligent folk cannot escape once they have fallen victims of the mania.

A naturalist, whose goal is a matchless collection of butterflies, may lose a little of his ardor if, perchance, he should slip from the top of a precipice or run head first into a stone wall, in an effort to capture an elusive butterfly of gaudy hue. Not so with the philatelist, if the analysis of an old postal employee is to be relied upon.

"We used to have a stamp 'hound' visit our station every day," he related reminiscently, "and sometimes he'd be on the job before the shift came on in the morning for work.

"When the parcel post stamps came out with the pictures of airplanes on them, we got a series once with all the airplanes upside down. There wasn't a clerk in the place who couldn't have earned some easy money from the stamp collector for a few of those. Then came another series of two cent stamps printed in green instead of red. There was no such thing as turning him down. He was all prepared to go to Washington and have some laws passed to allow him to get some of those stamps.

"There wasn't any irregularity too small for him. Sometimes he'd give a tip to a clerk for getting a stamp that had something the matter with it that you'd have to see with a microscope.

"They'd rather find a freak postage stamp worth one cent than see Babe Ruth hit a home run. And once you get them started, they'll talk postage stamps until you become dizzy.

"I remember the last we saw of one stamp crank. One of our clerks, who was a pretty good artist, sold the stamp collector a two cent stamp for $5. The picture of George Washington's head included a pair of eye glasses on George's nose. The collector thought he had a find, but when he got home and looked at it under a magnifying glass, he found that it had been drawn in with red ink and a pen."

—The United States Post Office Department, upon the request of the Bureau of Insular Affairs acting for the Philippine Government, has kindly authorized the le at the Philatelic Agency in Wash- igton of the new 16 centavos (8 cents United States currency) postage amp of the Philippine Islands. The amp, which bears a portrait of Ad- iral Dewey, was first placed on sale at Agency the 15th of November.

—The Schenectady Stamp Club, a cal branch of "Kosmopolit," has just en instituted with C. F. Busch as presi- nt and Eric Buchwald as financial cretary.

—We regret that we are compelled to cord the death of Everett Van Voorhis Nelsonville, N. Y. The sad news mes to us from P. M. Wolsieffer who minds us that he was a strong col- tor of Match and Medicine stamps.

—The Sacramento Stamp Society meets the 1st and 3rd Thursday evenings of ch month. Any collector residing in cramento county may write W. Wyllie, 12 Kay St., Sacramento, California.

—The Manual Arts High School of s Angeles, California, has a Stamp ub that has flourished for three years der the wing of its faculty adviser, r. L. D. LaTourrette. The Club now s 60 boys and girls each of which is real stamp bug. Herbert Porter, the pular president, is serving his second m and runs the club meeting under per parliamentary law. The first and rd meetings are devoted to business d the second and fourth weekly meets trading stamps. Students who be- ng to the Club are recognized by a at gold pin, patterned after the Cape angular stamps which has an M on one e; an A on the other and Stamp Club ross the bottom, the center having a sed design of the stamp.

—We notice that one or more of the English collectors are giving talks on philately before the radio; and in this country we hear of the broadcasting of radio philately from different sections. Minneapolis was the city first in the field as a philatelic radio center and the Burt McCann Company of that place was instrumental in bringing collecting to the fore in this way.

—A new subscriber, Mr. J. E. Talcott of Cleveland, writes: "What arrangement is made between various countries so that when mail matter passes from one country to another, the one to whom the mail is sent receives a portion of the postage which was paid at the point of origin, and how is the amount determined?" We suggest that our correspondent write to the International Bureau of the Postal Union at Berne, Switzerland, for details of any arrangements of the kind. When the Postal Union was organized, it was provided that each administration should keep the whole of the sums collected, with the consequence that the necessity of keeping accounts with the different countries became unnecessary.

—Mr. C. J. Phillips writes that he will be in Chicago for a short time where many of his friends will be pleased to have the opportunity to meet him again.

—A talk on stamps was given recently by the editor before the stamp club of the Crane Technical High School, Chicago.

—From Mr. August F. Brandstedt, Oakland, California, we have received a list of fifteen New Zealand stamps with advertising cancellations. Sunlight Soap, Poneke Beef Extract, Beecham's Pills, Irish Moss and Cadbury Bros. are represented as well as other names of firms and articles. Our correspondent has a very fair lot of these stamps, which first made their appearance in 1893.

—The following clipping has been received proving that pretty well the world over there are people who regard any fish that come to their net as a fair catch:

"LONDON.—People putting pennies in automatic stamp vending machines at Gloucester have been getting 5d back instead of stamp, and as the word went round, business has been brisk. The post-office, however, has ordered a mechanical diagnosis of all the stamp machines in the city.

'There is no such thing as automatic morality,' was the comment of a general post-office official. 'These machines were provided for the convenience of the public, but unfortunately the public regard them as legitimate prey.'

He added that the question of faulty machines was receiving the serious consideration of the postmaster general."

EDITORIAL.

We are within hailing distance of the year 1924 and when we realize this, the date of the exhibition at Philadelphia in 1926 does not seem remote. Soon it will be necessary to start the preliminary work in order that preparations be not hampered by lack of time. The success of the recent London exhibition has inspired collectors here to plan for a festival that will mark the highest of philatelic achievements. As the work on the exhibition plans progresses, philatelic, and to some extent public interest will increase and when the time comes for the opening of the exhibition we want the whole reading world to know of this stamp display.

In answer to the criticism that is heard somewhat frequently in recent years that the stamp dealers are forcing up prices on certain desirable stamps too rapidly, we say that the dealers are practically guiltless of any attempt at price control. Dealers of the present day are more inclined than ever before to sell any and all their stamps without setting up a reserve stock of specimens that they think are underpriced or due for a rise. Outside of a "gem" book or some special repository for pet stamps, the modern dealer does not play the market for a rise but contents himself with a frequent turn-over. The dealer is forced to replace the stamps that advance rapidly in price by buying at correspondingly higher prices. For instance, a collector shows us eighty odd specimens of Number One of Denmark and he is followed by another collector who seems to have accumulated all the copies of the first stamp of the Dutch Indies; and when it comes to the stamps of our own country the "excesses" committed by some of the collectors are almost beyond belief. Of course, it is the collector's own business to buy as many or as few of a stamp as he wishes for purposes of study or for whim but it is beside the mark to say that the dealer has a hand in boosting prices in specific instances. Pool operations among the dealers are unknown, we think, and any concerted attempt on their part to inflate prices would fail if for nothing more than the disposition of dealers not to act in unison. Price advances are an inevitable consequence of the absorption of stamps with a personality by collectors who find a pleasure in getting together as many of the stamps as possible. The dealers make their money by selling as many stamps as they can, as often as they can.

A correspondent expresses surprise that means are not taken to capitalize the great interest that is now being shown in stamp collecting by the outside reading public and he says that if stamp folks do not stir themselves in behalf of their pursuit, no others will. While we can understand the impulse that leads our critic to "rouse philatelists from their lethargy" we fail to discover any constructive suggestions in his letter. If he could only tell in what way an actual philatelic contact could be made with those who read of stamps and collectors in the non-philatelic publications, we would hail him as a benefactor. As matters now stand, we are of the opinion that telling work is being done to attract recruits in a dozen or more different ways; and if an idea were to be broached whereby better results could be accomplished in a wholesale way, many willing shoulders would be placed against the wheel. Under the present circumstances we know that there are a good many collectors who are doing much to proclaim the merits of collecting. They are instrumental in having articles printed in the press; they encourage the showing of stamps in any public way; they are willing to speak about collecting before organizations of different kind; they enter into schemes whereby the younger generation may be led into philately and in other ways they are active in trying to permeate the whole public body with philately. While work of this kind is on broad lines yet if it is persevered in, the results must come, but if any critic has an inspired thought to hasten the end by a practical plan, by all means let us have it.

A question that has come to us furnishes the text for a short dissertation on the subject. A gentleman asks our opinion on the advisability of setting up his daughter in the stamp business. Until she was able to strike out for herself she would be under his guidance. He adds that it is strange that there are no women stamp dealers. As the question comes from a large city that has an active stamp club, we are of the opinion that the field is particularly inviting for a woman dealer and it is our honest belief that a sensible girl who has a sound knowledge of stamps at least in their obvious phases may attain a considerable success as a dealer. There should be no half-way measures in undertaking the stamp business as a vocation and it should be entered upon whole-heartedly and not as a means to fill in time. We know that there are several successful women stamp dealers and there is no reason why other women should not make a good showing. Abroad there are not a few feminine dealers, particularly in the centers of Europe, while Capetown in Africa and Sydney, Australia, have capable women dealers. It is evident that a number of women have the stamp "swing" as some of the dealers depend to a great extent upon their competent women clerks, who may be said to have the business at their finger tips. There certainly is no antipathy to women in the commercial field of philately and we believe that competitors in their cities will give them a fair field and it goes without saying that buyers at a distance do not discriminate against dealers of the other sex.

Ever since United States locals were dismissed from the body of the standard catalogue, they have seemed to be diminishing factors in a collecting sense. This consequence is a natural one but there was little general interest manifested in these issues for some time before they were dismissed from the catalogue; and so, it may be said that the cataloguers followed the lines of least resistance. It is not argued that our locals are not among the most fascinating of issues but it must be admitted that collecting favor has drifted away from them. In the early days of collecting they were among the chosen stamps but as years went on they were crowded close to the edges. The reasons for the decline in collecting strength of the U. S. locals are various and include the difficulty in discriminating .between reprints and originals. The many couterfeits and fac-similes that were thrown on the market had a tendency to discourage wide-spread collecting. Latterly, the rejection by serious collectors of those specimens that were not on the original covers weakened the appeal of the single stamps. At different times it was thought that there would be a revival of interest in the locals whose historical interest vies with their philatelic side, rticularly when Mr. Needham's in-luable studies were being published. sustained interest has developed it ems but we are glad to be able to say at we have seen indications of a movent in the market for locals on cover d we should not be surprised to find at they will come to the collecting surce again. It is realized that consistent llecting of U. S. locals cannot be an cupation of the masses but it is possi that the class that gives attention to se stamps will increase in size. These marks have been inspired by the wish at a reader makes that a price list of als on cover be issued.

AN ENTIRELY NEW

UND VOLUMES OF THE "WEEKLY".

We have on hand a few bound volles of the WEEKLY, and offer them sale at very reasonable prices. The rs in question are 1902, 1906, 1907, 8, 1909. The price of these books is each and this price is extremely reaable in view of the high cost of bind in these days. Just to show you at we can do in the way of a handne, substantial sample volume of the EEKLY we will send you the year 1907 $1.50 plus the zone parcel post arges on three pounds. This offer is immediate acceptance.

THE MILLION CONFUSION 350 Varieties THE LATEST "M. C." $1.02

Let the famous "M. C." mean MERRY CHRISTMAS for you and your friends this year. How often you have wanted to give someone a Philatelic gift that you could be sure would give complete satisfaction. Somehow we have all gotten the idea that satisfactory gifts are expensive gifts. THE MILLION CONFUSION costs but $1.02, and yet it is pleasing hundreds of collectors. The main reason why it is so satisfactory is because it is our policy to make our M. C.'s better than we say they are. Now, instead of merely putting the million mark values of Germany in as we promised, we are putting the BILLION mark values in as fast as they come. Every day we are trying to make a better packet. Everyone likes our famous "M. C.'s."

If you request it, we will put up a MILLION CONFUSION in a special holiday envelope, with no advertising of any kind on it, and we will mail it to you, or direct to your friend. We will not fail to send the best packet possible. Let the "M. C." say MERRY CHRISTMAS for you this year! "There are MILLIONS in it," YES! and there are BILLIONS in it, too. Please "Do your Christmas shopping early" and order your "M. C." today. "The Home of the 'M. C.'" wishes you a MERRY CHRISTMAS.

NEWFOUNDLAND 1910 to 1923, SUPERB MINT COPIES ONLY

Of course we have a lot to say about the "M. C.", but we don't want you to forget that we are still selling these fine stamps:

GUYS, CORONATIONS, CARIBOUS, PROVISIONALS, 1923 PICTORIALS, AIRMAILS.

If you have all of these in SUPERB condition, you are fortunate. If not, why not let us help you? We can send you the stamps you need, and your pages will be a joy to look at. Send that Want List to-day.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 WEST 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES.
152 Lisbon Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Mr. Bates will appreciate it if subscribers who send in specimens for examination will enclose postage (and registration when desired) for the return of their stamps.—Ed.)

Fred A. Kuhn, Box 69, Williamsville, N. Y., sends some interesting 2c red brown of the 1883 mintage. These stamps show shift and lot varieties.

In view of the controversary that has been going on over the legitimacy of the plate variety of this stamp showing shading under shield, it is interesting to note that Mr. Kuhn says he has only found such varieties on stamps showing the shading.

No. 1—Shift in lower right hand white oval space under bust. (This shift shows in a series of 14 dots and dashes in which space surrounding oval containing bust of Washington at right. They begin at point over E of cents and continue upward to a point opposite the knot in Washington's QUED.—ED).

No. 2—Dot outside of stamp, left side about opposite 5th pearl.

No. 3—Dot at bottom of 5th pearl same side.

No. 4—Dot just outside of 5th pearl in white space—same side.

No. 5—Dot same place shifted slightly toward right.

No. 6—Dot same place but a trifle higher up.

No. 7—Dot same place but in center of white oval space.

No. 8—Dot partly on medallion, same place.

No. 9—Dot just touching medallion, same place.

Note—Fine dot appears only on stamps with heavy shading, at bottom under the shield. Dot always appears in neighborhood of the 5th pearl, left side and invariably on a straight line either in or to the right or left of 5th pearl. Found none elsewhere.

When the editor receives a letter from England and realizes that even over there the collectors are enjoying the department he cannot help but feel that the work is worth while.

W. E. Whitnall, Woodside, Heswall Hills, Birkenhead, England, writes:—

"MEKEEL'S for Sept. 24th arrived last night. I turn first to your column, which I find very interesting.

The 1c of 1873 with arrow and perforations all round is certainly unusual and must be rare if genuine. Of the 1870-88 issues I have over 700 stamps with arrow. All have cut edge. I have never seen a stamp of these issues with arrow and perforations all round.

The 1869 3c with horizontal arrow and perforations all round is quite usual. The perpendicular arrows on this stamp always have a cut edge. The reason is that this 3c (like the 1, 2, 6, 10 and 12c of same issue) was printed from plates of 300 subjects, set 20 by 15. There were six arrows pointing towards the centre of the plate. These were set in the margins as follows:—

One perpendicular arrow in top margin and another in bottom margin between the 10th and 11th vertical rows.

Two horizontal arrows in left margin and another two in right margin between the 5th and 6th and 10th and 11th horizontal rows.

The printed sheet of 300 subjects was cut vertically—through the top and bottom arrows—making two panes or 'Post Office Sheets' of 150 stamps, 10x15.

Excepting along these cut edges, on the right of the left hand, and on the left of the right hand post-office sheets, all other sides of all the stamps were perforated, so horizontal arrows always have perforation all round."

Mr. Whitnall touches on the subject of arrows on the '69 and later issues. In view of the large number of arrow copies which he has collected, it would seem proof that the arrow on a stamp of the 1873 issue perforated all around is indeed a variety, if the perforation is genuine.

As I have stated previously the copy I have looks all right and yet it may have been expertly re-perforated. If only some reader would come forward with an undoubted copy cancelled on cover or a pair perforated all around showing arrow in center, then the question would be settled. Or a logical explanation of how such a freak could have happened would help. But, until there is proof to the contrary, I must regard the specimen I have with suspicion, in spite of the fact that it came from an unpriced lot.—ED.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Mrs. H. C. Workman sends me a clipping from the Washington Star of November 16th, wherein mention is made of the fact that of the Harding imperforate stamp which was placed on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency the day before, $5,000 worth were sold. It is stated that these will not only go into collections but that a great many will be framed as a memorial to our late President.

By the time these notes appear the Harding stamp in all its varieties will be a thing of the past insofar as the printing of the stamp is concerned. Printing will stop on Saturday, December 8th, and possibly before providing the Bureau of Engraving & Printing have completed their orders totaling a billion, six hundred thousand. There need be no hurrying to corner the stamp for enough have been distributed to reach everyone. It is hoped that by the 8th all of the Harding stamps will have been distributed but should there be any on hand at the Bureau they will no doubt be sent out for there is little likelihood of any being officially destroyed. Then too, the smaller post-offices are likely to have supplies on hand for some time to come. It is unusual that such an extraordinary quantity of a stamp should be turned out so hurriedly without any minor varieties of major importance being found. So far, outside of a few plate flaws, dots and dashes and an imaginary shift nothing of importance has yet come to light and the Bureau is certainly entitled to our congratulations for their clean cut and efficient work. Get a copy perforated 11 from the flat bed plate, an imperforate stamp turned out by the same process and a perforate 10 from the rotary press and you have about everything of major importance so far known.

The Director of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing distributed a few days back his report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923. While this always contains much of interest to the philatelist, here of late the report has been greatly condensed with the result that many minor details formerly furnished are now combined into larger units. During the year nearly sixteen billion postage stamps were distributed to postmasters on orders from the Post Office Department. This includes all classes, such as regular postage, special delivery and postage due. It does not necessarily follow that these were all printed during these twelve months and where we see for instance that 620,550 30c postage due were sent out we know as a matter of fact that these were perforated 10 and printed sometime before. We would therefore be in error in accepting this report as a list of current stamps distributed, for it must be remembered that the Bureau classifies by design only and that a perforation or watermark change makes no difference to them in the designation of an issue. As a fact the Bureau still classes its postage due as "series of 1894" although since then the philatelist has recognized six issues.

The smallest number of any stamp issued in this year is 3,750 of the $5 green and black. This variety has never been issued in large quantities and in days to come will prove good property. Of the old $5 green, 14,185 were distributed which means that our use for the $5 stamp has fallen considerably. Of the bi-color $2, 227,840 were sent to postmasters and this possibly included both the orange and the carmine. Their supply of the old $2 blue is without doubt exhausted for none were issued and these had they been on hand would have been sent out ahead of the others. Coils to the number of 4,530,723 were distributed which included 8,027 of the 10c denomination. There still seems to be some demand for the 3c coil for over fifteen thousand of these were issued. Of the 50c due nearly eight hundred thousand copies were sent to postmasters so that this will be rather plentiful and one need not worry about getting his specimen. The quantities of some of the higher denominations of the new series were rather limited but this results from the variety having been distributed through the Philatelic Stamp Agency only, up to June 30th.

Fifty thousand each of the 1c and 2c were overprinted "Shanghai" while two lots of the current stamps totaling 116 were sent the postal administrations of Persia and Estonia.

This year the Director bunches his revenue stamps instead of giving the

MR. DEALER

If you have not already done so, write at once for one of my wholesale approval selections. They contain a vast range of cheap sets and pictorial stamps at low prices. It is also in your interest to get a copy of my wholesale list for Packets and sets. You may order anything from this list, without sending cash in advance

Just give me the name of your banker and I will send all the sets and packets you require to him, with sight draft attached. Thus you will be able to inspect the stamps before you pay for them and do not risk to get anything which you didn't want. This method is pleasing many of my customers, so why not make a trial? For the season 1923-24, I have prepared a new packet 1000 different stamps, which I am calling

"The Wonder of the New Season"

This packet consists of 1000 all different postage stamps in good condition, without any fiscals, revenues or cut squares. They are contained in a large, white, stiff-back frame and the front is covered with the purest isinglass. On the top are arranged dozens of fine pictorial stamps which make this packet look extremely pretty. One or two "Wonders of the Season" should be in the window of every stamp dealer, where they will do wonders. I offer this packet at

Only 90 Cents

if 5 or more packets are ordered at a time. On receipt of $1.25 per registered letter, I shall be pleased to let you have a sample packet. The same fine lot of stamps, contained in a plain transparent envelope, costs only 70 cents, and for 1000 different stamps, so why pay more? It must be distinctly understood, however, that for this price I furnish a really first class packet, no trash or duplicates being included.

70 cents is a fair price

number of each denomination as heretofore so that his list is of little value to us in this case. We are further told that the Bureau prepared an exhibit for the Post Office Department which received an award at the International Philatelic Exposition in London.

Mr. Simpson Yeomans sends me a very neat list which he has had printed listing all possible positions of the booklet panes from 1898 to date. We cannot understand why he omits those issued for the American Expeditionary Force which are of the utmost importance. A supplementary list gives plate numbers of all booklets from 1910 to date. No price is mentioned so the list is probably distributed to interested parties free.

CHINA.—We have had forwarded to us by the Metropolitan Stamp Co. four values of very attractive stamps for use in this country together with the following information:

A very handsome set of stamps is that brought out by the Chinese Post Office in commemoration of the signing of the permanent constitution, samples of which have kindly been sent us by the Postal Commissioner.

The stamps are of one, three, four and ten-cent denomination in shades of yellow, green, red and blue respectively, and most attractively engraved. The central design is a reproduction of the Temple of Heaven at Peking, set in a composite frame consisting of a wreath and a pair of Ionic columns. The stamps are larger than the ordinary size and are in all respects a most attractive piece of work.

A limited number of sets were placed on sale at the Peking Road Post Office as from yesterday.

The values are 1 ochre, 3 green, 4 scarlet and 10c blue.

COCHIN STATE.—We are informed by T. A. Philo & Sons that the 2 on 3 pies, blue has been withdrawn from sale and in place a new 2 pies stamp has been issued. Our correspondent also adds that a new 6 pies stamp is on sale, and a new 8 pies on 9 pies together with a 10 pies Service stamp. The last two stamps have a portrait of the new Raja.

COLUMBIA.—From Br.-Gen. Ridgway we learn that the SERVICIO POSTAL AEREO overprint, exists forged on genuine stamps and also on stamps which are themselves forged.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.—Dr. V. Weinert states that on October 28th, the anniversary of the foundation of the Republic, a special commemorative series will be issued, bearing the portrait of President Masaryk, and sold at a premium in aid of some unspecified charity. A series for general postal use is also in contemplation owing to the frequent forgery of the current series with a view to defrauding the revenue. Paper watermarked with the monogram "C.S.P." ("Ceskoslovenska Posta") or "C.S.R." ("Ceskoslovenska Republica") will probably be used.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

FALKLAND ISLANDS.—The Philatelic Magazine is informed on credible authority that Falkland stamps have lately been used at South Georgia bisected in the following circumstances.

The Postmaster of South Georgia sent in a requisition for stamps, and it went astray. Consequently, he found his stock of low values running short, and he telegraphed for supplies to be hastened. No steamer was due to sail for South Georgia for some time, however, and when it became apparent that his stock was not likely to last out he again telegraphed, this time asking for permission to bisect stamps for immediate needs. This authority, according to our information, was wired to him. Stamps were accordingly bisected and used for half the face value of the entire stamp.

Unfortunately, we have not yet been able to ascertain what values were so treated, but it is understood they were few in number, and that with the arrival of new supplies their use has ceased.

FRANCE.—Kouang-Tcheou-Wan. — Although foreign post-offices in China are closing down we recently had to list a new set of stamps for use in this territory. Dr. F. P. Renaut explains the apparent anomaly, as he says that Kouang-Tcheou-Wan is virtually French territory, being leased to France by China. —Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal.

GERMANY.—Mr. Woodbury McLellan advises of the 1,000,000mk stamp in the new design. The color is blue.

We have received from Mr. R. Roberts the following new issues: 250,000 marks on 300mk green, 2,000,000mk on 300mk green and 10,000,000mk red in the new type.

HUNGARY.—Dr. V. Weinert draws our attention to the fact that the stamps of Hungary are beginning to appear on paper watermarked with a variation from the old double-cross device. The Apostolic Cross, given to St. Stephen, the first King of Hungary, by Pope Sylvester about 1000 years ago, still remains the main feature of the watermark, but four such crosses now spring, like spokes from the hub of a wheel, from a figure something like a circle. The double cross is part of the Hungarian Arms and stands upon three hills, indicating the three highest mountains of Hungary, named Tàtra, Fàtra, and Màtra (now in Czecho-Slovakia, which also includes them in her Arms). Thus the four crosses of the new watermark stand on wavy lines symbolising these hills, and these wavy lines form the apparent circle. The first stamp to appear with this watermark was the 200 kor. "Patrona Hungariæ" type.

Owing to the recent increase in postal rates all values to 100 kor. will now be in the Harvesters type, thence to 1,000 kor. in the Parliament type, and above that figure in the "Patrona" type.—Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal.

ITALY.—We are indebted to the Economist Stamp Co. and the Nassau Stamp Co. for copies of the Fascisti Commemoratives. The values and shades are 30c brown, 50c violet and 1 lira grey green. We learn from Stamp Collecting that these labels are on sale at double face, half for postage and the other half to the Fascisti Benevolent Fund. They are 2 by 1¼ inches in size.

JAPAN.—Mr. Elmer F. Smith sends for chronicle a pair of 1½ sen blue in imperforate condition, which he advises are Emergency stamps. The machines used in the manufacture of postage stamps were destroyed by the earthquake and these are to used only temporarily until new machinery is secured from Germany.

NIGERIA.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us the 4d on new yellow paper with script watermark.

HEJAZ. — Three provisional postage dues have been shown us by Messrs. Marsh & Fletcher. These are three values of the 1922 series with an Arabic inscription within a rectangle at foot all struck in black. ½p red, 1p blue and 2p orange.

THE J. E. HANDSHAW ADV.

We have just received a 5,000-line contract from the veteran dealer, J. E. Handshaw, and it means that he will be an active factor in our advertising columns during the next twelve months. His big advertisement in this issue is a striking one and must command attention. His book "Looking Backward" has had a large sale and every collector will do well to procure a copy.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS.

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the WEEKLY are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it.

LISTING A FEW SPECIAL COLLECTIONS AT BIG REDUCTIONS FOR THE OCCASION!

onsistent with the real, in-bred quality of every collection offered below, our prices are by far the lowest ever quoted. That our offerings are distinctly ifferent from ordinary "packets" may be easily judged from the testimonials below, and from the test invited on the 20,000-variety collection. This ame rigid test may be applied to every other collection offered under our name, and the results, comparatively, will be the same.

ny collection sold by us is subject to a five-day examination. Buy one, and compare it—quality for quality—with any standard selected by you. Anlyze its contents carefully, accurately; upon completion of your inspection, if you aren't highly pleased with the purchase in every respect, return it t our expense, and back will come your money without the slightest question.

e recommend any of the following to the serious collector, for investment, or to the dealer, for resale purposes.

Remember: "The Harris Line is Superfine"

4,000 Different British Colonies

MOUNTED IN BOOKS.

The completion of this collection represented an undertaking of conderable size, but we are highly gratified at the result of our labors, and re willing to guarantee that the lucky purchaser will feel that he has indeed btained the proverbial "bargain of a life time!" The difficulties encounered in assembling this collection may be doubly appreciated when we state at it contains only major varieties; in other words, absolutely no waterark, perforation or other minor differences. Practically all of the colnies are well represented and many of the stamps will catalogue up to veral dollars each. The condition is almost perfect throughout. We have nly one collection in stock, with no chance of obtaining another for a eriod of months, at least, so an early order will be necessary.

Price Until Sold Only $535.00

The Collection Supreme!

And Now Priced at $745

Here's the best news we've been able to report for many a day! Through lucky purchase, we are able to offer JUST ONE collection of 20,000 different stamps, all specially picked and selected specimens, for $745.00—a duction of exactly $150.00 from our regular price!

Words cannot do justice to the aristocratic and thoroughbred appearce of this excellent assembling, nor to the fineness and quality of the amps contained therein. It is easy enough to get together 20,000 stamps a kind, including a lot of unlisted varieties, but it's a different matter to tain a collection of the same number of standard and major varieties only, in the pink of condition, and containing a large number of the scarcer amps cataloguing up to $10.00 each.

The collection is mounted by countries in twenty ruled books. All untries of the world are represented, 20th century and new issues are ite strong, but the older issues are by no means neglected.

Don't confuse this offering with similar collections offered in this coun- and abroad, most of which contain thousands of telegraphs, revenues d minor varieties. We will back the quality of our collection against all mpetition, and the best proof of our sincerity is the fact that we are will- to allow a rigid three-day inspection by any prospective purchaser, who y return the stamps for a full refund if not more than pleased.

Dealers! Here's a chance to obtain a big collection of the most popu- stamps, which will prove a great "counter-book" attraction and draw res of collectors into your office. And every sale at half catalogue will resent a big profit for you! If you do an approval business, the collecn will solve the perplexing problem of catering to customers who want ooks by countries" or who send in want lists.

Mr. Collector! Our Bulletins, being of interest only to the trade, selm find their way into the hands of the collector. If you should by chance lucky enough to see this exceptional offer, remember the old adage, pportunity knocks but once", and act immediately! Don't forget: Our eral "money back if not satisfied" guarantee protects you in every way!

The Collection Supreme—20,000 Varieties

Special Price Until Sold

ONLY $745.00

PORTANT NOTICE!

In offering the above collection, we wish to distinctly emphasize the t that it is NOT an ordinary, foreign-made packet.

In order that the difference may be clearly recognized, we invite any spective customer to make the following test:

Go through the collection in a thorough manner and pick out ONE NDRED of the most valuable stamps or sets, cataloguing each one carely. Add up your figures, and we guarantee a total catalogue value of ween $1,000.00 and $1,500.00 will be found!

This test alone will show the impossibility of any comparison with an inary "packet".

A Few Unsolicited Testimonials

HUNDREDS OF OTHERS ON FILE.

British Colonies are money-makers:

The collection of 4,000 different British Colonies recently purchased from you is going fine! I buy from scores of dealers in many countries, but no one has ever given me the treatment I have always received from you.—C. S. ERNEST, 616 Pine St., Seattle, Wash.

Prompt service, superfine quality, recognized:

The 12,000-variety collection was most certainly a wonder and we expect to buy a larger one shortly. We are confining our patronage entirely to your firm, as we have found your prices and treatment unequalled by any dealer with whom we have come in contact during the last seventeen years.—H. W. MYERS & CO., Richmond, Calif.

There's a difference:

Allow me to congratulate you on being able to sell such a good packet for the money. Probably would not have noticed it so much, except for the fact that I received in the same mail a package from abroad containing less stamps, of about the same quality, at three times the price!—E. W. DETERMANN, Vincennes, Ind.

From far-off Hawaii:

The packet of 2,000 European you sent me some time ago was the cleanest lot of stamps I ever saw. The centering of most of the stamps was perfect, and someone must have gone to considerable trouble picking them. My new order for the 4,000-variety collection has just been received. It is truly wonderful value for the money!—OSWALD MAYALL, Vice-President, Hawaiian Philatelic Society, Donna, Honolulu, T.H.

10,000 All Different Stamps

"CHRISTMAS SPECIAL" AT $123.50

Chief of them all—"Quality-Bilt"

This collection represents the very best of our endeavors and should not be confused with ordinary variety packets. It contains thousands of the medium priced British, French and Portuguese colonies, hundreds of popular novelties, picture sets, South and Central America, etc., etc. Some of the stamps catalogue up to one dollar or more, and all are in the most perfect condition. The hundreds of minor varieties, telegraphs, etc., which appear in most foreign-made packets, are entirely excluded, and we guarantee every stamp to be a distinct listed variety. This point alone adds many dollars to the value of the collection. The stamps are all neatly mounted by countries in ten ruled approval books, and we believe the total catalogue value will reach $800.00!

We can't do justice on paper to this excellent assembling, but our "Money-Back-Guarantee" fully protects you.

A "Christmas Special" at $123.50 Net

14,250 Varieties Mounted

This is really a collection of over 15,000 varieties, but as usual with items of this nature emanating from Europe, there are several hundred locals, unofficial stamps, etc., which really cannot be counted as bona fide varieties. When we call attention to the fact that our price for a "Harrisco" quality collection of the same size is exactly $467.50, it's not hard to scent a real bargain in this offering. Catalogue value is not known, but we guarantee it to be sufficiently high to net a handsome profit on resales. Special price until sold, Only $250.00

5,000 Varieties Mounted

NOW ONLY $29.50

Very attractively mounted by countries in five books. British, French and Portuguese Colonies, as well as good South and Central America, will be found in abundance, while many of the new issues and Central Europe are in complete sets. Among other choice items is a complete set of Spain, Nos. 464-71, postally used (cat. $8), good stamps from Zanzibar, British Honduras, East Africa, Bosnia, North Borneo, Quelimane, Labuan, Trinidad, etc., etc. This collection is as different from the ordinary run of "packets" as day from night. Absolutely free of telegraphs, revenues, cut-squares, duplicates, damaged stamps and minor varieties. Just the thing for the dealer, exchanger or medium collector. Catalogue value guaranteed to exceed $200.00. Net Price $29.50

READ "A Little Book Story" THIS!

Good books are friends, and we all need friends; the more the better. Bad books are enemies, and we want to steer clear of such. We don't want our children to read such if we care for their welfare. We want them to read clean, helpful literature, something that will benefit them and is good for boys and girls, and, in this respect,

IS GOOD FOR GROWN UPS TOO!

Now, I have written a book, and many tell me it is a good book, but none have said

IT IS A USELESS BAD BOOK!

It is a book, simple, but true, and it tells my life story, which some say is remarkable, and many real genuine letters of praise have come to me, and many have spoken to me personally, and in more than one case they have ordered the second or third copy of my book. Strange, is it not? but true. Remember, no other person in the world like it, because it is my experience that is told. One person writes his book is not if he could not get another. Of course not, for he likes the book, and he is a big man, too, with many under him.

COULD WRITE A BOOK

FOR SALE AT ANY PRICE,

"LOOKING BACKWARD" IS THE BOOK

Remember I have been a stamp collector or dealer since the centennial year 1876, and my stamp finds and experiences which are related are worth much more than the price of the book. A copy of this fine illustrated volume of 330 pages, cloth binding, is $2.00, a nominal sum, that you can easily spare. The imitation leather binding, fine and attractive, is $2.75, and if you are a real

STAMP COLLECTOR OR DEALER, you may deduct 10% discount from the price, as

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT

STAMPS AT AUCTION

Your particular attention is called to the following lots, to be sold to the highest bidders. Stamps are in average to very fine condition, and none need be afraid to bid all they think the stamps are worth. Some bidders send in bids that are valueless. When you only care to bid 1/10 or less on decent stuff, you better not bid. We get such bids, and if there are no other bids on the lots, why we can reject such bids. All bids should be in in 20 days after the WEEKLY is issued.

A few years ago the Belmont Sta Co. of Philadelphia was a regular a vertising patron of the WEEKLY. T proprietor of the firm was John Wolter, whose interest in stamp colle ing is strong even though he has pass out of the dealer ranks. He sends u renewal for five years. wishing WEEKLY continued success and prosperi

In becoming a member of the Fi Year Renewal Club Arthur C. Willa accompanies his remittance of $5 with little find that he recently made, consi ing of a 5c 1847 on the original cov The stamp is in practically unused con tion and Mr. Willard may well pleased in adding this cover to collection.

We acknowledge the receipt of from F. D. Martin, proprietor of Renovo, Pa., Rexall store, who se membership in our Five-Year club. Martin will be remembered as a former vertiser in the WEEKLY and it is evid that business responsibilities in ot directions have made it impossible him to deal in stamps, though his inter as a collector is as keen as ever.

Tuesday, Nov. 27, was a great day the Honor Club, with no fewer th four proposals for membership, and accompanied with remittance for $5 five-year renewal of subscriptions. number included, H. A. Noble, civil gineer, 4956 Virginia Av., Kansas C Mo., E. A. Shaw of Portland, M Charles Beamish of the Davis Standa Bread Co., Los Angeles, Cal., and Cha E. Herrick, 3809 Ellis Ave., Chicago,

In connection with Mr. Herrick's newal we were made a bit acquain with one of his activities, the Instit of American Meat Packers. He is president of the Institute and at the c vention held at Atlantic City in S tember he delivered an address wh has been reprinted in pamphlet form 32 pages.

Mr. Shaw is treasurer of the firm Loring, Short & Harmon, Maine's la est booksellers and stationers.

We have been greatly interested applications have come in for the F Year Renewal Club to note the divers of interests and occupations found in ranks of philately. For instance, learn that John E. Stearns of Los geles is the honorary president of Tuna Club of that city. He renews five years but expresses the opinion t as he is now seventy-two matters are bit uncertain with him as to his philate interest five years from now. Just n he is "going strong."

Joseph H. Beattie, M. D., of Do Ferry, N. Y., has been interested philately for many years. In taking membership in the Honor Club he su mits some pages of a booklet quoti the prices paid for rare U. S. stam Dr. Beattie thinks that the offer of for a $5 State (and there are other offe just as ridiculous) is nothing short "taking candy from the children."

W. F. Kerr of Princeton, N. J., sa that he has a group of about a doz young boys that he has interested in c lecting and that Princeton will soon ha a philatelic society. He writes that has been reading the WEEKLY during the years of its existence and we a pleased to have him take his place as member of our Honor Club.

What paper of any country or a kind can produce a record like the abo —seven FIVE year renewals in single week with no premium of any ki as an inducement?

1c IMPERF. COILED 1912 ISSUE.

By ARTHUR H. ROBERTSON.

The 1c denomination of the 1912-15 perf. 12 issue, is listed by Scott's commendable 1924 catalogue, on page 21, as No. 405, while the imperforate variety of this stamp is listed as No. 408. As with all imperf. issues, the same are issued in sheets upwards to 400 and can usually be had in blox of any size desired up to a full sheet. I notice listed by the Philatelic Stamp Agency (refer to their list P. S. A. No. 8), under the heading "Coiled stamps 1912 series." No catalogue number given:

1c green, imperforate.

1c green, coiled lengthwise, imperforate.

Ordering ten each of above two varieties, I receive,

I. A strip of 10c green, coiled sidewise, imperforate.

II. A strip of 10 1c green, coiled lengthwise, imperforate.

I. Being the imperf. variety of the 8½ perf. horizontally, listed as No. 410.

II. Being the imperf. variety of the 8½ perf., vertically, listed as No. 412.

These stamps are printed from flat plates but are issued by the Bureau coiled imperforate, so why are they not entitled to catalogue number? They are a legitimate issue by the Bureau of—imperforated, flat plate, coil stamps.

The remarks above referring to the 1c denomination also includes the 2c carmine of the same issue, as I have today received both the 1c and 2c from the Philatelic Stamp Agency.

My contention is that both are entitled to catalogue rank for the sole reason, as outlined above, No. 408 can be found in a block of say 10x10 while the stamps under question are issued by the Bureau coiled and strips of any length can be had up to a full roll. It is true, in the end it's the same stamp, but issued by the Bureau in an entirely different form.

WHY McCRAITH SPEAKS CHINESE.

"Ho sen!"

This call in a high tenor echoed up a dark stairway in Chinatown of a big eastern city.

"Ho sen!"

The quick answer filtered down from the second floor accompanied by shuffling of slippered feet. In a moment the slouching shoulders and the smiling face of an Oriental was revealed in the sunlight streaming in the street door.

"Lo, Jemmy," said the Chinaman in choppy accent.

"Jemmy," who was fussing with a strapped packet in his arms, at home and at the office, answers to the name of "Jimmy" and on the rolls he is James McCraith, who has been letter carrier in the Chinatown of his city for 18 years.

"Jemmy" found what he sought in his packet and started to sing—at least it sounded like singing:

"Yet Sun Mon Gee—Soo Jip Paw—Yet Sen."

What idiocy! No idiocy at all. Postman McCraith is merely telling his patron that he has a newspaper, a small catalog, and a letter for him.

The Postal Service delving into every civilized corner of the 3,000,000 square miles of these United States gets into some queer and romantic places, and Chinatown is one of them. James McCraith, of Scotch ancestry, is the friend of all Chinatown, and Chinatown is the friend of James McCraith, who has picked up Chinese so that he may deliver the mail efficiently. Incidentally he keeps his voice limber, because Chinese is sung and not spoken. Three one-syllable words tripping up the scale do not mean the same as the three words tripping down the scale.

"Jemmy's" repertoire is quite short, and curiously enough the prettiest tune means "sign your name." The words are "ting-o-ming," with "ting" high, "o" low and "ming" back up to high again.

It is a credit to both Chinatown and James McCraith, postman, that the residents of this section of this great city bought more than a million dollars' worth of Liberty bonds through him.

MARKS STAMP CO. TORONTO, CANADA

AIR POST STAMPS OF LITHUANIA.

By Autolycus.

The Lithuanian air post was inaugurated on July 26, 1921, with a daily service between Kowno, Konigsberg, and Dantzig, which was subsequently extended to Riga. The tariff was fixed at 5 auksinai per 20 grammes, and 3 auks for each additional 20 grammes, up to a maximum of 900 grammes weight.

Anticipating the commencement of the service a set of three special stamps had already been placed on sale on June 25th, lithographed in oblong format by the firm of Margolin at Kowno on paper watermarked with a hexagon pattern, and perforated 11½. The design of the 1 auk. value shows a single aeroplane in flight, the 2 auk. three aeroplanes in line, and the 5 auk. an aeroplane flying over the Castle of Kowno. These designs were the work of M. Pukas, and uniformly inscribed "Lietuva Oro Pastas" (Lithuanian Air Post). To these were added, in November following, four "skatidu" denominations bearing the device of a winged posthorn and lettered as before.

On November 1, 1921, was released a series of commemorative stamps, originally intended to mark the inauguration of the air mail service, but which could not be ready in time for the event. Accordingly the stamps were made available for ordinary as well as aerial postage. The entire issue is said to have been exhausted in five days.

The subject of the design is a classical female figure, symbolising the spirit of the air, supporting an aeroplane with upstretched arms. Along the sides of the stamps are the words "Oro Pastas Isteigimas" (Inauguration of the Aerial Post). They are lithographed and perforated as before.

In connection with a national aviation meeting from July 22 to 25, 1922, three triangular stamps, depicting an aeroplane flying over the city of Kowno, were placed on sale. These constituted the original commemorative series, which was to have been issued on the occasion of the first flight, planned for June 25, 1921. The date was therefore erased and the word "Zenklas" (stamp) overprinted so as to cover the inscription "Isteigimas," in which form the stamps served for both ordinary and aerial postage.

Consequent on the extension of the service to Moscow, new denominations of 2, 4 and 10 auk., were included in the regular air post series as from July 22, 1922.

It is understood that the Lithuanian air post is partially suspended during the winter months.

THE TALKING PARROT.

EDITORIAL REFERENCE TO THIS PLAY WINS A LETTER OF APPRECIATION

EDITORIAL IN PART.

An astute playwright, Hutcheson Boyd, aware, no doubt, that philately's star is in the ascendant, makes a stamp collector the hero of "The Talking Parrot," which opened September 10th, we read, at Kathleen Kirkwood's Triangle Theatre, in Greenwich village. The stamp collector certainly has come into his own and we shall assuredly give ourselves airs now that a discriminating dramatist has selected him to stand forth as the hero of a play that must be a success. From a review of the comedy that has been read, it is evident that the parrot shares the lime-light with the collector-hero, who is impersonated by John Parrish, but there is no jealousy between the two on that score, as the real talking parrot is so well trained that he speaks only when spoken to.

TO THE EDITOR:

I was so pleased with your editorial in your paper of October 8th, that I took the liberty of reproducing it, as per the enclosed, giving the proper credit. The paper was brought to my notice by Mr. Frank W. Crane, who writes articles on stamps in the New York Times, and whom you no doubt know.

You will be interested to learn that since this play was produced in Greenwich Village, it has been entirely rewritten, and the stamp theme greatly enlarged and strengthened. The play today should be fine propaganda in the interest of philately, and I am sure, from the kindly write-up you gave "The Talking Parrot," that we can depend upon your co-operation.

My good friend, Julius Morgenthau, has been a great help to me, also a number of other well-known stamp collectors, among them Charlie Phillips, who are enthusiastic over the play and are giving us their fine support.

We opened with our new version in Trenton yesterday and it was well received. I am enclosing you a newspaper notice herewith. Anything you can do to boost this play along will be heartily appreciated.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER VII.

The 1890 Provisional.

Sometime in 1890 there was apparently a shortage of 2 centimes stamps and a provisional of the required denomination was created by overprinting a number of the then current 3c stamps with a large numeral "2" with "DEUX" curved above it and "CENT." below. This variety was first chronicled in the Monthly Journal for November, 1890, from a copy postmarked "6 Oct" and used from Port-au-Prince. Probably, therefore, this provisional was issued early in October.

The surcharge was printed in red and was applied by means of a handstamp. Consequently there are innumerable minor varieties in the shape of missing and defective letters. The surcharge may also be found inverted, double, treble, and in pairs, one being inverted and one normal. We have also had pairs one of which was without overprint.

CHAPTER VIII.

The First Palm Tree Issue.

In 1891 a set of stamps in an entirely new design was issued. The 2c was recorded in the Monthly Journal for February, 1891, and 3c and 5c were mentioned in the following May, and the 1c and 7c were listed in July. Apparently there was still a plentiful supply of the 20c of the Liberty Head type on hand and consequently this denomination was not included in the new series.

The design is the same for all five values and consists of the Arms of the Republic, i.e., a palm tree with branches outspread, surmounted by a small cap of Liberty; on each side is a cannon with muzzle pointing away from the tree. On the breech of the left-hand cannon is a helmet, while on the other is a shako. In the centre in front of the tree is a drum (possibly one of those used to call the devotees of vaudoux together) with an anchor on each side. In the background five flags and a bayoneted rifle are shown at both right and left. There are ornamental borders at the sides, that on the left being decorated with oak leaves, and the one on the right with leaves of laurel. In the upper corners are large squares containing the numerals of value, and between these is a small rectangular frame containing the word "CENT." An uncolored tablet extends right across the base and on this "REPUBLIQUE D'HAITI" is shown in colored sans-serif capitals.

These stamps were engraved in taille-douce and according to Gibbons catalogue were printed in Paris. In Gibbons Stamp Weekly (Vol. VII, page 232) Mr. W. Ward asserts that these stamps were printed by Messrs. Waterlow & Sons, Ltd., of London, but fails to give any proof in support of this statement. The same writer also infers that the perforating was done in Hayti by a machine belonging to the government, but we have been unable to trace any data that could be construed as giving color to this surmise or any evidence that Hayti at any time possessed such a luxury as a perforating machine. The methods by which the plates were made does not tally with any of Waterlow's known methods; there is no marginal imprint such as one usually finds in connection with Waterlow's work; the paper and gum are very unlike that generally used by this firm; and the perforation is certainly not Waterlow's. Finally, writing in Le Timbre Poste for January, 1891, M. Le Roy d'Etiolles says, "I have seen the new type of the stamps that are to be put in use on the 1st of January, 1891. It has been made in Paris, etc., etc.," and as M. d'Etiolles wrote from Paris we may reasonably assume that this statement was correct.

These stamps were printed in sheets of fifty arranged in five horizontal rows of ten each and the method by which the plates were made is quite interesting. The original die—probably engraved on steel—showed the design complete with the exception of the numerals of value, the tablets for these in the upper corners being left blank.

From the die a small plate of ten impressions in two vertical rows of five was made, thus:—

9	10

This small plate was then reduplicated four times and the five groups were placed side by side and thus formed a complete plate of fifty impressions as follows:—

1	2	1	2	1	2	1	2	1	2
3	4	3	4	3	4	3	4	3	4
5	6	5	6	5	6	5	6	5	6
7	8	7	8	7	8	7	8	7	8
9	10	9	10	9	10	9	10	9	10

Each of the stamps in the small group of ten has some small identifying mark, a dot or a scratch, etc., and the fact that this method was employed can be at once proved by No. 5, in each block of ten which has a large dot like a hyphen between the letters "QU" of "REPUBLIQUE."

After one plate of fifty impressions was completed this entire plate was reduplicated and from this second plate three others were made so that there five plates in all, one for each deination. Mr. L. W. Crouch was, we ve, the first writer to mention the esting manner in which the plates this issue were constructed and we ot do better than reproduce his fs as they appeared in the Stamp

r:—

he small plate of ten stamps was oduced five times to create a plate of mpressions in 5 rows of 10. The plate made differed from all the rs, and was ultimately used for the itimes value, the figures of value be-ngraved in the value tablets by hand.
before this was done, this plate in its was used for producing a second
. That this was so may be noted other marks peculiar to certain ps in the sheets of all values; for nce, there is a large dot between the d N of CENT on the 3rd stamp in th row, there is a stroke across the limb of the second U of REPUB-
JE on the 10th stamp in the 3rd there is a large dot just off the right f the T of CENT on the 3rd stamp
e 5th row, and a large dot is attached to the line over the T of CENT on the 10th stamp in the 4th row. Those are only the most prominent varieties, but as a fact nearly every stamp in the sheet has some little distinguishing feature, apart altogether from the above-mentioned distinguishing marks which have been inherited from the small plate of ten. All values of this issue can be plated comparatively easily, especially when in strips or blocks, though some of the marks are minute.

As I have said, the first full-sized plate to be made was allocated to the 2 centimes. This plate differed from all the others, for in producing a second plate for one of the other values, two flaws or breaks appeared in the second plate; the first plate does not show these two defects. The defects are as follows:—the left hand value tablet on the 7th stamp in the 3rd row is broken opposite the C of CENT, and the same tablet on the 4th stamp in the 4th row is also broken but lower down below the label inscribed CENT. It is evident that this defective plate was used for producing the remaining three plates necessary to complete the set, at these broken value tablets are to be found on the 1 centime, 3 centimes, 5 centimes and 7 centimes, but not on the 2 centimes which were, as I have stated already, printed from the first full-sized plate made.

One of these broken tablets was evidently noticed on the 1 centime plate as it is clear that an attempt was made to retouch the 7th stamp on the 3rd row and to repair the damage."

When the plates were completed the numerals of value were then engraved. The numerals may have been inserted by means of punches and then touched up by hand, or they may have been engraved entirely by hand. We think the latter is the more probable method, for the numerals differ greatly in size and shape often on the same stamp. This is particularly noticeable in the case of the 5 centimes, the figures differing in size and shape and also in the length of the flag. While these varieties are too minute to describe in print they are sufficiently apparent to make the plating of these stamps a fairly easy matter.

According to Gibbons catalogue the perforation of this set is "13, 13½," Mr. Crouch says it varies from "13 to 13½," while Mr. Melville and Scott's catalogue both agree that it is "13." We have examined a number of these stamps and find the perforation is a uniform 13½ without variation of any kind. It was the work of a single-line machine. The paper is white wove, fairly thin, and the gum is thin and colorless.

All values are known imperforate vertically and the 7c also exists entirely imperforate. This latter appears to be a legitimate error but other denominations found imperforate but without gum are believed to be printer's waste. All values have been recorded perforated 16 but we have never seen them.

Numerous varieties of shade may be found especially in the case of the 1c, 2c and 3c values. The latter exists in a slate gray shade, quite distinct from the ordinary lilac tint, and it is said that the supply printed in this color was due to an error on the part of the printers.

HOLLAND, Nos. 1, 2, 3

The amalgamation of three small collections of first issue Holland gives us a few hundred exceptionally fine copies of these stamps. These are not the ordinarily fine copies of commerce, but the wide-margined, fresh-colored brand sought by the connoisseur. Except for the "horn" types and a few strong recuts, these stamps have not been scrutinized for minor varieties.

Billions of Marks

Here are some of the highest value stamps ever issued for Danzig and Germany. Danzig has already changed her currency to gold basis and is using the Gulden as a basis. The 5gld stamp is the highest value in the set. Germany will likely go onto a different currency basis soon.

We can supply practically everything in recent Germans and Danzig and offer some below. Anything you want in these or other stamps you do not see offered, let us know and we'll send if it's here. Our connections are of the best and prices reasonable. For offers in these and thousands of other first class stamps, get Phillips' Monthly Bulletin, 24 pages and free for the asking.

THE HEART OF THE DIAMOND.

A. Beecher & Sons—Swift & Courtney—Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co.—Diamond Match Co.

A. Beecher & Sons.

1c Orange.

This concern played an extremely important part in the development of the match business in America. They were not only engaged in the manufacture of matches but also manufactured machinery for making matches and it is believed that the very strong position which the successors of this firm obtained, and which may have had considerable to do with the formation and the success of the Diamond Match Co., was the result of early Beecher patents on match making machinery. At any rate there must be a great deal of truth in the assertion that to a very important extent the earliest successful efforts to produce machines for making matches took place in New Haven County, Connecticut, within a few miles of the City of New Haven itself.

The firm of A. Beecher & Son is listed in Briggs Connecticut Business Directory for 1856 and was located in Westville, Connecticut, which is a suburb of New Haven on the northwest border of the city, and is separated from the city itself by a small stream called West River. The village nestles at the foot of the lofty crags on the westerly side of a high hill known as West Rock, on whose summit is the cluster of boulders enclosing the "Judges Cave" of Colonial history.

The New Haven Directory for 1868 lists the firm of A. Beecher & Sons, the members being A. Beecher, E. B. Beecher, L. W. Beecher, and J. L. Pierpont. Later directories list the firm up to 1870, but in that year the firm became merged with the Swift & Courtney business of Wilmington, Delaware, and the new firm took the name of Swift & Courtney and Beecher Co. From and after 1882 the Westville factory appears only under the title "The Diamond Match Co." The founder of the firm was Andrew Beecher, and although the original firm name appears as A. Beecher & Sons, in the Boston Book, the Directories usually give the title as A. Beecher & Son.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Dec. 2, 1864.
First issued, Mar., 1865.
Last issued, Sept., 1874.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
20,985,340 issued on old paper.
4,656,150 issued on silk paper.

The present writer cannot reconcile the date of the approval of the Beecher die as stated with the letter from Commissioner Lewis to Butler & Carpenter, dated Dec. 12, 1864, and quoted on page 123 of the Boston Book. The Commissioner's letter states:

"I herewith return model for match stamps with my approval. Be pleased to make the design of A. Beecher & Son, Cowles & Leete, and any others which you may hereafter prepare, conform in their general features to this model, with such variations as to name, etc., as to render them sufficiently distinctive."

The Boston Book states that this action brought forth a storm of protest, and on January 6, 1865, Mr. Lewis again wrote Mr. Carpenter reversing his position and mentioning a communication from the Beecher firm. (See article on the P. T. Ives 8c stamp.) Some time between October 17, 1864, and December 12, 1864, the Commissioner decided that all designs for private die match stamps were to be "similar in shape to those used for Fahnesstock's Vermifuge or Hostetter's Bitters—perhaps a little longer than the former, but not necessarily so long as the latter—in order that they may be attached to the box in such a manner that it cannot be opened without destroying the stamp." As the Beecher stamp which was actually used was of the standard 1c size previously in use and much smaller than the model to which it was intended all subsequent match stamps should conform, it is rather difficult to believe the Commissioner would have approved the small die at the very time when he was instructing Butler & Carpenter to make all the match stamps of the size and shape used for the Cowles & Leete 8c (P. T. Ives).

The present writer believes the correpondence clearly indicates that the Beecher die was not approved until after January 6, 1865, when the Commissioner had abandoned his idea that all the match stamps should conform to the model from which the 8c P. T. Ives stamps were designed and that the delay of three months between December, 1864, an March, 1865, was caused by the reluctan of the Beecher and other firms to u large stamps like the 8c Ives and by t time required to engrave and print t Beecher stamp after the Commissio had decided to allow them to use t small stamp first issued in March, 186 Certainly the present writer has seen evidence that a large Beecher die w ever in existence, and the corresponden indicates that only a large die would ha been approved by the Commissioner December, 1864.

The Beecher stamp is truly a gem, an one is well justified in stating that all the match stamps were as well d signed and as pretty as this one, t group as a whole would command greater measure of popularity than it h ever possessed. No doubt the desig was greatly influenced by the strong fee ing of patriotism for the Union whic so abounded in the North after the r election of President Lincoln in the fa of 1864.

At the very time when the contem plated shape and size of this stamp wa under discussion, Tecumseh Sherman an the 60,000 soldiers with him were figh ing their way from Atlanta to the se engaged in what many "fireside critics in the north feared was the crazy ad venture of a lunatic but which turne out to be one of the most successfu ats of military strategy in modern his-

ry. The success of Sherman's plan make it impossible for the Southern ates to supply their armies with provions from the rich farms of Georgia ought ruin and devastation to the uth, but greatly hastened the day—aly a few months later — when the uth could no longer continue the ter-le struggle, and the enemies of Ameri-
, whose jealousy of the growing power free institutions had cherished the pe that the great Republic of the west ght be permanently divided, saw one g again floating over one united untry.

In the center of the stamp is an oval, e outer part of which consists of a nd of solid color bearing thirteen fiveinted colorless stars, seven at the top
d six at the bottom, and at either end, closed in a small oval, is the numeral
This band surrounds a regular colors oval upon which is inscribed the ited States flag waving in the breeze.
e four corners of the stamp are comsed of large acanthus scrolls, each of ich encloses a disk of solid color.
ch disk bears a colorless character, the ur making up the initial of the firm, ose at the top being A and B and those the bottom being & and S? The disks connected by curved panels, the up-reading "U. S. Inter. Rev. the lower ding "Matches," that at the left inibed ONE and the one at the right ent." Between these panels and the tral oval and separating the band conning the stars from the oval contain-the flag, is a background formed of allel lines.

Probably there were two or three tes all of which were made by the rpenter firm in Philadelphia, and all stamps were printed there. There is not a great deal of variation in shade in the stamps on old paper, but the paper itself varies considerably and owing to the large quantity of stamps printed it is quite probable that it occurs on all the varieties of old paper used. The experimental silk paper is quite scarce and copies on the thicker paper of 1870 are seldom found. The latter printing is more reddish in shade than the earlier printings on thin paper. Copies on the full silk paper of the second issue are apt to be very much redder and might be called vermilion. The old paper was used both by A. Beecher & Son and by the firm of Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co. The silk paper was used only by the latter firm. Specimens on old paper are occasionally found with a printed cancellation or surcharge. The writer has noted two varieties, but has no information as to why this surcharge, if it is a surcharge, was made or by whom it was used.

E C H Dec 1869 (a)	E C H July 1869 (b)

Surcharge (a) is placed to read when the stamp is in normal position, surcharge (b) is printed sideways and on the copy noted the top is toward the right end of the stamp. Probably it is only a coincidence that the three letters E C H form the middle of the word Beecher.

The stamp is not known to have been used in multiple and no pairs, strips or blocks have come to the writer's attention.

The Beecher stamp is quite plentiful on old paper and although frequently oxidized to a dirty blackish brown color, can readily be restored and the stamp again becomes truly a thing of beauty. Extremely fine copies are only a small percentage of the available supply and have always been desirable at close to the catalog price. Scott quoted the stamp on either old or silk paper at 20c in 1886, but the Sterling quotation in 1888 was 50c. The stamp has ranged from 50c to 80c since 1894. The silk paper is much scarcer and really fine copies do not come into the market very frequently. The quotations ranged from $1.00 to $1.50 up to 1901, when the present quotation of $2.00 was established.

Early in 1879 two of the initials on the Beecher die were altered and a new plate was made for the Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co. from the altered die. Stamps from this plate will be considered under the article on the Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co.

(To be continued.)

A. P. S. BRANCH AT SPRINGFIELD, MO.

Announcement was made yesterday by William Hoffman, prominent Springfield stamp collector, that a branch society of the national American Philatelic society will be organized here.

A communication was received yesterday by Mr. Hoffman from Dr. H. A. Davis, of Denver, Colo., secretary of the national stamp society in which he says, in part: "Five or more members or applicants for membership may organize a branch. To obtain a charter it is only necessary to make out an application in the regular way. The branch becomes a stockholder and may vote through its officers or by proxy the same as an individual. All its officers must be A. P. S. members, but it may admit to local membership non-members of the A. P. S."

Among leading philatelists, stamp collectors who expect to join are Dr. J. P. Ferguson, of the Springfield Board of Education, C. C. Leaderer, of Leader's Confectionery; Dr. V. O. Pranter, Paul Doernenburg, Frisco chemist; John Nagle, E. G. Smith, of the Gardner Produce Company; Ira Hall, Levy-Wolf Dry goods company; Clinton L. Chalfant, of the Chalfant Stamp Company; and William Hoffman, of the Springfield Wagon Company. Men of all professions are interested in the forming of the local club. Hoffman and Chalfant are new members of the national society.

Mr. Hoffman said last night that a meeting will be called shortly, time and place to be announced later, at which time the branch society will be formed.

Since the story some days ago, told exclusively in the Republican about the great interest in stamp collecting in Springfield, local book stores have been besieged with demands from young collectors for stamps, albums and catalogs. Some booksellers have frames of stamps in their windows, of rare and curious stamps.—Springfield Republican.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE "WEEKLY".

We have on hand a few bound volumes of the Weekly, and offer them for sale at very reasonable prices. The years in question are 1902, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909. The price of these books is $2 each and this price is extremely reasonable in view of the high cost of binding in these days. Just to show you what we can do in the way of a handsome, substantial sample volume of the Weekly we will send you the year 1907 for $1.50 plus the zone parcel post charges on three pounds. This offer is for immediate acceptance.

(This department deals only with U. S. issued before 1890 and mainly postal issues. The editor cannot give valuations on minor varieties, etc. Stamps sent for examination should be of interest because of oddity, scarcity, etc., or to clear up some debated question. Postage should be enclosed with registration fee when desired, also self-addressed envelope. —Ed.)

Major C. H. Bonesteel of West Point seems to have run to earth the real status of the rarities of the U. S. 2c red brown, 1883—the one showing heavy shading at left and right under shield—the other showing no shading. The data which he has submitted seems almost conclusive evidence that the variety showing full shading is a recut made in 1886. I am inclined to believe from a study of this data that the original plate showed a faint shading under the shield, that this shading became merged with lines of background as the plate was used and that later it was recut.—Ed.

Major Bonesteel says, "since I made my original inquiry of you regarding shading I have been over an unpicked lot of several thousand and from them have gotten together some 400 dated copies. The dates show on covers, parts of covers and on the stamps themselves. From these I have gotten together a rather interesting lot of data. Interesting to me at least. The table which follows gives what I have found.

Date.	Total Number.	Without Shading.	Faint Shading.	Full Shading
1882*	2	1	1	0
1883	70	60	10	0
1884	233	208	25	0
1885	37	27	10	0
1886	36	0	0	36
1887	32	0	0	32
Total	410

* Don't understand this year date. May be some careless mail clerk.

I don't think ink or the lack of ink explains the above data and I am convinced that at some time, probably around the latter part of '85 either new plates were made, or at least the old ones recut, and very definitely recut. Of the 400 odd stamps there isn't a single "full shading" before 1886. Another point I noticed was the fact that practically all stamps dated 1883 were the dark or deep shade while those of 1884 and later were mostly of the lighter shade.

If you think this information of interest to others I will keep the stamps as found, but some time soon I want to soak them off the book for switch watermarks, etc."

Albert B. Randall, Whitestone, Long Island, N. Y., writes:—

"In reference to your article in Mekeels of Sept. 24, 1923, re-arrows, 1869 issue, I have in my collection the 2c is unused and perfectly centered, the 6c not so good, being off at the top, both stamps perfectly perforated."

It now appears that this matter is pretty fully explained in Mr. Luff's admirable book. As I have explained in a previous article, it was quite likely in running this department that we would bring up matters which had been previously written up thoroughly by some of the experts.

However, we cannot feel that the effort is wasted as there are many reading this department who have never had a chance to read all the standard work and articles on specialization in early United States and these readers, we find, enjoy the rehashing of a subject that is old to some collectors, and profit by it.

The collector, who is following the tip given an earlier number to clip the different issues of this department and classify them in a loose leaf book will find that he is by now circumulating a rather valuable store of information in a very compact and usable form.

W. G. Whittaker of Cleveland, Ohio, was in Buffalo recently and showed the local collectors some very fine specialized items. One was a two cent, 1883, red brown (light shade). with a cancellation consisting of a goat standing on his hind legs. The color of the ink used for this cancellation, which was in black, seemed to be O. K., and there was every indication that this was a genuine cancellation. The writer has never heard of such a cancellation and it would be interesting to find a duplicate of it on cover showing the town of origin. The animal in question was standing on a bit of shaded ground. The height of the cancellation was approximately 11 millimeters.

Another item exhibited by Mr. Whittaker was a three cent, 1861, with a perfect Masonic emblem in a dotted circle. In the center of the square and compass was a small capital "G." The piece was on cover, postmarked Sandwich, N. H. A very fine looking item.

There was also on another three cent, '61 cover, a fine shield outlined rather heavily, with straight cross bars in the space usually containing the field for stars, and six vertical bars in the lower part. The postmark was —— mford, Ct. No date. Mr. Whittaker also showed a three cent, '57 cancelled with a grid within a three-ring target, postmarked Trumansburgh, N. Y.

While not exactly falling under the heading, "Early Low Values Specialized," the writer cannot help mentioning an item that was the piece de resistance of Mr. Whittaker's stock. This was a beautiful block of four of the five cent 1851, on cover from Wilmington, Del. (black), carrying the red "New York—7—Br. Pt. Paid" on both stamp and cover, to Wurtemberg, Germany. The piece was in nice condition, considering its rarity.

"A Thing of Beauty is a Joy Forever"
We made a special effort to secure the following exceptionally beautiful stamps because we believe that they will greatly add to the attractiveness of any stamp collection and for that reason any of them constitutes a very appropriate Christmas present.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Herbert A. Feaster, 33 Stevens St. Long Island City, N. Y., has an accumulation of back numbers of the Weekly that he will be pleased to bestow upon the library of some philatelic club or society. Interested parties may communicate with Mr. Feaster, who is a member of our Five-Year Honor Club. All that will be required in payment is to meet the transportation charges.

—A. W. Draves of Milwaukee, Wis. has shown us a 3c violet envelope postmarked June 28, 1923, with what he calls the "ancient sunburst." We confess that it has a striking resemblance to this curious cancellation of bygone days.

—We are greatly obliged to our many readers who are keeping us posted concerning the decline in the value of the German mark. Day after day letters are being received with marks mounting into the billions used in payment of postage. We think it unnecessary to take the space to describe the numerous covers that have been submitted for our inspection.

—"I am in receipt of a registered letter from Germany today franked with stamps to the value of 125 billion marks. That seems to top the record so far I guess, but perhaps not. Wonder if the old fashioned collector ever believed such covers would be added to collections. (There were ten "10 milliarden" and five "5 milliarden" stamps."—W. F. Ferguson.

—Will you please mention something about the Davenport Stamp Collectors Club? We meet every two weeks (next meeting Dec. 28) Room 26 McCullough Bldg., Davenport. We now have eight members, and have applied to be an A. P. S. Branch. Any collector in the vicinity will be welcome to any meeting.—Wilbur F. Cannon.

—In a little lot of postally used Bolivian stamps which have come on correspondence to a London business house we have found a number of copies of the 1 bolivar value, cut diagonally and used as a 50c value. We cannot see this provisional listed in any catalogue, and no doubt it may be of interest to your readers.—Bright & Son.

—The Weekly has been asked to send a French stamp album to a boy in France who was referred to the care of a Chicagoan during the war and who is still attracting the interest of his "guardian."

—A correspondent says that he has been told that the prices in the new Scott catalogue take effect with the year 1924,

We are unable to er Mr. Anderson to an article on the ject but perhaps some of our readers y set him on the right track.

-Mr. Irving Dickinson, Chicago, shows a three cent of 1861, U. S., on the er with the Bath, Maine, postmark ring the date of Jun. 7, 1834. A little lection of postmark errors carries a ious interest with it.

-Madrid Filatelico begins the publi- on of a paper, The Postage Stamp its Value, Past, Present and Future, ering three periods, the first, from origin to 1870 or 1875; the second, m 1875 to 1908, and third, 1908 to 3.

-The one penny New Zealand, show- the map of that country, is coming for sharp criticism in the newspapers the colony and it is intimated that a nge in the outlines of the islands on stamp may be ordered.

—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal says that the Harding stamp shows the advantages to be found in having the central design on a white background and adds that this stamp is a creditable production as the result of a month's work on it.

—A father who aids and abets his son in collecting says that he has been travelling extensively of late as they journey in imagination to some far-off stamp country by devoting hours to examining the stamps and reading all the information available about the place. This is a good way to sugar-coat geography and so on.

—Will the reader who some time ago, when the subject of used high values of the 1869 issue, U. S., on cover, was to the fore, wrote to say that when he was employed as office boy to one of the "readers" of a Boston publishing firm, give us his name and address? It is remembered that he told of the receipt of a package of manuscript by the publishing firm prepaid by a ninety cent of 1869.

—"A man wants to know 'Which is rarer—Tonga or Raratonga?' This is for your 'Fool Colyum'"—H. P. A.

—The bull market in United States is beginning to have the effect of causing collectors here and there to revise their collecting lines. Several readers have sold their U. S. issued before 1890 in order to collect the issues from 1890 to date in a pain's-taking way.

—"What has become of the ninety cent of 1857-60?" asks a subscriber. "Some time ago I came across the stamp rather often but latterly it is conspicuous by its absence from accustomed haunts."

—There is no better Christmas gift than stamps and dealers should issue gift certificates entitling the holders to so many dollars' worth of stamps, as do the sellers of merchandise in other lines.

—The New York Times covers the story of the alleged theft by a postal employee of thousands of dollars' worth of damaged unused United States stamps which instead of being destroyed were sold by him at a discount, in the following manner:

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—A confession that he has systematically robbed the Post Office Department of stamps valued at approximately $75,000 after nearly twenty-five years in its service has been obtained, according to Federal officials from Herman C. Davis.

Davis is at liberty under $5,000 bond, fixed yesterday by United States Commissioner George B. MacDonald after he had signed the confession and offered restitution in part. In his sworn statement, which was submitted to Frank Kelly, Assistant United States Attorney, he admitted having planned the thefts carefully and carried them out for four years.

His work on a committee charged with destroying damaged stamps returned to the department, the confession asserts, enabled him to take them and then swear to their destruction.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Dec. 1.—Post Office Inspector R. A. Ward this afternoon asserted that Herman C. Davis had received more than $100,000 in the last two years from stamps sold to an official of the C. E. Hussman Stamp Company of this city, but that the company did not know the stamps had been stolen.

Davis is alleged by Mr. Ward to have sold the stamps at discounts tanging from 25 to 60 per cent. Mr. Ward says also that the official of the Hussmann Company resold the stamps to mail order houses in the East at a discount of 5 per cent. from their face value.

The name of the official of the company was withheld. Mr. Ward said the official first met Davis in 1918 in answering an advertisement inserted by Davis in an Eastern newspaper seeking to locate rare stamps. In correspondence that followed Davis represented himself as a stamp collector, it was said, but his connection as a Government employe was not known to the company. He bought numerous postage stamps, the sales to him exceeding $5,000. Most of these were paid for with current postage stamps, it was said.

MONOPOLY OF RUSSIAN STAMPS.

The newspapers are carrying a copyrighted despatch from Moscow dealing with the decision of the Soviet government to give Maurice Sherman of New York City a monopoly of the sale of Russian stamps in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Central and South America and France. Of course we cannot publish in detail the story as given, but it is evident that a large stock of Russian stamps will come upon the market.

EDITORIAL.

The idea of a philatelic week is borrowed from one of our correspondents who made the suggestion in our columns some time ago that we imitate the sponsors of other movements, such as Safety Week, Apple Week, etc., and proclaim a "stamp week." A plan is offered whereby practical application may be made of the idea and that is, instead of trying to cover the nation, a city campaign be started under the auspices of the philatelic society or other organization in some center of philately. As much publicity should be got for the "week" as possible in the local newspapers and from a headquarters that should be established temporarily, stamp packets and philatelic reading matter could be distributed. At this place a talk on the pleasures of collecting should be made and a dozen collectors or so might be authorized to explain patiently to prospects what the advantages of orderly collecting are. The enterprise of the collectors of the city could be exercised to good effect, we feel sure; and the advisability of bringing collecting directly to the notice of the home folks is admitted. Some time ago, the Chicago Philatelic Society held a Chicago Night which was open to the public and on that occasion the parlor overflowed with over one hundred members and visitors, who looked over the exhibits of Chicago locals, early postmarks on letters and Lincoln patriotic envelopes and listened to Mr. Cabeen's paper on Chicago's postal history. It happens that since that time the meetings of the Chicago Philatelic Society have been particularly well attended; and the good that the meeting did has been shown in various ways. What city will be the first to give the "stamp week" a trial?

In an interview with Mr. Charles J. Phillips, who, as managing director of Stanley Gibbons, Limited, London, gained world-wide renown, he made some interesting observations, which, as illustrating the view point of an astute philatelist who has cast his lot with American philately, have an admitted value. It is not necessary to say that now as Mr. Phillips has taken his place permanently with us, he becomes an important factor in the stamp trade here, as the fact must be self-evident. Mr. Phillips is an advocate of organized action and thoroughly believes in the advantages that come from the presentation of philately in the various angles, to the notice of the public. For instance, as a Rotarian, Mr. Phillips qualifies under "Philatelist" and then does not content himself by following the course of least resistance or hiding his light under a bushel—he makes a bonfire of the basket. His opinion is that publicity for philately is of untold benefit and while it is preferable that the advertising be properly directed, yet even unorganized publicity has a value. He thinks that jealousies among the stamp dealers will become softened and outgrown in time and that much lost motion that is now wasted on immaterial things will be saved. A pride in profession should be a characteristic of the dealer who may be depended upon to advance his means of livelihood in the minds of the outsiders. This wider vision will come as a part of the scheme of development of business acumen in general but its arrival may be hastened by the determination of dealers to work for their success through the general improvement of commercial conditions.

* * *

Mr. Phillips has great faith in the future of the United States postmasters' issues and the Confederate stamps; and his belief in the U. S. department stamps is known. Of Confederates particularly, Mr. Phillips has made a study and his deductions are wholly in their favor. He stresses the historical element of these stamps and feels that collectors here have as a general thing been remiss in their devotion to them. In this connection, we are gratified to say that Mr. Phillips will give the WEEKLY the benefit of his conclusions on values of the postmasters' stamps and Confederate provisionals. It is needless to say that the ripe experience of Mr. Phillips will make his criticisms fair and based upon the evidence that he has gathered in the course of many years. We suppose that everyone is entitled to his own opinion in appraising stamp values but we should say that familiarity with the certain classes of stamps that are to be weighed was a requirement on the part of the one who posed as valuator; and here Mr. Phillips has a big advantage. Stamps have been his daily fare for many years and his liking for philately is based upon a genuine interest in stamps and a real regard for stamps is the best foundation on which to build success as a stamp dealer.

The Collectors Club of New York City has an admirer in Mr. Phillips who hopes that the time may come when other cities as well as the metropolis will support institutions of the kind. Mr. Phillips well knows how difficult it is to maintain a club such as New York's but he thinks that public-spirited philatelists in other stamp centers will give of their time and money for the general good and in a sense, endow a club that will creditably reflect the fair name of philately. The object is to make philately an established pursuit by divesting it of the tomfoolery with which it is associated in the public mind. It must be shown that collecting is normal and that philatelists are like other folks who do not happen to exalt the postage stamp. The real philatelic club radiates its glow throughout its neighborhood and a suggestion recently made by Mr. Phillips at New York was that some worthy collector in a near-by city be invited to show his stamps at the Collectors Club on a certain night when a number of collectors would be invited to accompany the exhibitor, who with his townsmen collectors would be the dinner guests of the club. When this plan had been repeated a number of times, the usefulness of the club certainly becomes emphasized.

We found in an official Confederate envelope, "Confederate States of America, Post Office Department — Official Business—A. Dimitry, Chief of the Finance Bureau," a circular that appeals to the one who has an eye for postal asides. The circular is a large manilla sheet with the text: "Confederate States of America, Post Office Department, Finance Bureau. Richmond, Va., Decr. 1, 1864. Postmaster at Hale's Ford, Va. Sir: Today I forward to your office a parcel of stamps as follows:

A correspondent wishes to know the ate when business colleges first began use postage stamps and revenue amps of their own designs in connec-on with instruction in their institutions. e cannot undertake to look up data at esent but we believe that few business lleges outside of Eastman's employed e labels as shown. We may say that ees who wrote Foot-Prints of a Letter-arrier, published by Lippincott in 1866, entioned that postage and revenue amps of private kind were used by me of the business colleges in connec-on with the courses offered in them. We n recollect only two or three different rieties of these labels.

A MOST ATTRACTIVE LIST.

We feel amply justified in making an tended mention of the new price-list st at hand from the firm of H. E. arris & Co., 161 Massachusetts Av., ston 17, Mass. It is a pretentious oklet of 36 pages, handsomely printed two colors, and advertises a wealth holiday offerings. The list has a de-cledly Christmas flavoring, with a ristmas greeting upon the first page, d a holly border in red and green. is probable that no finer lot of packets s ever been advertised than the Harris n quotes prices upon, but in addition packets many attractive sets and col-tions of countries are offered. A fine e of albums is also included. This is the Christmas issue of the firm's monthly journal.

SAY MERRY CHRISTMAS WITH THE MILLION CONFUSION

We are delighted that so many collectors feel that they can trust us to send their friends a Christmas gift that will satisfy. The special holiday envelopes have proven to be far more popular than our wildest dreams. When we began putting up the MILLION CONFUSION, we had large reserve stocks, and the first few hundred orders were filled promptly. Then we began to get a little behind and still the orders pour in. We hope to be caught up by the end of the week, but we can't promise. You may be sure that we will rush out the Christmas "M. C.'s" so that they will get to your friends on time.

Every week we try to make the Million Confusion a little better than it was the week before. This week is no exception and even those who have purchased "Confusions" will find many things of new interest tucked away in the 350 varieties that we sell for $1.02. Let this be a MERRY CHRISTMAS for your collection and your friend's.

OUR REVIEW.

The publication of the notices of the following works has been considerably delayed and attention should have been called to these catalogues at the time of their receipt.

The new edition of the Yvert & Tellier-Champion catalogue for 1924 is a book of well over 1,100 pages and as usual is adequate in about all respects but the present volume achieves a greater distinction by showing the various widths of the margins between imperforate stamps. By parallel lines, these margins are indicated and the user of the catalogue may now know what the average margins, of, for instance, the five cent, 1847 U. S., the 5c Argentine, 1864, No. 1 Dutch Indies, etc., should be. This new feature is commended for its instructive value and is an innovation upon which the publishers may pride themselves. The explanations and other tables in the front of the catalogue have their value and as usual, the telegraph stamps of all the countries using them are listed. The cuts of the stamps and of the surcharges are plain and the general typography good. As in former editions, the Central and South American stamps particularly are carefully considered in all their varieties; and the quotations on all the stamps seem to be arrived at in the light of experience and the latest information. The great rarities of British Guiana, Mauritius, Hawaii, etc., are priced, the 1c rose British Guiana, 1856, leading the procession with a value of 350,000 francs. The copious notes of explanation scattered through the book are in French, of course, but nevertheless they are not difficult of translation as a rule. All in all, the new edition will entrench itself more firmly than former editions even, in the regard of an increasing number of friends. The price of the catalogue is twenty francs: Theodore Champion, 13 Rue Drouot, Paris, France.

The Catalogue d'Europe, Zumstein, 1924, seventh edition, with its striking cover in color of the Basle cantonal is welcome, coming as it does after an interval of some time since the previous edition of some years ago. It is brought down to date with the inclusion of the latest novelties and the prices on all the stamps in the work have been thoroughly revised, with the intention of making the quotations an international standard for European stamps. The prices are in Swiss marks and in consequence they are stabilized, rendering the quotations in the book dependable, in the face of ordinary fluctuations in the other currencies of Europe. Here it may be said that again a philatelic puzzle is given and a first prize of a Basle cantonal is offered for competition. It is patent that the claims for recognition of this catalogue are substantial ones and the publishers point out that the quality of the paper and the perfection of the cuts as well as the cover in four colors make the book one pleasing to consult. The restriction heretofore observed of limiting the scope of the book to the issues of Europe is lifted to the extent that the old German colonial stamps are given place. If we read aright, the purchasers of the catalogue are given a six months' subscription to the Journal Philatelique de Berne, which in addition to technical articles contains the supplement to the catalogue, thereby bringing it down to date. In our opinion there is need for a catalogue that concentrates on the stamps of that great division in a collecting sense, Europe, and the fact that this broad field is so well cultivated by Zumstein is one that gives the work precedence in its class. The latest issues are handled well and the disposition to analyze values in their price relations is commendable. As a helpful text book and price guide, the catalogue is recommended without qualification. The book is in both German and French and as a reference work alone is worth having at one's elbow. Zumstein & Co., Berne, Switzerland: price 3 francs and one-half, postage extra.

The latest or twenty-third edition of Whitfield King & Company's catalogue, which by reason of its simplification in the treatment of all the issues embraces only major varieties still contains about seven hundred pages. The 1924 edition retains all the features that have made the book the popular catalogue for the average collector and as the years pass on, the judgment of the publishers in beginning to dispense with the stamp variants, so to say, so that the main varieties might be kept within bounds is vindicated. To give an idea of the manner in which varieties are shorn away, it may be said that in the U. S. issues there is nothing preceding the 1847 set, while the grilled stamps are ignored, and no distinction is made between the watermarked and unwatermarked stamps of 1894 and 1895, respectively. If one is a general collector, this catalogue affords the best basis for procedure and we think that even the one who devotes himself to say a continent or two will find that the pages of the catalogue provide material enough to match his best efforts. Whitfield King & Co., Ipswich, England: price six shillings and six pence, post paid.

NEW SET OF IRAQ STAMPS.

Collectors will be anxious to obtain the new series of stamps issued by Iraq, better known as Mesopotamia, specimens of which have now reached this country. So far as is known these are the first stamps ever to be designed by women. They have been issued to commemorate the freedom of the Land of the Date, which now is free after centuries of foreign rule.

It would seem that these new stamps are destined to be of permanent philatelic interest, as some denominations already are out of print. Thus the issue of 1½ annas has been exhausted, while of the 2 rupees only a few are left. One of the most interesting stamps of the series is the one anna which, against a background of date palms, shows the circular native boats, called coracles, descending the Tigris. The stamps were designed by Mrs. Colin C. Garbett and Miss Edith Cheesman.

There are twelve values and eight designs in the series. The ½ anna olive green shows the mosque of Moadhdham; the 1 anna, sepia, coracles on the Tigris; the 1½ annas, rose, the winged god Illus; the 2 annas, ochre, the winged bull; the 3 annas, indigo, the ruins of Ctesiphon; the 4 annas, purple, a standard bearer of the Desert Camel Corps; the 6 annas, green, the mosque of Kadhimian; the 8 annas, mustard, the standard bearer; the 1 rupee, green and brown, the Tree of Life; the 2 rupees, green, the mosque of Moadhdham; the 5 rupees, orange, the standard bearer; the 10 rupees, red, the mosque of Kadhimian.

PARAGUAY COUNTERFEITS.

Just as we go to press we have received from W. F. Slusser, secretary of the A. S. D. A., a set of the new Paraguay stamps ranging from 1 to 50 pesos which he declares are counterfeits. These "stamps" have come on the market of late in large quantities and at all kinds of prices. Persons buying them should have them expertized by some reliable party.

Over 430 Million Marks FOR $1.00

We have made up another assortment of new German stamps for the man who has not yet bought these issues. This lot contains 38 stamps, consisting of 29 surcharges from the 5000 Mark value to the 2 Million Mark value, also the 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 30, 50, 100 and 200 Million Mark values of the new permanent type. In all a lot of 38 varieties, with a total face value of 430,320,000 Marks. Value before the war in U. S. Gold over $100,000,000. The lot is worth a dollar in American money and worth nothing in Germany.

A United States Scarcity

1914, 2c Imperf. Rotary Print, Wmkd

Scott's No. 459, formerly No. 3701.

Back in 1917 this 2c coil stamp from the rotary press coil in an imperforate condition was first discovered, although it had been issued several years before. Only a few were found and it has always been scarce and desirable. It cannot be faked from the imperforate sheet, for the rotary stamp was not issued in sheet form. There is a place for the variety in the new Scott album. Can furnish this variety, which catalogues at $7.50, at $6.50 per stamp, or $13.00 a pair. Line pair at $20.00.

20TH CENTURY U. S. COLLECTION

Offer a very attractive 20th century U. S. collection, all unused, consisting of 705 stamps, face $27.27 and cataloguing $187.12, at a special price of $75.00. A good buy for dealer or collector and contains the 1901 complete, the 1902 in many shades through the 50c, later issues nice with a smattering of $1 values. An unusually fine lot of coils and some attractive booklet plates. First check takes it. Neatly mounted in Oriole album.

Recently purchased several very fine U. S. collections. What do you need?

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—As a result of the issuing by the Department of the 2c Harding Memorial Stamp imperforated, the Philatelic Stamp Agency has been swamped with orders from all over the country, and as a result have been forced to close down for a week to enable them to take care of this excess business. On December 4th they had in excess of two thousand unfilled orders and as most of these called for the imperforated stamp, which must be packed in tubes, means that the work cannot be performed as promptly as is the case when flat stamps are purchased. If the collector or dealer is delayed in getting his supply, will he please remember that he will be taken care of, but with the normal amount of clerks the Agency cannot make as prompt deliveries as they would like. Just a little patience and everyone will be served.

By the time these notes reach our reader the Harding stamp will be a thing of the past, for the Bureau has completed the orders for one billion, six hundred million stamps and it was expected that they would all have been delivered by the middle of December. As I have stated before, it is indeed odd that such a large number of stamps should be issued so hurriedly without any error of importance to philatelists occurring.

In a recent issue I called attention to the fact that one of our valued readers had found a copy of the new design $5.00 stamp, wherein the right leg of the letter "R" in "America" was missing. Since preparing the early notes I have had the opportunity of checking up each stamp on the sheet very carefully and the variety does not appear. If our reader has the variety it is a case of either the ink not printing or else some foreign matter adhered to the stamp while printing resulting in this portion of the letter not printing on the stamp itself.

There has been quite a little interest stirred up here of late in cancellations of the Supplementary Mail type brought about by the very excellent article by Colonel Babcock which recently appeared in the American Philatelist. Mr B. K. Miller now writes to inform me that he has just located a vertical pair of the 3c 1861, with a cancellation differing from any of those described by Colonel Babcock. The cancellation is in blue and consists of a circle 31mm in diameter, and around the bottom of the circle "SUPPLEMENTARY MAIL" and at the center of the circle "MAR 18." If collectors generally would look over their collections as well as duplicates they would no doubt locate many varieties not heretofore known.

In a recent Chronicle attention was called to a registration mark applied to a letter from Phoenix, Va., wherein the number of the post-office was designated by a rubber stamp, as well as the registration number of the letter. Mr. Robert J. Wagner of the Registry Division of the Fostoria Post Office sends us some notes of interest in connection with the use of such a mark. It seems that during the time of the issue of the War Savings stamps the stamps on certificates could be registered against loss by certain post-offices in cases where they used this special registration mark with the number of the post-office given. It was further provided that each stamp as well as certificate should bear both of the numbers. In addition the Department instructed the Postmasters to use this rubber stamp only in case of registration of War Savings Stamps, but infrequently the stamp was used by the Postmaster for regular letters. Mr. Wagner sends an impression of the rubber stamp supplied his office by the Department, and it reads in two lines "Office No. 18700—Reg. No. ...."

The press of December 2nd and more especially the New York Times on its front page carried an article with a Washington head line calling attention to the fact that one Herman C. Davis had confessed that he had robbed the Post Office Department of stamps valued approximately $75,000. His work on a committee charged with destroying damaged stamps returned to the Department, the confession asserts, enabled him to take them and then swear to their destruction. The Times mentions that these were sold to a well known St. Louis stamp dealer, designating by name the particular dealer in question, and that the latter firm who state that they did not know that the stamps had been stolen re-sold them to mail order houses in the East. It is said that they purchased these unused stamps from Davis at discounts from face ranging from 25% to 60%.

In our Chronicle for November 26th information was given regarding the issuing by the State of Utah of a series of State Revenue stamps for the purpose of collecting a cigarette tax. At that time we were unable to give the colors of the several denominations, but through the courtesy of Mr. Frank L. Applegate who has sent us a copy of each, we are able to advise that the ½ cent is in dull olive, the 1c orange, the 1⅕c rose carmine, 1½c green, the 2c blue-violet, and the 2⅘c brown. These stamps are supposed to be perforated with the word "Utah" but Mr. Applegate informs me that some of them slipped through without the perforated word. He also advises that the 1c and 2c are known with the word inverted.

COLUMBIA.—Mr. Emil J. Rall has shown us two new items recently issued: 3c blue regular postal issue and the 60c orange air post stamp, surcharged "Provisional" diagonally and "30" in each lower corner, in blue.

FRENCH MOROCCO.—We have received specimens of the Aero stamps for this territory, showing a bird's-eye view of the Harbour of Casablanca, with an aeroplane in flight, from a design by M. J. de la Neziere and engraved by MM. Vaugirard. The stamps are surface-printed on unwatermarked white wove paper, perf. 13½. We also have a set of the long-delayed pictorial series, held up through pressure of work at the French Government Printing Works. These are the plates of 1917, redrawn and with altered colours. The first two values have been adorned with a design which compares badly with the first emission. The only designs which have been altered are the 1c, 2c, 3c, 50c, 60c and 1fr. The designs are by M. J. de la Neziere, and the stamps are printed by the helio-gravure process by MM. Vaugirard on white wove unwatermarked paper, perf. 13½.

30c red.	10fr black.

We note that the 5c yellow of France, lately surcharged for use here, has been suppressed.—Philatelic Magazine.

GERMANY.—The following new values have been received from Mr. R. Roberts: 50 million, deep green; 500 million, pale sage green and 1 milliard, brown.—Philatelic Magazine.

GOLD COAST.—Messrs. Bright & Son inform us that the ½d value of the recently issued Postage Due labels is already obsolete, for which reason they were not able to get full supplies, only receiving part of their order. A correspondent on the spot states that there are no more to be had at the post-office, and, as there is apparently no use for this denomination, no more will be ordered.

Messrs. Bright understand that only one hundred sheets of sixty were printed, so that the total quantity issued of these stamps was only 6,000, which, for a low value, is a very small quantity. An appreciable rise in the market valuation of these may therefore be expected at an early date.—Stamp Collecting.

IRISH FREE STATE.—A correspondent informs us that he has just received from the Post Office Department of the Irish Free State a letter, in which it is stated that the overprinted British stamps "are being withdrawn from sale according as Irish Free State stamps become available to replace them." This confirms the statement made in our issue for October 20th.—Stamp Collecting.

JAPAN.—Mr. J. R. Durfee has shown us the 20s in the new set of stamps noted last week. The color is dark blue. Mr. Durfee adds that the set will be of nine values but to date only the ½s grey, 2s brown, 3s rose, and the one noted before have appeared.

LATVIA.—Mr. Karl Koslowski advises of the 2s current issue with an over-

Collections by Countries

Mr. Dealer! Have you ever considered the pleasure of your customers when they receive approval sheets or books containing, not the usual hit-or-miss conglomeration from the entire world, but selections made up entirely from one or two countries? You can do this by making wise purchases of Packets by Countries. Several dealers, at our suggestion, have tried this method, and without exception they report astonishing results. One dealer made an investment of $100 cash and sold over $150 worth the first month, most of his customers keeping the entire selection each time.

Without exaggeration, we consider the following offers to represent the nost unusual value on the market for many a day. Prices are so low that hey will net you—not 100%—but in many cases from 200% to 300% rofit when sold at half catalogue. In shaving prices almost to the cost nark, we feel that we will be introducing this new packet-by-countries nethod of buying to many of our customers whose future buying power vill more than repay us.

This is not "sales talk"; verify our statements yourself by comparing rices with those of any wholesale concern, either here or abroad!

print of a cross with the letters "L. K. J. S." in each corner and "Kara Invalidiem s 10 s" in three lines in blue. Our correspondent also adds that the 1s and 4s have been surcharged in like manner. The letters noted above mean Latvian War Invalid Organization.

LUXEMBURG.—Mr. Henry Hooreman informs us that from Nov. 20th last a provisional 25c on 37½c, in the 1916-19 Grand Duchess Marie type, was issued.

POLAND.—Messrs. Whitfield King & Co., send us a provisional "Unpaid," in the shape of the 8 mk. Due of 1921, surcharged "10,000" in shiny black numerals diagonally upwards.—Stamp Collecting.

PHILIPPINE IS.—Señor A. Mendoza sends us a cutting from which we gather that a new series of stamps is in contemplation, which will depict scenes from the history of the islands, and views of interesting places.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

PORTUGAL.—According to M. Théodore Champion, only fifty thousand were printed of the 40c blue, chronicled in Stamp Collecting for October 6th, and it will not be reprinted. Rare Port is good!—Stamp Collecting.

Mr. J. N. Marsden corrects our recent statement that the dealers of Lisbon have altered their attitude to the Air Commemoratives. The propaganda in favour of these stamps comes from Oporto, but Lisbon dealers, following the lead given them by collectors in Portugal, still refuse to have anything to do with them.

Mozambique. The same reader kindly shows us a copy of the recent 50c on 4c provisionals, with large "o" in "50." He also shows us the 25r Don Carlos, with REPUBLICA overprint, in the lilac colour of the 20r. The error was not discovered until most of the stamps had been sold for 20r. Mr. Marsden's copy was shipwrecked in the Mossamedes on its way home.

Nyassa Co.—We are informed that the ¼c and ½c of the current pictorial series are no longer being printed as there is no postal service for them to perform. Stocks are exhausted.

St. Thomas and Prince.—Mr. Marsden states that two used copies of the 200r Postage Due, with local REPUBLICA overprint (Cat. No. 419) have been discovered with the overprint in both red and green.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

RUSSIA.—Our Russian correspondent sends us specimens of a new Soviet Republican issue, pictorial designs and surface-printed on coarse white unwatermarked paper, perf. 11x11½.

75,000r grey-green.
100,000r grey-lilac.
200,000r green.
300,000r bright blue.
500,000r carmine.

This series represents the former Republics of Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaidjan. The initials 3 C.P.C.P. on the stamps stand for Transcaucasian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic. The roubles are not Russian roubles, but a separate currency, and the postal rate for a foreign letter is 800,000.

The latest addition to the current series is a 20r value in the same design as the 3 and 10 roubles. As the rate of exchange is now 4,500r to the £1, and the postage on a foreign letter 45r, it is more than likely there will be higher values to follow.—Philatelic Magazine.

SWITZERLAND.—The new designs for this year's "Pro Juventute" stamps show the arms of the town of Basle, of Glaris, and of Neuchâtel. The Swiss design for the 40c of the same series shows a Royal figure with armour under his robes, and another armed figure shot through in every conceivable direction with arrows, till he looks like an animated pin-cushion. We may add that the background of the Neuchâtel stamp is composed of watches, a new note in stamp designs. We may look for condensed milk tins on a stamp if this kind of thing becomes popular.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

A STAMP ENTHUSIAST.

COLON, Nov. 8.—Lucien Granie of the Beverhoudt Stores, is one of the most enthusiastic philatelists on the Isthmus, and his collection of stamps is one of the largest and rarest. Numbered among these stamps are some of considerable money value. One especially he prizes highly and has good reason to for in the latest quotations it is valued at $1,250. This is a stamp of the island of Dominica, date 1898, and very few of this series are extant. Mr. Granie obtained the stamp for a comparatively insignificant sum while on tour of the islands some time back. He visited twenty-seven places in all on this trip, and obtained a number of valuable specimens through going back over the correspondence of some of the old residents.—Panama Star and Herald.

CORTLANDT STAMP CO.
5 CORTLANDT ST., NEW YORK CITY.

THE "MANN" NEW ZEALANDS.

It is always a matter of regret when a valuable collection, acquired at great cost, both of labour and money, is broken up and dispersed. The celebrated collection which is the title of this note, not having found a purchaser "en bloc," is now about to suffer this sad fate. It is not only the finest collection of New Zealand stamps in existence, but, containing as it does the material on which several very distinguished philatelists have based their studies and incorporated them in important papers communicated at various times during the past decade or so to the Royal Philatelic Society and published in the London Philatelist, it is also one of exceptional interest and importance. The dispersal of such a valuable collection seems to render it desirable to place on record, as a matter of history, the salient facts as regards its accumulation and a reference to some of the noteworthy items it contains. It was started nearly forty years ago by the late Mr. W. W. Mann of Bexley, Since his death, in 1915, his son, Mr. Eric W. Mann, a well-known Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society, carried on the collection, and recently sold it to our publishers for a very large figure. The gradual growth of the collection was vastly stimulated by the incorporation in it of various well-known and important collections from time to time. The first of these was the fine collection of Mr. A. T. Bate of Wellington, one of the oldest Fellows of the Royal Philatelic Society; then followed the absorption of the collection of Mr. M. P. Castle, late President of the Royal Philatelic Society, which contained the valuable material on which were based several important papers read before the Royal Philatelic Society. The pick of the collection of the late Earl of Crawford was added to it, and lastly, possibly the most important of all, the Hausburg collection. It naturally follows that the Mann Collection is incomparable in size, completeness, philatelic interest, and the condition of the specimens.

Among the notable stamps in the early issues are two of the 1d and the 2d and 1s London prints on white paper, unused, and three of the 1d, three of the 2d, and two of the 1s, unused, on bluish paper. The pages of used copies of these two groups of the first issue include some exceptional strips of four of the 1d. A little-known stamp is the 1d, dull orange, of 1857, watermarked "Star." The colour is the familiar shade of the stamps on the paper without watermark, and its occurrence, as an extreme rarity on the "Star" paper is something of a mystery. This variety was first discovered by the late Mr. Castle, and the fine pair, used, on the original letter, which he showed when he made known his discovery to the Royal Philatelic Society, is one of the chief gems in the Mann Collection. Apart from this pair it is believed that only one other copy is known. Of the 1s, without watermark, there are several unused copies, both in the emerald-green and also in the blue-green shade.

The chief wealth of the collection, however, lies in the numerous copies, including unused, of the various local semi-official perforations. These are very difficult stamps to find in good condition, and form the chief difficulty in collecting the early issues of New Zealand. All are rare, and while the Catalogue limits them to "pin-perforation about 10," "serrated perforation 16," "rouletted 7," and "perf. 13" in the collection the subdivisions of these varieties are considerably extended, three different gauges of the "serrates," two different roulettes, and a compound pin-perf. by serrate being shown. In quite a number of instances the copies here are the only examples known, and this applies also to the 6d, pale brown, no watermark, perf. 13 (Gibbons No. 32), of which the used copy in this collection is the only specimen extant.

The late Mr. Hausburg, while on a visit to New Zealand, found the old plates of the early stamps still existing, and obtained permission to take two proofs of each plate in black. One set he brought home for the collection of His Majesty the King, and the other he retained in his collection, this set being added to the Mann Collection when the Hausburg Collection was incorporated with it. The plates have since been destroyed. The 2d plate is of considerable interest, as by a study of the proof the extent of the retouching and the positions of the various retouched stamps were ascertained with certainty.

It is perhaps regrettable that this collection cannot be retained intact. It was at one time hoped that the New Zealand Government might acquire it as a national collection, but failing such action as this its dispersal furnishes a grand opportunity for the enrichment of other existing important collections of the stamps of New Zealand.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

OUR FIVE-YEAR HONOR CLUB.

George N. Hersey, N. Y. City.
Roger Q. Pease, East Pepperell, Mass.
A. E. Hutter, Beaver Dam, Wis.
Clark Hall Foye, Detroit, Mich.
O. J. Richardson, Pinellas Park, Fla.
C. W. Bissell, Huntington Park, Cal.
S. W. Richey, Cincinnati, O.

Our first candidate for membership in the Honor Club this week is George N. Hersey, of N. Y. City, who sends his check for $5 for a five-years' extension of his subscription. We thank Mr. Hersey for this expression of confidence in the WEEKLY.

We are very pleased to add the name of Roger Q. Pease, of East Pepperell, Mass., to our Honor Club list. Mr. Pease is connected with the Nashua River Paper Co., at East Pepperell and his name has been seen quite frequently in the WEEKLY in years gone by.

A letter from A. E. Hutter, Beaver Dam, Wis., contains a remittance of $7. In addition to taking membership in the Honor Club with a remittance of $5 he also sends in the subscriptions for one year of Leo Brucker and Rev. Hugo J. Koester. This is certainly boosting with a capital B. Thanks, Mr. Hutter.

Quite recently O. J. Richardson in business at Eden, N. Y., under the name of the Eclipse Stamp Co., left for the south and is now located at the Hotel Royal Palm, Pinellas Park, Florida. His check for $5 with best wishes for the WEEKLY which he terms the "king of stamp papers" is greatly appreciated. We enroll Mr. Richardson as one of our Honor Club members.

"I have taken the WEEKLY since 1912 and I expect to take it as long as I live. It has brought me many hours of happiness and a wealth of philatelic information. I have enjoyed the little tales of Jimmy O' and his friends, and your subscribers should feel deeply indebted to both you and Mr. Hill for them." Thus writes Clark Hall Foye, of Detroit, Mich., in taking out his membership in the Honor Club with a five years' renewal of his subscription. Mr. Foye may not know it, but Mr. Hill formerly resided in Detroit and we are glad to have this work appreciative of the splendid sketches written by Mr. Hill and which find their best expression in "Range Tales," found in our book department.

We are glad to enroll C. W. Bissell, formerly of West Haven, Conn., and who is now located at Huntington Park, Cal. Mr. Bissell is a strong friend of the WEEKLY, as is evidenced by his statement that he "would be lonesome without MEKEEL'S, as it is the best paper in the world." This is strong praise but we can well remember when these were our sentiments, and they have not changed in passing years.

Just as we go to press with this week's issue we receive a letter from Mr. Severn relaying a $5 remittance from S. W. Richey, head of the Richey, Halsted & Quick Co., dealers in Southern lumber, Cincinnati, O. Thanks, Mr. Richey, for your membership.

Total seven for the week!

A PLAIN TALK TO RESPONSIBLE COLLECTORS

We want to extend our business to such as appreciate our courteous service and will reciprocate by prompt returns.

OUR SPECIALTY is that of submitting STAMPS ON APPROVAL, either general selections or groups of particular countries.

NOTHING in way of FREE STAMPS or unreasonable discounts.

OUR STOCK OF OVER 30,000 varieties speaks for our ability to help the average collector provide specimens to fill up some of those empty spaces. Please state size of your collection for our guidance. Do not be afraid of letting us know who you are—references are never refused by seriously minded collectors.

ACKERMAN TALKS ON STAMPS.

(Plainfield, N. J., "Courier News".)

Speaking to an audience, that completely filled the auditorium of the new Y. M. C. A. building last night, Congressman Ernest R. Ackerman, gave some interesting facts about postage stamps, tracing their history and importance in this country. He said:

"The protest against the imposed use of stamped paper and the tax on tea, imposed by Great Britain, led up to the Revolutionary War of 1776, and the independence of the American colonies. The taxes imposed on legal documents and stamped on the paper by means of a die press like a notary's seal, were regarded by the American colonists as an obnoxious form of collecting revenue.

"In the early days of transmission of mail the rates of postage varied to distance travelled, the same as in general practice abroad. In 1819 the island of Sardinia used a stamped impression of a flying horse as postage on mail. In 1840 Sir Rowland Hill induced the British Parliament to provide for penny postage. This was followed in 1843 by Brazil, and in 1847 by the United States.

"In 1873, during the panic, there was a demand for reduction of taxes imposed as a result of the Civil War, which had closed eight years previously, and the Government sought to cut off expenses by reducing the use of franks or free postage, sent from the different Government departments, which numbered thousands annually, most of the Government officials using the mails free and ibitum. It was provided that each department have its own special stamps with the value printed thereon."

It was in 1873 that Mr. Ackerman, hen a mere boy, first took note of the stamps, his father being a lawyer, having large correspondence with the Department of the Interior, and he saved the stamps. This led to his becoming a collector, and he has one of the finest collections in the world. In May last, he received a gold medal in London, for his collection, in competition with King George, who is a most enthusiastic collector.

Mr. Ackerman showed many interesting specimens of postal use, including pigeongrams carried by pigeons before the wireless telegraphy came and making faster time than ships on the sea. A most interesting exhibit was a letter sent by a woman in Russia containing over twelve hundred stamps, on a strip six inches wide and fifteen feet long, with stamps on both sides, making thirty feet in all. The letter was sent by the woman asking for food. She had money enough to buy the stamps but not enough to buy the simplest food.

The speaker showed an envelope containing stamps that cost nine hundred million German marks; also a special delivery stamp a foot long, from China.

He spoke of the custom of certain South American governments issuing a new stamp each year, and demonetizing the old ones on hand, making them useless for postage, but allowing them to be sold to collectors. In this way whole sheets of unused stamps, but useless for postage, find their way to the collectors, and in their hands have a value sometimes up to the hundreds of dollars. Mr. Ackerman papered one room in his house with sheets of such stamps, but at a fire in his house the water ruined them, except a few which he managed to save, and he presented some of them to the young collectors in the audience last night.

He said there are over three million stamp collectors in the world, and at auctions of stamps millions of dollars are paid for them. Collectors in this country, he said, contribute to the Government, by buying stamps, a sum that pays every year, all the cost of the plates for printing stamps, and a net profit to the Government of $200,000 besides.

The speaker concluded his address by showing slides of Japan, and showed the umbrella which he had bought in London forty years ago, and carried over 0,000 miles in his travels all over the world. He bought the umbrella at the same time that his boyhood friend, Dr. George E. Vincent, now president of the Rockefeller Foundation, did, they being travelling companions on this occasion, and the latter stating: "I will carry mine longer than you will." Mr. Ackerman never previously could keep an umbrella longer than a month, but the incident prompted him to keep this one.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO DECEMBER 1.

We feel very much pleased with the results in our subscription contest. Already marked interest is being shown and there is every indication that the Weekly will surpass all subscription records of the past before this season is over. During the month of November W. J. Zink sent in 78 subscriptions and the Fennell Stamp Co. was second with 46. We cannot take the space to name individually all those who have done good work, but feel quite sure that we shall be bestowing praise where praise is due in mentioning the fact that Eugene Klein of Philadelphia has sent in 12 new subscriptions during the month. Those who sent in more than ten during the month of November are the fellowing:—

stamps, the kind you are always proud of and wish you had more of them.
This is the line I have been specializing in for some time, putting money and time in on these staple issues, that are rising in value every year. Are you listening to my tip, or are you going to buy the stamps that are a drug on the market, just because they look cheap to you? They might look dear if you undertook to resell them later. Anyhow, think it over, and if you are after the sound old classics, let me know which spaces are still blank.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH: THE 2 1-2d KANGAROO.

By A. H. Davis.

This stamp, first seen in January, 1913, differs from others of the Kangaroo type in that the circle below the map is in colour while the figures of value are uncolored—the contrary holding good in all other values in this design—also that the words of value, also uncoloured, are inserted in condensed letters on a label of solid colour.

Like the 2d Kangaroo, this one has gone through the three varieties of watermark that Kangaroo stamps are liable to—first, second, and third—but, unlike that defunct one, this stamp is still in use (though extremely little nowadays), and still in the same old colour, blue, though in a shade less dark than formerly used to prevail.

Shades.

For years after birth, the colour of this stamp was as constant as that of any other of the low value Kangaroos, being aptly summed up in the catalogue as "indigo." In this hue it went through the first and second watermarks and started on the third. Indeed, up to the year 1919, only trifling variations of shade were known. The reason why it was carefully continued in this deep shade of blue is fairly obvious—to keep it in sharp contra-distinction to the other blue Kangaroo, the 6d value.

This stamp had also continued for many years in the same shade—just an ordinary ultramarine—without variation to speak of. But about 1919 it began to fluctuate in hue, appearing in several shades of ultramarine, and even in blue.

As astronomers can sometimes infer from otherwise unaccountable deviations in the motion of a heavenly body that it is being influenced by some other, so perhaps philatelists should sometimes ascribe marked and much unsteadiness in the colour of one stamp in a series to its colour being approached too nearly or encroached upon by some new shade in the others.

However that may be, it is a fact that the 2½d Kangaroo, hitherto so constant in hue, appeared in all sorts of blue in the years 1919 and 1920, and even in a shade approaching ultramarine. First of all the shade deepened considerably to a bronze-blue that ultimately became so dark as to be almost black. (This fine shade is not common, as it did not last long; it might be called "blue-black," and issued early in 1920.)

The impression of this stamp in these dark shades became indistinct and blurred, and many flaws became conspicuous, the plate evidently having become worn; and in July, 1920, it appeared printed from a "cleaned plate," the shaded portion of the design having quite a whitey appearance compared with that of the late blurred printings. This was the first printing from "cleaned plate" in this value, and the shade (which is best seen in the border line) was still very dark. But next month (August) the 2½d value came out in a comparatively pale shade, and without any of that "whitey" appearance in the shaded portions that distinguishes plates that have been cleaned. That it is not a new plate seems pretty certain from the fact that all the chief flaws that recur are still there. The stamp continued in several ordinary shades of blue, more or less pale in comparison with preceding shades, until my leaving Australia at the end of 1921. The last copies of this value I have received from the Australian Postmaster-General were dispatched in October, 1922, and are again printed from a cleaned plate, which, however, are easily distinguishable from the first printed thus, from being in a very ordinary shade of blue instead of deep bronze-blue.

First Watermark.

This stamp made its debut on January 27, 1913. The shade varies but slightly, from lighter up to deep indigo. It is listed with inverted watermark (upside down) in Mr. Rosenblum's Australian Commonwealth handbook, but has never been seen by me, nor have I ever seen varieties of perforation. Generally the paper is thinnish white wove, but there was one printing on thicker paper.

Second Watermark.

This first appeared about July, 1915; the shade, indigo, is very constant, no variation being known. It is not known with inverted watermark or with varieties of perforation. The paper is thicker than is usual with the first watermark, being identical, indeed, with that first used for surface-printing the King's Head stamps. The watermark is generally "off centre," sometimes half a watermark being to the left and another half to the right of the stamp.

Third Watermark.

First appeared in New South Wales in September, 1917. May have appeared in Victoria a little earlier.

It was found in 1918 on quite a thin paper. Also a little later (May, 1919) a few sheets were discovered with offset, more or less distinct, on the back of the stamps.

Since the beginning of Commonwealth stamps in 1913, I had always kept a sharp lookout on the low values up to the 3d, as there were plenty to be seen and they could be easily bought by the sheet should anything abnormal turn up. But to March 13, 1920, this perpetual examination in post-offices, both in Melbourne and its far-flung suburbs (whither my vocation has taken me), had been in vain as regards this value, with the exception of the thin paper and offset varieties above mentioned. On that date I entered the Stock Exchange Post Office, Melbourne, as was customary with me, taking samples of the low values in use. I would ask for "One each of the low values up to 3d, please," putting down a shilling, this preliminary purchase that was habitual with me only totalling 8½d. In busy offices in the city itself, I found this cut and dried method far more satisfactory than bothering the clerks to look at their stamps. For, though these knew me well and almost always were civil and obliging, they could not cater for philatelists in a busy office like the Melbourne Stock Exchange, where it was often hard to get in a word "edgeways" as the saying is. A philatelist could not expect to be treated differently from the philistines, where even at the least busy time of the day it was hard to get a look at the stamps being used without holding up business; the P.M.G. doubtless would have held more orthodox than examining stamps, the supplying them.

However, on this particular day, when to my amazement I found the 2½d stamp with watermark upside down, by a lot of waiting and diplomacy I managed to obtain all they had of the variety—for, as luck had it, I happened to have a "fiver" in my pocket at the time!—three entire sheets and a portion of another. This was certainly the first and I believe the only time this value was seen in this condition; and at the next meeting of the Philatelic Society of Victoria I supplied most of the members attending with copies. These stamps were in the dark bronze-blue shade then current which, though not as deep as some appearing about the same time ("blue-black"), are quite different to the shades that have been current since.

Printing.

This value, like the 2d grey Kangaroo, was always printed from a vertically double plate of 240 designs, long full sheets being divided horizontally before issue to public. In the first watermark, sheets printed from upper half of plate can be distinguished from those from lower half by absence of the monograms [AC & JBC].

In the third watermark all sheets of Cooke prints, upper and lower halves alike, had monograms; but those in the upper half of plate had a thinning of the border line of colour above them.

Harrison's first print, which had monograms, but all of the Australian Commonwealth sort (J.B.C. having gone out of it!), is not known in this value. His second print, which has the 1-line imprint:—

T. S. Harrison, Commonwealth Stamp Printer, is still current, being almost the only value left which has not changed to his more modern, the 2-line imprint.

A Great Find.

The great flaw in this value was not discovered until 1921, though it occurred in 1919—proof, if any were wanting, of its scarcity!

In Australia almost all philatelists are specialists in Australian Commonwealth. I shall never forget the interest excited at a meeting of the Victorian Society not many months before my departure, when my friend, Mr. M. Philpot, Secretary of the Prahran Society, produced the first copy seen. He had looked through the largest stock in Melbourne, some 6,000 copies, after finding it without finding another! It was a fine used copy, showing beyond cavil the absence of the figure "1" in the fraction, the upper part being solid colour. About a dozen copies have been reported since.

Minor Flaws.

Of minor flaws the most marked is the thick West Australian coast line variety, occurring in the S.W. corner stamp of the lower or south plate. In some printings it is very pronounced, as if the map were a raised block, seen sideways, and is also shown on other stamps on the western edge, but always most distinctly on the lower left corner one.

On a few sheets issuing in May, 1920, there was an important development of this flaw, a headed line of colour stretching across from western frame of stamp to the thickest coast on the west, for all the world as if a blue pin had been stuck into Australia, sideways on. I was lucky enough to procure no fewer than five specimens of this big flaw, of which not more than half a dozen copies seem ever to have been known.

Stamps for Junior Collectors on approval. Rock bottom prices. Reference required. Swan Stamp Shop, 3909 Gaston, Dallas, Tex.

There is another variation of the thickened coast line where this occurs on the three bottom western-edge stamps, in which the two upper stamps had in addition a dab of colour on the West Australia hinterland. This flow is not nearly so striking as the former, though it seems to have been nearly equally rare.

The above flaw is known only on third watermark sheets. There is a minor one which is evidently a flaw on the hardened plate (not merely on an electro taken from it), as it occurs from the very first. It is on the upper, or north, portion of plate, being the stamp above the south-east corner one. In front of the Kangaroo's foot is what appears a cabbage—at least something substantial among the scant grass on which the poor animal lives, or rather would starve.

Another is the broken circle variety, occurring in the third stamp from the corner one with thickened coast line aforesaid, on the bottom margin. The white rim surrounding the value numerals is badly broken at the foot. There are others, but these are the chief flaws in this value.—Stamp Collecting.

BROUGHT TO A RECKONING.

By N. R. Hoover.

One of the cleverest round-ups of a crook stealing stamps was brought about by Joseph Hoffman, Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means of the S. P. A. in New York this week.

On Wednesday, the 21st, an unknown in the stamp world presented 15 books for sale to J. M. Bartels at his office, 116 Nassau Street. The covers had been removed from the books and every attempt to conceal their source had been made by the man presenting them. Mr. Bartels, suspecting that they were stolen property, advanced $10. on the books, agreeing with him to pay the balance when the man returned later.

The holder of the books showed his ignorance, however, by neglecting to remove the cancellation mark on the blanks where certain stamps had been removed from the sheets. It was quite clear that the goods had been listed in some Philatelic Association Sales Department. The initials were A. E. H. Mr. Hoffman, who happened into Mr. Bartel's office shortly afterward, recognized the initials as those of A. E. Hussey, Sales Manager of the S. P. A.

Hoffman wired Hussey at once for names of members on the local circuit. With this data he got into touch with the member who last had the circuit who produced the receipt showing he had mailed that circuit at 3 P. M., November 20th, at a New York City substation to the next on the circuit. As these books had been offered for sale the following morning, it was quite evident they could only have been taken in New York and must of necessity have been an "inside Post Office job."

The only clue in locating the man was a bald spot on the back of his head and a description of his general appearance. The Post Office Inspector's Department then got in on the case. It was only a matter of a short time with this data, for the Government sleuths together with a clerk from Bartels office and Mr. Hoffman, to locate a postal clerk in Station P, Brooklyn, who fitted this description. By Thursday, the 22nd, within twenty-four hours at 12 o'clock noon, the guilty man had been arrested and had confessed.

THE LATEST FROM GERMANY.

By Chas. L. Widman.

I have just received information from Germany that the recent crop of provisional surcharges have already become obsolete and are being rapidly replaced by regular stamps of Scott's Type A35. This has been confirmed by arrival on cover of stamps to the value of 20, 50 and 100 millions. I have so far seen:

20 Millions, ultramarine.
50 Millions, olive green.
100 Millions, grey olive.

The latest rate for letters abroad seems to be 200 Millions, Registry fee 90 Millions. My friend informs me that this was by no means the end, further advances in postage rates to keep pace with the rapid decrease of the Mark are already being announced.

He also informs me that economic conditions are getting worse from day to day. The farmers, who to a certain extent control some of the situation, refuse to sell their products against paper Marks. They are demanding one dollar for 150 lbs. of potatoes, based on a peace price of 3 Mk per hundredweight (zentner). They then will accept only foreign exchange (dollars preferable) or articles of value, clothing, jewelry, etc. The reader can readily understand that things like that do not exactly serve to improve the conditions. The government has tried everything in their power to force the farmer to take his products to market, but meets with very small success. The monarchists are the ones to make capital out of these conditions by telling the people, that either under a military dictation or a one-man-government conditions would be improved by a stabilization of the currency and similar remedies. This also explains the recent attempt to establish a Monarchy in Bavaria.

Stamp prices as a whole in Germany have gone far above the world market price. The new catalogues, Seuf, Michel and others are based on gold Mark prices. I was offered Heligoland No. 7 (Scott's price $30.00) for the "modest" sum of $100.00 and other stamps for prices in proportion to the above. I was also offered a collection of war stamps, mostly German and Austrian for the "small" sum of $1,000.00. The average German seems to think that our dollar has about 10,000 cents, judging by some of the prices that I was asked for common stamps.

During my recent visit to Germany I bought some very nice old stamps from private collectors and had some very nice collections offered to me at ridiculously low prices. They all seemed to have the "Dollar" craze. A dollar bill seemed to work wonders, and I do not doubt that today one could buy even better, provided one would be right on the ground. About every other man in Germany seems to be a stamp collector, and some of the collections I have seen, cured me entirely of the opinion held by some U. S. dealers that Germany was bought out of good stamps. The German dealers might not have much, but there is quite a lot in private possession. I only regretted that I was not in a class with Mr. Hind financially, otherwise I would have made some purchases. Here is a hint to the U. S. dealer who has agents abroad: Do not waste your time in stamp shops in Germany, but get in touch with the private collectors of what once composed the middle class; they still have things worth while looking for, not only in European stamps but also in old U. S.

Since my letter of Nov. 22nd, in which I predicted that the postage rate for foreign letters from Germany had by no means reached its highest point, I received the enclosed cover which surpasses anything seen thus far. The stamps on it indicate a registered letter postage for foreign letters from Germany of Mk 4,930,800,000, representing at prewar dollar exchange rate of $4.20, $1,174,000.000. This, beyond no doubt, will demonstrate that under no circumstances Germany will be able to stage a comeback for the Marks.

MOTHER GOOSE.

(Philatelic Flavor.)

By M. T. Dome (R. L. Hustis).

There was a man in our town
And he was wond'rous "wise"
He bought a stamp as genuine
And thought he'd got a prize.
But when he found it was a fake
He strove with might and main
To pass it off upon a friend
At quite a decent gain!

There was a little man,
And he had a little book,
With prices galore on stamps, stamps, stamps.
Especially those he bought last year,
So he took a little look,
And the prices now gave him the cramps, cramps, cramps!

A diller, a dollar,
Collectors now holler,
"Why did I buy so soon
Those German stamps?
They're cheaper now
Than what I paid last June!"

Jack be nimble, Jack be quick!
Get 'em while you still can pick!

Sing a song of "Six-pence,"
"Newfoundland '57."
A score and four collectors
Each to buy had striven.
So when the sale was opened
The other's bid did raise.
Wasn't that a dainty dish
To hand to Dealer Hays?

Twinkle, twinkle little star,
What a watermark you are
On those "Queensland 60s," say,
And others of that early day.

Selfridge Sends a Harding Stamp to all Customers with a Unique Letter.

If you were living in England would you be surprised and interested to get a letter attached to the top of which was a little envelope of transparent paper containing one of the 2-cent memorial stamps of President Harding?

That is the kind of a letter that Selfridge Co., Ltd., is now sending out to their customers. The letter is apparently just a friendly message from the store telling about the new stamp in which it is assumed that everyone will be at least passingly interested. The last paragraph cleverly works in a bit of advertising.

Probably the uniqueness of the letter will give it much greater advertising power for the store. There is no little psychology in the use of the stamp which, while inexpensive, is almost certain to be kept, at least for a time, if for no other reason that the average person dislikes to throw away an uncancelled stamp, even if it is from a foreign country.

The text of this unusual letter is as follows:

"Here is a stamp we think is so interesting that, whether you collect stamps or not, you would like to have one.

It was issued by the Government of the United States of America to commemorate the passing of a very great man, President Harding.

Of course you know it is quite unique, nowadays, to have a penny stamp or its equivalent in foreign value printed in black and it is only for a very special reason that the international rules of the Universal Postal Union can be departed from.

We send it to you as we think that probably you, like ourselves, like to keep in touch with the newest things, whatever they may be, whether in connection with sports, clothes or anything that is of interest to the man of today."—Women's Wear.

SOVIET GIVES STAMP MONOPOLY.

A NEW YORK BUSINESS MAN SECURES AGENCY FOR RUSSIAN STAMPS

By WALTER DURANTY.

(Copyrighted Wireless Despatch to the New York "Times" and reprinted by courtesy of the "Times.")

Moscow, Dec. 3.—One of the largest postage stamp deals on record has been concluded between the philatelic department of the Soviet Government and a New York business man, Maurice Sherman. The contract, ratified by the Council of Commissars Saturday, gives Mr. Sherman a monopoly of the sale in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Central and South America and France of all the stamps ever issued on Russian soil, amounting to upward of 20,000 different varieties.

The stamps include not only the various revolutionary or counter-revolutionary issues, but stamps of the former empire and some 5,000 varieties issued by the Zemstvos or Provincial District councils, prior to 1885, after the manner of the Wells Fargo and other express companies in the United States in the middle of the last century.

The contract, made for three years and renewable by mutual consent, further gives Mr. Sherman monopoly for the same countries of the sale of all bank notes issued in Russian territory and all catalogues of literature dealing with stamps published here, as well as of foreign philatelic catalogues, literature and accessories in Russia.

Mr. Sherman will leave Moscow for Paris and New York within a few days with several thousand samples of stamps and banknotes which, taken jointly, give a picture of the history of the Russian dismemberment and recovered unity of Russia in the past six years.

There are stamps of Kamchatka's first revolutionary Government, which was so short lived that they were issued only for three days; stamps of the Kerensky régime surcharged with the red star of the Soviets; stamps with the Czar's head half obliterated by the Soviet hammer and sickle in grim presage of the harvest of royal heads the revolution was soon to reap.

The early Soviet issues went in for propaganda—a hand with a sword cutting the workers' chains or the Communist St. George killing the dragon of capitalism. Later came the famine series, one large oblong stamp, showing the food pouring down the Volga, and another a skeleton putting a hand on a peasant's shoulder. In the series issued to commemorate this year's exhibition appear the Fordson tractor, harvesting machines and a bird'seye view of the exhibition itself, with the pavilions of the chief component countries of the Russian federation. It is notable that there are no stamps bearing the heads of Lenin or other Soviet leaders, whereby hangs a tale.

A year or two ago Lenin learned that such an issue was being prepared, and immediately ordered the dies destroyed, saying angrily:

"Do you think I am the Czar that I want my head on the stamps of the Russian republic?"

This led to the detection of several gangs of forgers flooding the European market with spurious Bolshevist stamps. The Soviet representative in Vienna a few months ago secured the conviction of eighteen persons concerned in the production and sale of a forged series bearing the heads of Lenin, Trotzky, Budyonny. The money ranges in denominations from the single ruble issued in Petrograd in the Winter of 1917 to the 10,000,000 bill current in Moscow in the early part of last year.

The series shows the fall of Russian currency to "astronomic" figures; then its slow recovery as the zeros were cut off succeeding issues up to the present "thousands," representing the old thousand million, and finally the 10-ruble cthervonets, whose gold value has been maintained above sterling for the last six months.

Established primarily to aid destitute children, who receive a large proportion of the profits, the Soviet Philatelic Association has lately received thousands of letters from stamp collectors abroad to promote relations with whom it has opened large offices and showrooms in the centre of Moscow. The sale and exchange of stamps and literature with private foreign collectors on a small scale are not excluded by the monopoly given Mr. Sherman.

THOSE of you who have not got a radio set had better get one in quickly.

In this space, next week, you will read something that will make you set up and take notice.

THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT

of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men" calls for relaxation from the busy rush of every-day life. It is the time for a mental inventory of a closing year to result in higher and better purposes with which to start the coming New Year.

I wish each reader of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY the fullest realization of what Christmas and the New Year should mean to him.

In the line of relaxation, I am sure our hobby will prove an unequalled aid. Would my new 48-page price-list entitled "Stamps of United States and Colonies" be of any service to you? It is free and a postal will bring it to you. It will tend to increase Christmas cheer and happiness for the New Year.

THE HEART OF THE DIAMOND.

By Christopher West.

Swift & Courtney.

1c Blue.

The Wilmington, Delaware, Directories for 1857 and 1859-60 list Henry Courtney as a match maker, and in the Directory for 1862-63 the name is given as Henry B. Courtney. In the same directory the name of William H. Swift appears. From 1865-66 to 1871-72 the firm of Swift & Courtney, match manufacturers, is listed, and the names mentioned in connection with the firm are Henry B. Courtney, Mary A. Courtney, Frederick Courtney and William H. Swift.

This factory started in a small way but grew rapidly, and in a few years became one of the largest and most important factories in the country. On June 1, 1870, the business was merged with the Beecher factory at Westville, Connecticut, and the new firm took the name of Swift, Courtney & Beecher Co.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, July 21, 1864.
First issued, Aug., 1864.
Last issued, Aug., 1875.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
86,528,370 issued on old paper.
164,421,340 issued on silk paper.

The die for this stamp was one of the first that was approved and the first printing was among the first match stamps issued. The design has little artistic merit. It is one of the very few match stamps, and with its successor, is the only small match stamp on which engine turned lathe work was used. This portion of the design is made up of very fine colorless lines and so many stamps were printed from the plates that before the various plates had been destroyed as unfit for use, many of these fine lines had become badly worn. This accounts for the many stamps in existence which lack the fine detail of impressions from new plates.

The design forms an upright rectangle of the usual 1c size. In the center is a disk of lathe work with irregular edges which encloses a colorless diamond shaped panel, the long dimension of which is horizontal. This diamond bears the inscription in three lines: "Diamond—Parlor Match—State," the first and last word being curved. A small colored disk rests on the upper corner of the diamond and a similar disk below it, each bearing a colorless numeral 1, A circular band surrounding the central disk and broken by slight foliate ornaments at the side is inscribed "U. S. Internal Rev." above and "Swift & Courtney" below. Straight marginal labels at the top and bottom, each broken in the center by a small rectangular panel, are inscribed "One" and "Cent" above and "Wilm." and "Del." below. The spaces between the circular band and these labels are filled in with triangular ornaments heavily shaded with crossed lines. The design is flat and solid! It has too much color and the ornamentation is poor in design and indifferent in execution. As a whole the stamp lacks interest, lacks charm, lacks balance, lacks proportion and it lacks nearly everything which so many of the match stamps possess. It is hard to believe that it was engraved by the same firm which a few months later produced the Greenleaf, Howard, Park City, Powell and "Franklin" stamps.

The total number issued, viz., over two hundred and fifty million, indicates that between 20 and 30 plates were used. These were all made by the Carpenter firm in Philadelphia, and all the stamps were printed by them. Many of the stamps on old paper were used by Swift & Courtney, but the later printings on old paper and all the printings on silk paper were used by the Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co.

None of these stamps are at all scarce except the true ultramarine of 1869. This color is rare and the present writer has not been able to trace as many as half a dozen different genuine copies. Copies in pale blue from a worn plate are often mistaken for the ultramarine, but the true color is easy to distinguish because it is one of the few ultramarines whose color most strongly suggests violet. Probably the ink used was from the same batch from which the $15 Mortgage of the general issue was printed, but the color of the Swift & Courtney stamp does not appear so deep, because the latter plate was considerably worn. The stamp was probably printed on the experimental silk paper of 1870-71 and on some or all of the other unusual papers employed at that period, but no such copies have yet been noted.

Few pairs on the old paper and the silk paper have been noted. These appear to have been used, and indicate that the stamps were used in multiple. Probably such pairs are not 2c multiple stamps, but are two-thirds of strips of three that were so used in lieu of 3c stamps.

The Swift & Courtney stamps were rarely cancelled; only one cancelled copy has come to the writer's attention. It is on silk paper and the cancellation which is in manuscript in two lines, reads, "Oct 14/76—S & C."

BOOK REVIEW.

We have received from G. F. Rapkin, 151 Goswell Road, London, England, the "Philatelic Atlas," price 25c. It consists of an especially compiled set of ten philatelic maps with the names of every stamp-issuing country, state, town and district prominently printed. There is also a very valuable map index. giving detailed information as to exact location, and all in all the book will be found an exceedingly useful one.

OSTALLY USED
When stamps can be used for Fiscal and egraph purposes, those with actual postcancellations command a price, in some es, more than the same unused. Then l the pernicious habit of cancelling-to-er the popular picture stamps, this comation makes a postal cancellation a rcity.
. NORTH RNEO Gibbons recognizes only the Postal cancellation, while Scott prices on the cheapest basis.

EARLY LOW VALUES SPECIALIZED.

By WARNER BATES.
73 W. Eagle St., Buffalo, N. Y.

(This department deals only with U. S. issued before 1890 and mainly postal issues. The editor cannot give valuations on minor varieties, etc. Stamps sent for examination should be of interest because of oddity, scarcity, etc., or to clear up some debated question. Postage should be enclosed with registration fee when desired, also self-addressed envelope. —Ed.)

Dr. William Evans of Norfolk, Va., has given the department this week a very interesting check list of some shifted transfers which he has found on the three cent green. The editor of this department has some of the varieties described by Dr. Evans but not all, and in addition a number of other varieties of the shifted transfers on the various issues of three cent greens of which he will write descriptions for this department at some time in the future when time will permit. In the meantime, won't some other readers who have shifted transfers on any of the low values of U. S. stamps before 1890 come forward with detailed descriptions.

Dr. Evans says in part:

"I note that you ask in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY what the difference is between a scratch and a cracked plate. So far as its effect on the printed stamp goes, is there any difference? And, isn't a scratch a superficial crack? If I were really going to try to describe the difference I'd say just that—a scratch is a superficial linear mark on the surface of the plate and a crack is a deep severance extending clear through the plate, but it seems to me that one might be put to it to tell from a specimen whether it is one or the other. I'll try to describe what I have in this line when I get to it."

The Editor notes that in his description of shifted transfers which follows, Dr. Evans does not mention any of the National printing. These are scarce, probably for the reason that the National engravers did more careful work than their successors. The writer has two or three different and very interesting varieties of shifted transfers on National printings which he will describe in course of time. By the way, this variety on the National will be listed for the first time in the next edition of Scott's Specialized, along with some other interesting minor varieties which are not now included.

THREE CENT GREEN-SHIFTED TRANSFERS CONTINENTAL.

(Described by Dr. William Evans)

1. The top line shows about ¼ mm. above the stamp. The letters U. S. POSTAGE show an upward shift, and the oval above them also shows it as do also the ornaments at the ends of the label. The shading lines on the neck and shoulder are all doubled. The bottom labels are doubled.
2. The whole stamp shows a shift downward of nearly or quite ¼ mm.
3. The horizontal lines of the central oval medallion show in the white frame surrounding it from a point opposite the tip of the nose to a point nearly at the first stroke of the letter U. These lines also show on the nose.
4. The horizontal lines of the central oval medallion show in the white frame surrounding it from a point opposite the eyebrow to the top of the oval.
5. The horizontal lines at the lower left corner of the stamp extend to the left beyond the same lines above them and the letters THREE show slight doubling.
6. The letters STAGE show doubling.
7. The letters CENTS show a shift.
8. The top frame line is doubled.
9. The top of the right frame line is doubled. for a distance of about 3mm.
10. There is a line through the top of the letters THR.

AMERICAN.

1. A strong upward shifting of most of the stamp. The part not affected is the lower left corner and the figure of value.
2. A downward shift of the lower left corner of the stamp showing a line through the tops of the letters THREE, a line in the white horizontal bands above and below these letters, and a line below the bottom frame line extending from the corner to a point below the right side of the lower ball of the figure.
3. The top frame line is doubled.
4. The letter U shows a doubling, and also the horizontal white band below the letters THR, and there is a line below the bottom frame line at the lower left corner of the stamp.

Re-engraved.

1. A shift to the left showing in the letters U. S. POSTAGE, THREE, and the numeral of value.

Several readers of this column have sent the writer for examination stamps of the twentieth century. As has been stated before, the heading "Early Low Values Specialized" means low values of United States stamps issued before 1890, and for this and other reasons we cannot mention minor varieties and cancellations after that date. This is no reflection on the twentieth century stamps. There are many fine shifts, plate flaws, paper and printing varieties, freaks, fancy cancellations, etc., to be found on modern United States stamps and the collectors who go in for these have a wonderful field for study and undoubtedly are making a good investment. But the line had to be drawn somewhere.

FOUR BIG CONTRACTS.

Beginning January 1, 1924, four of our big advertisers will take out new contracts for advertising space for the ensuing year.

Billions of Marks
Here are some of the highest value stamps ever issued for Danzig and Germany. Danzig has already changed her currency to gold basis and is using the Gulden as a basis. The 5gld stamp is the highest value in the set. Germany will likely go onto a different currency basis soon.
We can supply practically everything in recent Germans and Danzig and offer some below. Anything you want in these or other stamps you do not see offered, let us know and we'll send if it's here. Our connections are of the best and prices reasonable. For offers in these and thousands of other first class stamps, get Phillips' Monthly Bulletin, 24 pages and free for the asking.

THE 1924 CATALOGUE.

By STEPHEN G. RICH.

How they can manage to get out so large and good a book for $1.50 I can't make out; but I am glad they are able to keep the price so low. The improvements in the U. S. section are more than welcome—of course.

I should be more pleased, however, if they were to follow out the other countries in the same detail that they do the U. S. Let Natal stand as a type of what is wanted. No. 68, which was in use from 1882 to 1902, is given simply as "1p rose." Now there exist three distinct colors of it: pale rose in the early printings from 1882 to 1890; carmine from 1890 to 1895, and rose to deep rose from 1896 to 1902. In 1892, a distinct lake printing is found.

These color differences are fully as conspicuous and as important as the violet, light violet, reddish violet and dark violet that are listed under U. S. Nos. 501 to 501d.

In a similar way, Natal No. 102, given as "1d rose" only, comes in a very distinct carmine printing also.

Again, only one of the two Natal official sets is listed. In addition to Nos. 203 to 208, there exist their successors, which were not surcharged, but perforated with the initials N G R (Natal Government Railways) for use of the Railway Department. There is also the combination 1d, with both surcharge and perforation. Since these perforated initials were not privately applied, but are the substitute for surcharge used after 1907, their philatelic status is as good as that of the surcharged issue.

Again, Natal, Nos. 101 to 117, cancelled, come with genuine Natal cancellations, and also with cancellations from the various parts of the Union of South Africa after 1910. During the first three years of the existence of the Union of South Africa, the stamps of the four constituent provinces were issued interchangably to post-offices in all four, by he Union government. Now either stamps with such cancellations are valueless as genuine Natal stamps, or they are worth more than earlier cancellations as being the real first issue of the Union of South Africa. The same holds true for Transvaal, Orange River Colony and Cape of Good Hope stamps. The existence of these "interprovincials" as of the similar "inter-states" in Australia after 1900, deserve to be indicated in the catalogue.

Some curious arrangements of countries, not consistent with each other, are noticeable. Although the South African Republic is given under Transvaal, where it belongs, German Southwest Africa is kept separate from Southwest Africa, its successor. Stellaland, which became British Bechuanaland in the same way as the South African Republic became Transvaal, is given a place by itself; British Central Africa, which became Nyasaland Protectorate, has a place by itself; but Orange Free State is given under Orange River Colony. Now the treatment of the South African Republic and the Orange Free State is obviously correct; why are not the other countries treated the same way? Two or three similar cases might be found.

One error in arrangement, which has existed for years, is still continued. Under "Bechuanaland," two entirely separate countries are listed. British Bechuanaland, which was formerly the Republic of Stellaland, and which was later absorbed into the Cape of Good Hope, is placed together with the next country north of it, Bechuanaland Protectorate, which is to this day a separate unit of government. A logical arrangement of these and Stellaland would be to have Bechuanaland Protectorate by itself, in the place it now occupies in the catalogue, with British Bechuanaland placed after Brazil. The Stellaland stamps would be Nos. 1 to 6 of British Bechuanaland, labelled, as are the first issues of Orange River Colony, "Issues of the Republic."

A curious omission is that of the well-known "Iostage" error of Orange River Colony, No. 72.

I cannot but repeat a criticism which I have often made verbally on the catalogue as a whole. The countries using British money have a recognized abbreviation for "penny" or "pence" in the letter "d." On the stamps themselves this abbreviation is used extensively. The use of "p" instead of "d" in the catalogue, though perhaps on agreement with other usage throughout the catalogue, is probably undesirable, and is likely to cause as much confusion as it is likely to help the neophyte.

VIENNA STAMP EXHIBITION.

Before the leading philatelists of Brunn had resolved to open a stamp exhibition in August, a similar idea had been conceived by an Austrian committee in Vienna. Keen competition arose between these two towns, and it was feared that the bulk of the Brunn exhibits would be found again at the Vienna exhibition in September, so that the second exhibition, though prepared the first, would be but a duplicate of the former one. Owing to various reasons—some of them of a political nature—this fear did not materialize. On the other hand the Vienna Exhibition was a real disappointment to all true philatelists who remembered the exhibitions held in this capital before the war. Vienna has always been among the most important centres of Philately, and Austria has furnished quite a number of pioneers to philatelic science. So it was extraordinary to note that the Austrian exhibits were more noticeable for the value of the stamps shown than for careful study or æsthetic presentation.

Moreover, the participation was less international than in Brunn; among the 59 exhibitors, 36 belonged to the former Monarchy (30 to Austria, 3 to Czecho-Slovakia, 2 to Hungary and 1 to Jugo-Slavia); furthermore, there were 13 Germans, and the real foreign element was only represented by 10 collectors, 3 belonging to Switzerland, 2 each to Norway and to the United States, one each to Great Britain, France and Holland. But if the number of the collections sent from abroad was small, their interest was great.

Four Governments sent exhibits: Austria, Bavaria, Germany and Italy. The Austrian Post Ministry illustrated the three different processes of stamp printing used in Vienna, and showed proofs of the last issue of Charity stamps. The Bavarian and German exhibits consisted of essays and proofs of the last issues of these two countries. Italy showed a complete collection of its issues, especially the overprinted sets for use abroad.

Notwithstanding the strong participation of Austrian philatelists, Austrian stamps did not hold a predominant place. Some collections presented rare varieties of the first issues, studies of cancellations, reprints, etc. But if they contained priceless things, they were generally of little interest to small collectors.

The first issue of Hungary came next with three marvellous collections of Consul Weinberger, M. E. Kraus of Vienna, and M. Z. Mauthner of Budapest.

A special section was devoted to the stamps of the Danube Navigation Company, and much was to be learnt from the two exhibits of Messrs. J. Sturamy (Vienna) and E. Klein (Philadelphia). Especially the means of detecting reprints and falsifications were splendidly explained: full sheets of originals and of reprints being put side by side. Stamps on covers and rare postmarks were also shown.

The old German States were also strongly represented. Heligoland held first place, being twice exhibited: stamps on covers from Consul Weinberger (already seen in Brunn) and unused stamps from M. Elster of Vienna. Two special collections of Prussia (M. Baldus) and of Hamburg (M. Ott) were shown. This latter gentleman also showed a great number of covers with stamps of Schleswig-Holstein, rich material for a study of this country as nearly all the postmarks were included.

France and the French Colonies were missing from the Exhibition, so was Great Britain; but the British Empire was represented by two big collections of unused Georgians.

Of exhibits already seen at Brunn we may note the Service stamps of British Somaliland (M. Baumgarten), Orange River Colony overprinted "V. R. I." (M. de Raay), Montenegro (M. Doenges), the first issue of Turkey (M. Adolf Passer, who exhibited also a splendid collection of the stamps issued by the Angora Government); also the very interesting collection of the old Philippines with reconstructed sheets of the 5c orange, of 1854 (also of the 10c red, and of the 1r blue). Particularly interesting was the sheet with the error "CORROS." This error was also shown in strips, blocks and single copies, as well as various covers and sheets of the values from 1859 to 1863. The recent issues were not exhibited; M. Kleeman's collection of the Service "O. B." overprint is said to be the most complete in the world.

Mexico was represented by two small collections belonging to M. Stephen Mayer, consisting of a study of the postmarks and a reconstruction of the plates of the 1868 issue, ten types being distinguished for the four lower values.

There were only two entries in the Air Mail class, a general collection from M. Marquard (Berlin) and Mr. F. P. Renaut's careful study already seen at Brunn.

Two collections were sent to the Exhibition after the publication of the catalogue and were by no means the least important items. The first was a marvellous display of the old issues of Sicily, numerous singles of each value, two strips of ten of the 1g blue, unused, large blocks of the ½g orange, three blocks of fifteen of the 2g ultramarine and a block of thirty-nine stamps of the 2g deep blue. The second exhibit consisted of various blocks and strips of the popular 1843 issue of Brazil. Some items were unique, such as a vertical block of twenty 60 reis, used, a block of eighteen of the 90 reis, used, reconstructed sheets of all values, and a block of eight of the scarce 600 reis with slanting figures.

The Austrian Postal Administration established a special Exhibition post-office which used a distinctive cancellation and sold all the values of the present issue, including those which were recently put out of use.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

JOS. GALLANT, HEMPSTEAD, N. Y.

THE SALE OF RUSSIAN STAMPS.

(Mr. H. M. Konwiser of New York City has written a letter to Mr. Heyerman, president of the A.P.S., and as a carbon copy has been sent the WEEKLY, we presume that it is intended for publication. Certainly the subject matter will be of interest to our readers. —W. O. W.)

It would be just and quite fitting if the American Philatelic Society—through its officers—declared their displeasure at the means now being employed by the Russian Government to sell stamps to American stamp collectors.

It appears that a New York business man has made agreement with the Russian Government to sell each and every Soviet type, in all manners and shapes to the stamp collectors of America.

Obviously these stamps have not been used for legitimate postal purposes (and were never so intended), such being the case they should be declared taboo by the American Philatelic Society, and the members of all the stamp dealers' associations should pledge themselves not to buy or sell these stamps.

Stamp papers should refuse advertisements on these Russian revenue-raising pieces of papers—mere invitations, authorized of course, of actual stamps. Stamp papers can honestly declare it is their opinion that these stamps are not really postage stamps.

Naturally, some renegade dealers will buy for future sales—but if these gentlemen have any business acumen they will not buy now, for the non-purchase by the present collectors will mean early price reductions by the American concessionaire, and dealers who wait will profit. Naturally if the American Soviet contractor for paper selling waits long enough, he too, may profit because in ten or twenty years these stamps may achieve a sales value as original, noncancelled stamp of the Soviet (excepting with the experts who pay the high prices!)

Obviously here is one chance for organized stampdom to do something of real value for the stamp collection Public.

MIDDLE EUROPE NEWS.

By A. KOECHLIN.

December 1st the swiss Pro Juventute 1923 stamps will make their appearance. The series of cantonal arms will be continued. The designs are representing:

5c arms of Basle, orange and black.

10c arms of Glarys, green, red, yellow and black.

20c arms of Neufchatel, violet, green and red.

40c arms of Switzerland, blue and red.

The frame is a reminiscence of the battle of St. Jacob on the Birs 26th August, 1444, fought by the Swiss confederates to deliver Basle besieged by a French army under the command of Dauphin Louis. The heroic struggle, a pendant to Leonidas' defense of the Thermopylae, brought the old episcopal city the desired relief.

Like in former years these stamps are for sale during the month of December only but have franking value till April 30, 1924. They are available for foreign mail to all the countries of the postal union. The 5c, 10c and 20c are sold at an advance of 5c each, the 40c of 10c.

The airmail service Geneva-Zürich-Munich has been stopped over wintertime. The Zürich-Basle-Paris-London line will be continued but on a reduced scale, only one trip weekly in both directions and only if the weather allows it. It's a trial and may be given up at any time if not successful.

As it had to be expected the league of nations could not stand behind the office of labor and followed suit in adding the high values 3frs, 5frs and 10frs to its series.

The eruptions of the philatelic volcano of Turin continue. Once more commemorative issue. Now it is the anniversary of the memorable march of the facists in the eternal city that has to be celebrated with a set of 6 values:—

10c, 30c, 50c, 1l, 2l and 5 lire.

The set was for sale only during three days 26, 27 and 28 of October.

Then of course the glorious occupation of Corfu had to be immortalized by two series. One for the would-be d liverers, consisting of the following values of the current issue of Italy wi overprint Corfu: 5c, 10c, 15c, 20c, 30 50c, 60c and 1 lire.

One for the should be delivered i landers: 6 current stamps of Italy wi overprint Corfu and below value i Greek currency, Lepta and Drachme: 2 on 10c; 60l on 25c; 70l on 30c; 1.20D on 50c; 2.40Dr on 1 Lire and 4.75Dr o 2 Lire. The 60c blue of the 1st and Lire blue and rose of the 2nd set are n known yet without overprint.

It must be given credit to the exped tionary forces that they confined themselves to postage stamps and did not i clude any Dues and Specials.

Besides these three new sets a few sur charges have to be related yet. Ther being no need any more for a 5c parce post, this stamp has been surcharged 30 60c and 1.50 L and the 1c and 2c postag stamps have received 10c surcharges fo the same reason.

Austria's latest output may be calle a modest one. There are only six ne postage stamps and two dues to be mentioned:

1,000kr lilac, hammer and tongs.
1,200kr carmine, hammer and tongs.
1,600kr grey blue, hammer and tongs
2,000kr blue, hammer and tongs.
3,000kr brown red, Queen Bess.
5,000kr slate, Queen Bess.
600kr violet, Postage Dues, old design
1,200kr violet, Postage Dues, old design.

Germany is in a chaotic state so is it mail service. Values of higher an higher denominations are issued righ along but by the time they make thei appearance they are hardly of any us any more.

During September and October, wher the postage rates were raised to the tenfold amount and started to approach the million limit, adequate values were not at hand or not in sufficient quantities to frank letters with even in covering recto and verso of the envelopes and allowing overlaps of ¾ of the stamps.

Orders were then sent to the post-

ices to use dies to stamp the mail with. nese were of rectangular shape. The ft side of a double line frame in red orange showed the inscriptions "Gehr bezahlt, Taxe reçue etc.," in the me colour. At the right was left a cant space for the insertion of the rate pencil or in ink, 1,000 Marks being ed as the unity. Once in a while a w stamps of lower denomination were ixed and then only the supplementary te added. For instance, as the rate as 800,000 a strip of 5x1,000 Mk. amps and 795 inserted in pencil mark.

Several cities (Halle, etc.) were auorized to use labels showing in an pright rectangular frame the value in umerals (15,000-150,000), the name of e city and in some cases the postaster's signature. Design and inscripons in black on all kinds of coloured pers. If these labels offered by some ealers at rather stiff prices should ever chronicled, cataloguers and philatets are really to be pitied.

As the government's printing office was erbusy with turning out paper money e surcharging of stamps had to be done private printing offices scattered all er the country. Therefore none of e post-offices of the big cities, not even erlin, are able to dispose of a full set all the surcharges and some of them e rather hard to get.

Besides, as several values have been rned out by different concerns, there e varieties in shades, printing ink, aracters, paper (some of the surcharged values with lozenge and chickenwire watermark), perforations, it is impossible for some time yet to give an accurate list of all the varieties.

Without surcharge have been issued in a somewhat modified new Type, size same as small numeral type, abbreviated numerals, value in thousands of Marks, white numerals in colored circle, posthorn in spandrels; upper label "Deutsches Reich" in gothic characters, lower label value in full. Inscriptions white on colored ground.

5 (thousand) Mk, grey blue.
50 (thousand) Mk, light brown.
50 (thousand) Mk, dark brown.
75 (thousand) Mk, dark lilac.

And again in somewhat changed type of the above. The Numerals in thousands of marks and millions is the same but darker shade of colour on an arabesk background:

500 (thousand), brown and dark brown.
1 Million, green and dark green.
4 Millions, light olive green.
5 Millions, rose and carmine.
10 Millions, vermilion.
20 Millions, blue.
50 Millions, dark olive green.

As a consequence of the total collapse of the mark we may expect in the near future new goldmark issues. French currency overprints for Rhineland and Ruhr and a new Danzig set (postage stamps service and airmail) in the new currency florins and pfennigs adopted with effect in Jan., 1924.

New issue chroniclers won't get out of work for a while yet.

WATERMARK DETECTORS

BY W. L. BABCOCK.

Your note in the WEEKLY of December 3rd, in reference to watermark detectors, is interesting. Benzene (C_6H_6), if obtainable, would probably be satisfactory, barring the odor. It is practically unobtainable in small quantities. Mr. Rogers' pharmacist probably furnished him with a high test gasoline which of course contains too much oil. Carbon Tetrachloride and Carbona, are identical, chemically, the latter being the trade name of a cleaning solution.

Collectors who want a good watermark detector should ask their pharmacist to order for them one pound of "Benzol Pure, Mallinckrodt" or "Benzol Pure, Merck." One pound will cost the pharmacist 35c and should not cost the collector more than 70 or 75c. This quantity will last many years, if bottle is well corked. Benzol is a mixture of hydro-carbons of the benzene series, practically fat and oil free. It contains 70% benzene, 24% Tolulene and 6% Xylene. It is a fat and oil solvent, highly inflammable and quickly volatilizes. Only a sufficient amount to cover the stamp should be turned out at one time unless a number of stamps are to be examined. While it has a slight odor of benzene, it is not objectionable. It will not damage stamps and has no effect on dry coloring agents that are free from oils or fats. I have used it as a watermark detector with much satisfaction for several years.

"HOOK SELLS FOR LESS"

is the slogan adopted by one of my good customers who has been buying from me for the past two years.

For the 1923-4 season I shall have three distinct departments.

PLUMRIDGE CATALOGS.

Elsewhere in this issue is the advertisement of Plumridge & Co., in which illustrated catalogs of their February sale are offered postfree to all applicants. In sending the copy the firm requests us to fill orders for the catalog from a supply that will be sent us for distribution. In this instance we are complying with the request of the firm, but we are compelled to advise our European advertisers that in the future for various obvious reasons we cannot undertake a commission of this kind. We appreciate the fact that considerable time is required for across-the-ocean correspondence, and we sympathize with dealers in their desire to annihilate time and space in making business connections. Copies of this catalog will be mailed from the WEEKLY office to applicants desiring the same.

CHRISTMAS ADVERTISING.

A tribute to the WEEKLY which is also a tribute to the business enterprise of the Harris firm is the series of advertisements that this firm is using during the month of December. An entire page was used Dec. 3 and another on the 10th, while the issues of the 17th, 24th and 31st will all proclaim the Harris wares in a no uncertain manner. Coupled with the publication of the Christmas issue of the Bi-Monthly Journal of Harris & Co., it must mean a big December business. This list to which we refer is a 36-page issue, giving a full description of a large line of packets, sets and collections by countries. The list may be obtained free by writing H. E. Harris & Co., 161 Massachusetts Av., Boston 17, Mass.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE "WEEKLY".

We have on hand a few bound volumes of the WEEKLY, and offer them for sale at very reasonable prices. The years in question are 1902, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909. The price of these books is $2 each and this price is extremely reasonable in view of the high cost of binding in these days. Just to show you what we can do in the way of a handsome, substantial sample volume of the WEEKLY we will send you the year 1907 for $1.50 plus the zone parcel post charges on three pounds. This offer is for immediate acceptance.

EDITORIAL.

That philatelists comprise a body numerically strong enough to have consideration in a governmental sense has been proved by the developments at Washington favorable to stamp collectors. The willingness of the authorities to co-operate with us has been shown at different times and it is fair to say that each year official sentiment crystallizes in our favor. Looking forward to the Philadelphia philatelic exhibition, why not give our ambitions free rein and discuss the possibility of persuading the government to do something handsome for us and issue a special stamp to commemorate the occasion? The order is a large one but that it would appeal to philatelists goes without saying. A special stamp would be an appropriate distinction and that philatelists would see that the cost of production was fully met and more by their financial and moral support of the stamp is a certainty. There are many angles to be considered in a proposal of this kind, we are fully aware but we may as well aim high. Enthusiasm is a great motive force and if we should get behind a movement of the kind with the proper spirit, we may be able to over-ride all obstacles.

From Mr. J. B. Parker of Regina, Canada, we have received a copy of the Regina Daily Post of December 6th containing an editorial headed "Stamp Collecting." The opening sentences follow: "A decade or two ago 'stamp collecting' was a much more popular hobby with young people than it appears to be today. The explanation is that hobbies have their day. Other hobbies have come to the fore crowding stamp collecting into the background." The editor then expresses his regret that stamp collecting has dwindled away, because it was a clean and instructive pastime for boys and girls. In fact there is a strain of appreciation for collecting throughout the editorial and of the sincerity of the writer there can be no doubt. The position of the editor is that of the person who no longer being in the stamp world becomes ignorant of the activities in it. He makes out a strong case in favor of collecting and his words must have a good influence. This intelligent editor should be told that instead of declining generally interest in philately is increasing and while here and there collecting may give ground, its advances elsewhere are so considerable that the gain in territory is large. It becomes the duty of philatelists to present their pursuit in its proper proportions throughout the land.

In the Literary Supplement of the London Times for November 22, 1923, we find a review of "Casanova in England," edited by Horace Bleackley and published by Lane. In mentioning the amours of Casanova in London, the reviewer borrows a simile from philately in the following words: "These love affairs are listed and arranged by the true amateurs of Casanova as collectors treat a set of penny black postage stamps. To the layman, if we may so describe him, in these matters they do not appear to differ one from another much more than the stamps."

It is noticed that Mr. Henry A. Meyer of Evansville, Indiana, has returned from his European trip and he writes us as follows: "Philatelic news from Germany becomes obsolete even while the presses are grinding it out. It is impossible to keep up with the new issues because the stamp business cannot keep up with the increase in postage rates. Yesterday I received a letter dated at Hannover, Nov. 19, with stamps totalling 40 milliarden, also an overweight letter with 60 milliarden. The letter contained the news that on the following day the rates were to be raised again. It contained a supply of stamps up to the 10 milliarden denomination and the news that the next day still higher values were expected. Perhaps I can answer in advance a question that is sure to come up soon: 'What is a milliarden?' The answer is this: Where we count millions, billions, trillions, the Germans count millionen, milliarden, billionen. My correspondent writes that milliarden (our billions) are now small change."

* * *

It is reported that Mr. P. M. Wolsieffer of Philadelphia, yielding to the importunities of friends is considering, at least, the advisability of running for the presidency of the American Philatelic Society. Certain members are threatening to draft him as a leader and we shall await Mr. Wolsieffer's dictum with interest. Mr. Wolsieffer has refused to be considered as a candidate for office so often in the past giving reasons for declining that were satisfactory to himself at all events that it is about time that he heeded the call that will not down. When we think of how Mr. Wolsieffer has worked for the welfare of the society in the old days when the organization was in infancy, compared with its present lusty condition, it seems that the honor of the presidency is deserved by Mr. Wolsieffer. His long years of service in behalf of the society entitle him to the eminence that is bestowed by the office and we have no doubt that his nomination would be a most popular one.

The progress of the American Philatelic Society in recent years has been most satisfying and it has now reached a position where in numbers alone it is a body that must command respect. Its present prosperity is a tribute to those who worked to such telling advantage in the earlier years and while now there is no disposition manifested towards the American Philatelic Society other than marked by friendliness, in any quarter, there was a time when outside of the society, the croakers' chorus was in strong voice. Notwithstanding that critics who had a right to their opinion have said that the society has not been as active as it should be in constructive work, the society stands as a vindication of the careful course that has been followed. While in some respects the American Philatelic Society has been a conservative body, it has always adapted itself to the broad changes that come with time and an indication of this rule is to be found in the campaign that secretary H. A. Davis is instituting for a membership drive. He proposes to work through the local stamp societies with the idea of enrolling those members of them who are not affiliated with the national organization. We think that the efforts of Mr. Davis will have the support of the officers of the local bodies who will be glad to second the suggestion of Mr. Davis that the non-members identify themselves with the American Philatelic Society.

The traffic in sheets of German stamps has assumed large proportions and there are collectors who are buying the sheets with the idea of putting them away in the hope that some of the values will prove to be good property, relatively speaking. As the stamps in sheets are inexpensive, it follows that there is little to lose but something to gain. The present conditions in Germany are without parallel in philatelic history and the effect of the inundation of a great variety of German stamps has been helpful. Generally speaking, there are no illusions as to the possibilities of the stamps, market wise, and that is well, as when the speculative enter too largely in the thoughts of collectors, a bloom is removed from the joys of real collecting.

ED STAMPED ENVELOPES SUBJECT TO RATES AS FIRST CLASS MAIL MATTER.

(The following communication from Third sistant Postmaster General Hon. W. Irving over was sent to F. S. Eaton, New Haven, nn. There is no question but that the rul- is perfectly in harmony with the postal vs and regulations, but the law works a ere hardship upon the stamp trade in that mped envelopes are to be considered not as rchandise but as first class matter. A reion of this regulation might well be sought our philatelic organizations.—W. O. W.)

y dear Sir.

In reply to your letter of the 15th stant, with reference to the rate of stage chargeable on parcels of used velopes containing written addresses d cancelled stamps, you are informed t such handwritten or typewritten adesses are first-class matter and when t in the mails, sealed or unsealed, are argeable with postage at the rate of o cents an ounce or fraction of an nce, regardless of the number mailed. e law, embodied in section 398, Postal ws and Regulations, provides that 'all matter wholly or partly in writ-, except as hereinafter provided," first-class matter and subject to post- at the rate of two cents an ounce or ction of an ounce. The exceptions ate to certain written additions which y be placed on or inclosed with matter the second, third and fourth classes hout affecting its classification. The makes all written matter, except as ted, first-class matter regardless of purpose for which it is sent in the ils.

W. Irving Glover,
hird Assistant Postmaster General.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Mr. John A. Klemann of New York takes the presidency of the American Stamp Dealers' Association, replacing C. E. Severn; and under Mr. Klemann's guidance the society will give a better account of itself than ever before, we are sure.

—The Hawkeye Stamp Co. of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is sending out week by week mimeograph "money savers" as they are termed. They quote special bargains in stamps and are so arranged as to be easily checked up in connection with the filling of orders. You can be put upon the mailing list upon request.

—J. J. Prendergast reports Peru 214 10c imperforate both sides, with single row of perforations vertically through center of the stamp.

—Rev. E. A. Butler, St. George's, Newfoundland, has just issued a price-list of Newfoundland stamps which will be sent upon request.

—Adolf Gunesch, vice-president of the Weko, 1315 W. 31 St., Chicago, Ill., states that the official organ of the Weko will soon be in the hands of its subscribers and he would like to send sample copies to interested parties. The latest edition is in English and sample copies may be had at 10c each.

—Harry H. Armstrong, Box 324, St. Maries, Idaho, has submitted for our inspection a Spokane, Wash., 2c permit No. 1 and he is willing upon receipt of return postage to send a specimen to any Weekly subscriber.

—The New Zealand Philatelic Exhibition to be held in Christchurch next year is well organized and it is anticipated that the occasion will be one that will reflect creditably on those sponsoring the exhibition.

—R. L. Hustis of Milwaukee sends us a clipping from the Sentinel of that city giving the particulars of a meeting of the Milwaukee Philatelic Society at which the collection of Wm. J. Uihlein, vice-president of the Society, was on exhibition. It numbers some 37,000 varieties. Mr. Hustis believes that philatelists should conduct publicity campaigns in their respective localities, maintaining that newspapers will gladly use such material as may be furnished them. We confirm Mr. Hustis' judgment.

—The reader who showed us the handstamped frank "Cherokee Express Paid" on an envelope bearing the printed frank of Wells Fargo and Company is informed that we have found it in lists of western franked envelopes.

—Have you a little stamp society in your home town? This is the time of year for kindred philatelic spirits to get together and start stamp things humming in their own stamping-ground.

—If the reader who sent in his "hymn of hate" for certain poses and posers in philately will send us his name in confidence, we shall be glad to let his voice ring out.

—"We envelope collectors are pleased to see that you have a good word for United States envelopes and your guess that they are receiving greater attention since cuts of them have appeared in the catalogue is right," says a reader who should know what he is talking about.

—One of our subscribers, C. L. Douglas, 23 York St., Bath, Me., has a large lot of stamp papers on hand that he will be very willing to send to some club that wishes to improve its philatelic library. All that Mr. Douglas requires is that the society or club shall pay the amount required for postage on some forty pounds.

—Edward Locher of Tegna, Switzerland, has just issued a jubilee price-list in honor of the 25th anniversary of the establishment of his business. The book is very attractively illustrated with many rare and beautiful features.

—Will F. B. Joerns send his city and street address to the Atlas Stamp Co.?

—It is noticed that one of the objects of the Toronto (Canada) Stamp Collectors' Club, recently organized, is to "dispel the multifarious delusions the general public has about our hobby."

—There are a score or so of postage meter franks that have been used in Great Britain, according to lists that are appearing in the stamp papers there.

—We note a mistake in the Yvert & Tellier advertisement of the New York Stamp Co., published recently. The connecting link between the two names was given as "A" when it should have been the character "&." The New York firm feels that the force of the adv. was somewhat destroyed by the mistake and we gladly make this correction. The firm name of Yvert-Tellier is so well known that no one could possibly be in doubt as to whom it was.

3c Green 1870 - 1882

We have to announce the purchase of the well known collection of cancellations on this stamp formed by Dr. Bruns. This collection is undoubtedly the finest lot of this stamp ever gotten together and contains many thousands of stamps, the result of several years of collecting, and would be impossible to duplicate now. It is Dr. Bruns' hope that a buyer will be found for the collection intact, one who will carry on the good work.

Amongst the better items are Japanese cancellations, "USED UP," R. R. cancellations, initials, "O. K.", "U. S.", "Free", steamships, shields, crosses, anchors, hearts, eagles, leaves, skull and bones, birds, manikin in coffin, fine masonics, keystone, black hands, shoes, bird with letter, Nankin blue teapot, "DONT USM", bugs, wasp, grotesque faces, devils, Grant, heart and arrow, jack o'lantern, "PAID 3", geometrical designs, stars, numerals, alphabets, bull-dog, monkey, dumb-bell, pickaninny, mortar and pestle, "LILLY", and many others too numerous to mention.

We would be pleased to hear from any parties interested in purchasing the entire collection and also from those wishing selections if it be not sold outright. References, please, from those unknown to us.

A United States Scarcity

1914, 2c Imperf. Rotary Print, Wmkd

Scott's No. 459, formerly No. 3701.

Back in 1917 this 2c coil stamp from the rotary press coil in an imperforate condition was first discovered, although it had been issued several years before. Only a few were found and it has always been scarce and desirable. It cannot be faked from the imperforate sheet, for the rotary stamp was not issued in sheet form. There is a place for the variety in the new Scott album. Can furnish this variety, which catalogues at $7.50, at $6.50 per stamp, or $13.00 a pair. Line pair at $20.00.

20TH CENTURY U. S. COLLECTION

Offer a very attractive 20th century U. S. collection, all unused, consisting of 705 stamps, face $27.27 and cataloguing $187.12, at a special price of $75.00. A good buy for dealer or collector and contains the 1901 complete, the 1902 in many shades through the 50c, later issues nice with a smattering of $1 values. An unusually fine lot of coils and some attractive booklet plates. First check takes it. Neatly mounted in Oriole album.

Recently purchased several very fine U. S. collections. What do you need?

Over 500 Copies

of the 10c 1847 belonging to members of the Philatelic Chapter of the Noble Order of Good Scouts have been submitted for examination to help in the work of reconstructing the plate of this most interesting U. S. stamp.

If sufficient material can be examined, it is probable that 80% to 90% of all the varieties can be identified and their positions on the plate definitely located. If you haven't yet submitted the black tens you are proud to own, won't you do so, or at least write me about them. Copies submitted for sale or exchange should be priced. See previous ads.

Russia and Finland

Messrs. Plumridge & Co. have been favoured by instructions from F. A. Ellis, Esq., F.R.P.S.L., of Derby to dispose of his famous collections of the above countries which gained medals at the late Exhibition in London. The sale will take place at their Sale Room at 61-62 Chancery Lane, London, W. C. 2, on February 7th and 8th, 1924. Illustrated Catalogues will be sent post free to all applicants.

Russia—A large number of unused and used copies of the 1st issue 10k imperf., unused and used copies of the Perf'd set with wmk., several of the scarce errors of the middle issues Centres inverted, and a very fine series mint and used of all issues, etc., etc., several of the 1st type 3r 50 and 7 roubles modern issues practically complete.

Finland—A very fine collection of the rare 1st type (2 values), many postally used and some on entires. Several hundred of the various Serpentine perforation issue, including 20 copies of the 1 mark, and one of the Errors of colour.

The subsequent issues are all very well represented. Perf. 11 20p Tete Beche pair, Perf. 12½, 5 h. strip of 3 (centre stamp inverted), 3 pairs of the 20p Tete Beche, 20p yellow Tete Beche pair, and the more modern issues practically complete.

Copies of the catalogue can be obtained post free on application to the office of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, at Beverly, Mass.

UNITED STATES.—Philadelphia has recently been the scene of a very wonderful find consisting of a correspondence strong in early covers of the United States. In value as well as interest it will rank second only to the well known Townsend-Whelan find and is not on the order of the Merideth find which was heralded as something extraordinary, and then turned out to be of little importance. In fact, a couple covers alone from this find would almost equal in value the entire Meredith correspondence. At the present writing I am not permitted to give any of the details but can say that the little I have learned about it proves it to be something extraordinary and there will be many pieces to gladden the heart of the specialist in our issues.

On the opening session of Congress on December 3rd the only business transacted was legislation regarding a pension to be paid to Mrs. Warren G. Harding, in addition to the franking privilege. The collecting of franks is closely related to the collecting of stamps, for in this case the signature acts as a postage stamp. In late years the franking privilege has been extended to certain officials only, and the only persons in private life whom I can recall using the franks are wives of dead presidents. Personally I have collected Presidential franks, that is, franks of the Presidents of the United States, for upward of twenty years and have finally gotten together twenty-five franks out of a possible twenty-nine. In the olden days it was the custom of the President in many cases to actually write his signature to frank his letter, and because of this fact, constant search has brought together practically all of the early Presidents. In the case of the last five or six it has been necessary to have the President frank a letter in my behalf, for since the seventies few autograph franks have been used, the President franking his correspondence under the regular printed form of franking envelopes. For one interested in both stamps and autographs as well as items of a historical nature, I would suggest this side line of collecting.

Through the courtesy of the Director of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing, Mr. L. A. Hill, I am in a position to continue our list of stamp plates up to and including those issued to November 30, 1923. From this list it will be seen that there are one hundred fourteen new Harding Memorial plates making a total of two hundred nine recorded to date, the last plate to be made bearing No. 15210. It is quite possible that some of these plates were not used and from my observations up to this time (December 10th) the highest number that I have seen is 14997, although possibly the higher numbers will be in use by the time these notes reach our readers.

The list also includes the endwise coils of the 1c and 2c stamps of the new series.

EGYPT.—The Economist Stamp Co. report the 1m orange and 10m rose in the current series. Also the 10m, of the old design, with the surcharge "O. H. E. M. S." and Arabic inscription in black.

FRENCH COLONIES.—The stamp forger appears to have been paying considerable attention to these issues of late. The old 1904 types have been done and are being offered both unused and used, and now the scarcer varieties of the more modern provisionals have appeared. A Reuter message from Paris states that arrests have been made in the island of Reunion in connection with forgeries of the stamps of this colony, and this no doubt refers to the first "Red Cross" issue of 1915 with Cross in black and which is quoted in the current Yvert at 25 frs. and 375 frs. with overprint inverted. There is also the provisional of 1917, the 4c pictorial of 1907, surcharged "0,01," quite an ordinary stamp in normal condition, but quoted at 50 frs. with inverted surcharge and at 100 frs. with double overprint. A quantity of these productions have been distributed via Italy during the past six months.

The stamps returned from the post-office at Constantinople are to be placed on sale at the Hotel des Postes in the rue du Louvre.—Philatelic Magazine.

Specialist in Postage Stamps Issued Before 1880

Wanted to purchase for cash any of the following:—

UNITED STATES, Official Stamps (All Departments)

I shall be glad to receive approval selections of fine used copies with all varieties of cancellations, anything out of the ordinary specially wanted. Stamps on covers specially wanted. Also, in unused I want pairs and strips showing Plate Numbers and Imprints, and all oddities such as cracked plates, restrikes, double papers, ribbed papers, etc., etc., etc.

CHILI. First type stamps. All scarce varieties wanted, all issues on covers, rare cancellations and fine used pairs and strips.

COLOMBIAN REPUBLIC, 1859 to 1877. Wanted fine unused and postmarked. Pencancelled not wanted.

CANADA, NEWFOUNDLAND, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, BRITISH COLUMBIA, NEW BRUNSWICK and NOVA SCOTIA. Wanted unused, used and stamps on covers, all issues up to 1870. Highest prices for rarities.

I have some hundreds of small approval books of choice copies of postage stamps issued before 1880. Can I send you any of the following?:—

Confederate States. General Issue, unused, used and on covers. Postmasters' Envelopes of 1861.
Canada. "Pence" Issues. Unused, used and on covers.
"Cents" Issues, 1857-1870, unused, used and on covers.
Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, grand books of rare "pence" issues, many on covers, and a few rare bisections well "tied on."
Mexico. Six fine books of the issues 1856-1872, superb copies.
Chili. Ten books of the first type only.
Belgium. Eight books of 1849 to 1867.
Colombia and States. A number of books of early issues.
Norway. About 100 copies of the 1854, 4sk blue, Imperf.
Greece. Several books of first type only.
Japan. A grand lot of books of unused and used 1871-1875.
A fine lot of rare uncut sheets of early issues.
Argentine. A special lot of 1858-1872 specially strong in the "Rivadavia" Issues.
Early Australians. Superb early issues in New South Wales, New Zealand, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania and Western Australia.
West Indies and British Guiana. Several very choice books.
Afghanistan, 1870-1878. A grand lot in perfect condition from the Ferrary collection.
France and French Colonies. Some very fine books of early issues, strong in rarities, Bordeaux issue, etc., etc.
Shanghai. Very fine early issues.
Persia. First and second types only, grand lot.
Sicily. Fine unused and a number of rare covers.
Italian States. Books of all, specially strong in Modena.
German States. Unused and used.
Portugal. Fine lot of used early issues.
Luxemburg. Fine lot of early issues, unused and used.
Finland. Early issues, used and unused.
Great Britain 1840. 2d blue, no lines, book of superb copies in singles, pairs and strips.

My prices will be found very moderate considering the quality of the stamps in which I specialize. [16-18-20

WEKO
THE WORLD'S LARGEST COLLECTOR AND CORRESPONDENCE CLUB
(Organized 1911)

JOS. GALLANT,
Hempstead, N. Y.
Sales Manager for America.

Stamps mean money, collecting of stamps is the most educational and fascinating obby. Buy good stamps and you will never regret it. There is no better investment hat will bring more satisfactory results, than stamps. How can you obtain good and are stamps for a minimum price? Many dealers have a stock of Millions not marks, I ean U. S. Dollars, and the largest dealer cannot supply you with every stamp you are ooking for. Expenses in the stamp business are high and the stamp collector has to ay for it. Why not try to buy stamps through the different Sales Departments? Expenses are small, collectors trying to get rid of their duplicates, do not figure expenses nd profits. Can you find a better chance to obtain rare stamps, which you cannot uy from your dealer, as the WEKO Sales Department? An organization with over 0,000 members all over the world can show you something. Every day sales books are eceived from all corners of the world by the Sales Department. Stamps at the Cat. alue from $100.00 and upwards are among the Weko Salesbooks. Stamps for the most dvanced collector, for the collector with less than 20,000 varieties and stamps for the eginner; every grade of stamps are represented in the Weko Sales Department. If ou are intersted in good and rare stamps, if you buy medium priced stamps and if you re looking for the cheaper varieties at reasonable prices, kindly ask for an application lank and join the WEKO Sales Department.

Become a member of WEKO, $1.00 for one year entitles you to membership, with all he privileges; $6.00 pays you for life membership. The December number of the World's orrespondence, our club paper, has just arrived; ask for a sample and mail 10c to cover xpenses.

Have you duplicates to sell? No other Sales Department can show better results. am in charge of the Department only since August, 1923, and here are a few unsolilted testimonials from members, selling through the WEKO Sales Department:

A letter from Mr. N. S. H., Wilmington, Del., reads as follows. "Thanks for check, ou sure got good results." Another letter from Mr. R. O. M., Detroit, Mich., just reeived: "Thanks for check for $50.00 today and was very much pleased with the results btained from my first experience in sending the WEKO books." Mr. G. C. D., Chicago, ll., sends the following communication: "I received your letter and check for my 3 VEKO books. I wish to thank you." Mr. C. R T., also from Chicago, Ill., has appreiated the work of the Sales Department and writes: "I also wish to congratulate you n the systematic, business-like methods with which you are handling our Sales Deartment."

And many such letters are received every day. Now, to show such results in four onths, there must be a reason. Certainly I am receiving all kinds of letters, some of ur members, who have no idea of managing a Sales Department, are expecting that the ales Manager must be satisfied if a member buys for 20c or 25c stamps from a circuit, nd they expect that circuits must be sent. Every collector must admit that a Sales epartment cannot be handled this way. The WEKO Sales Department is here for eal collectors and not for kids.

The most books sent to the Department in August have been returned to the owners ith payments for stamps sold, some books showing sales of 100%, some others from to 85%. The quickest and surest way to dispose of your stamps is to enter them in e WEKO Sales Department. Junk, trash or common stamps are not wanted. Comunicate with the Sales Manager and ask for particulars.

DOTTINESS.

By Theodore Siddall.

Perhaps it is a little late, but the mails e to blame (we received four numbers the Weekly by last mail), but I can't elp writing you a few lines on your otes on the Shanghai local prints which peared in the issue of September 25th.

To begin with, these surcharges were inted from type, set up to print the tire sheet of 100 at one impression. fter printing one value, the figures ere changed, and then the other value as printed. I sent Mr. Klein a sheet waxed paper (one of the slip-sheets hich are used on all U. S. stamps that ere sent here, in order to keep them om sticking together), which has been inted the same as a sheet of the surarged stamps—and read in the Weekly at he had a proof-sheet of the surarge! It was merely a slip-sheet that d the impression, and perhaps was not rown away because they had no extra eets of the waxed paper.

I have examined my sheets of the surarged stamps for the supposed "errors" broken letters that are mentioned, and ere are two that might possibly be orth notice, namely, the mis-shaped " and the "I" that appears like a ure 1. The latter may be a 1, but the is merely a battered letter. The others, d I have seen them all, are simply used by the printing having been done th a very light impression and heavy king. The type not being new, and pression being light, the printing does t show up as clearly as it should. See e stamps surcharged at the Bureau in ashington for Shanghai. Printing ofes out here can not replace type that slightly worn so easily as those that e near a type-foundry, and they use pe that in the States would not be used.

This sort of thing is what we come to en we go in for specializing. You it your collecting field, and soon have that are in reach, then have to get mething to exercise your philately on, nding the appearance of a new issue, d have to go in for this sort of thing, else stop a while. The philatelic urge so strong that you have to go in for tty work. It is bad for the hobby, r when you get it all specialized you ll have one chap looking for round riods, another for square, and when e wants to sell there are only a few o are hunting on the same lines, and you have no market. Do you get the idea?

But honestly, now, man to man, don't you think there is something more important in this world than whether the periods are round or square? I will bet you a nice mangosteen (in the season) that the prohibitionists did not put in any of their time collecting minor varieties when they were putting over the 18th Amendment. Go into politics, if you want fun—it is only one way of occupying yourself—for certainly a human being who has passed the age of six ought to do something more important than to worry himself over the location in a sheet of stamps of one impression that happened to have a lump of ink on the type, that shouldn't have been there.

Variety Collections

No. 2 Quality

We occasionally obtain packets and collections of European origin, and these we are obliged in almost every case to class as "No. 2 Quality." The collections as a whole represent excellent value for the money, but the makers carelessly included a number of local issues, telegraph stamps, etc. In many cases the quantity of undesirable material is quite negligible and relatively unimportant and the packets are in every other way right up to standard.

We offer the following on a cost-plus basis, with the understanding that if they do not give complete satisfaction, a refund will be made without question. You can't lose on that basis!

This is probably the largest collection of its kind which has ever been carried by any concern, either here or abroad, and they are so difficult to assemble that we are unable to offer more than two or three each year. The mere number, "three thousand," does not appear very startling, but when it precedes the words "France and Colonies"—scarce, much under-catalogued and everywhere in great demand — then will incredulous exclamations be forthcoming from every collector. For how many members of the Great Hobby are able to point with pride to well-filled pages of these hard-to-get Colonials? How many more have glanced ruefully at the many empty and unfilled spaces and very near despaired of ever filling them? We feel not only happy, but also very proud, to be able to present such an effective and altogether satisfactory solution to the great difficulty. We are positive that the future patronage of every pleasing buyer will more than repay us for our efforts and inconsequential monetary profit in offering such a truly magnificent collection at an unusually low price, which is well within the reach of any collector of moderate means.

We cannot undertake a detailed description of a collection of this size. It would take pages to do so. We can state, however, that everything is in fine condition, and that the collection will fill, at one fell swoop, practically all of those annoying blank spaces with the medium-priced French Colonies you have been unable to obtain. Early issues, new issues, red cross and charity stamps; occupation and provisional issues; hundreds of stamps in complete sets; thousands of superb, handsome and hard-to-get stamps, most of them in mint condition.

That's the story in a few words, and any purchaser who is not more than pleased, after a thorough examination, may return the collection for a full refund, plus postal expenses!

A STAMP FIRM IN TROUBLE.

POST OFFICE INSPECTORS ARREST A ST. LOUIS DEALER IN CONNECTION WITH STOLEN STAMPS.

(We have received numerous clippings giving the particulars of a stamp fraud that is alleged to have been perpetrated by Herman C. Davis of Washington, D. C., who sold damaged U. S. stamps to Henry Flachskamm, manager of the C. E. Hussman Stamp Co., of St. Louis at big discounts. Below are published particulars as furnished by Washington and St. Louis newspapers.—Ed.)

Postal Inspectors Saffell and Zantzinger of the Post-Office Department are in St. Louis today investigating the trail of stolen stamps which led from the division of stamps here to a business firm in the western city, following the arraignment yesterday afternoon of Herman C. Davis before United States Commissioner Macdonald and his confession to the theft of $75,000 worth of stamps.

The postal inspectors left yesterday for St. Louis, following the confession of Davis, twenty-five years a trusted employe of the division of stamps, that he had, over a period of years, taken damaged stamps and sold them to the St. Louis firm at 75 cents on the dollar. Davis was arrested Wednesday. After his sworn statement, made to Frank J. Kelley, assistant United States attorney, he was released under $5,000 bond for the action of the grand jury.

The fact that Davis was able to "get away" with at least $75,000 worth of stamps, and possibly many thousands of dollars more yet to be brought to light, makes it probable that more stringent methods will be devised to safeguard the destruction of damaged stamps sent here by postmasters.

It was pointed out by officials today that the very fact that so many of the supposedly damaged stamps were able to

When post-office inspectors visite Henry Flachskamm, secretary-treasure and manager of the C. E. Hussma Stamp Company, at his home at 390 Lindell Boulevard, Wednesday evening Flachskamm told them he had nothing t hide and turned over to them a bundl of correspondence.

In that bundle the inspectors found a $8,734.30 invoice for damaged postag stamps showing discounts on variou lots of 25, 30 and 60 per cent. The visited Flachskamm again last night told him such discounts on usable postage stamps were unusual and arreste him charged with possession of stole property.

The invoice which brought about hi arrest was from Herman C. Davis Washington post-office clerk, who ha confessed that he sold damaged stamp to Flachskamm instead of destroyin them.

In Flachskamm's home, Post-office Inspectors Ward and Noah, under author ity of a search warrant, found thirtee envelopes, each containing 100 2-cen stamps, and a quantity of Flachskamm' correspondence with Davis and tw firms in Chicago and New York t which Flachskamm resold stamps whic he admits purchasing from Davis.

Many companies engage in a legitimat stamp trade, post-office inspectors sa handling surplus stamps of mail orde houses at a discount from 1 to 2 pe cent. Any larger discounts are unusua according to inspectors.

Flachskamm admitted to the inspecto hat he had served most of a fou ear term at Chester, Ill., penitentiar or using the mails to defraud, of whic e was convicted in 1904. He has bee ngaged in the stamp trading busines ince 1888, they say.

He denied, however, that he kne hat Davis was getting stamps illegall He said he did not know Davis was ost-office employe and had met him onl nce. Flachskamm admitted that ent $50,000 to Davis in 1922 in payme or stamps and a like sum this yea With discounts of 25 to 60 per cen hese transactions would involve stam alued at between $135,000 and $180,00

Return receipts for registered ma o Davis were found in Flachskamm partment. The searchers also foun apers indicating that Flachskamm ha nade constant and large deposits in ocal bank.

Flachskamm was released last nig n $10,000 bond. His preliminary hea ng will be held December 28 befo United States Commissioner Atkins.

The Post-office Inspectors also visite he Hussman Company's offices, 2600 Olive street, and in looking throug even safes in the company's offic ound ten envelopes, each containin 00 2-cent stamps.

The company has been operating, wi minor changes of name, since 1880. I fficers are Louis Bartel, president, S. Ledman, vice president, and Flach amm, secretary-treasurer and manage

Paul Calman, who was in charge he office yesterday in the absence Flachskamm who had been at home f everal days, declined to make a stat nent, referring inquiries to W. Sleatter, attorney for the firm, who als epresents Flachskamm.

OUR FIVE-YEAR HONOR CLUB.

Stephen G. Rich, Essex Fells, N. J.
George C. Ham, Naugatuck, Conn.
Royal Van Kirk, LaPorte, Ind.

It is with much pleasure that we announce that Stephen G. Rich has taken out a membership in the Five-Year Renewal Club. He writes:—"I am another of those collectors who find it impossible to be without the WEEKLY—if only to see my views on Africans, pink backs and philately in arithmetic in print." Dr. Rich will be recognized as a frequent contributor to the WEEKLY and he is a pretty busy man too. His interest in philately is very keen, as witness the closing paragraph of his letter:—"In my school, the Essex Fells Public School, I have gotten nearly all the boys active in collecting. I have offered a prize for the best collection of any one country made by a pupil." Dr. Rich is a real student in philately and we look for a large measure of usefulness in the philatelic literary field as the years go by.

JOHN E. STEARNS, LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Mr. Stearns has been recorded as a member of the Honor Club and we are pleased to present to our readers the picture of our new member, who is honorary president of the Tuna Club of Los Angeles.

George C. Ham, of Naugatuck, Conn., renews his subscription for five years and takes his place as a member of the Honor Club. He belongs there most assuredly in view of the fact that he has been a subscriber to the WEEKLY since Volume I, Number 1. He writes that having more than once sent in a two-year subscription and survived it, he will venture to join the Five-Year Renewal Club in view of the fact that at the present time he is in fair health and possesses the necessary price. Mr. Ham is connected with the Naugatuck Water Company.

Just as we are going to press a check for $5 reaches us from Royal Van Kirk of LaPorte, Ind., and it is with pleasure that we add his name to the list of members in our Honor Club.

POST CARDS FIRST USED IN AUSTRIA.

Dr. H. von Stephen, one of the most noted Postmasters General of Germany, is credited as the originator of the post card which is now in universal use.

The German Postmaster General was, however, denied the pleasure of introducing post cards himself, for his proposal to the delegates to the German postal union at Karlsruhe in 1865 was not well received. In 1869 the idea was revived by Professor Hermann, of Vienna, who brought it to the notice of the Austrian postal administration and secured favorable action. Postal cards were introduced in the Austrian service in October, 1869, being sold at 5 kreutzer, approximately 2½ cents in United States money. The innovation was an immediate success and nearly three million cards were purchased in the first three months. Following on this success, post cards were soon introduced in most countries and were adopted in the United States on May 1, 1875.—Post Office Bulletin.

THE PRECANCEL DEPARTMENT

Edited by F. W. ALLEN,
312 Walnut St., Minneapolis, Minn.

New Issue Notes—The Hardings still occupy the limelight. They command good prices as their popularity is extensive. Not many are being precancelled for some reason, probably on account of the poor way in which they take the overprint. Auburn, N. Y., Bay City, Mich. (Electro and roller types), Bisbee, Ariz., East Grand Forks, Minn., Flint, Mich., Garrett, Wyo., Gloucester, Mass., Lincoln, Nebr., Mamaroneck, N. Y., Manitowoc, Wisc., Mason City, Ia., Mobile, Ala., Nevada, Ia., Selma, Ala., and Stamford, Conn., are the latest. Torrington, Conn., takes first honors in coming out on the eleven cent Hayes. Paonia, Colo., and Chicago were closely behind, being second and third respectively. Kansas City New York City and Northampton, Mass., may also be chronicled. The twenty cent Golden Gate may now be had precancelled from Chicago, Cincinnati, Boston, New York, San Francisco, Parkersburg, W. Va., and Columbus, Ohio. Several new fourteen centers are Sheboygan, Wisc., Rochester, N. Y., Rochester, Minn., Minneapolis, and Torrington, Conn. The first of the one cent denomination to appear without the Bureau overprint was Schenectady, N. Y. Now Elmhurst, N. Y. (U-18), Clay Center, Nebr. (U-3), Kendalville, Ind. (U-3) and Woodsboro, Md., dallville, Ind. (U-3) and Woodsboro, Md. have come to hand. Bureau overprinted precancels for Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Washington, Atlanta, Des Moines, Milwaukee, Nashville, Omaha and Jackson, Mich., are the latest to be issued. A number of offices have stocked up on the new one cent coils and New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, Omaha, Boston and Nashville have precancelled them in the box type furnished to fifty cities for that express purpose. The seven cent is in quite general use as is also the fifteen and twenty-five. No attempt shall be made to tabulate these varieties in the Chronicle. However, I might mention the following which have come to my attention: Seven cent black McKinley from Athol, Mass., Cleveland, Ohio, Joplin, Mo., Kalamazoo, Mich., East Grand Forks, Minn., Milwaukee, Wisc., and Torrington, Conn. Fifteen cent Statue of Liberty from Boston, Flint, Mich., Utica, N. Y., Parkersburg, W. Va., Milwaukee and Torrington, Conn.

Alderson, W. Va.—The U-3 handstamp does the work for this city. I am able to mention the 4, 5, 6, 10, 11, 12, 15 and 20 cent values as having passed through my hands.

Anaconda, Mont.—It's the "snakes hips" as they say. Have only seen one copy—a thirty cent which sold for an even dollar. The type is similar to U-3 and handstamped between bars.

Brookfield, Ill.—About three-fourths of the new towns seem to precancel with the U-3 handstamp. This is the description for this city. A 5 cent new issue inverted cancellation is my only variety.

Burns, Wyo.—In tall letters without bars; the name handstamped in two lines. The 1 cent perf. 11 is the solitary item to record. This was off a farming circular, so it's back to the cows and chickens if you want to find one for your collection.

Caldwell, N. J.—Two Caldwells, the other in Idaho, are precancelling with electrotype plates. Both are moderate users of these stamps as few have been found by collectors. Caldwell, Idaho, was chronicled nearly six months ago but the New Jersey city is a brand new addition. Handsome does not half describe them.

Colfax, Wash.—Has a plate similar to Olympia, Reno, Nev., Sapulpa, Okla., etc. Resembles closely, U-3. The 5, 8 and 2 cent surface print are all I have on my list, but I am sure many more varieties are known.

Concord Junction, Mass.—Like Gloucester, Mass., the electro type plate is of only fifty subjects. The sheets therefore come half with normal and half with inverted overprints. Tete Beche pairs are possible to secure and are a pleasing variety to one's collection.

Darby, Pa.—The 1 cent in a handstamped type similar to U-2 is a new variety. Both normal and inverted. They are "darbs," believe me!

Doylestown, Pa.—Another city for the Irish. A 6 cent Perf. 11 with Doylestown, Pa., reading diagonally up inverted in one line sold for two dollars. A stiff price, you say. Well, try and see where you can match the variety.

El Paso, Texas—The U-18 electro has just appeared. Waco, Texas, has also a new plate of this type. Both cities needed them badly for the handstamps they have been using are pretty well worn out, if one may judge from the faint and blurred overprints created.

Fernald, Iowa—It may be well to warn collectors against buying any precancels of this village (about 30 inhabitants). They are illegitimate and the party who made them, J. A. Hairrland is sought for by government officials for having put over several shady deals, connected in no way with precancels.

Miscellaneous—Donalsonville and Marietta, Ga., Flora and Pana, Ill., Crawford and Saint Columbans, Nebr., Chandler, Fairview, Hugo, Krebs, Pawnee, Purcell and Pawhuska, Okla., are a few cities selected at random that have never been listed. Small town precancels of this sort are worth quite a bit as they are in great demand for collections.

Various matter on the subject of precancels will be forwarded to any interested reader of this paper upon request. I shall be glad to offer advice and cooperation on the building of a collection and point out the best way to get started. Necessary catalogues cost about three dollars. A good blank album is required as well.

There will be a lot of new items coming on mail during the holidays so be on the watch for them.

I wish to extend thanks to Messrs. D. C. Trumbull, H. A. Thatcher, W. H. Field, Jos. Peter, C. O. Evenson, E. M. Oleson and W. Markham for their cooperation.

PUZZLE CONTEST

By S. G. Rich.

I have deposited with the Editor of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY two envelopes, containing the prizes for this contest. The envelopes contain the following:

First Prize: Transvaal No. 101, lightly cancelled; set of South African Railway parcel stamps (not catalogued), 1d to 5s; set Central South African Railway stamps (not catalogued), 3d to 2s; 7 South African revenue stamps.

Second Prize: Orange Free State No. 31, new; 7 South African cut square envelopes and wrappers.

The conditions of the contest are as follows: Sets of answers should be sent to Dr. Stephen Rich, Box 13, Essex Fells, N. J., to reach there, not later than Jan. 20, 1924. They should be addressed as just given, and in no other way. Decision will be sent to the Editor of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY within one week of date of closing of contest, and will be published in the WEEKLY as soon as possible. I shall also notify the two winners.

The questions to be answered are as follows:

1. On all stamps of what country are two fishes shown?
2. On what stamp is a train shown coming out of tunnel?
3. What animals and birds are shown the ½d Union of South Africa, 1910, Scott No. 1?
4. On the Canada Map stamp of 1898, Scott Nos. 82 and 83, what 3 parts of the world were not parts of the British Empire although shown as such on that stamp?
5. What country issued two stamps with Queen Victoria's head on them although it was not part of the British Empire at the time?
6. What boat is shown in the stamps of the former German colonies?
7. What does the view on the 1d Cape of Good Hope 1900, Scott No. 61, represent?
8. What stamp of any country has had the longest period of use without change other than watermark, shade or perforation—that is, without change noticeable to the general public?
9. What countries other than the United States have issued precancelled stamps?
10. What country has an issue of revenue stamps often found with postal cancellations, yet never used for postage?

THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT

of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men" calls for relaxation from the busy rush of every-day life. It is the time for a mental inventory of a closing year to result in higher and better purposes with which to start the coming New Year.

I wish each reader of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY the fullest realization of what Christmas and the New Year should mean to him.

In the line of relaxation, I am sure our hobby will prove an unequalled aid. Would my new 48-page price-list entitled "Stamps of United States and Colonies" be of any service to you? It is free and a postal will bring it to you. It will tend to increase Christmas cheer and happiness for the New Year.

(This department deals only with U. S. issued before 1890 and mainly postal issues. The editor cannot give valuations on minor varieties, etc. Stamps sent for examination should be of interest because of oddity, scarcity, etc., or to clear up some debated question. Postage should be enclosed with registration fee when desired, also self-addressed envelope. —Ed.)

From W. S. Boggs, 624 E. 17th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.:

"I notice that the question of varieties of the two cent brown (1883) has again cropped up. Am sending a few copies showing the variations of the pearl and line mentioned by Mr. Moore.

There was a time when I was tempted to include such varieties as worthy in a collection but I do not now feel that they are important enough. I have a copy in my collection which shows no shading on the '2' at all. From what I have seen of these stamps I am inclined to the belief that all such varieties are due to insufficient inking and worn plates. Then again the heavy shading back of the '2' is formed of one thick line. Now, as you know the engraving of such a plate is comparatively small [that is not very deep in the plate.—Ed.] In the case of a wide thick line like this on a plate the film of ink may have broken to cause the lack of shading.

You understand of course that the above is merely an attempt to explain the cause of such peculiarities. As Mr. Luff has said, there was only one die and variations are due to insufficient inking and the condition of the plates. I am positive that they are not plate varieties. The American Bank Note Company did very good work and it is hardly believable that such items would have escaped the eyes of governmental inspectors.

I am also enclosing the article from the Philatelic Gazette which I mentioned in my last letter [for which the editor owes his sincere thanks to Mr. Boggs—it is helpful]. I have searched the files thoroughly for anything else concerning the die blocking of the other denominations of these issues (National, Continental and American) but this is all I can find. I was fortunate to secure copies which contained the article for my files and when you finish with it please return. I still believe that the position dots found on these issues of U. S. are an aid in determining the various printings of the National and American issues. I agree with you that the dots may be found in many places on the stamps but I feel that the ones in the position indicated are of such importance as to be considered when deciding the printing [dots in or just beside the white frame line surrounding the oval vignette at the left of stamp.—Ed.].

In looking over a lot of three cent greens, I have noticed that the lines forming the medallion on the Continental plates are not so regular in their termination as those of the National plates. As to this, I am in the dark and not certain whether it is an optical illusion or not. Can anyone tell me whether this point is of any value in separating the Continental from the National plates?

I had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Arthur Hinds' collection of U. S. at the Collectors Club. He has about everything there is. There was a block of three cent green mint (six in the block) in which the middle stamp in the bottom row showed no design below the ribbon. [This is probably one of the short transfers that occur at least in the three cent green and perhaps in some other values of the National, Continental or American issues. The writer has perhaps two or three copies of the Continental. They are very rare. If the block referred to shows a plate number will Mr. Hinds kindly let us know what plate as it would be interesting to locate this particular variety.—Ed.]. Mr. Hinds had the grilled stamps in mint blocks of four except of course the twelve and twenty-four, but the block of six seven cents was a gem. The Continental grills were there and all the special prints. I don't know whether you have seen Mr. Hinds' collection or not, but I will tell you it is worth going a long way to see.

I have been reading your articles in The American Philatelist on mounting your issues of 1870 to 1882 and I would be much obliged if you would tell me how you separate the various papers such as the Continental on soft paper, American on hard paper, etc."

Regarding Mr. Boggs' comment on varieties of the two cent 1883. The Editor's opinion is that plate varieties or printing varieties of this kind are worthy of some consideration in a collection, depending, of course, on how deeply the collector goes in for minor varieties. We cannot see why it makes any particular difference to the Specialist whether the plate variety was caused by something that happened to the plates when they were engraved or later. Any variation from the normal (generally speaking from the stamp as shown in the first proofs) is a variety to the true specialist. Otherwise, we could not consider a worn plate as a variety. And were it not for worn plates we would not have recut plates and other interest-

The 3c U. S. Stamps of 1851-57

Many converts to the attractions of specializing these interesting stamps are being made by the publication of Dr. Carroll Chase's authoritative articles. We notice an increasing demand for minor varieties, shades, shifts, curious recuts, cancellations, etc., all of which are described in detail by Dr. Chase. Everyone interested in U. S. stamps should study these articles.

Of the odd things described we can supply a fair proportion, any of the platable stamps in the last three rows of Plate III, nearly 100 varieties of shifts, freak recuts, classified shades and printings, Type II perforated with recut inner side lines, cancellations, covers, etc.

Type I perf. centered, on fine cover	$1.25
3c imperf., green town on cover	5.00
8 characteristic shades, '51 to '57 with Orange Brown and Claret, nice	3.50

Our specialized approval selections of 19th Century U. S. are particularly strong in the 1c, 3c and 10c stamps of 1851-57, against trade and bank references.

WE PAY THE TOP OF THE MARKET FOR FINE 19TH CENTURY U. S.

J. O. MOORE, Inc. Hammondsport, N. Y.

ing varieties. The main thing is to be able to determine whether the variety is a true plate variety or a printing variety. Then, if a plate variety, on what stamp or what plate and how long was it used before being corrected by the engravers. And there you have the essence of the pleasure of specialism—research, which leads to plating and all that sort of thing.

If the thing is a printing variety, it has its place in the specialized collection, although the editor personally does not accord the same importance or value to printing varieties as to plate varieties for the reason that not so many collectors go in for the former and they do not have the same helpfulness in learning all there is to know about certain issues. Also, they are more in the nature of freaks than plate varieties. The writer classifies these under the heading of "Printing Varieties and Odd Impressions" and the pages under this heading for the various issues are interesting. Stamps in which the paper was creased before printing (showing a wide white streak through the design of the stamp), smudged copies which look as though a sign painter had dragged his brush over the design of the stamp, stamps which are stippled accidentally with spots of ink, stamps with irregular white streaks through the design caused by a piece of string or something of the sort lying on the plate at the time of printing, etc., etc., are all under this heading and when the collection is extensive enough they are interesting even to those who are not specialists for they are true freaks. If the lack of shading of the figure "2" referred to was caused by a film of ink forming and breaking so as to leave a white space where there should be color then, in the humble opinion of the writer it is a printing variety and should be classified as such.

As to separating National from Continental printings, the writer finds the greatest help comes from familiarity with the various papers and inks used. Generally speaking, National printings can be separated from Continentals at a glance merely because of the difference in the papers or the shade. When there is any difficulty, the secret mark can be referred to. Or, this failing, the frequency of the dot at the left of the oval medallion on the National compared with its infrequent application in this same location on the Continental may be considered as helpful but not proof absolute.

As to the writer's method of separating various papers: In the National printings where there are fewer varieties of papers, specimens showing variations from the normal, such as medium soft paper, extremely soft and porous paper, stitch watermark, etc., are placed together on the same pages under the heading of "Paper Varieties" and notations made under each variety to designate it.

In the case of the Continental issue where there are a dozen or more distinct varieties of paper, normal, semi-soft white paper, soft paper the same as used for American printings, linen-like, thick, thin, onion skin, transparent hard paper, paper showing silk threads, double paper, stitch watermark, vertically ribbed, horizontally ribbed, etc., the same method is followed, specimens of the various papers being shown by groups on the same pages. But in the case of the ribbed papers, the writer makes a small collection of these showing all the various shades, some minor varieties on ribbed and any especially fine cancellations and cancellations that may help determine the date of use of this major paper variety.

The same system is followed for the various papers of the American issues, excepting that in the case of the American hard paper, which is a major variety as interesting and probably as valuable as the ribbed papers of the Continental, another small collection is formed. In this case the writer is particularly anxious to determine the date of use of the paper in question and any cancellations that might help indicate that its use was after or before a certain date are kept. Also shades, minor varieties, such as shifted transfers, etc., stamps on the hard paper showing the American Bank Note Company imprint, stamps showing plate numbers, etc. These small collections of a few pages each of the ribbed (Continental) and the American hard paper are reference collections kept with the thought of later working out some constructive and helpful data on the subject.

The same method applies to the issue of 1882, where there are some interesting minor varieties of the paper and some major varieties, such as paper punched with eight small holes in a circle, etc.

It might be said that traces of straw or other foreign material are to be found in the papers of all three printings, National, Continental and American, and these "straw papers," especially conspicuous examples, find a place in the specialist's collection under the same heading "Paper Varieties."—ED.

THE BUFFALO COLLECTORS CLUB

The Buffalo Collectors Club which was formed about three months ago is succeeding even beyond the hopes of those who originally organized it. The membership has increased at every meeting and is now close to 25. There are members from Dunkirk, Hamburgh, Eden Center, Snyder and other western New York points. Each meeting of the club has witnessed an increasing attendance.

One of the reasons for the success of this year's club has undoubtedly been the auction sales. Interest in these sales runs strong and the total sales grow larger with each meeting. In these sales it is apparent that United States collectors are more appreciative than ever before of fine cancellations on U. S. stamps, as some such items which have been sold in the Buffalo auction sales have brought prices way out of proportion with the catalogue value of the stamps themselves. The club is planning exhibits to be placed in the display windows of local stores.

Billions of Marks

Here are some of the highest value stamps ever issued for Danzig and Germany. Danzig has already changed her currency to gold basis and is using the Gulden as a basis. The 5gld stamp is the highest value in the set. Germany will likely go onto a different currency basis soon.

We can supply practically everything in recent Germans and Danzig and offer some below. Anything you want in these or other stamps you do not see offered, let us know and we'll send if it's here. Our connections are of the best and prices reasonable. For offers in these and thousands of other first class stamps, get Phillips' Monthly Bulletin, 24 pages and free for the asking.

Want Lists. A Specialised Service

For years I have made a specialty of the execution of Want Lists. Few firms in this country have developed this side of the business to the same extent.

Owing to the great increase in my American business, I have now established a WANTS REGISTER on the basis of Scott's catalogue. Collectors may therefore send me their full want lists and be confident that they will not be side tracked and that they will receive constant attention. Selections will be sent on approval at regular intervals.

I sell stamps in Fine Condition only. My prices average half catalogue, and will bear comparison with any market in the world. I have, at the moment, nothing to offer in old U. S., but have an immense stock of British and French Colonials, Europeans, Asiatics, Africans and South Americans. I stock no common stamps and New European rubbish.

Approval selections of any country against references. [tf

MORE FERRARITIES.

Some of the Prices obtained at the Eighth Sale in Paris, November 7, 8 and 9.

The eighth Ferrary sale occupied the three afternoons of November 7th, 8th and 9th at the Hotel Drouot, Paris, when 622 lots were offered and realised 1,588,957 francs, or, with tax, 1,867,024 francs—equal to about £24,044.

This brings the total for the collection to date to 15,747,640 francs, or, calculated at the rate of exchange prevailing at the different periods of the sale, £280,502.

A comparatively novel feature was the stiff competition for many lots from German and Austrian bidders, who bought very heavily.

The sale opened with 112 lots from Austria, comprising a very rich collection, among the chief items being:—

1850, 9 kreuzer blue, Type III., unused, superb, with gum, £121
1851, yellow Mercury, unused, superb, with gum, £151
Red Mercuries, unused, £302, £272, £272
Red Mercury, used, £133

The Lombardy section included two fine unused 4k newspaper tax stamps, which realised £166 and £105 respectively.

The greatest rarity of the sale was one of the three known authentic examples of the Baden error, 9 kreuzer black on green, used on letter, which was bought by a German dealer for £1,816. A 3k rose of 1862, imperforate, used at Stockach, fetched £55.

Another fine batch of early Belgians figured in the sale, including:

1849, 10c brown, block of four, apparently unused, £95
20c, deep blue superb pair, apparently unused, £52
20c deep blue, block of four, apparently unused, £78

A Brunswick 1852, 1s rose, superb unused, fetched £124, or slightly under full catalogue.

Spain, of which there were thirty-four lots, comprised a few important items, including the famous Westoby copy—

Error 2r blue, superb copy, used, £1,393

A forgery of this sold for 32s. A 2r pale rose of 1852, unused, brought £57, and an unused 2r red of 1853, £53. A 3c bronze "Madrid," superb unused, £74.

The 12c blue and rose of 1865, centre inverted, very fine unused, brought £204, and a similar example in pair with normal £273.

Among eleven lots of Grenada, the outstanding item was 1sh violet error OSTAGE, unused, £60.

Some lots of Hungary fetched surprising prices, amongst others:—

1871, litho, 2, 3, 5, 10, 15 and 25k, unused, £74
A similar lot, £55 and a collection of 295 newspaper stamps, £166; and another of 195 newspaper tax stamps, £196.

The Oldenburgs included

1858, ⅓g black on green, superb unused, £64
Another £42 and another £45.
1860, ¼g orange, superb pair, blue postmark, £84
⅓g strip of three on letter, £98
3g yellow, superb pair on piece, £74

A large collection of Orange Free State and Colony, comprising 1,195 items, including sheets of varieties, the starting price for which was 4,000 francs (£60 with tax) brought 16,500 francs (£250).

Two sets of eight Prussian telegraph stamps, unused, fetched £73 and £83 respectively.

A 1 real blue Pacific Steam Navigation Co., used, brought £37, and a 2 real brown-red, £44.

Out of many rare Peru items we select the following:

1858, error ½d rose, unused, or apparently so, £22
½p yellow, used pair, £42
½p yellow, used, with certificate of the Philatelic Society, London, £5 ½p red errors, used, £39, £21, and £19.
½p red error in pair with normal, £159
½p red errors (2), in block of six (defective), £62

A wonderful lot of Transvaals (sixty-five lots) was disposed of, the tete-beche pair of the 1sh green, 1877, unused, being probably unique, and certainly cheap at £242. "Transvral" errors fetched £24, £16, used, and one in pair with normal, unused, £138.

A sheet of forty of the 6d blue on blue "VR," October, 1877, with varieties, brought £98; and a sheet of 60 of the "1 Penny" on 6d grey brought £53. A st of six with red surcharge brought £52.

The Turkey stamps, which opened t third day's session, sold mostly in lar lots, but the following are worthy record:—

1876-77, error 25 pi red and blue in pair with 5pi, unused, £
Error 25 pi red and blue, unused, £10 10s
1867, Tax, 25 pi brown, unused, £

Victoria, of which there were near 200 fine lots, included a superb block ten from the margin of sheet of the red, unused, half-length Queen, £35 Also:

1850, 2d grey-lilac, fine impression, unused, £
1852, error TVO for TWO, unused, £
Another copy, £
1861-6, 6d orange, beaded oval, unused, £1
6d orange, beaded oval, another, but defective, £

The sale concluded with nearly a doze small lots of German stamped envelope which fetched prices which were asto ishing to British collectors and dealer who take little heed of such things. set of seven Prussian envelopes, of larg size, fetched £79.—Postage Stamp.

BOOKLET COVERS.

By Simpson Yeomans.

(Mr. Yeomans has recently published a neat oklet on "Booklet Leaves," and it has been viewed in the WEEKLY. We quote this rtion of the book in order that our readers ay note the interesting nature of its contents. e book sells for 75c and may be obtained om 101 Morningside Drive, Kansas City, Mo. W. O. W.)

As changes in the personnel of the ost Office Department were indicated the various names to be found on the vers of the early Booklets, the detail of ho was who" has provided another ries of variations for the Specialist. ifferences in the text of the directions d postal rates give rise to other differces which are considered of enough portance to warrant considerable attion being paid them. The covers of oklets are full of "first aid" to the norant. This printed matter will forer undergo revision and additions of rious details. A number of other untries have followed the example of e United States and have issued their w denomination stamps in Booklet rm. Some of these countries have sold vertising space in Booklets and we can adily understand the complications that ould be the lot of the Specialist if this untry did likewise.

The collecting of Booklet Covers is e of the many interesting phases of oklets. Although their collecting is t as general as the collecting of e single Booklet Leaves, many ecialists go in for them. Those who collect them prefer to collect the ene Booklet—Leaves, Cover and all just they are issued by the Post Office Dertment. Collecting the covers only ay be compared to the collecting of "ut squares" as against the entire enlope.

The Specialist who goes in for Comete Booklets will find the field an inresting one and as the majority of all e various cover designs are available day, his efforts will not be in vain. is indeed interesting to note the varius changes that have taken place from ne to time in the cover design of oklets.

THE HEART OF THE DIAMOND.

By Christopher West.

Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co.

1c Blue.

This stamp was made by altering the Swift & Courtney die. The straight marginal label across the bottom of the stamp and the triangular ornaments between the ends of this label and the lower part of the circular band which is inscribed "Swift & Courtney" have been removed and a curved label which is inscribed "& Beecher Co." has been inserted. Crossing each lower corner of the stamp we now find a colorless panel the one at the right being inscribed "Wilm." and at the left "Del."

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, Dec. 20, 1875.
First issued, Dec., 1875.
Last issued, Mar. 30, 1883.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
475,154,123 issued on silk, pink and watermarked paper.

The die was altered by the National Bank Note Company and all the stamps on silk and pink paper were printed by that concern. Printings on watermarked paper were made by the National Bank Note Company, the American Bank Note Company and by the Bureau. The first plates used were made by the National Bank Note Company and the last plates used were made by the Bureau, and it is quite likely the American Bank Note Company may also have made several plates. The number of stamps issued indicates that there were about 50 plates in all.

These stamps vary considerably in impression and in shade, usually both darker and brighter than the dull blue common to the Swift & Courtney stamps. Copies showing considerable wear are not difficult to find and the details of the background, especially in the triangular ornaments in the upper corners are often very indistinct or entirely missing.

Pairs are occasionally seen and the various printings were probably used in strips of three in lieu of 3c stamps to a limited extent.

These stamps were used by the Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co., up to 1880 or 1881, and from then by the Diamond Match Co. until the repeal of the stamp tax in 1883. Over 80% and probably close to 90% of all the match stamps used in the last two years of the tax were used by the Diamond Match Co., yet this combination had no private die stamps on which its name appears. The factories which it owned, controlled or operated used the stamps bearing the names of proprietors who, before the formation of the Diamond Match Co., had been independent manufacturers.

Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co. is listed in the Wilmington, Delaware, Directory for 1873-74—E. B. Beecher, Pres., and Wm. H. Swift, Sec. and Treas. The Connecticut Business Directories list the Diamond Match Co., at Westville, from and after 1882. On page 17 of the Connecticut Business Directory for 1879, an advertisement of the Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co. reads "E. B. Beecher, President, Westville, Conn., W. H. Swift, Sec. & Treas., Wilmington, Del., sole owners of A. Beecher & Sons patent match machinery. Store, New York, 214 N. 4th St., Philadelphia, Chicago, 55 So. Calvert St., Baltimore. Factories and offices, Wilmington, Westville, Chicago, Philadelphia. Machine shop Westville, Conn."

The Directory for 1888, contains an advertisement on page 938 at the top, which reads, "Wm. H. Swift, Pres., Wilmington, Del., Jps. Swift, V. P., 157 Duane St., New York, and at the bottom O. C. Barber, Treas., Akron, Ohio. L. W. Beecher, Sec., Westville, Conn." In the center is a double lined diamond, reading between the upper lines "The Diamond Match Co." and similarly below "Westville, Conn." In the center of the diamond is "L. W. Beecher, Secretary."

PARCEL POST FOR ESTHONIA.

Effective January 1, 1924, parcel-post packages for Esthonia will be subject to the following transit charges:

Up to 2 pounds, 6 cents
Exceeding 2 pounds and up to 11 pounds, 10 cents
Exceeding 11 pounds and up to 22 pounds, 16 cents

The above charges are in addition to the postage rate of 12 cents a pound or fraction of a pound, both the postage rate and the transit charges to be paid by means of postage stamps affixed to the parcels.

The item "Esthonia" on page 174 and the transit table on pages 180 to 182 of the July, 1923, Postal Guide, as well as the item "Esthonia" in the table on pages 17 to 29 of the November Guide, are modified accordingly.

Paul Henderson,
Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

IMPORTANT Announcement

A departure, as radical as it is unexpected!

Consistant with its time-honored policy of SUPER-SERVICE AND QUALITY, the OLD DOMINION h succumbed to popular urging and, beginning with this issue of the WEEKLY, offers to its many friends and patrons, SPECIALIZED SERVICE IN SETS, world wide in scope, and embracing the very cream of Philatelic emissio Nothing has been left undone to make this magnificent addition truly regal in every sense of the word. Time, thoug and money have been no object and now O. D. extends to you and to the collecting public a service best described a UNIQUE; a service of universial application, developing, as it does, the ARTISTIC SIDE OF PHILATELY the very maximum, and enabling EVERY CLASS OF COLLECTOR to obtain at moderate prices, sets and singl that will charm their possessor and beautify the most prosaic of collections.

SETS! Philatelic gems of colorful beauty—rich, sparkling, superb miniatures of artistic achievement.

OFFICERS CHOSEN FOR STAMP CLUB

At a well attended meeting of the Nova Scotia Stamp Club held in the Church of England Institute on Monday night the following officers were elected for the year: President, Rev. Noel Wilcox; Vice-presidents, A. E. Noble, Louis Smith; Secretary, W. R. Pearce 69 Kline St. (re-elected); Treasurer, A. E. B. Dauphinee; Publicity Manager, H. W. Drew; Librarian, B. H. Drake (re-elected); Counterfeit Detector, D. A. King; Auctioneer, H. Heckler.

Messrs. R. M. Hattie and H. L. Hart were elected to form a committee to arrange the annual dinner.

It was decided to hold over until next meeting the appointment of sales manager and exchange manager, as no report had been received from the present officers.

GEORGE H. JAEGER, LIBAU LATVIA.

Some two years ago several small claims were entered against Mr. G. H. Jaeger, and the WEEKLY very naturally mentioned the circumstances in view of what appeared to us dilatory action in the settlement of the claims. In due season they were all adjusted, Mr. Jaeger is now a member of the A. S. D. A., and our columns are again open for his use. We have every reason to believe that all business will be expedited and satisfactory relations will result. One of his advertisements appears in this issue.

A PITHY WORD OF APPROVAL.

We have received from W. A. Creber of Toronto, Canada, his renewal of subscription. In connection with it he gives expression to a statement which we may well believe. He writes:—"When the WEEKLY arrives the daily gets neglected." We are perfectly willing to admit that Mr. Creber has not drawn upon his imagination.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The following question from a postmaster has been answered by the Third Assistant Postmaster-General: "I have sold in about thirty days, 20,000 Harding memorial stamps. Shall I order some more?" Answer: "The department still has an ample supply of Harding memorial stamps available to meet the public demand and postmasters may continue to send requisitions for additional stocks as needed."

—From a despatch in the Chicago Tribune, we learn that President Coolidge is about to reinstate the experts that were dismissed from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington by President Harding.

—The Passaic, N. J., Daily News, of Nov. 24, contained a story of the theft of valuable postage stamps from Herman Kupper, a 40-year old paralytic of that city. A party by the name of Frank McCarthy, name supposed to be fictitious, fleeced Kupper by taking with him an envelope of stamps when presumably going out to get a bill changed.

—Some of our subscribers have taken exceptions to the article "Just a Matter of Ethics" that appeared in a recent WEEKLY. We do not feel warranted in publishing any of the replies and will remind our would-be contributors that the writer of the article in question may have emphasized rather strongly some of the salient features in his contribution in order to start something.

—The Colonial Stamp Company of Chicago has bought the complete stock of Max Noack, a dealer of that city who is known to many of our readers. Mr. Noack is to spend some time in Germany.

—H. S. Taite, Delaware, Ohio, a member of the A. S. D. A. has been staying in Chicago for several days.

—The Midwest Stamp Co., Kemper Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., has just issued a new price list advertising many packets, sets, desirable single stamps, philatelic accessories and publications. It will sent free on request.

—The second edition of Specialize United States, published by the Sco Stamp & Coin Company, New York, an compiled by Eugene Costales has bee distributed and the catalogue under n tice is almost twice the size in the nun ber of pages of the 1923 book. The im provements in the second edition a marked and we now find the departme stamps with "town" and "fort" cance lations, when the latter are known, t gether with the "specimen" varieties du listed. The most striking advantag possessed by the new catalogue is t illustrations of our postage stamps u der the restrictions of the recent enac ment and the usefulness of the book increased many-fold, in consequence. T "varieties" are becoming settled in the places and here and there an addition two is made to the list. As for price they confirm the estimates of those wh maintain that there is no checking th advance in value of our stamps. A long as the specialistic urge is felt by a increasing number of adult collectors o U. S. stamps, the competition that engendered by the demand made b them, as well as the collectors of lon standing will have only one effect,—tha of an upward trend. We feel more de pendent upon the present edition of th catalogue than before and we are of th opinion that the book will be accepte as a vade mecum for those who colle U. S. seriously. The book is a thing o beauty as well as utility and the printer have given a good report of themselve The price of the catalogue in neat pocke size is two dollars: Scott Stamp & Coi Co., 33 West 44th Street, New Yor City.

—On the occasion of the 25th anni versary of the founding of the firm o Edouard Locher, formerly of Zurich bu now of Tegna près Locarno, Tessin Suisse, a souvenir list of jubilee offer is made by the house in question. Pag after page of rare Swiss stamps fron first to last are shown in illustration an

PORTUGUESE COLONIAL COLLECTION!

WE OFFER AT AN EXCEPTIONALLY LOW PRICE ONE OF THE BEST AND MOST COMPLETE COLLECTIONS OF PORTUGUESE COLONIES WHICH HAS EVER PASSED THROUGH OUR HANDS

This collection was included in the stock of a large foreign dealer recently purchased by us. We are not retail dealers, and it is our desire to offer the collection intact at a price low enough to draw an immediate purchaser. It is impossible to do full justice in describing this offering, and we shall endeavor only to give the most important details:

The collection contains exactly 3,075 different stamps—every one a distinct major variety. 20th century issues are practically complete FOR ALL OF THE COLONIES. Among the gems are Angola Nos. 116, 134-151, Cape Verde 136 and 8, Mozambique 164a, 184-8, Congo 119, 119a, 122a, 123, Portuguese India 262-396, St. Thomas 116-166, in superb condition. Unused stamps are in the majority, but used copies are lightly cancelled in most cases. Condition throughout is practically perfect, great care having been taken by the former owner in the selection of fine copies.

THE CATALOGUE VALUE IS APPROXIMATELY $2,750.00.

Prices on Portuguese Colonies have been settled and stabilized for many years, and there are not the market fluctuations often found in New European issues and other stamps of that class. At the recent sale of a large Boston auction firm, scarce colonials averaged over 40% of catalogue with sharp and active bidding. Collectors and dealers all over the country are beginning to realize the great popularity and value of these stamps, and many of the rarities, now underpriced, will increase in value with the passing of time.

We do not believe our collection could be replaced—stamp for stamp—at less than $1,500.00. As a straight, dyed-in-the-wool investment for collector or dealer, it has our highest recommendation. For immediate clearance we offer the collection intact for

SPECIAL PRICE $675.00

The above collection was sold shortly after appearance of the advertisement, but we have just acquired

A SUPERB COLLECTION OF 3,200 DIFFERENT PORTUGUESE COLONIALS

Twentieth century issues almost entirely complete—of the same wonderful quality and condition.

In a collection of such a size, these additional hundred and twenty-five stamps (3,075+125=3,200) add many dollars to its value, as they are naturally of a high catalogue value.

In order to effect a quick sale, we offer this superior collection of 3,200 different—intact—at the low price of only $675.00.

e prices particularly of the pieces otographed add to the interest of the ges.

—The Edward Ludwig Stamp Co., of hila., calls our attention to an India riety. It consists of the ½a 1883-1887 icial stamp with surcharge "On H. M. " in green instead of black.

—Henry A. Kiehl sends us a copy of e new 3c Canada. It is the same den as the 3c brown King George, but printed in red.

—We have frequently mentioned Eune Klein of Philadelphia, as a metrolitan dealer, who gives considerable ie to the boosting of the Weekly by uring new subscriptions. We must e equal credit to Edwin P. Seebohm San Francisco, who has sent us in ny new subscriptions and also many newals. As we do not make it a prace to give commissions on renewals, for vious reasons, this co-operation by Mr. ebohm is doubly appreciated. No wer than a dozen renewals have been eived through his office in recent onths.

—"In a consignment of the latest Gern stamps I have discovered one sheet 75,000mk on 1,000mk green where veral stamps show a distinct c instead e in tausend. The variety is found on following stamps in the sheet. Nos. 33, 34, 62, 64, 73, 77, 81, 92, 94, 95. her sheets of the same value do not w these varieties."—Erwin Strasser.

—We are stumped by an inquiry ask- if Mark Twain was a stamp coltor. We have no reason to say that was although that he was interested es to them in his works. In his postal affairs is shown by the refer-

"Gilded Age" he paid his respects to the abuse of the franking privilege by many of the legislators and his criticisms were so caustic that we suspect that they hastened the adoption of the use of the department stamps in 1873. At one time, Mr. Ralph W. Ashcroft, who was secretary of the Philatelic Sons of America when it was organized in 1893, was employed by Mark Twain as a confidential secretary, we believe.

—As further information on the subject of the distribution of the postage collected by the country of origin of the letter that is delivered in another country, we are told that when the postal union was organized, it was provided that a small proportion "of the amount collected was to be paid at fixed interest to the postal departments of other countries through which the letters may be sent."

—A reader asks if the essays of the Pomeroy Letter Express, showing a locomotive as a central design are rare. In the first place, these labels were said to have been used as seals on parcels and valuable packages forwarded by Pomeroy and Company; and they had no postalic value. Until somewhat recently, it was not a difficult matter to find sheets and lots of these labels in old accumulations of stamps.

—An old advertiser has sent us a letter in which he speaks of the unwisdom of depending upon auction prices as a guide because of the difficulty of reflecting the condition of the stamps listed, as furnished by the catalogue. In other words, the description of each stamp should be given as the cataloguer has it, whenever auction prices are quoted.

MR. WALCOTT THE PURCHASER.

Our story in the issue of Dec. 10, dealing with "The Chronicles of Ferrary" was in error in its statement that the strip of seven 10c blue Confederate States with frame was sold to a certain New York collector. It was purchased by Mr. George Walcott, of New York City, as will be noted by the following communication. We congratulate Mr. Walcott upon the acquirement of this rarity and thank him for calling attention to the mistake:—

"I notice that in Mr. Melville's interesting article on the 7th Ferrari Sale of last June which appeared in your number of December 10th, he has made an error regarding the purchaser of the Confederate States strip of seven 10c with frame line. This piece was bought on the order of Mr. John Kleeman of Nassau Stamp Co., and is now in my collection."

COLLECTORS PLAN HOME.

More Than $10,000 Raised at Annual Dinner of Club.

More than $10,000 was raised at the annual dinner of the Collectors Club last week, with the dual object of increasing its activities and preparing for a suitable permanent home in the near future. All of the leading postage stamp collectors in this country, or philatelists, as they prefer to be called, are members of the club. Dr. J. Brace Chittenden, the Secretary, said that the 414th member was admitted a few days ago, representing an increase of more than 200 members within two years.

"HOOK SELLS FOR LESS"

is the slogan adopted by one of my good customers who has been buying from me for the past two years.

For the 1923-4 season I shall have three distinct departments.

No. 1, for those who realize that the want list route is the best and cheapest way to buy.

No. 2, for those seeking stamps cataloguing $1.00 up and prefer approvals.

No. 3, for those wishing approvals cataloguing $1.00 down. [H

The Collectors Club occupies the parlor floor of an altered private residence at 120 West Forty-ninth Street. The rapid increase in membership and the gift last year by Theodore E. Steinway of one of the largest philatelic libraries in the world have intensified the need for larger quarters.

Among the members taking an interest in the efforts to obtain a suitable home are former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Representative Ernest R. Ackerman of New Jersey, Charles Lathrop Pack, President of the American Forestry Association; Arthur Hind, the Utica textile manufacturer, who has recently accumulated the most valuable postage stamp collection in America, Major J. Philip Benkard, Edward S. Knapp, who has one of the best collections of Confederate States stamps in the United States; Julius C. Morgenthau, John N. Luff, one of the stamp experts of the world; John T. Coit, George Walcott and Arthur H. Lamborn.—N. Y. Times.

We are on our way; and 1924 will live up to its promise of becoming the greatest year ever known to philately, we feel sure. The general distribution of interest in stamp collecting is a good sign and as heretofore barren fields are being made fertile for the growth of the philatelic seed, the harvest will soon be ready for reaping. We quote: "Those not of the elect of philately are often struck with astonishment at the magnitude of the stamp collecting business, the apparent amount of capital sunk and the extended ramifications of the trade. Being engaged, perhaps, in a large business themselves and knowing all the mysteries of agencies, and consignments, and invoices, and deductions, and commissions, they are disposed to regard stamp selling as some new industry which is gradually assuming gigantic proportions." The foregoing observations are not those of the present-day ecstatic prophet of the New Year but on the contrary were penned just fifty years ago by J. W. Scott, the father of philately, who was then at his best. It is understood that it would be treason to introduce the philatelic New Year with anything but a whoop of enthusiasm but happily this year it is not necessary to have to indulge in any "window dressing."

An interesting question has been asked that no doubt is based upon a cover, shown by a dealer, that originated in New Orleans after the declaration of the civil war and was sent to an address in the north. The envelope bore a pair of the five cent green Confederate, postmarked New Orleans, which paid the postage to an exchange office in Virginia, where a three cent U. S., 1861, paid the postage to destination in the federal states. The fact of the matter is that letters except "prisoner of war" or "flag of truce" letters with both Confederate and U. S. stamps thereon are exceptional. In June, 1861, before Confederate stamps were issued, the newspapers reported that letters could be interchanged between north and south through the express companies, which charged ten cents for the service of posting each letter at its exchange office, Louisville, for instance, between north and south. In August, 1861, Postmaster General Blair of the north prohibited "commercial intercourse with the so-called Confederate States" and promised arrests for express agents or others who sought to evade the law. As the first general issue of Confederates was in October, 1861, it will be seen that letters of the kind described were contraband; and they were ordered to be seized and sent to the post-office department at Washington. This is the surface consideration of the points involved in the question and we are prepared to say that by sufferance a number of letters seeped through after the warning of our postmaster-general on August 26, 1861. The postal disunion of the north and south was not accomplished at one fell swoop.

At a Vermont postal comference-convention held recently it was suggested "that some manner for distribution of special or new issues be arranged to provide initial supply to district offices that the communities supplied by these offices may have equal advantage with larger communities." This request for consideration for district offices attracted some attention and the question finally was answered by the bureau of third assistant postmaster-general, who said: "For accounting reasons it is impracticable to provide district post-offices with advance supplies of new stamp issues as is done with direct and central accounting offices that are furnished with stamp stock direct from the department without prepayment. Every possible effort is made to supply central accounting offices with sufficient quantities of new stamps so that requisitions from district offices may be filled promptly. The unusual delay in distributing Harding Memorial stamps to all post-offices was due to the unprecedented demand, which was far in advance of expectations and initial production capacity." Collectors residing at district post-offices feel that they should have the opportunity to greet the newcomers as soon as those who live at the central offices but it seems as though there is nothing that can be done for their relief, those pesky "accounting reasons" standing in the way.

From Willis H. Kerr, Librarian, Emporia, Kansas, we have received the following communication, dated December 15, 1923: "Addressed severally and individually to:—Dr. J. I. Wyer, Director, New York State Library, Albany, N. Y.; Dr. A. S. Root, Librarian, Oberlin College, Oberlin, O.; Dr. W. W. Bishop, Librarian, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan; Mr. Geo. B. Utley, Librarian, Newberry Library, Chicago, Illinois; Mr. A. D. Keator, Librarian, University of North Dakota, University, N. D.; Mr. John B. Kaiser, Librarian Public Library, Tacoma, Wash., and Dr. John H. Leete, Director, Carnegie Library, Pittsburg, Pa.

Dear friends:

I believe you are all stamp collectors. Let's eat breakfast together at Hotel Sherman, Chicago, on Tuesday morning, January 1, 1924, at eight o'clock. Bring some duplicates and do some trading, as Mr. Wyer and I have done at several A. L. A. meetings. We can talk over our specialties, and perhaps agree upon an informal library chapter of the A. P. S.

Please send me names of other stamp-collecting librarians, so that I may notify them.

Yours bibliophilatelicly,
WILLIS H. KERR, Librarian,
A. P. S., 6401.

The following note was added to the letter: "Dear Mr. Severn: We shall be very glad if you can join us as above suggested. The first four men addressed are past-presidents of the American Library Association, which will be holding its annual mid-winter meeting at Chicago, December 31 to January 2. There are other librarian-collectors. I hope to discover how many. Our headquarters are Hotel Sherman; and Mrs. Kerr and I shall be there from December 28." Here is a good illustration of how philately may be brought into the open to advantage and Mr. Kerr's avowal of his interest in collecting is an example of loyalty to philately that might well be copied by all of us. In our opinion a breakfast with men of the character of these distinguished persons will be an event and we are sure that the occasion will be such as to start the new year most auspiciously.

* * *

When Mr. Charles J. Phillips was in Chicago, he followed his practice of attending the dinner of the Rotary Club there. Mr. Phillips qualifies as "philatelist" in his home club in New York. Noticing the stranger within the gates, the members at the table at which Mr. Phillips sat introduced themselves and then it was the turn of Mr. Phillips to identify himself. When he announced that he was a "philatelist," he sensed the polite puzzlement of his fellows and said that his profession had them guessing.

OCEAN - TO - OCEAN COVERS

An Announcement of Unusual Importance.

The airplane four days (Aug. 21-24) transcontinental flights between New York and San Francisco marked a new era in the history of aviation and philately, for, in whizzing across the continent through 2680 miles of space between the Atlantic and Pacific in a little over 26 hours, a postage stamp has been shot from ocean to ocean at a speed beyond the dreams of a generation ago. Of these first day covers there are but comparatively few in existence, and naturally they will be much sought after and prized as time goes by.

At the moment have from one to several of each of the following (Scott 551-571), either from S. F. to N. Y. or N. Y. to S. F., at following prices:—

BRITISH COLONIAL WAR STAMPS
0 Varieties, unused, o. g. (Cat. $6.68) $3.00
A representative collection of these desirable and obsolete stamps.
H. F. DUNKHORST [22
005 7th St. N. W., Wash., D. C.

ne gentleman said that he knew that he word was connected with philately or tamp collecting; and the speaker was Mr. Carroll Shaffer, manager of the hicago Post. Mr. Phillips, as always, was enthusiastic on the subject of his profession and his auditors listened to his interesting descriptions of philatelic facts and fancies. Mr. Shaffer asked Mr. Phillips if he would allow him to end a reporter around to his hotel in rder to get a real story for the halfdozen or more Shaffer newspapers. Mr. hillips responded that as the reporter ho is untutored in philately finds it fficult to properly present the material at is given him, he would prepare something himself and submit it in manuript. The suggestion was respected and e believe that Mr. Phillips has written n excellent account touching upon the gh spots in his inimitable way which has or will soon submit to Mr. Shaffer. is a good plan to wear one's philatelic eart on one's sleeve and it is worth hile to try to discover if a chance acquaintance even is a stamp follower.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, 510 WEST 113TH ST., NEW YORK CITY

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Dubuque, Iowa, seems to have considerable trouble in connection with the re-naming and re-numbering of its streets. H. R. Jansen sends us a postal cancellation from this city reading:—"Address Dubuque Mail to New Street and New Number."

—W. F. Fratcher, proprietor of the Michigan Stamp & Coin Co., who recently underwent a hospital operation, has not sufficiently improved as yet for him to leave his bed. The operation was a success but in his weakened condition complications set in, hence his need of the doctor's care for a number of weeks.

—C. F. Heyerman, president of the A. P. S., calls our attention to an advertisement in the issue of Dec. 3 and asks us to correct the statement that J. L. Riedel is a member of that society. He states that his application for membership has been returned to him. It is evident that Mr. Riedel thought that the use of the name of the Society was permissable after the filing of the application.

—We have been shown a new advertising cancellation by Frank Hein from Homestead, Iowa. It reads:—"Show your Return Address on all Mail."

—In the Kansas City Times, a feature is a column devoted to happenings in Kansas City forty years ago and we notice the following paragraph in these brevities, in the issue of December 18th: "The Kansas City post-office yesterday received 910,000 postage stamps of various denominations. It is reported that under the two cent rate a somewhat larger number of stamps is being sold but that receipts from that source do not run as high as when the rate was three cents." Here is an echo of the introduction of the two cent red brown of 1883.

—Mr. C. T. Rogers of Evanston, Illinois, shows a stamp or rather a pair of stamps with a story. He has a pair of Serbia 5p, catalogue number 157, in a very pale shade that was taken from the wallet of the late King Georgevitch, of Serbia, by his son, Prince Georgevitch, who presented them to his friend, Mr. Rogers. The young prince has been in the United States for the past six weeks as an attaché of the New York consulate of Jugo-Slavia.

—From Mr. Michael Miller of Baltimore, Maryland, we have received a letter written to him regarding insurance on stamp collections by P. L. Wellner, vice-president in charge of the Fidelity and Deposit Company at Baltimore: "I am not familiar with the notice which appeared in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS of Nov. 19th, respecting insurance on postage stamp collections. We do not make a practice of writing insurance specifically on stamp collections but only provide a limited coverage under our Residence Burglary, Theft and Larceny policies. Under these forms we cover stamp and coin collections to an amount not exceeding $50.00."

—Erwin Strasser sends us an interesting set of stamps that may possibly have been noted in the WEEKLY but we venture this additional comment upon the set of three stamps used on mail matter per the U boats "Deutschland" and "Bremen" to this country. The stamps were regularly used by only one P. O. station at Berlin and were supposedly not sold to the public but attached by the postal clerks. After the war the unused stock was disposed of to the public. We will not undertake a description of these stamps but will add that the values are 15, 20 and 25 marks in blue, brown and slate respectively. Mr. Strasser also submits a letter from the Philatelic Agency regretting delay in the filling of Stamp orders and stating that it would soon be in shape to handle the large business that has resulted from the establishment of the agency. Mr. Strasser also enclosed in this letter specimens of Bavaria charity stamps where the overprint appears with inverted surcharge and another where the surcharge is upon the back of the stamp.

—Fifty years ago a large New York company advertised to pay ten dollars for any stamp sold by it that proved to be other than genuine and this offer was made "in case any of their clerks should accidentally make a mistake and sell any forgeries that sometimes come in collections they purchase."

Better 19th Century British Colonials

I price these stamps at a small profit for a quick turnover. As the prices are mostly very low, I cannot keep a big stock; nice early unused B. C. are scarce and getting better all the time. If you don't see what you want and you think the prices are reasonable, send in a small want list—all unused and returnable if not satsifactory.

SUBSCRIPTION RENEWALS.

Some of our subscribers need to know our rule regarding discontinuances. We discontinue all subscriptions in arrears promptly the second issue of each month. This means that your subscription should be renewed prior to expiration. The expiration number can be ascertained by consulting your wrapper. No free copies of the WEEKLY are sent out and this rule is as fixed as the laws of the M. and P. Our older subscribers understand our rule and the newer subscribers should get acquainted with it.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the address of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—In my notes of last week I mentioned that a wonderful lot of early covers had recently been found in Philadelphia, and since writing these remarks I have had the opportunity of viewing a good portion of the find. The lot without doubt included the largest number of the 10c. 1847, that have ever been found in one correspondence, for so far I can account for upward of three hundred specimens. Mr. B. K. Miller has become the fortunate owner of the larger portion of the known lot, and his holdings consist of three strips of three, fifty-five horizontal pairs, four covers with two singles each and seventy-eight singles, all on covers. In addition he has five horizontal pairs off of the cover, all from the same find, addressed to Budlow Beebee, Bankers, of Philadelphia. Unfortunately the greater portion of the stamps have been cut into, but this will make more readily the plating of the variety because many of the pairs can be fitted together, because of the irregular scissors cuts.

When these are plated they will go into the collection of Mr. Miller who is the possessor of one of the finest collections of United States stamps in existence. He has practically every main variety known and there are very few minor varieties missing. In the way of newspaper stamps he without doubt has the finest collection known, which include all of the special printings as well as the reprints made by the several Bank Note Companies. Mr. Miller is a close student of the stamps of our country, and I know of no collector who derives more pleasure from his philatelic activities.

The second edition of the "Specialized United States" catalogue compiled by Mr. Eugene N. Costales, and published by the Scott Stamp & Coin Co., made its appearance on December 10th, and those interested in its publication are certainly to be congratulated on being able to present so much data in such a compact form. The catalogue is materially larger than the previous edition and not only covers the general adhesives but this year we have for the first time the Parcel Post stamps as well as the official Department issues. The catalogue is illustrated and this will greatly help the amateur who has not been in a position to properly classify his stamps in the past. Numerous notes have been added and we are also informed as to the engravers of each series of stamps The main single varieties carry the same prices as those of the Standard Catalogue, and this remark applies to the minor varieties which are listed in the larger publicaton.

We note quite a few of the early pair and block prices advanced, the 10c 1847 in pair going to $175.00. There are proportionate increases in the '51 series. The 12c block unused goes up $100.00 but the used block, of which a few have come upon the market recently, drop slightly. The grilles seem to be good property and are gradually creeping upwards, as are all of the blocks of the 1869 series. We are glad to see that the 7c National in block is now priced higher than the Continental block which was not the case last year; although the National is many times rarer.

The higher denominations from 1890 onward advance and I note more particularly that each of the Columbian Dollar values move about $10.00 a block higher. In the 1894 series the two types of the dollar stamps go to $30.00 and $60.00 per block respectively, the $2.00 to $75.00 and the $5.00, which was a real rarity in block form is now priced at $150.00 and is cheap at the figure. The $5.00 stamp of the following series goes to $100.00. All of the perf. 10 varieties rightly take substantial gains and we are pleased to find that these blocks are now priced nearer to their true value than ever before. We note that the coil stamps are listed under the proper series and then again carefully listed together at the back of the book. This year they price the rare 3c 1910, perf. 12, single line watermark, in a used condition at $20.00 and the variety is well worth this figure. Unused, it is extremely rare and almost unknown. The special prints together with "Specimen" Departments are to be found and the prices upon these will surprise many. All in all the book is one that the publishers may be thoroughly proud of and we feel that they have done much to advance the interest of United States stamps.

Mr. Ira C. Holt sends for inspection quite an odd Harding variety, namely, a lower plate block of the flat plate stamp from plate 14988, where one of the figures "8" is double, caused by a double transfer, making the number appear 149888.

AUSTRIA.—Prof. M. Loewy has shown us a block of six stamps of No. 1249 with a double surcharge.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Mr. R. Roberts informs us that the 3d blue on script watermarked paper and the 1sh blue green, old watermark with yellow back experimental paper have been issued.

EGYPT.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us the 1m golden orange, 2m dark grey, 10m rose and 20m deep myrtle green in the new King Fuad. type, all watermarked multiple crescent and star.

ERITREA.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise that the set of four stamps picturing the Christ have been overprinted "Eritrea" in black for use in this colony.

FRENCH INDIA.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin report that "The current stamps for the French Settlements in India have been provisionally overprinted with values in local currency, 24 caches=1 fanon, 8 fanons=1 rupee. The stamps are on sale at the Colonial Office in Paris, but only in complete sets of both ordinary and postage dues, we cannot therefore supply one set without the other and must distribute them to new issue subscribers only in complete sets. The values are as follows:—

Ordinary stamps, 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 (two varieties), 12, 15 and 18 caches, 1 fanon 3 caches, 1f. 6c, 1f. 12c (two varieties), 2f. 9c, 3f. 3c, 6f. 6c, and 2 rupees.

Postage Due, 6, 12, 15 caches, 1 fanon 6 caches, 1f. 12c, 1f. 15c, 3f. 3c. These are overprinted on the postage due stamps of France."

The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the set overprinted above.

GERMANY.—Mr. Frank F. Smith sends us the 20 millard stamp in the current series in green with the figures of value in the centre in brown.

ITALIAN SOMALILAND.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise that the set of four large stamps of Italy with the label "Centenario di Propaganda Fide" have been surcharged "Somalia Italiana" in black with "Besa 6" on the 20c; "Besa 13" on the 30c; "Besa 20" on the 50c, and "Besa 30c" on the 1 lire.

JAMAICA.—The Economist Stamp Co have submitted for chronicle the 5sh on script watermarked paper. Also the three values of the "Child Welfare" stamps. ½d green and grey, 1d red and green and 2½d ultamarine and grey. In

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith)
W. Somerville 44, Mass.

A United States Scarcity

1914, 2c Imperf. Rotary Print, Wmkd

Scott's No. 459, formerly No. 3701.

Back in 1917 this 2c coil stamp from the rotary press coil in an imperforate condition was first discovered, although it had been issued several years before. Only a few were found and it has always been scarce and desirable. It cannot be faked from the imperforate sheet, for the rotary stamp was not issued in sheet form. There is a place for the variety in the new Scott album. Can furnish this variety, which catalogues at $7.50, at $6.50 per stamp, or $13.00 a pair. Line pair at $20.00.

20TH CENTURY U. S. COLLECTION

Offer a very attractive 20th century U. S. collection, all unused, consisting of 705 stamps, face $27.27 and cataloguing $187.12, at a special price of $75.00. A good buy for dealer or collector and contains the 1901 complete, the 1902 in many shades through the 50c, later issues nice with a smattering of $1 values. An unusually fine lot of coils and some attractive booklet plates. First check takes it. Neatly mounted in Oriole album.

Recently purchased several very fine U. S. collections. What do you need?

Over 500 Copies

of the 10c 1847 belonging to members of the Philatelic Chapter of the Noble Order of Good Scouts have been submitted for examination to help in the work of reconstructing the plate of this most interesting U. S. stamp.

If sufficient material can be examined, it is probable that 80% to 90% of all the varieties can be identified and their positions on the plate definitely located. If you haven't yet submitted the black tens you are proud to own, won't you do so, or at least write me about them. Copies submitted for sale or exchange should be priced. See previous ads.

the centre of each stamp is the likeness of a native child while at the top is the name of the country with the figures of value in each corner. Below are the words "Child Welfare" with "Postage" to the left and "Revenue" at the right.

LUXEMBURG.—Mr. R. Roberts has sent us the 37½c brown, of the Grand Duchess type, with the overprint "25" in black.

LIBERIA.—A new series of stamps has just appeared, of larger size than usual and of new designs as follow:—

1c, J. J. Roberts' monument; 2c, Hall of Representatives; 3c, "Lone Star;" 5c and 10c, portrait of President King; 15c, Hippopotamus; 20c, Deer; 25c, Bush Cow.

The official stamps are of the same designs, printed in different colours and overprinted "O. S."—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

PORTUGAL.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise of the appearance of a 40c blue, 75c salmon and 1.50e grey lilac.

TRIPOLI.—The four stamps of the set of Italian commemoratives noted above have been surcharged "Tripolitania" in black.

N. Y STAMP SOCIETY'S ANNUAL.

By N. R. HOOVER.

Dr. Lionel Hartley was unanimously re-elected president of the New York Stamp Society at its annual meeting held Thursday night, December 6th, at its club rooms, 120 W. 49th St., New York City. The other officers elected were E. R. Penschow, Vice-president; Baldwin Schlesinger, Treasurer; Joseph Hoffman, Secretary; A. M. Tannenbaum, Trustee for three years.

Two new members were proposed, and two, previously proposed, were elected to membership. The idea of conducting an auction, the commissions to go to the treasury of the Society, will be continued on the second meeting night of each month, the first to be devoted to business.

The New York Stamp Society this winter plans to initiate a series of lectures with exhibits by its members among the Philatelic Societies of the High Schools of Greater New York. The first lecture will be given Tuesday, December 11th, at the Evander Childs High School by Mr. Baldwin Schlesinger on early United States, and Mr. Joseph Hoffman, Chairman, Committee on Ways and Means of the S. P. A. on Netherlands.

THE KINGDOM OF THE SERBS, CROATS, AND SLOVENES (YUGOSLAVIA)

For the information of those concerned there is here quoted a letter received from the postal administration of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes:

"As a result of the changes of boundaries caused by the war it happens that a considerably large number of persons believe that they should add to the name of the place of destination in the address of their mail matter the note 'formerly Austria,' 'formerly Hungary,' etc.

"It also happens that articles for the southern part of our country are addressed 'Macedonia.' However, old Macedonia having been divided between Greece, Bulgaria, and our country, correspondence thus addressed arrives with great delay, probably on account of having been first dispatched to one of the two other sharing countries.

"In order to put a stop to these inconveniences, please invite the offices of the union to instruct the public in their countries never to indicate any but the present name of the country in the address of their correspondence."

PAUL HENDERSON,
Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

A BELGIAN FORGERY.

Mr. A. Brun, the Paris dealer, informs us that there is a dangerous forgery of Belgium No. 17, 1fr violet, London print, upon the market, and suggests that we warn our readers concerning it. We quote from Mr. Brun's letter:—

"Sometime ago a stamp dealer, a good friend of mine, came into my stamp shop and offered me 16 copies of Belgium Scott's No. 17, 1fr violet, London print. After looking them over I came to the conclusion that they were forgeries and that the good faith of my friend had been abused. I kept three of these forgeries and sent them with some genuine copies to the editor of L'Echo de la Timbrologie to have them photographed, enlarged and as well print my instructions as to the differences between the good stamps and the forgeries. The issue of L'Echo de la Timbrologie of Nov. 30, contains the story and it is illustrated by two enlarged pictures of the genuine and the forged stamps."

We suggest that it would be well for our readers who have purchased this stamp recently to have it expertized, and failing in this to send a dime to Mr. Brun, 95 Galerie de Beaujolais, Paris, France, for a copy of the paper referred to above.

OUR HONOR CLUB.

J. Holly Elm, Batavia, N. Y.
Perrin G. March, Cincinnati, Ohio.
S. Sanders, Tampa, Florida.
Dr. E. F. Sickenberger, Carlstadt, N. J.
Willis H. Kerr, Emporia, Kansas.

The membership list of our Honor Club is growing apace. Not a week passes but several new memberships are noted. This week our first remittance comes from J. Holly Elm of Batavia, N. Y., who is not only a collector but has had some considerable experience in dealing in stamps. He requests some of our subscription forms for use in his mail, all in all a very satisfactory letter to receive.

Perrin G. March, president of the Cincinnati Shaper Co., Cincinnati, O., writes us a very interesting letter in sending in his membership fee in the Honor Club. We think it well to quote a portion of his letter as being of more than ordinary interest:—"I noticed in a recent issue that it is desired to enroll the oldest collectors, and will say that I began collecting in 1863, when as a wee boy I had my allowance each week for blacking my shoes, cleaning my teeth, placing my clothes in an orderly manner when I went to bed, and for another item (I have forgotten what) making a total of 40c. At this time I lived in New York on West 14th St., and every Saturday walked down to City Hall Square where pasted on sheets attached to the iron fence around the park stamps were displayed and I believe by the original J. W. Scott. I then bought the three Ionian stamps for 25c and have them yet. For a period of some forty years I forgot all about stamps but I am now a general collector. I do not know the number in my collection but it must catalog close to $10,000." Mr. March asks us to pardon the length of his letter, but we beg to assure him that we like to have this intimate bit of news from one who has long been a subscriber to the WEEKLY and who thinks enough of it to renew for a five-year period.

"You may know how much I appreciate the WEEKLY when I tell you that almost the first question I ask on reaching home is, 'Has my stamp paper come yet?'" This word comes from S. Sanders of Tampa, Fla., who thus expresses his interest in our publication and supplements it with a tangible remittance of $5 for membership in the Honor Club. He says, "I am lost without your paper."

A name quite familiar to many readers of the WEEKLY is that of Dr. E. F. Sickenberger, of Carlstadt, N. J. Dr. Sickenberger is a great friend of the WEEKLY and joins the Honor Club with a remittance of $5.

Willis Holmes Kerr of Emporia, Kansas, in joining the Honor Club with his five years' renewal writes that "as a Christmas present to myself and to you if you want to take it that way, I am joining the Honor Club." We can assure Mr. Kerr that this bit of Christmas cheer is appreciated.

Five members this week.

SPECIAL CLEARANCE SALE OF XXth CENTURY ITEMS

All "mint" and in very fine condition. All are in a collection recently acquired at a figure enabling me to be generous to you. All prices are Net, but will allow a discount of 3% on orders over $20; 5% over $50, and 10% on all over $100—if at one time. Terms CASH with order. Money will be returned on any sold before I get your order. So get out your Album and send in for what you need. Did you ever notice how general and dignifiedly these issues advance in price from year to year as catalogues appear? They are safe and sound, even if they do not appeal to "Get rich quick" artists. The figures in ( ) are Scott's numbers.

HIS STAMPS MAY NOT SELL WELL

Those victims of the collecting mania ho call themselves "philatelists" often ave accused some of the little Central merican Republics of issuing postage amps with but small view to having hem stuck on letters and with a very een eye to the profits to be made from lling full "sets" of each fast-recurng series to the collectors.

Just what there was wrong in this is ot easily to be seen except by members f the philatelic fraternity, but their rievance apparently was that stamps so sued were so little related to the postal rvice as not to merit a place among al postage stamps. Nothing done by r sister republics along this line hower, has been quite so repugnant to the hics of philately as is the reported sale the Soviet Government to anAmeran of the exclusive right to sell here e innumerable issues of stamps which at Government in its brief existence s authorized.

As described many of these stamps ave an interest in themselves as they rry pictures illustrating the various hases of revolutionary history in Rusa—illustrating it, of course, as the volutionists saw what they have been oing. They are, in effect, Communist Socialist propaganda—tracts, as it ere—and so small has been the distch of letters since the Reds took conol of the country that used specimens, eaning those that have been on letters ally sent and received, will be comratively rare and therefore valuable om the collector's standpoint, while he ll regard very much askance those spected by him to have been made for n alone.

Whether or not the American who has ught this curious monopoly will make a of money out of it depends upon w the collectors decide to look at his res. He has an enormously extene stock, his varieties running far up o the thousands, but he will have ne difficulty in proving that they deve a place in the precious albums or the still more precious cards.—*N. GOSSIP OF THE MONTH.

By CORNELIUS WRINKLE.

Philatelia Unit.—There is something about a General Election which is not altogether in keeping with the traditional spirit and sentiment of Christmas. But after you have cast your vote and the excitement of the polls is over, pray accept my assurance that my warmest greetings and good wishes are yours for the Yuletide season. "Philatelia Unit" is the motto of one of the great national philatelic societies on the Continent, and though politics for a spell divide us, there is joy in the reflection that stamps provide a grateful and comforting court-plaster which will bring philatelists together again, no matter which way the political winds have blown.

I've Got a Motto.—Out of Christmas crackers there comes verses, mostly sticky in their sentiment; some day a brisk propaganda movement for philately may lead to the inclusion of mottoes of philatelic interest in these noisy emblems of Yule. I find a motto ready to hand, in the Christmas week issue of The Postage Stamp of sixteen years ago. Try it on your friends when cracker-time comes round:

Philately, you rule my life and roulette
perf-ectly,
Since I wooed you to drive away dull care it is C. C.;
In you for every ill I C. A. pana C. A. true,
Philately, were you to die I think I should Die II.

Next Year's Exhibitions.—There are to be two international philatelic exhibitions in Scandinavia during the coming year—one in Norway (at Christiania) and the other in Sweden (at Stockholm), and it is to be hoped that they be so timed that visitors from abroad may go on from one to the other. Stockholm is an appropriate centre for such a show during the forthcoming meetings of the world's Parliament of Posts, the next Congress of the Universal Postal Union being due to be held in Stockholm during the year. An influential committee of Swedish philatelists has been formed to push forward with the organisation.

Christiania in September.—Norway's exhibition, fixed for ten days in September, 19th to 28th inclusive, is arousing widespread interest, for as a holiday centre in September it would not be easy to find a more attractive centre than Christiania. The organising committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. Alf G. Johnsen, President of the Christiania Philatelic Club, has the preparations well in hand, and already the International Jury has been appointed, consisting of one representative from each of the Scandinavian countries, and one each from Britain and Germany. The judges are:

Norway.—Henrik Dethloff.
Sweden.—Nils Strandell, B. A.
Denmark.—Lieut.-Colonel Ramsing.
Great Britain.—Fred J. Melville.
Germany.—Dr. Herbert Munk.

Sweden's Preliminary Show.—Stockholm, by the way, has been having a sort of preliminary canter in the stamp exhibition line. In the spacious annexe of one of the great restaurants on the Stockholm Strand (an appropriate street this Strandvägen) there has been set out in exhibition array the wonderful collection of Swedish stamps formed by my friend Baron Erik Leijonhufvud, which is now being broken up. The President of the J. P. S. invited the owner of this great collectoin to give a public exhibition of the collection in its entirety in London before the dispersal commenced, but this could not be arranged. For the philatelists of Stockholm, however, such an exhibition has been given during the past month, and it attracted great interest. The collection was set out on stands constructed after the same manner as the recent London Exhibition, and lectures about the stamps were given twice daily during the display. Mr. H. Lichtenstein, the well-known stamp dealer of 88, Drottninggatan, Stockholm, has charge of the selling of the collection, and has compiled a well illustrated catalogue of it.

The New British Contract.—We are about to enter upon a new era in the manufacture and consequently in the philatelic history of the Georgian stamps of our own country. The presses of Messrs. Harrison and Sons, Ltd., at Hayes, Middlesex, cease work on the English typographed postage stamps ½d to 1sh (excepting the 6d, which is and will still be printed at Somerset House) on the last day of this year, and Messrs. Waterlow and Sons, Ltd., take up the work on January 1st at a newly-equipped factory at Watford. When it became known that Messrs. Waterlow and Sons had secured this important contract there were rumors that a change of the process of manufacture was intended, and some said recess-plate printing, others photogravure would be the process. Messrs. Waterlow and Sons are famous for both processes, and have extensive equipment. But there is no question of any change of process, our ½d to 1sh stamps will still be surface-printed, and although the Waterlows have been chiefly associated in postage-stamp manufacture with beautifully engraved stamps, they have had long experience of the important contract for our typographed health and unemployment insurance stamps, so the new contract will not find them unskilled in the peculiar technical requirements for our huge postage-stamp output.

Reel Printing.—The new contract stipulates for the use of a new reel-printing machine for printing the stamps to be issued in coil form. The coils hitherto have been made up by joining strips cut up from ordinary sheets, but now they will be slit from a web of printed stamps, a mile or so long. The machine that does this is the Grover Reel-Printing Machine, which uses flat—not rotary—plates, and produces as fine an impression as does the sheet printing on the usual Wharfedale machines. The web of paper is automatically drawn through the machine, and there is a halt for each impression, the successive impressions falling in perfect register, spacing, and alignment, so that in the printed web there is nothing to show where two impressions meet save printer's marks in the marginal edges, where a tiny mark notes the junction and a consecutive number keeps an accurate toll of the length of the web printed. These marks, of course, are not likely to reach philatelists, as they are slit off in the machine which slits and coils the stamps into little rolls of five hundred and one thousand stamps.

Coiling Apparatus.—Specially constructed perforating machines go with the Grover reel printing machine, working on the comb principle and held in register by an automatic device which punches slots in the margins as the stamps are printed, and these slots fall regularly on "pins" as the web is run into the perforator.

The entire arrangement from printing to coiling and sealing is carried out with extreme precision, and it is rendered practically impossible for the coils as issued to be tampered with. A danger in coil issue, if adequate precautions were not taken, is that stamps from the core of the coil might be removed and stolen, but this is completely safeguarded in the English coils. Several of the new machines will no doubt be put into operation at Watford.

Messrs. Grover and Co. are also supplying all the new comb perforators required by the new contractors.

Start Them Right.—About fifty thousand young folks will get their introduction to stamp collecting during the Christmas season, through the gifts of albums which will be bestowed upon them through the medium of Father Christmas and other interested parties. The wise parent or uncle giving a stamp album to a youngster will enhance the value and appreciation of his gift by adding the excellent shillings-worth of guidance provided in "The Boys' Own Guide to Stamp Collecting," by Mr. Fred. J. Melville, and just published by the Philatelic Institute, 26, Plumstead High Street, London, S. E. (post free 1s 2d).

The March of the Milliards.—The postage rates in Germany must have been very confusing of late to the ordinary user of the postal service. The triple-journal, "Die Ganzsache—Die Marke—Der Stempel," gives a statistical record of the rise of the postal tariff from January 15th to November 12th this year. Inland letters (other than local) which cost 50 marks at the beginning of the year cost 10 milliards of marks on November 12th; they rose, I believe, a week later to 20 milliards. For foreign letters the minimum rate on November 12th was 40 milliards.

Bon Accord.—Philatelists in Aberdeen are fortunate in having access to the finest philatelic library in Scotland, and one which is the more accessible in that it has been ably catalogued by that doyen of philatelic bibliographers, Mr. P. J. Anderson, LL.B., J. P. The library is installed in the Aberdeen University Library, and it owes its wealth of rariora, early pamphlets, and scarce files of the pioneer journals to Mr. Anderson, who has been collecting since the early sixties. In 1911, Mr. Anderson printed in the perfect typography of the Aberdeen University Press a "Rough List of Specimens of Philatelic Literature (mostly of early date) from the Aberdeen University Library, on the occasion of a lecture on philatelic literature given to the Aberdeen and North of Scotland Philatelic Society. This has now been supplemented by a "Second Rough List of Specimens of Philatelic Literature from the Aberdeen University Library," of which a limited edition of one hundred copies has been printed. In its forty-seven pages are noted many additional early rarities—most of them the personal copies purchased by Mr. Anderson at the time of their issue—and a fairly comprehensive collection of the more modern works and journals. Strangely enough, THE POSTAGE STAMP is lacking, but THE POSTAGE STAMP Handbooks are represented.

J. P. S. Silver Jubilee Banquet.—A notable date in the coming year will be May 6th—the well-remembered birthday of the postage stamp. It is the historic date which has been observed during many years as the appropriate day for J. P. S. celebrations, and this coming year this rapidly extending society will celebrate the completion of its twenty-five years of splendid enterprise. There have been many "Penny Black" banquets organised by the J. P. S. on May 6th in years gone by, but the society may be reckoned on to eclipse all its former records on the occasion of its Silver Jubilee. Full particulars of the arrangements for this great function will be announced shortly. Meanwhile, mark May 6th in your diaries as the Red Letter Day for 1924!

Why do YOU collect?—"We want a declaration of faith," wrote Mr. A. J. Séfi in his Bates prize paper at the recent Congress. Now one of the Congress sub-committees is seeking for "a concrete case to lay before the philistine and a ready answer to that question, 'Why do you collect stamps'?"

What the sub-committee really wants is a sentence or two summing up the merit there is in the pursuit of stamps. One short sentence might serve the need, but it calls for something in the nature of "inspiration."

Replies should be sent to Mr. J. Stanley Telfer, 61-62, Chancery Lane, W.C.2.

Greece before Meat.—There was "Greece" before meat at the Herts the other night, and what a wonderful collection of those dignified first Hermes stamps we saw. Ordinarily, I suppose, the average collector finds these puzzling Paris and Athens productions a little too much for his philatelic digestion, but Colonel Napier's arrangement of his collection made it comparatively easy to follow, and is certainly a model way of demonstrating the interest and significance of the various printings which have fascinated the philatelic giants from quite early philatelic times. I think the publication of Mr. Pemberton's recent and wonderfully clear little pamphlet on these stamps had prepared the company for a fuller understanding and appreciation of the little things that count in the classification of early Greek stamps. The delightful little dinner that followed was not more readily digested than Colonel Napier's elegant display.—Postage Stamp.

"ANDRE"

By Edwin B. Hill, Ysleta, Texas.

For M. C. D.

The warm weather had begun to get upon the nerves of the sufferers, who were many. I was amongst the number, naturally. It was difficult to concentrate,—even to labor mechanically. And all one's concentration was essential. That is perhaps one reason why I so persistently haunted the old second-hand shops, where books occasionally were vended,—veriest wrecks and ruins of tomes, mingled now and then with a volume worth the annexing. But these latter days, with books as with stamps, I am no purist,—I do not pass the wayfarer to await the perfect.

The rows of books did not appeal. I knew them all. I turned away, then back again. My eyes had caught a new volume, slipped between two bits of flotsam. I drew it forth. It was a copy of my beloved Charles Lamb, of whose books I often say,—"One cannot have too many copies, or too many editions!" The book was a first edition, uncut, but it had been rebound. The binding was lamb-skin, exquisitely tooled, and showing the touch of a master's hand. I paid the price, and took the volume home. A careful collation followed. Perhaps a score of pages had been replaced in fac-simile, so deftly and so beautifully done that only trained eyes could detect the workmanship, the craftsmanship so exquisite.

A few days later I was in the place again. The proprietor and I, always on friendly terms, began to discuss books.

"That book you picked up the other day," he began,—"what of it?" The man who left it here asked me who bought it. I told him it was one of our good customers,—a book-lover,—who never questioned the prices asked for books. I told him the valuation he placed on the book had been promptly paid,—for you know that book was left on consignment. He asked when you'd be likely to be in again, as he'd like to meet a real book-lover. I look for him any time. Come back and wait."

I moved to the rear of the store, where I could watch the door unseen. Perhaps ten minutes later a man entered. He was of medium height with the scholar's stoop. His face was thin and parchment-like. His dress was grey,—shirt, coat, hat, socks, shoes, all. And in his eyes were the slumbrous fires of love and peace and of that which is almost indescribable,—of self-conquered things. I liked the face. The mouth was patient, and the lips showed suffering and weariness and sweetness won through self-mastery.

He came directly to me. I arose. He put out his hand. I grasped it, and our friendship began.

"I am Andre Andre,—chemist by profession, book-lover by birth,—collector by instinct!"

Then he smiled. All the sweetness of a world long dead,—of the love that is no more,—of the generations that have been and are to be.—it was all there! Never have I seen a man's smile so full of affectionate interest.

"Yes, I collect books, and pictures, and bibelots, and also stamps," he said. "Come, let us go to my rooms."

We walked the few intervening blocks, and I was ushered into the home he called his own,—an ancient house, set close to the street, Spanish style, with the usual wide doorway and the rooms opening to right and left.

Here were books piled upon shelves,—books ancient and modern, some in as sad condition as mine own,—some as perfect comparatively as those which enrich my library, falsely so-called. But they were books!

"You love stamps as well? Even as I!" My host's voice was musical, and his words came precisely. There was a hint of the foreign in his enunciation.

Then he opened an ancient chest, and showed me his albums,— exquisitely paged and lettered, and bound appropriately, with the stamp of a country impressed into the binding.

"I bind a little,—I letter a little,—I collect a great deal."

He turned the leaves. I saw a copy of the New York five cents which caught my fancy. It was a beautiful copy, perfectly centered, with wide margins on cover.

"It has its history," Andre began. "All stamps have a history, although most are unknown to us. But this one"—He paused, looked intently at the stamp, and went on:

"Thirteen years ago I was in New York. I had then a fair collection of stamps, United States in the main. But I had no copy of the New York Postmaster's stamp. This was always a favorite with me. One day, I saw one offered in the window of a little bookshop. It was marked at a ridiculously low price. I went in, talked with the ancient fellow who sold books, and purchased the stamp. Did he have more? He did. And his word was made good. I never saw such a lot of nice things outside the great collections. He had even the St. Louis stamps, two or three! Of values he knew nothing. The stamps, on covers, came to him with a lot of books and papers from an estate.

MARKS STAMP CO. TORONTO, CANADA

"Perhaps I should have bought the lot and become rich. But I am so little of a business man I could not do so. I told him, however, of the value of his find, and offered to act for him. This he gladly consented to do. And the result of the sale was exactly $13,000 for him, in lieu of the $13 he would have taken for the lot! Gratitude? You know there is a saying, 'Gratitude is a lively sense of favors to come.' It was not so in his case. He wanted me to take half, — two-thirds, — three-quarters, but I refused. However, he promised me that if he ever made another find, I should have first choice. You know, lightning seldom strikes twice in the same spot. But it does,—the exception to prove the rule. Six months afterward I was in the store. The old man looked at me quizzically.

"You know these old book-men! Then he said he'd found another lot of stuff, overlooked before,—not much, but some good things, perhaps. And they were mine, 'as is,' he declared, for friendship. He passed the bundle over to me. I went to my rooms.

"How would you feel if Aladdin's lamp were rubbed, and the wealth of the world were at your feet? That is the thrill that permeated my body as I opened the package. Sixteen five cents, New York, on cover; nineteen ten cents, 1847, likewise,—one with steamer cancellation,—one with the most beautiful red dots you ever saw, fresh and bright as the day the ink touched it; and the '51 issue in the fives and the '57 in everything! Here—and here—and here—"

My friend turned the leaves. The stamps were gems,—perfect as the dream-come-true!

"I went back to thank the old fellow, when I had time, three days later, but he was gone,—sold out. The man in charge did not know the address, he declared; but I knew better. My old friend did not wish my thanks, I felt, so I did not press for further information.

"It was perhaps three or four years later that my work took me into one of the prominent far Western universities. There was a little spare time, and I thought I'd attend a lecture. The professor was my ancient friend! But how different! Now he was erect, no longer slovenly, and his voice was as one with authority. He saw me. After the lecture he came to me at once.

" 'Come to my rooms,' he said,—whether a request or a command I was uncertain to believe.

"Then he told me of his life. He had been a chemist. He had injured a student while conducting an experiment. He left college and, remote from his old life, he had gone into the book business, more for love than for aught besides. He had made money for his needs, and had laid away a certain sum. Then I had come into his life. The $13000 had enabled him to search out and aid the injured student beyond all expectations. And then his old college had found him and recalled him."

My friend paused. He hesitated,—then he spoke rapidly.

"What I am I owe to him. He taught me much, later,—of books and bindings and stamps,—for he had become an ardent philatelist. And of the ways of men, and their madness, and of faith, and hope. You would know him at once."

He spoke a name, in confidence. Know him? Who would not be rejoiced to know the savant,—the scholar,—the philatelist above all?

It was beyond the hour. Andre pressed my hand. "It is not we ourselves, but He who made us," he quoted in parting.

ESTHONIA.

An airmail service was established October 2, between Tallinn, Riga and Konigsberg. The air post issue was obtained by surcharging the triangular 5 marka airmail stamp of 1919, comprising five values as follows:—

5M, sur. 1923, in red.
10M, sur. on pair cut to square.
15M, sur. red.
20M, sur. red on pair cut to square.
45M, sur. red on pair cut to square.

The surcharge also bears the year 1923, and is in three different types. The 5 and 10 Marka are used for domestic use and the others for international service. The issue was very limited.

FRENCH SEMI-OFFICIAL AIR STAMPS.

To the list of semi-official air-post stamps issued under the auspices of various aviation meetings in France, has recently been added a set of six values depicting an aeroplane in flight and used on September 2, at an aerial Rally at Montpellier. These stamps were issued in denominations of 25, 50 and 75 centimes and 1, 2 and 5 francs and they were cancelled with a special obliteration reading "Montpellier—Aviation."

At another aviation meeting at Rouen on the 23rd of September, a set of six values of the same values bearing an aeroplane in flight of somewhat different design than that used at Montpellier. The special obliteration read "Rouen—Aviation."

A third set of five stamps, 25, 50 and 75 centimes and 1 and 2.50 francs was printed for the meeting at Amiens on October 7th. These were designed similar to the other two issues, and likewise bore the figure of an aeroplane in flight. The special obliteration read "Amiens—Aviation."

These semi-official vignettes are used with the full sanction of the Ministry of Posts to denote a supplementary fee upon correspondence conveyed by air, but are not in themselves capable of prepaying postage to destination, which is accordingly defrayed by regular postage stamps of the Republic.

SWISS MILITARY MAIL FLIGHT.

In connection with a Military aviation day held at Basle, Switzerland, on September 2, an aeroplane carrying mail, flew to Zurich. Correspondence carried on this trip was prepaid in the normal Swiss air post stamps, but bore in addition a circular rubber handstamp reading "Militar Flug tag Basel, 2. 1. x 23."—DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

GERMANY.

The German air post stamps in the Futurist "Taube" design are all obsolete as a result of a twenty-fold increase in postage rates, which came into force last month. A new series with greatly enhanced denominations is reported to be in course of preparation by the State Printing Works at Berlin.—DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

IRELAND.

It is not generally known that Ireland has its own air post stamp, or rather label, resembling that used by the British post-office, but inscribed "Post Aer" (in Gaelic and "By Air Mail" in English); colour, dark blue.—DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

UNITED STATES.

The popular fallacy that a large part of the unique sheet of 24 cents United States Air Post Stamps with inverted centre was lost in the sinking of the owner's yacht is dispelled by a personal letter from Colonel Green, wherein he declares that not a single stamp went down, and every one of the 100 copies is in existence today.—DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.
